Paul Rand Dixon, chairman of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, recently stated that "drug makers spend about 24 cents of every dollar they get for prescription medicines to advertise and otherwise sell their products."

Mr. Dixon said that promotion campaigns by the 20 big drug firms in the U.S. were one reason for the high cost of medicine.

Mr. Dixon doubtless knows what he is talking about. Nevertheless, we suspect that a totally erroneous impression is being created here, by lumping the cost of advertising with the cost of "otherwise" selling drugs.

Any advertising man, or well-informed merchant, knows that if the sales resulting from an advertising campaign are no greater than four times the cost of the advertising, one of two things is true:

1—The advertising is poor, either by reason of the way it is presented or the choice of the media in which it is presented.

Or 2—The advertised product is at fault, either because it is of poor quality or because it is of a kind for which there is no effective demand.

Many of the new drugs obviously meet a very real need and advertising campaigns are planned by capable men using a variety of media. It therefore seems reasonable to presume that the cost of "otherwise" selling these drugs substantially exceeds the cost of advertising. With new drugs, we would presume that the cost of keeping physicians informed of their properties is included in these "other" costs and it is likely that here is an explanation of the high cost of selling them. Surely, no person would suggest that the drug manufacturers should skimp in this most important part of their duties.

We hope, though, that nobody misinterprets Mr. Dixon's statement to mean that advertising normally costs anywhere near as much as 24 per cent of the sales it promotes.

Superannuating Old Cars

The temptation to solve a problem by passing a law has had the result, in the field of Britain, of a new trouble law on the books which puts an age limit on automobiles. STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

SOCIAL FERMENT

There is a vast ferment of restlessness in the world today. This is not entirely new. It has always existed to some extent. But, although people who drawn together by new knowledge, scientific achievements, and the spirit of the times, the whole world appears to have for one, we are restless, restless, breaking up into groups, gathering nation against nation and class against philosophy.

Periods such as this appear from time to time in history, although our present state surpasses everything that is known to date. Does this restlessness only represent those birth pains which must precede every advance in human culture? Or may it indeed be that we are approaching events of cataclysmic nature? Certainly the common people of the entire world want peace. Most of us will suffer for being allowed to go along the way we are now with ordinary contests and present opportunities. What is there beneath our life which is stirring up the whole world in unrest?

No one, of course, can answer this question with certainty. We hope that this restlessness presages the coming of better days. We know that in the hands of a loving God all things will at last be for good, and those who want to enter into peace will indeed enter into it.

But in the meantime — what of that?

Latin Grows More Popular

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

It seems a trifle strange in a day when so much is talked about intellectual decadence, but the study of Latin is increasing in popularity in the United States. Apparently this is not by any means a fad or passing whim, for appreciation of some of the values attached to study of this language.

Testimony to popular supposition, Latin never was the common language of ancient Rome, the National Geographic Society is authority for this. The Romans spoke Latin, but never did "till the ancient Romans" as the old chant used to say.

In fact, Latin was and still is almost purely a written language. It had its origin about five centuries B.C. and originally was the language of a small section of Italy called Latium. The science of philology, or study of the language, is based on the comparison of different tongues. It is the study of the origin and development of words.

A few years ago some educators feared there was a decline in the study of Latin. But the trend appears to be the other way at present. It is an interesting sidelight on Latin to know that it has just been introduced in Soviet schools.

Cancer in Girl of 14 Rare But It Can Strike Any Age

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a 16-year-old girl to have cancer? These are the signs I have or had:

"1 — Abnormal movements.

"2 — Pains on side where heart is.

"3 — Pains, in legs which last from 5 to 10 days.

"4 — Little lumps in groin.

"5 — Unusual dizziness.

"6 — At times I am very tired and I can't seem to get over it.

I am terribly worried. — K. D."

Yes, of course, it is possible for a girl of 14 (or of four, or even younger) to have cancer. It can occur at any age, but it is rare at 16. You present a formidable list of symptoms for a youngster. Many oldsters can't do as well.

Believe me when I assure you that I'm not laughing at you. I remember only too well the days when I (and not a few ages a little more than 16) was pretty thoroughly convinced that I had incurable cancer.

Sometimes I coughed. (Who doesn't?) Every time I grabbed into a mirror I looked paler than the last time. I suspected that I was losing weight. I felt "tired all the time" — except, of course, when I happened to be engrossed in something I wanted to do. I was "sure" I had to be sure that I had made up some brave little speech to have ready for my dear ones to deliver to my friends. (Literary gems, those speeches were!

All that was a long time ago. It is my hope that nowadays I would have been better off if, in those days, I had been encouraged to talk to my doctor once a year, or thereabouts, in the interest of getting over the habit of doing so and clearing my mind or even my body of whatever fantasies, real or imagined, might be preoccupying it.

I'm not opposed to young people having a fair experience with the annual visit to their doctor for their health. It's good for 'em. And for them to get used to it more likely they are to have a phase of being sure that something's wrong.

Once in a great, great while, something is really wrong. But generally speaking, if young people learn to pay reasonable attention to health signs, and take simple steps when indicated, they'll be "healthier" and establish a useful frame of mind that will last a lifetime.

It is highly improbable you have cancer. Your physician can usually tell you so, or recommend and give you relief and reassurance.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that a rye bread is good for certain type of disease when eaten over a long period. Is this true? — Mrs. Wilfred Lovell, R.M. B.M. P."

It was a time, years ago, when excessive use of rye bread could cause ergot poisoning. This danger no longer exists because of government regulations.

There are five grades of rye bread — white, light, medium, dark and pumpernickel is in the dark class. The color is usually the result of the grain and the size of the rye granules.

Actually, all classes of rye bread are healthful unless, of course, the occasional individual is allergic to rye. But then, some are allergic to wheat. Such a child is also present in rye bread.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any remedy for a condition of impotency? Once my husband was told that the cause was nervous, and a year later he was told that it's

That makes Latin, and presumably the suffering of secondary school students, practically dead. It is likely that Latin is studied to some extent in every country on earth.

Strictly Personal

Profanity Substitutes For Action

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

The voice control is generally afraid of life, as the flippant person is afraid of death; the former seeks constantly to avoid confronting the vital issues of existence, while the latter uses flippancy to avoid confronting the ultimate questions of existence.

Few persons are capable of doing good; every person is capable of doing us harm, by intention or accident; thus, the more powerful we are surrounded with, in our increasingly dense society, the more anxious we become, for the stranger is always felt as a threat, and we are more among strangers than ever. (This is why Clifton Fadiman calls the twentieth-century world as "The Age of Anxiety.")

Profanity usually more a substitute for action than an expression of it. I never words have nothing to do with obscenity — all they mean is that a man has run out of inward force doing something with his fists is doing it with his mouth.

Whenever I hear someone using the word "utopian" as a reproach, it occurs to me that to the utopian essential tasks in any society are also the tasks usually left undone — the impossible tasks — healing, teaching and governing; for to heal is to bring victory over death, one mind is ever fully educated and one man is ever fully governed for more than a generation — but it is precisely the "utopian and impossible" tasks that we value most highly.

Young couples used to be cautioned to live within their income; now they are urged to live up to their expectations.

Some day, just for the novelty of it, I'd like to meet a real American woman who comes to Paris to Paris without the name of a fine little restaurant, absolutely unknown to other tourists, where the food is excellent and the wine good.

The most uncomfortable feeling in the world is having to be grateful to someone you isn't worth it.

Inferiority is a tricky word and must be handled with delicacy; for as Albert Guerard has observed: "Ah! Klaa, are to some extent—inevitably subversive to pessimism." A subversive to pessimism."

It is impossible for a woman to be highly comfortable without at the same time appearing at least a little ridiculous; for the height of chic consists in daring to look less than one's best.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

GO RIGHT ONE!

There isn't a human being alive who does not at some time or other feel the oppressive hand of some unseen force or fear.

Hardly a day passes but what each of us asks ourself the question: "I wonder why?"

And that's just why — so that the big you in you may answer the little you in you.

It was England's Lord Nelson, sailing, who once said that when he was undecided whether to fight or not, he always fought.

And Mark Twain said: "When in doubt, tell the truth."

The mariner only knows his chart. The vast sea is a strange and awful time he sails in waters. So he keeps close to his chart and compass and goes right on.

Our little craft may seem small indeed on the vast sea of life but if our chart is at hand and our compass right, we can pass through every fear and storm.

Are you troubled? Go right on.

Are you unhappy, confused? Go right on.

Many times some of us know what we should or do, but somehow we do, and we are always glad that we have.

Most of our unhappy hours come from a lack of plan and purpose. We have no perspective by which we may bury the sleeping fleshiness of our inner nature. But once a definite program of life is set forth, we feel the rising urge of a thousand holy impulses knocking at the door of our hearts.

And these say: Go right on. And we do!

University Should Prepare Student for Useful Life

MONTREAL (CP)—A university should prepare the student "for a useful life by building his chosen profession on the foundation of the liberal arts," Prof. Leon Lortie of the University of Montreal said Wednesday at the conference of learned societies.

Addressing a session of the University Teachers of Home Economics, Prof. Lortie said since this idea is inherent in the traditional European concept of the university.

"Europe's first universities, founded in the Middle Ages, sought to express the ideal of learning for learning's sake but they also had a utilitarian purpose. They prepared students for their professions by leading them through the liberal arts to the practice of the useful arts."

He said home economics is a profession based on the liberal arts and well adapted to women.

"On the university level it should include solid, courses in the humanities as well as courses designed to make women for teaching or research work in the field of domestic science."

Prof. D. C. Bain of McGill University said many people are of aware of the scientific and professional nature of home economics or of "the broad academic preparation" of graduate home economists.

"Somewhere along the line we are not being effective in public relations."

Christ Church Parish Guild Holds Dainty 'Blossom Tea'

"What is so rare as a day in June," or at least, such were the prevailing thoughts when Christ Church Parish Guild held its annual "Blossom Tea" and sale in the parish hall yesterday afternoon, which was charmingly convened by Mrs. R. Slavin, assisted as the co-convener, Mrs. F. Lazier, who was in charge of the tea room.

The fragrant odor of lilacs and of lily-of-the-valley was equally refreshing as one entered the appropriately decorated auditorium. On every window ledge and adorning the piano were huge white baskets filled to overflowing with mauve and white lilacs, pale mauve iris and tulips, mingled with spirea branches.

Upon entering the hall the many guests were graciously welcomed by Mrs. J. B. Creegan, wife of the rector, Mrs. E. Smith, wife of the assistant rector, Mrs. Dawson, president of the Guild, and Mrs. R. Slavin, convener.

LOVELY TEA ROOM

The tea room was marked with a quadrangle enclosed by a series of grey colored chains and forming an entrance was a stately arbor, covered with fragrant pink blossomed branches and on either side of this were large basket-like mauve and lilacs, deep rose tulips and spirea branches. The long tea table was the focal point of interest and was most attractively appointed with white linen cloth, centred with an artistic arrangement of pure white lilacs. Flanking this were tall white tapering candles in tri-branched silver candelabra. Gleaming silver tea service added to this lovely setting, as did the dainty cut flower individuettes and bon-bon dishes of pastel-colored mints.

Those who presided at the silver services were: Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. A. Weaver, Mrs. J. B. Creegan and Mrs. F. Hickey.

The numerous guest tables were also most attractive with their white tea cloths, each centred with a dolly covered container which held phlox and lily-of-the-valley.

INDIVIDUAL SERVINGS

Those serving the individual plates of dainty goodies of each guest were: Mrs. J. Schofield, Mrs. K. Vandall, Mrs. J. Adams, Mrs. J. Till, Mrs. M. Boyd, Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Hurst and Mrs. A. Vagg, and those replenishing were: Mrs. A. Noakes, Mrs. R. Coates, Mrs. Bateman and Chas. G. Vanner, while Mrs. M. Thompson and Mrs. A. Watkin and Mrs. G. Burtt were in charge of arranging. In charge of marketing tea was Mrs. Heard.

Around the spacious assembly hall were the various sales booths, each one decorated in keeping with the mauve and white color scheme. At the white elephant table, where Mrs. W. Day and Mrs. R. Orne were in charge, there was an abundant array of miscellaneous articles, such as wall plaques, figurines, pictures, salt and peppers, glass vases, wood articles, dishcloth aprons and a colorful assortment of costume jewellery. There was also at this table a lovely display of hand-made stuffed animals, some of felt and others with knit coverings, including dogs of various sizes, horses, bears, "Peter Rabbit", "Chipsie" the monkey, and also "Matilda" the kangaroo, with an identical baby kangaroo in her pouch; also all sorts of miniature dolls, some with knitted dresses, others in prim satin party dresses. There were all cleverly designed and made by Miss Grace MacKenzie.

The candy booth was prettily decorated with a pendent-inating multi-colored bouquet of mauve lilacs and deep mauve tulips and also the daintily packed boxes, tiny baskets and colorful baskets of light and dark fudge, maple cream and peanut brittle were sold speedily by the ladies who were in charge, Mrs. M. Wallbridge and Mrs. A. Hall.

MECCA OF GOODIES

The homecooking, as always, was a mecca of delectable goodies, and this particular had a distinctive eye-catching centrepiece, while consisted of a wicker-work green philodendrum plant, with an artistic arrangement of artificial fruit suspended from each branch, which in turn was encircled with purple mauve and white African violets. Just to mention a few of the items for sale here were: cherry, pumpkin and apple pies, cherry topped cup cakes, bran muffins, date and butter-scotch squares, apricot and gingerbread loaves, shortbread swirl cookies and an assortment of many others; a giant sized jelly roll and there was also a lovely display of beautifully decorated cup cakes done in pastel shades, representing a pastel - colored sweetpeas and stately hyacinths in full bloom. Mrs. E. Bradshaw, Mrs. E. Hickey, assisted by Mrs. Beaty, Mrs. R. Godden and Mrs. D. Bradford were in charge of this booth.

The combined fancy sewing and children's wear table was in charge of Mrs. G. Wright, Mrs. W. Kempston and Mrs. W. Adsett and was background-ed by three lovely quilts — one in the Canadian rose design, a child's crib quilt in nursery pattern, and another, which would be appropriate for a boy's room, with appliqued sail boats. There was also a lovely assortment of little girls' and boys' wearing apparel, such as: cotton dresses; two-piece short and slack sets; colorful pinafores; baby booties; flannelette pyjamas; also a nice assortment of half style and overall aprons in broadcloth and print materials; also many dainty floral patterns, as well as numerous items in fancy sewing which included: dresser scarves; lace edged umbrellas; pillow slips; fancy towels and tea towels; chester-field fancy cushions; and even to foam lined pop bottle holders.

Mrs. R. Slavin and the members of the Parish Guild who assisted in any way are to be commended on such a delightfully successful event.

WILL CONFER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani of Italy will confer next Monday and Tuesday at the White House.

Jim, Mrs. Garbutt Wed 60 Years and Still Active In Community Affairs

An active interest in community affairs and the friendship of always looking on the brighter side are main reasons of a full and happy life.

At least this is suggested by Mr. and Mrs. James R. Garbutt, R.R. 4 Belleville, who Sunday observed the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

The day was planned as a quiet affair but it failed to turn out that way as the 150-year-old Garbutt home was thronged during the afternoon and evening by a wide circle of friends who refused to allow the occasion to pass without offering personal congratulations.

Good wishes were also received from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth; from Prime Minister John F. Diefenbaker; Premier Leslie M. Frost and from Provincial Secretary John Yaremko.

Messages were also received from Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South; Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East, and from Mayor A. M. Haig of Belleville.

SAID OLDEST IN TWP.

Since they were married back in 1901 at the bride's home in Prince Edward township, Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt have lived on the homestead which has been in the family for more than three generations. The house in which they live is believed the oldest in Thurlow township and is possibly more than 150 years old.

The rambling old farm home which set like a picture back from No. 2 highway west of the city was actually "home made" with the square cut nails used in its construction and the brick with which it is built, being made on the farm. The house is now covered with wooden siding.

Water pressure and electricity were installed about the time of World War 1 but solid masonry walls and heavy timbers made the work a tradesman's nightmare.

Mrs. Garbutt is the former Jennie Urquhart of Albury, while Mr. Garbutt is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Garbutt.

LIVESTOCK SHOWMAN

Quality sheep and swine have been raised on the Garbutt family farm for years with Mr. Garbutt being well known as a livestock showman at district fairs.

His father was widely sought after as a sheep and swine judge and he acted in this capacity at the International Livestock Show in Chicago.

His grandfather was a charter member of the original Belleville Fair Board and the Garbutts ever since have been associated with the local fair.

Golf holds a place in the sheep and swine division while Mrs. Garbutt is active in the domestic science department.

Aside from fair activities, Mr. Garbutt is a Master of long standing and has received his 50-year level from The Belleville Lodge No. 128. Mrs. Garbutt is a member of the Quinte Women's Institute and was its charter member nearly 60 years ago. She is current president of the Belleville - Prince Edward Club.

Both still enjoy good health but at 82 Mr. Garbutt admits he is "slowing down a bit." Several years ago he had the use of his 58-acre farm and expects soon to sell the remainder of his land.

STILL KEEPS HORSES

But just for old times sake he still keeps a team of horses and a few sheep.

"I'll keep the horses as long as I am here," he says.

B.G.H. School of Nursing Baccalaureate Service Held At Wesleyan Methodist Church

"My prayer for you is that your present hopefulness may never grow less, but burn more brightly with the passing of the years; so that, when your hair turns to the end of life's race your dreams will be more wonderful than your present vision; your life richer and more wonderful than present fare." This did the Rev. Dr. J. S. A. Spearman, express the sentiment of the overflow crowd of worshippers in attendance at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Everett Street, on Sunday evening, during the Baccalaureate service for the 1961 graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing.

Presiding at the organ, Miss Helen Spearman played "Largo" by Handel, for the processional in which 22 uniformed nurses participated. Following the invocation by the pastor, congregational singing was directed by Mr. Carl Green, using the hymn "Unto the Hills Around Do I Lift Up Mine Eyes."

The choir sang "Saviour Like a Shepherd" with words arranged by Haldor Lillenas. Miss Mary Spearman was the pianist and rendered the suitable "Consecration Hymn."

The responsive reading was taken from Colossians 3 using the Lord's Beatitudes, while Mr. Spearman read his sermon on Proverbs 3, the verse reading "In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

In addressing the honored guests, the speaker stated, "sometimes girlish heights are never reached—sometimes never achieved for the reason: the goal we set for our life may be lower than God wanted us to pursue; while the height was not beyond our reach, the true path to that height had not been discovered. Graduating classes, you are at the beginning of your path. While you have reached a goal of attainment, congratulations are in order, but the highest goal is not and beyond your present attainment. In all your ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct your paths. The injunction is clearly written. Here is a path that not only conditions life in the present, but it conditions life for progress to the consummation. It covers the whole area of one's life.

"Acknowledge Him — the injunction calls us to a recognition of the fact of the presence of God at every point of our lives. It means to take Him into our hearts and into our councils. It implies complete resignation to His will. It is to give Him place in all that we do, everywhere we go. To acknowledge Him is to live nobly, to possess high ideals, to live as we will intelligently submit to the loftiest tasks of life."

As an illustration of this fact, Mr. Spearman pointed to Jesus Christ, when, while He was supremely conscious of His universal sovereignty, His heavenly origin, His divine destiny, yet with basin in one hand and towel in the other, He stoops to the menial act of washing the feet of His disciples.

"Girls of the graduating class, you too have chosen the menial task that of caring for the sick—may strength be given and grace be granted to you render to men and thus to God, such service never."

"And He will direct your paths."

Weddings

McARTHUR—IRWIN

CAMPBELLFORD — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a pretty June wedding when Una Pauline Irwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Irwin, of Campbellford, became the bride of Joel T. McArthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McArthur of Trenton.

The Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church officiated, and Mrs. V. W. Archer played the wedding music. Soloist, Miss June Eaton sang "The Wedding Prayer," and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of pure white organza over taffeta, featuring a boat neckline, trimmed with embroidered crystal appliques, shirred cap sleeves, a tight-fitting bodice and long torso waistline. The full bouffant skirt was enhanced with a panelled organza overskirt, creating a lovely floating effect. Each panel was edged with embroidered appliques identical to those circling the neckline. She wore a waist-length veil, caught to a solid crystal tiara, and carried a shower bouquet of white and orchid baby 'mums with trailing white satin ribbons.

She was given in marriage by her father, Garland Irwin.

Attending the bride were Miss Joyce Maxwell of Peterborough as maid of honor and Miss Ann Crooks of Peterborough and Mrs. Thomas Messenger of Campbellford, as bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids and maid of honor were identically gowned in lilac organza over taffeta enhanced with a rounded neckline and tiny sleeves, and embarrassed with a fully bouffant skirt accented with two-tone pleated cummerbund of lilac and violet having a large bow at back with streamers. Their petalled headdresses of matching color was completed with miniature pearled crowns and caught with over-the-face veils. They carried Cathedral bouquets of [illegible] and [illegible] baby [illegible].

Mr. Robert Bank of Campbellford, was groomsman. The ushers were Mr Fred Ingram of Campbellford and Mr. William Ireland of Trenton.

The bride's mother wore a beige costume of pure silk, with blending coffee cream accessories, while the bride-groom's mother was attired in a dress of pure silk in muted [illegible] shocking pink on a white [illegible] with matching organza accessories and white accessories.

The bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to the southern United States. For her trip the bride wore a two-piece suit with short box jacket in a pastel gold tone, with beige and brown accessories.

The couple will live at 1859 Braidwood Ave., Peterborough.

Many Attend 'Northern Electric Look at Fashion' Display

Fresh and lovely as a spring morning was the parade of fashions seen last evening at the Collegiate Institute, presented under the caption, "Northern Electric's Look at Fashion", directed by Mrs. Jean Gannon, of the ladies' section, with Mrs. Edna Johnston as accompanist, and Mr. G. B. Daugherty as master of ceremonies. A delightful background to the attractive display was provided by Mr. Jim Correll who presided at the piano throughout the showing.

Mr. Daugherty extended a hearty welcome to the fine audience of fashion conscious women which approximately filled the auditorium and appreciation to the several merchants who so kindly assisted in making the exhibit possible: Artistic Ladies' Wear, Ltd; Arnold's Keel Jeweller Ltd; Vogue Beauty Salon; Dunn Drug; Treadgett; Leslie's Shoe Store, Ltd; Woodley Furriers, and Templer Flower Shop, whose potted 'mums lined the foot-lights.

MODELS

Those who modelled included: Betty Aaker; Evelyn Beesley; Lisa Brunetti; Sheila Canning; Corrine Carson; Karen Cummings; Caroline Day; Gloria Fleming; Arlene King; Stella Mersehoff; Sheila Reid; Frances Walsh and Vivian White.

The "ushorettes were: Joan Churchill; Joyce Hurst; Olive Innes; Helen Marsh; Betty Parsons; Madeline Pearce; Loyola Rowbeck and Jean Scott; while Stan Creegan; Ted Hurst; Rube Gannon and Bill Salter were door men.

The fashions included daytime wear; sports; cocktail; party and gowns for that special of all special occasions, the wedding which concluded the showing.

SATIN COTTONS

Among the cottons were the full - skirted satin cottons, gleaming like their name, with separate blouses, worn either over or inside. One was of a practical design in brown and white check with tie sash or belt; another was of green check and one of lilac polka dot an ever-popular design.

The two-piecers appeared to be the 'vogue' for day apparel with either pleated or plain skirts, and plain or striped pop-tops. The straight skirts in every case showed an inverted pleat for ease in walking. Most materials were of the drip-dry type, so good for travelling and holiday relaxation. One of the two-piece type was of powder blue with full skirt and sleeveless blouse. Necklines were of several types, bateau, jewel,

Barbecue Supper For Nine

By Mary Moore

The winner's debris plus the odd few. My hips were cleaned out of our barbecue and we had our supper in the garden on Victoria Day.

There were nine of us and the rest of them scanned at the little boys that had been swopped down the chimney (I suppose by Gary and Davy in the middle of winter) but I simply wish the children were there too.

I tried to make the menu simple but if you have allus to feed you have to work to do. I had plenty of helpers though.

BARBECUED SUPPER MENU:

Smoked Farmers' Sausage
Beef Cakes
Miss-Day Pickles
Cottage Cheese
Blackberry Jelly
Shredded Cabbage and Cucumber and Anchovy Salad with Half-and-Half Mayonnaise and Sour Cream Dressing
Buttered Sliced French Stick (heated in warming oven)
Strawberry Shortcake
Tangerine Juice
Coffee

Before the guests arrived I mixed the beef cakes (see below) and shaped them and made the dry mix for the shortcakes but did not add the milk (see below). Meanwhile Margy cut and buttered the French stick, cleaned the strawberries and put all other food into serving dishes except the salad, which I made at the last minute (see below). Pete laid the fire, fetched the garden chairs from the basement and set up the garden table.

We cut the smoked sausage into 2" lengths and fried them first to give us some fat in the pan for the

BEEF CAKES (for barbecue):

To make 9 quizzie beef cakes mix together 2 pounds ground beef, 1 egg, 1-2 cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 1-2 cup tomato juice, 1-3 cup water, 1-4 teaspoon garlic salt, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Shape into 9 large cakes (to feed 9) or any number of others you wish. Ask your sister or son to cook them in your outsize long-handled fry-ing pan until brown and crisp on the outside but still pink and juicy inside.

Cabbage, cucumber and anchovy salad (for 9).

One medium-large green cabbage, 1-2 large cucumber, 1 2-oz. can anchovies, about 1-2 cup mayonnaise, about 1-3 cup sour cream, salt. Shred the cabbage as finely as possible. Slice the cucumber paper-thin. Cut the drained anchovy fillets into 3 or 4 pieces. Combine and toss everything at the last minute.

NOTE:

The anchovies are an excellent flavorful addition to a cabbage salad.

To make enough shortcake for 9, I multiplied the recipe for Kneaded Tea Biscuits (given May 25/61) by 1 1-2 times and baked it in 1 1-2 tins. To assemble the shortcake I used 3 pints strawberries between and on top and 2 cups whipped cream. (Calories galore!)

They ate everything to the last crumb.

Margaret Sanger Has Not Mellowed on Pet Subject

By JOY MILLER

Her floor-length silk mumuu is red, but somehow it goes with her lavish red hair that needs only slight tinting as she nears 80. She's gently placid, almost dead.

But just ask Margaret Sanger if she has mellowed. The blue eyes flash with the old fire that kept her embattled birth control movement going in ¼ early years.

"Of course I haven't mellowed," she snaps. "Heck no! I was actively crusading I felt overcome simply had to believe when I said, I still do. I don't see how any thinking person could feel differently about birth control."

Then, leaning across the upper bunk, she recalls:

"When I started out, I had to be very careful what words I used. The whole subject was taboo. Even my father—an outspoken Irishman who brought me up to do my own thinking—had to use one day: 'Margaret, can't you find some other subject in the world to talk about but the bedroom?' And he whispered when he said 'bedroom.'"

THINGS CHANGED

But times have changed. The disabled Bible woman who was jailed at least nine times and had her clinic raided by police as a public nuisance was in New York to receive an international tribute from science and government leaders gathered for a conference on the "world population crisis."

One of 11 children in a poor family, she worked as a public health nurse in New York slums. It was then, unable to bear the sight of overworked mothers and their sad little children who kept coming one after another, she set out to "free the motherhood of the world."

"The most hopeful thing our work has done," she says, "is that years ago women came in to our clinics and said 'I'm in trouble.'

Now they come in and say 'I'm glad I have a baby, isn't it wonderful?'"

She has two sons and eight grandchildren, and reflects: "I've had a rich life and found people very understanding."

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Should Children Help?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—We have household help and I have never demanded any work of my children—any more than to pick up their toys and hang up their clothes.

I notice that my neighbor's girls always serve the table and wash the dishes. Just take it for granted, yet they are only eight and 10 years of age.

My husband thinks this is fine, but I say these are the years of childhood and children should be allowed to play. What do you say, Doris?—NO SLAVE-DRIVER.

DEAR NO SLAVEDRIVER:—Remember two things: Childhood years are years to learn as well as play in; and work can be fun.

The lesson about Tom Sawyer and the white-washed fence still holds true. Whether it's work or play depends on the approach. Painting a fence—chopping wood—washing dishes—what's the difference? Every job can be learned and enjoyed. You are preparing the homemakers of the future.

Don't deny them the thrill of accomplishment nor the ability to swing into such tasks with the ease that comes of old habits. I have one friend who allowed her three-year-old twins (a boy and a girl) to help with the dishes only if they were good! Now they are 18 and still fall in for duty after dinner with a rare show of owning the place.

DEAR DORIS:—My husband is an only child. His mother is completely demanding, possessive and selfish and I find even an ordinary conversation with her impossible to carry on. She is never finished criticizing me, no matter what I do.

This part I can cope with, but how can I help my husband be less upset and hurt by her? She upsets him regularly every couple of weeks and then (and only then) he becomes moody and uncommunicative.

I think she is prematurely senile and if he could once realize that she is abnormal, possibly he would get a better perspective on the problem she creates for him—TRYING TO COPE.

DEAR TRYING:—Senile or not, she is showing marked symptoms of childishness. As an only child your husband has been the centre of her life and she has indulged herself, not him, in trying to run his life.

Now she resents you, the intruder. When she upsets him you must be twice as steady. He will learn into the comfort of your understanding love.

Stick it out. You have the upper hand. Remember about the hare and the tortoise? The steady old tortoise won the race in the end!

Urges Council Of Women Aid Hunger Fight

By DEIRDRE MUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR (CP) — The National Council of Women was urged Wednesday to assist a five - year Canadian campaign for freedom from hunger.

Mrs. W. A. Riddell of Toronto urged 150 delegates attending the five-day meeting to support plans set out in a speech by Mitchell Sharp of Toronto, national chairman of the Canadian Freedom for Hunger campaign.

"Set your sights not on removing world hunger, which is almost impossible to comprehend," Mr. Sharp said, "but upon some specific task that will help to remove the fear of hunger from a few fellow men."

Mr. Sharp said his committee, part of a world-wide movement being co - ordinated by the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome, could select a financially feasible project for the council.

Mrs. George A. Klinck of Toronto asked members to assist the campaign by donations and arranging programs and meetings to discuss problems related to the Food and Agriculture organization.

STUDY LIBRARY

Elizabeth Long of Winnipeg asked the council to study financing of a library service which would be incorporated as a separate educational non-profit organization linked with the council.

Five years ago the council decided to organize a national information service for women similar to 60 others in various countries," she said. "So far, members have collected 1,500 books as well as documents, pamphlets and clippings.

"When the library is fully organized we will offer books for research and a mailing service for members."

The library committee includes Elizabeth Morton and Marian Royce of Ottawa, Mrs. John Diefenbaker and Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There are some parents who exploit God instead of explaining Him. They use God as a kind of cosmic truant officer. These unimaginative parents fall into three groups: Those who make God into an administrative assistant, a policeman in the sky, or a personal bodyguard.

Those for whom God functions as their administrative assistant, "call upon Him" to get the child to do something they want done, but cannot get him to do. Sorry results of this kind of divine exploitation abound.

Think of all the adults who have thrown God out of their lives because He represents someone "who gets you to do things you don't want to do." Not a few of the so-called illegals of our generation who have rejected a religious code of life as fantastic are products of elders who weakly loaded their parental responsibilities into some heavenly assistant.

Children who are told that "God wants them to do this" must first be taught why their parents want it, why such behaviour is not only expected but beneficial.

Most of us have met parents who use God as "a policeman in the sky". This is the product of moral laziness. God is fashioned into a parental agent of wrath.

The child is constantly harangued with the threat, "God will punish you!"

Hirsutism religion makes little sense to children who are seeking security and dependability. It may frighten the devil-out of our children. But forever after God seems to be the devil's sponsor: his face wears a thousand fiendish masks.

Children also are misled by the pernicious view fashions God into a "personal bodyguard." This child is taught to think of Him as an invisible, powerful, private overseer, who will save him from harm.

To be sure, God is known intimately as a friend and watchman, but only for those near and dear. Emotional breakdowns among adults often reveal this warped teaching in the formative years.

The test of vital religion always arises when trial and tragedy enter our lives. Often, those who imagined themselves faithful believers in God, on looking at the face of death and sickness, suddenly discover that they have nothing to believe in.

They always have relied on God as their personal bodyguard and cannot understand why tragedy has come to them.

When a child cries, "Why didn't God watch over it?" when rain spoils his picnic, the wise parent answers by explaining the purpose of rain. The child must learn that life's goodness does not consist of what gives him pleasure, safety and happiness. Others, the parents must insist, have a stake in these things, too.

If our homes give our children the feeling of security, if they confer status upon them, if they teach respect for others, if they give meaning to dependability, if they radiate warmth and hope, if they teach the spirit of new adventure, if above all they are loving, and beloved, then we are helping our children find God.

And their God will be experienced through actions that speak louder than words.

C.G.I.T. Hold Parent Night, Fine Banquet

WELLINGTON—The leaders and girls of the Wellington C.G.I.T. held a successful mother and father banquet in the Wellington United Church Sunday school room on Friday evening, May 25th.

The girls and their parents were seated at daintily arranged tables, decorated with bouquets of spring flowers. There were fan place cards for the mothers and black top hats, made from bristol board, for the fathers. The fathers had a little cane and grey gloves for their boutonnieres, while the mothers were presented with, a corsage made by the girls.

The ceremonies of the evening began with a toast to the Queen. The Rev. A. Poulter said "grace" and after a delicious meal, president Carol Allison introduced the speakers for the evening.

A toast to the church was given by Velma Vandewater, treasurer and was responded to by Mr. Poulter.

The toast to the mothers and fathers was proposed by Miss Rhonda Fox and responded to by Mr. Bev. Gibson. Miss Brenda Kimball proposed the toast to the servers to which Mrs. James Dick responded.

The toast was called on Miss Jane Singleton to present a farewell gift to Mrs. A. Poulter who has a past leader and who is retiring with her husband.

Mrs. Poulter graciously thanked the girls for their thoughtful gifts.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the evening, Douglas Trumble, B.A. a former Grade VII teacher of Wellington school, was introduced by Miss Beverley Hicks. Mr. Trumble's topic was, "What Christ Can Mean to a Teenager".

In his fine address, Mr. Trumble stressed the need of Christ's leadership in the teenager's life of today, because of what is happening all over the world, especially to these teenagers under communism and fascism rule.

He emphasized reading the Bible and gaining knowledge of Christ and His teachings and being this wisdom they have gained.

The president thanked Mr. Trumble for his inspiring address. Miss Carol Allison, mistress of ceremonies welcomed Mrs. Barbara Jandrews and her Senior Explorer girls who are ready to join the C.G.I.T. Mrs. Jandrews thanked the C.G.I.T.

The evening concluded with a brief worship service led by Miss Connie Boyle, secretary.

The meal was prepared by the mothers and served by six ladies of the church. A special vote was expressed to these ladies who were: Mrs. James Dick, Mrs. William Adams, Mrs. Eileen Shannon, Mrs. Gerald Gibson, Mrs. Hilda Taylor and Mrs. Jack McNeill.

Praise should be given to Mrs. James Burt and Mrs. John D. McKenzie for their excellent leadership this past year.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. W. L. — When he does out, it never dawns on him to invite me along.

Mr. W. L. — After 40 years, nobody else wants my company!

Mrs. W. — We've been married 40 years and have raised six fine children. In this world days, when we lived in a cold-water flat and I was always busy with the kids, Warren used to get in the way when he was home. So I would tell him to go to a movie, or join his friends at the settlement house in our neighborhood.

But now the hard work is over. The children have moved away. I'd like Warren to take me out, but it never enters his head. It's true I can't go out much yet, because I'm recovering from an operation to repair a rupture I got from such heavy work. Still, I know, he wants to keep on going out alone.

Mr. W. L. — Why is she complaining now? This is what she wanted, what she asked for. She wanted me out of her way, and now it's a habit. She's the one who got me used to going out alone.

She could have come along with me years ago. The kids didn't really need her around that much. The older ones could have minded the younger ones while she took a walk with me or went to a show. But no. She never thought of that. Her every thought was of the children.

I admit she did a nice job with the youngsters. But she should have realized the time would come when she'd have to think of something else. Now that she can't work on the kids, she's trying to change me.

The Council — People aren't concrete, we might remind Mr. L. So however set the mold of behavior is, it can be changed. But we're not silly putty either, and Mrs. L. can't smooth her husband's hebits back into the pattern she'd like, after ignoring the design for 40 years.

The thing for both to recognize is that human needs remain the same. What may change is the way they're satisfied. Mr. and Mrs. L. needed companionship but, up to now, sought it and found it from others rather than from each other; she, from their children, he, from the cronies she met sightlessly turned him to depend upon.

The truth is that Mr. L probably suffered the same pangs of discovery years ago, that Mrs. L. is experiencing now. At the same time as she is pleading for some new togetherness from him, she must recognize the old feelings that led his feelings. Silence, it is she who must pour forth the more generous quantities of tenderness and solicitude. His own upsurge of feeling may be slow in coming.

But respond it will, we are fairly confident. He, too, may welcome a chance to end the marriage to the centre track children or no children, every day in a marriage should be dedicated to closeness between husband and wife. Instead, Mrs. L. used the children as a divisive force, keeping Mr. L. a lonely distance. And he, in turn, put up no protest, accepted dismissal and may even have liked it. Now they each face old age. The two separate courses, the diverging routes, are barren and lonely. Every move they make must be to converge the paths. That's the wonderful thing about marriage. No matter how many snafu's the partners pull, there's usually "another chance." After all these years, it will be nice to hear that Mrs. and Mr. L. are once again "keeping company."

MODERN MANNERS

QUESTION BOX

Question — My husband and I are having a reception to celebrate our thirtieth wedding anniversary — Do you tell me who should stand first in the receiving line. There will be just the two of us and I don't want to do the wrong thing. It is to be held in our home, and I would like to know if I should wear a hat? Mrs. J. D. C., Toronto, Ontario.

Answer — You should stand first to greet your guests, as you are the hostess. A hat is never worn when you entertain in your home.

Question — Now that leaves thus has rolled around again, I wish you would express your views about how it should be served. At a luncheon yesterday, my glass was placed on a small coaster. There was no room for the spoon, except in the glass. I do not like to see a spoon sticking up in the air in the glass, but what to do? — Mrs. L. H. B., Detroit, Mich.

Answer — Iced tea should always be served on a saucer, never a coaster. Some etiquette experts say to leave the spoon in the glass. I am against this rather stupid idea because it is not only awkward, but you are bound to give yourself a poke in the eye if you aren't careful. However, if tea is served on a coaster, the only recourse is to place the spoon across the top of your plate. Do not place it on the table.

It provides a minimum term of seven years and up to life imprisonment for those convicted of illegally importing drugs into Canada, or of exporting them later to the United States or other countries. Thus would be created a new crime —not specified now.

The penalty for trafficking now is a maximum of 14 years in prison. It would become life imprisonment, although no minimum term is stated in the bill.

The proposed terms are not excessive, Mr. Fulton said, in view of the nature of the crimes.

By such action the government would rank drug smugglers and traffickers—in terms of maximum punishment —with those convicted of kidnapping, attempted murder, manslaughter, rape, robbery and abortion.

Even this didn't go far enough for John Diefenbaker (PC—Bonavista-Richmond), a lawyer. He said the death penalty, as an alternative to life imprisonment, would be provided for trafficking. A life term isn't enough by itself, he said.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) called the bill a realistic and modern approach to narcotic addiction. But he suggested that doctors be given legal authority to provide a cost a minimal dose of narcotics for addicts' needs to throw off "the horrible craving".

Jack Leslie (L — Niagara Falls), a woman lawyer, also commended the government approach. But she said it also should be a "one-two-three approach —one with two faces.

"The stern face should brook no opposition to the stamping out of this social evil, and this stern face should be shown to those who, for venal purposes, for the purpose of making money only, prey upon the disability of other persons.

All Canadians will wish that the second face which is turned toward those who suffer from addiction be firmly kind and secondly, kind."

Mr. Fulton appeared to reject Mr. Winch's suggestion of administered narcotic doses for addicts. He said this has been studied by not only the 1956 Senate committee but also by United Nations and American bodies, and all of them rejected the idea.

The minister also turned down suggestions, apparently made elsewhere, for segregation of addicts for life if they are convicted of possession of illegal narcotics.

Mr. Fulton said such a system would be bad in principle—it clearly was against the philosophy of reform. It would also be costly, since 2,000 addicts would be involved and it would cost $6,570,000 a year to keep that many in maximum security prisons.

Heavy emphasis will be needed on care of addicts after they are released from treatment centres, Mr. Fulton said. They would need jobs—without which, they would return to addiction and petty crime. He appealed for the public's "intelligent and sympathetic support" of the program.

The Commons barely got started with clause-by-clause study of the bill before its 6 p.m. adjournment. Today, the House will turn to debate on transport department estimates.

CRITICIZES LENDERS

BURLINGTON (CP) — Kenneth Bryden, CCF member of the provincial legislature for Woodbine, told a New Party meeting Wednesday the second mortgage field in Ontario is a paradise for shysters, usurers and loan sharks. Mr. Bryden said reputable firms in the business are outnumbered by thoroughly unprincipled, operators who prey on the ignorance and gullibility of their fellowmen."

Former Purchasing Director Of Union Nationale Govt. Tells of 'Kickbacks' Given

QUEBEC (CP)—Alfred Hardy, 54, former director of the Quebec province purchasing bureau, said Wednesday former premier Antonio Barrette made recommendations for kickbacks, under the guise of "sales commissions" on government purchases, to be paid certain persons.

He told a Quebec royal commission the system of suggesting government - recommended names for sales commissions has been in operation as long as he can remember and it existed under the 1939-1944 Liberal administration as it did under the Union Nationale.

Specifically, he said, the system existed with regards to government purchases from J. R. Rolland et Fils, stationary supplies.

Mr. Hardy, now employed with the Quebec transport department, entered Quebec government service in 1937 during the first Union Nationale 1936-1939 regime. He was appointed assistant director of the purchasing bureau and in 1949 became director.

GAVE NO DETAILS

The former government director refused to produce documents or give details of the sales in which persons recommended by Mr. Barrette received commissions.

He was answering questions in a cross-examination by lawyers Dionne, counsel representing the Union Nationals party.

He said Mr. Barrette recommended Charles Lamarre and Maurice Verrette for sales commissions.

Mr. Hardy identified Charles Lamarre as a waiter at the Chateau Frontenac Hotel in Quebec City but when asked to describe his function further an objection was raised by the UN counsel on the grounds Mr. Hardy had no personal knowledge of the matter. There was no further identification of Maurice Verrette.

Names of two others who received sales commissions were mentioned by Mr. Hardy, they were Roland Thivierge and Richard Castin who, he said, were recommended by Jacques Cargnin, executive secretary to Mr. Barrette during his first administration. No details were given.

FOLLOWED SUAVE

Mr. Barrette was Quebec premier following the death of Paul Sauve. His administration was defeated by Premier Jean Lesage's Liberals in the June 1960 elections.

The name of Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale member for Bagot in the Quebec legislature and former hydraulic resources minister, came up earlier during Mr. Hardy's testimony.

He said Mr. Johnson recommended certain persons to the purchasing bureau as suppliers but gave no details.

Kennedy About Ready to End Moratorium on Nuclear Tests

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Kennedy is mapping out a new atomic tests policy, concluding that after almost three years of conversation the Russians have become ready for an attitude that virtually eliminates further hope of an effective test ban agreement.

It is understood Kennedy is ready to end the United States moratorium on underground tests. But despite domestic pressure to proceed with new explosions, he is moving cautiously partly because of urgings by Canada and other allies against new tests and partly because he doesn't want the conversations with the Russians to end.

Kennedy wants to keep open as many doors to the Kremlin as possible. A pattern of engaging the Communists in conversation or negotiation — even if this produces nothing but talk — seems to be one of the key foreign policy characteristics emerging from the new U.S. administration.

Kennedy knows the mere presence of members of the Western and Communist blocs around a negotiation table, as at the Geneva conference on Laos, does not stop Communist power plays. The Communist forces in the southeast Asian kingdom have continued to capture ground despite the ceasefire that was supported to be in effect there.

But the feeling apparently is that the fighting would be no more widespread in Laos if it were not for the Geneva conference.

To give the appearance of wanting to agree that Laos be protected as a neutral country, the Communists have had to go through the effort of showing willingness to consult and negotiate on terms of neutrality.

GAINS TIME

Meanwhile, as Kennedy continues to engage the enemy in talk, he has time to build up strength on his side, time to increase Army and Canadian forces and time to persuade allies to strengthen and unite behind the forces of freedom.

But in the case of the nuclear test ban negotiations time seems to be running out. Kennedy has the problem of U.S. public opinion to consider.

He has made clear to Americans people that Soviet Premier Khrushchev feels continuation of the present nuclear negotiations at Geneva is futile. Russia will not vote on inspection and control against sneak explosions. It wants to tie a nuclear test ban to a grandiose scheme of world disarmament.

Kennedy is eager to engage the Russians in a new series of talks on disarmament. But that won't tie his hands. He already has set into motion an increase in U.S. military expenditures.

In the case of the nuclear negotiations, Kennedy would be prepared to embark on a "test-and-talk" phase but he doesn't want to give the Russians any opportunity of making propaganda headway from any decision the U.S. may make. His present mood is one of caution.

U.S. May Order Large Shipment From Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Army plans to purchase large orders in Canada for a new half-ton vehicle providing Canadian development it is up to standard requirements.

The Canadian government will pay for development costs.

Army officials said once the vehicle is in production in the factory under testing, the U.S. Army would place a large order for them under production arrangements to be worked out later.

The vehicle is needed to replace the M-38 Wessel new vehicle used by the army for a number of years. The new vehicle is to be used on snow and for river crossings.

It will be light enough to be carried in a cargo plane or lifted by helicopter and could be used in northern climates by two ski troops. It also could be used as an ammunition carrier, for reconnaissance and other purposes. It will be tested and may be powered by a gas engine.

In Ottawa, Defence Production Minister O'Hurley said the Canadian government is studying the matter with two Canadian firms which are interested in developing the vehicle.

He said the U.S. proposal was "very preliminary indeed" but details of the development arrangements could not yet be announced and he declined to identify the firms.

GETS SEWAGE LOAN

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal loan of $38,667 for a Port Colborne sewage project was announced Wednesday. The interest rate on the 20-year loan is 5¾ per cent annually.

SHE'S "MISS EUROPE"—Ingrun Mieckel, 19-year-old blonde West German model, won the title of "Miss Europe" in Beirut, Lebanon. An international jury picked her from among 17 beauty queens competing in the European contest which she won last year. Ingrun, 5 feet 9 inches, was the tallest girl in the competition. Her measurements are 35½, 23 and 35½ inches. (AP Wirephoto).

Construction Strike Hits Work on Toronto Subway

TORONTO (CP) — Work on Toronto's east-west subway is expected to stop completely today as a boasting project battle between immigrant workers and contractors dribbles over into commercial construction.

Union strikebreakers for the subway workers had agreed not to stop work while Commissioner was conducting peace talks, but the men refused Wednesday to go along with their union and walked away from the sprawling tunnel site when encouraged by pickets from the construction jobs wearing ominous signs bearing only a question mark.

More than 100 underground workers left the posts immediately.

The subway picketing was aimed at ready - mix cement suppliers on the subway job who refused to honor picket lines around spartan-guarded construction.

Unions involved in the original strike which began May 29 are bricklayers and contractors have broken wage agreements with men in general construction workers more than 1,000 times.

Premier Frost and chief conciliation officer Louis Fine began to confer with leaders from both sides, soon after the walkout paralyzed nearly all residential projects in the city.

Ralph Gallagher, secretary-treasurer of Local 183 of the International Laborers' Union (CLC), said he was "very disappointed" that the men had not followed union orders. He said he could no longer control the workers.

A spokesman for the Toronto Building Trades, representing the contractors, said Wednesday night "These fellows are looking for a lot of trouble and they're going to get it. We are really going to fight this type of irresponsible action."

Religious Broadcasts Called 'Just Awful'

HAMILTON (CP)—Three Hamilton radio station executives were invited to give their opinion Wednesday on religious broadcasts they were flattering and one called them "just awful."

Appearing on a panel at the annual meeting of the Hamilton conference of the United Church of Canada were T. E. Darling, manager of radio station CHML; Jack Hill, program manager of radio station CKOC and Jack Burchett, production chief for CHCH-TV.

Mr. Hill, who termed religious broadcasts "terrible ... just awful" said they lacked imagination. His station had failed in an attempt to gather the best religious programs, perhaps because of the lack of a professional liaison agent.

Mr. Darling suggested church broadcasts as they exist today be abolished.

"I don't believe a great deal can be done to improve church services to make broadcasts of them better."

$4 Per Capita Automatic Grant Urged by CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC spelled out a formula Wednesday under which the publicly owned corporation would be financed by federal statute over a five-year period, rather than by annual parliamentary grants.

The corporation, in a document tabled at a meeting of the Commons broadcasting committee, said it favors an automatic grant of $4 per capita of population in the first year, with the amount increasing five per cent a year.

This would replace the present system under which the CBC submits annual estimates to the treasury board for screening. After estimates have passed this board they must then be approved by the tabled House Parliament.

Alphonse Ouimet, CBC president, told the committee that under the present system of annual grants "it is difficult for the corporation either to conduct its day-to-day operations or its long-range planning with either maximum efficiency or economy."

The CBC president said future needs of the corporation dictate that about re-quarters of its net income will have to be provided by public funds.

Mayor McBride Of Peterborough To Take Action

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mayor Stanley McBride said Wednesday he would look into the membership of the Canadian Retail Coal Association about its association with local musicians.

E. B. Higgins, the association's organizing director, declashed Monday with the Peterborough branch of the American Federation of Musicians over the number of musicians that would accompany conversion entertainment.

Mr. Higgins wanted one piano player. The union held out for five accompanists. They settled on three.

The association, said Mr. Higgins, would file formal complaints with Mayor McBride and the chamber of commerce and may boycott the city in the future. Many of the 150 conversion delegates, however, expressed a wish to return here next year.

Wheat Shipments to China Will Go Through on Schedule Due to Quick Action by Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's concern over technical problems involved in dumping 40,000,000 bushels of wheat at Red China's doorstep seemed to be allayed today.

But easing of the situation that flared up when the United States refused to let American-made pumps be used on grain-carrying tankers bound for the Communist mainland came only after Canada assured itself that shipments would go through on schedule.

As it turned out, there were only 10 grain - handling pumps involved. And within a day, the government found a Canadian company that would fill the order in three weeks, if necessary.

The bulk of the order will move by rail from the prairies to the west coast. No special gear is needed for them to unload grain at the Chinese docks.

Only two tankers on the St. Lawrence, under charter lease by Red China, are affected by the U.S. ban that came into force when Washington ordered five of the pumps returned to the U.S. before they were being loaded on a Norwegian tanker in Quebec earlier this week.

CAN BE OBTAINED

At a press conference Wednesday, Agriculture Minister Hamilton said the portable pumps could be obtained from Bell a Woodstock, Ont., company and that Canada would assist Canadian ships in Red China, by air if necessary, to make sure the two tankers could be refitted when they reached their destination in a few weeks.

After all - night studies with government technicians, Prairie-vey or System Limited of Moose Jaw, which had made pumps on a customs basis before, had given assurance it could produce two a week. These would be half the required capacity, or 300 tons daily, taking 14 days to unload a 82,000-ton tanker if five were at work.

Mr. Hamilton said the two tankers—one at Quebec and the other due to arrive at Montreal Sunday—met five of the 12,500 pumps. They are of Norwegian registry.

He said the problem was really Red China's but "like a good salesman," Canada was eager to help in hopes that delivery could be telescoped into the shortest possible time.

Both Mr. Hamilton and Prime Minister Diefenbaker hastened to point out that Canada under stood the United States stand.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the U.S. was fully entitled to apply the ban to American companies within its borders.

CAN PROCEED

However, the wheat shipments would "proceed without interruption—delay," he told the Commons.

He also told the whole question had been blown out of proportion and that the American action had already been interpreted in some quarters. It bore no parallel with previous cases involving Canadian subsidiaries of American firms, he said.

"The Americans have been very good locally," said Mr. Hamilton. An external affairs spokesman said the interview of Canadian Ambassador Merchant Heeney at Washington had only been a discussion and not a protest.

On the strength of that discussion, the minister reported that the U.S. government was reconsidering the ban.

A Norwegian foreign office spokesman confirmed that his country had lodged a protest against the action because the sale had been to Norwegian ships.

He said Norway was aware of the U.S. law banning trade both with Red China and with countries trading with that country. But it was felt that this was a borderline case because the grain pump would remain the property of the Norwegian ships.

Nobel Prize Winner Says Creativity Hampered in West

MONTREAL (CP)—A Hungarian-born winner of the Nobel Prize said Wednesday that knowledge would not be such a scarce commodity in the West "if we had spent half as much money on education as on our understanding as we have on the retarded children."

Addressing a panel discussion at the third World Congress of Psychiatry, Dr. Albert Szent-Gyorgyi said the development of outstanding creativity is greatly hampered "by misplaced ideas about democracy, according to which we are all equals."

Dr. Szent - Gyorgyi, who left Hungary when the Communists established their regime after the Second World War, said "nature is not democratic at all. The fact is that the fact is concerned does not make us all equal."

The Nobel laureate lives in Woods Hole, Mass., where he works with the Marine Biological Laboratories. He won the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1937.

He appeared on a panel with two other Nobel Prize winners in medicine, Dr. Adrian of Britain and Linus Pauling of the United States—discussing where men go wrong.

WORKS IN SLEEP

Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi said many ideas come to him in the subconscious.

"I go on thinking about my problems all the time, and my brain must be going on thinking about them even in the middle of the night."

A research lead to be an egotist, wanting to solve a problem just for the sake of the solution, regardless of possible benefit to himself or mankind.

"If my student comes to me and says he wants to be useful to mankind and go into research of how to relieve human suffering, I invariably advise him to go, rather, into charity."

Mr. Pauling agreed that ideas spring from the subconscious and encouraged students train their mind to work on an unsolved problem.

Nevertheless, the world needed both kinds of people, for any kind of science will stagnate unless a new outlook from time to time."

OTTAWA (CP)—Italian undersecretary of state for emigration, Ferdinando Storchi, will visit Canada June 11-20, the Italian embassy announced here Wednesday. Mr. Storchi will visit Niagara Falls June 16 and 17.

Tests Show Two Children Are Contaminated

TORONTO (CP) — Tests on children exposed to radium compound taken from a warehouse here have shown that they have traces of radium contamination in their bodies, one of the examining specialists said Wednesday.

The most seriously affected was a boy and plans were being made to place him in hospital for treatment with drugs in an attempt to reduce the amount of radium salts in his body.

The two with 12 others got the noxious powder during the weekend from a warehouse in the west-end Toronto Christian Ave., area. They scattered 500 vials of it around, getting some of it on themselves.

Wednesday, 10 inspectors from the health department joined detectives in an intensified search for traces of the compound in the area. They also started an investigation under the Ontario Mining Control Act.

Police got a list of places the children visited.

Dr. Jack Schmidt, Ontario department of health physicist, said: "Since yesterday we've many more people who have come in contact" with the powder. He didn't say how many more people might be contaminated.

The other 10 children tested Wednesday are not believed to be in danger, but complete results of tests at the University of Toronto's atomic energy project six will not be known for three days.

A company official said the vials had not been used since 1946. A department of health physicist said the radium would have deteriorated little since then.

DESERTION CHARGED

QUEBEC (CP) — Twenty-two Canadian crew members of the Norwegian freighter Wheat King have been charged with desertion after walking off the vessel three minutes before it was to sail for London, Eng., Tuesday night. A spokesman for the Seafarers International Union said the men walked off because the vessel was undermanned. The ship's officers said they have letters from the SIU agreeing to the number of crewmembers the vessel should carry.

Walts Win Over Flyers

PICTON (Special) — Picton Walts shelved RCAF deep of into the Belleville and District softball leagues when they here last night by blanking the Flyers 5-0.

The Walts backed veteran Pat Marcele with a sound defensive and a timely attack that plated two runs in the fifth inning and another trio in the sixth. That was all Marcele needed as he set the Flyers down with five hits, striking out eight and walking none.

Big Bob Butterfield started and lost for the RCAF, tagged for all the Picton runs and six of their seven hits in five and a third innings. Howie Cole gave up one hit, struck out three and walked none in relief.

A lacaded doubles by Hayden ignited the Picton rally in the fifth. Hayden went out, but a walk and Hawker's home run opened up a 3-0 lead.

K. Stacey singled with one out in the sixth and Heffer's man's sacrifice bunt led to an error, putting two on base. Marve Stacey drove both in with a terrific blast to centre field, good for a triple. An error plated Stacey for the 5-3 score before Hayden singled and Weese walked to bring on Cole.

The Flyers never threatened too seriously, their best chances coming in the third and fifth frames when they got two men on base. Two were out both times however and Marcele bore down to preserve his shutout.

Playing coach Denny Hayden rapped two doubles and a single to pace the winners' attack. Kelly Stacey singled twice Marve Stacey tripled and Lloyd Hawker homered to complete the hitting.

STEELERS BEAT WAMZA

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Steelers scored three goals in the first half and another in a wild second half to defeat Toronto Italia 4-2 in an Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League game Wednesday night. 874.20.

Don Harris' timely single in the last inning gave Latta a 3-2 victory over Shannonville last night. Harris drove in all three Latta runs with his two singles.

Shannonville scored single runs in the first and third with Latta tying the score in the fifth with a pair.

Howie Meeks hit a single for the winners and starred in the field pulling down hard-hit balls. Lorne Cronkwright and Doug Hollins both hit singles for Latta.

Billy Hill went the route for Shannonville with Stan Hess hurling for the winners. Stub Barrett and Doug Rollins were the respective catchers.

Al Fans Take Digs At Brass

MONTREAL (CP)—A federal cabinet minister took a tongue-in-cheek swipe at the Montreal Alouettes front office Wednesday night at a $10-a-plate testimonial for Sam Etcheverry.

Postmaster-General William Hamilton, a prime mover in organizing Montreal's reluctant goodbye to Etcheverry, said:

"I thought of the banquet but I suppose I could have suggested something like blowing up the Alouettes offices."

One other speaker was more biting in his reference to the Montreal front office dealing off the popular Etcheverry.

Etcheverry's ex - teammate Alex Webster, pals Al owner M. E. (Ted) Workman and general manager-coach Ferry Moss should have been there for "the other big meeting at the hotel tonight."

The third world congress of psychiatry was the hotel's only other major assembly.

WINS $75,000

TORONTO (CP) — Hidden Treasure, the hard-running four-year-old colt owned by W. J. Beasley of Toronto, boosted his lifetime earnings to $97,580 Wednesday when he won the $7,500 Jacques Cartier Stakes at Near Woodbine. Hidden Treasure ran six furlongs in 1:12&4 to defeat Reactor by three-quarters of a length.

The Beasley colt, which captured eight stakes races in Ontario during the 1960 season, paid $2.30, $2.50 and $2.30.

The daily double paid $154.40 as Swamp Fox and Roman Whirl won the first two races. The quinella of Royal Ivory and Rough Reward in the fifth paid $74.20.

Marlins Jets Race For Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battle for the International Baseball League lead is becoming a personal war between Columbus Jets and Charleston Marlins.

Each has won seven of their last 10 games, and the Marlins' lead has see-sawed back and forth between two games to a half-game edge since they regained the top late last month. Charleston now has a 2½-game edge and if it wasn't for Ray Medina the Jets might be 9½ behind today.

Medina crashed his second homer of the game against Buffalo Bisons in th 10th inning Wednesday night for a 7-6 victory by the Jets while Charleston got a fine pitching job from Hal Deida, in a 3-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Rochester Red Wings bombarded Jerry Clay Jerseys 10-4 while Richmond Virginians and Toronto Maple Leafs were rained out.

Medina, whose first homer came in the second inning, led the big hitting parade along with Charley Leonard, who hit a three - run homer, and Don Clendenon, who homered with one. Jackie Davis homered for the Bisons and Ted Savage led Buffalo with five, including a three-run homer and four runs batted in.

Deida, going his fourth in five decisions, gave only four hits as the Marlins made it eight in a row over Syracuse. Ed Olivares homered and had two singles for Charleston, which handed Syracuse its fifth straight loss.

Rochester racked five pitchers for 16 hits. Bob Johnson had four of them, including a pair of run . producing doubles as Gordon Jones won on a six-hitter.

Hair Specialist Here Friday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville, Friday, June 9th at the Quinte Hotel.

Trichologist C. A. Tander will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time.

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss — dandruff, itching, over oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea —can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE"

Baldness won't wait for doctors to be convinced, you are going to keep right on losing hair. If you're bald—unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to your self. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Tander's room number. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience. Examinations are given in private.

Whips Pirates, Braves Win

Handy Sandy Boots Dodgers Home

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Los Angeles Dodgers, shrugging off slumps, are back on top in the National League race again, thanks to Sandy Koufax who has put away four of their last eight victories.

The Dodgers have lost no more than two in a row during the last three weeks while winning 12 of 20 games in a head-to-head battle with Cincinnati Reds for first place.

The Dodgers regained a half game lead with a 7-0 victory over the Pirates Wednesday night as Koufax became the first league pitcher to win eight this season.

Milwaukee Braves helped the Dodgers by beating Cincinnati 3-2 and third-place San Francisco moved within 1½ games of first place with a 4-3, 11-inning victory over Philadelphia Phillies. St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 8-6, with Stan Musial going 4-for-4 and belting a pair of two - run homers.

The Dodgers came from behind with four runs in the second inning, beating Earl Francis in his first major league start on a two-run homer by John Roseboro and a clinching two-run double by Willie Davis. They added three unearned runs in the fifth, making it easy for Koufax (8-2).

STRUCK OUT SEVEN

The young lefty gave up seven hits and two walks, but struck out seven for his fifth straight victory, all complete games. Homers by Roberto Clemente in the first inning, and Don Hoak, with a man on in the ninth, scored the Bucs runs.

The Braves beat the Reds for only the third time in 20 tries this season behind the four-hit pitching of righthander Don Nottebart, who squared his record at 3-2 with his first major league complete game. The Reds scored in the second on a walk, Gene Freese's single and a passed ball, but the Braves then scored three in the third, two on Ed Mathew's double, against rookie Ken Hunt (5-3). Mustal's home runs, giving him six for the season, built the Cards' winning cushion in the third and seventh innings. Larry Jackson (3-6) won but needed relief in the eighth after a home run by George Altman. Maury McMer n o t i finally saved it, coming on when Ernie Banks hit a two-run homer off reliever Al Cicotte in the ninth. Bob Anderson (3-5) lost as the Cards won this third in a row.

The Giants nailed their third victory in 16 games on two walks and a single by Orlando Cepeda in the 11th off losing reliever Chris Short (1-3). Held to one run and two hits for seven innings by Art Mahaffey, San Francisco tied it in the eighth on consecutive doubles by Masty Alou and Harvey Kuenn, both pinch-hitters, and Willie Mays. Jim Duffalo and Stu Miller shut out the Phils on four hits over the last six innings, with Miller winning his fifth without defeat.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

This author, or during the spring months of the year, Jack Dickens and his aroma'ists transformed the Market Square hockey rink/greater interior into a thing of eye-pleasing beauty.

Judicious applications of paint figuratively turned the old brick, mortar and steel sow's ear innards of the building into a silk purse, so to speak.

All the gilded cage needs now is a few senior hockey birds to nest there next winter. The arena needs hockey—and a consequence of fans reveals they want it too.

In fact one well-known hockey fan of this city went so far as to request this department to contact Frank Selke, general manager of the Montreal Canadiens to find out if he would consider placing an entry of the Eastern Professional League here.

"The Canadiens lost $100,000 on the Montreal Royals last year. Even with the restricted attendance facilities in Belleville they couldn't lose that much here. Seating look at the location. It would be right in line for eastern clubs to play off here after playing Kingston and on their way to Kitchener and the northern teams."

Now according to a news story from Kingston, past-president Lorne Cook says the OHA will attempt to revive senior hockey in the centres that were forced to vacate last season. Just a dream Cook.

The O.H.A. meets in Weedstock on Sunday, and according to Cook it is being held to find out which centres are interested in entering teams next season. He is quoted as saying "Barrie, Belleville, Whitby, Oakville, Welland and Kitchener have shown interest. There is just one flaw in the quote, it should read "Whilerie" instead of Kitchener.

The story says: "Senior A and B leagues have no residence rule now and Cook feels it makes it easier for cities to come up with contending teams." The only thing is there are no such things as "Senior A and B leagues." Last year it was straight senior hockey. The days of the gold and glory senior "A" trails are over.

Gertie Bell said McFarlanin' manager Keith MacDonald had received notice of the meeting but was yet undecided as to what course of action to pursue.

It could be that there is more to this professional angle than meets the eye or ear.

However, if Barrie, Whitby, Oakville, Welland and perhaps Galt are interested in an eastern senior group Belleville may go along if other rumored plans do not materialize.

From Western Ontario comes word that Dundas and St. Thomas may seek entry in a senior group along with Waterloo and the brought in that Woodstock, Strathroy, Galt and Stratford might refuse another grouping which would include Chatham and Windsor, due to travelling expenses.

Exmor Street has it that Windsor may drop out of senior hockey and concentrate on junior action which would leave Chatham out in the cold. Another grapevine yarn has it the Marvons and Bulldogs will hook up with American teams and play in an OHA circuit.

Whatever is meant by "cities not having any trouble coming up with contending teams because of the no-residence rule" is slightly foggy.

The salary-plus-job days are over as far as senior hockey is concerned and if the proposed eastern section is to start afresh, it must, like its Western Ontario counterparts adopt the share-the-wealth policy.

Travelling expenses would be much heavier in the eastern section than in the west and these would cut heavily into the "take." It looks from here as though the eastern centres mentioned would have to worry along with what they've got plus younger home-brews and perhaps that is the way it should be.

Indians Up Half-Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of Canadians playing big-league baseball can be counted on the fingers of one hand and seldom do any of them make the headline pa the sports page.

Possibly, it's because they don't get much of a chance.

British Columbia's Ted Bonefield got his opportunity Wednesday night and turned in a performance that should raise some attention in the future.

Bonefield, 26, a pitcher from Penticton who went to Los Angeles Angels from Hartford Hat floor in an American League trade earlier this season, appeared in 17 previous games this season as a reliever and had pitched no longer than two innings in any of them.

FIRST COMPLETE GAME

Wednesday night at Baltimore manager Bill Rigney sent the six - foot - one southpaw to the mound in the opener with the Orioles and Bonefield was still there at the end when the Angels were celebrating their 4-0 victory that lifted them out of the league cellar.

In other games Wednesday night Cleveland Indians strengthened their first - place lead over idle Detroit Tigers by downing the Washington Senators 5-1, Kansas City defeated Boston 4-2 on a two-hitter by Ralph Terry that plunged the Twins into the cellar with their sixth consecutive loss and Boston Red Sox defeated Kansas City 6-5.

The Indians, sweeping into the league lead on a nine-game winning streak carry a half-game edge into Detroit, where they meet the Tigers tonight in a doubleheader that opens a four-game series.

STARTED SLOWLY

Bonefield, whose victory gave him a 1-0 record for the season, started slowly but was almost unbeatable over the last six innings as he pitched his five-hit (four singls and a double) shutout. The Orioles got four of their hits in the first three innings but Bonefield gave up only two walks and a single the rest of the way.

On the evening, he walked a total of three and struck out the same number.

The Angels scored three runs in the first inning, capped by Ken Aspromonte's two - run double, to beat Bob Rush (1-3) and hand the Orlies their sixth defeat in 10 games. Steve Bilko homered for the Angels, who took the series 3-1.

Cleveland Manager Jim (Mickey) Grent won his seventh game with a 5-1 victory. Catcher Johnny Romano stretched his hitting streak through 12 games as he drove in two runs to seventh place with their fifth straight home run.

HIT HOME RUNS

Willie Kirkland and Woodie Held hammered solo home runs in an 11-hit attack for the Indians who collected five unearned runs and scored prior to the first off Pete Burnside (1-4) in the fourth inning. Romano drove walks. Grant walked one and struck out six. He was contacted three times in Cleveland's winning string, the longest in the majors this season.

Both Minnesota hits off Terry (5-5) came in the first inning, when Billy Martin tripled and scored on a double by Lenolo Green, as the Yankees then exploded for all five runs in the third against Pete Ramos (3-7), dropping the pitcher with his fifth straight loss on a three-run homer by Roger Maris and a two-run homer by Yogi Berra. It was No. 17 for Maris, top in the majors, as the Yanks won their fifth in a row and set an AL record with 34 home runs in 28 consecutive games.

Rookie Don Schwall won his fourth without defeat for the Red Sox, allowing nine hits. Boston beat the As and Bud Daley (4-7) with four unearned runs in the fifth inning, scoring two on Jackie Jensen's double.

WINS MINORS TRIP

CHICAGO (AP)—Early Wynn, veteran Chicago White Sox pitcher who is shooting at his coveted 300-victory mark, will miss a seven - game road trip starting today (6) because of boils in his pitching elbow, Manager Al Lopez announced. Wynn, 41, failed Tuesday in a third try for his 296th major league victory, but his relief support was credited with a 7-6 8ox verdict over Detroit.

'Smoke Screen' Says Pollock

Marlboros May Leave Junior A

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros may follow St. Michael's College Majors out of the Ontario hockey Association Junior A series, co-owner Stafford Smythe said Wednesday.

Smythe is the Junior A council's annual meeting the Marlboros want time to consider the impact of St. Michael's departure, announced Tuesday, and may operate as an independent team in the manner of Hull-Ottawa Junior Canadiens.

The Marlboros are sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, as were the Majors.

Senator Pollock, farm director of Montreal Canadiens and counsel delegate to Peterborough Petes, termed Smythe's announcement "a smoke screen."

"We are trying to lay the blame elsewhere for St. Michael's leaving and you want to read all the guys on one team," said Pollock.

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, OHA president, asked for a discussion on the Majors' departure but delegates of the other six teams refused to consider any concessions that would keep the Collegians in the league. St. Michael's had protested long schedules were interfering with education of their players.

WORLD NOT BARGAIN

"Rev. David Bauer, manager and coach of the Majors, said the college was not prepared to bargain on the issue.

Hamilton Red Wings delegate Jim Elkener suggested the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens be invited into the league if the Marlboros quit. The future of the Marlboros' players was left in abeyance pending a final decision by the club.

Seven clubs voted to play a schedule of not fewer than 48 games, with a four-team playoff in the event of a six-team league.

Patterson Fight Said Guesswork

NEW YORK (AP)—If heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson fights young Tom McNeeley in Boston this September, Eddie Quinn won't be the promoter, Quinn, a Patterson-Johnson lawyer, said Wednesday.

"Right now any report of a Patterson - McNeeley fight is pure gobbledygook," Newspaper said. "It would seem to pass but Championship Sports will be the promoter of Patterson's next fight. I thought everyone knew that."

Tex Montreal, Quinn himself said "that's the first I've heard about it," regarding a story in the Boston Record that he would be the promoter.

Draws Jail Sentence For Bribery

PITTSBURGH (CP)—Dr. Edward H. Sebastian, 32, former dental instructor convicted of attempting to bribe two Pittsburgh basketball players to shave points, drew a 22-months jail term Wednesday and was fined $1,000.

John Fridley of Sharon, Pa., and Richard Falenski of Latrobe, Pa., both seniors, testified that in December, 1960, Dr. Sebastian asked them to shave points in basketball games.

In return, they said, the 32-year-old dentist offered to share his gambling winnings, guarantee their entrance into dental school and other inducements.

DOW BRINGS OUT THE BEST IN BEER

1 MULTI-BLENDING
A master blending of 28 great brews brings out the best in beer —makes Dow the easiest-drinking, most dependably uniform ale ever brewed.

2 BLENDED HOPS
Only a masterful blending of the best hops will bring out the best in beer. Dow selects prime hops, placed at the finest moment of fermentation, and blends them carefully to give you that true beer taste you enjoy in Dow.

3 BLENDED BARLEY MALTS
The best in beer demands the best ingredients. The special blend of two quality Canadian barley malts used in brewing Dow Ale calls for the very best barley Canada produces. Nothing less but the best goes into Dow.

4 SMOOTH YEAST
A special, highly-prized yeast is another secret of the fine quality of Dow Ale. This exclusive Dow Smooth Ale Yeast has been carefully developed from some of the most valuable yeast strains in the world.

This is to certify that Dow Ale is brewed by the exclusive Cool Control process. This process is continuously tested, thereby ensuring uniform high quality.

Says Youth Will Sign For $200,000

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)— A sports columnist says an 18-year - old Long Beach High School star will sign for the biggest baseball bonus yet.

The boy, Bob Bailey, shortstop for Wilson High School, says he still hasn't made up his mind which of several offers he will accept.

Tom Meehan, a columnist for the Fresno, Calif., Bee, said Wednesday Bailey would sign a contract with either the National League's Pittsburgh Pirates or Milwaukee Braves for approximately $200,000.

This would be the biggest bonus since the record $130,000 paid by Chicago Cubs for Danny Murphy of St. John's Prep School, Danvers, Mass.

In Los Angeles, Pittsburgh general manager Joe L. Brown said "it would be premature to assume" the Pirates were going to sign the youth, because several clubs were dickering for him. He said if the Pirates did sign him the size of the bonus would not be disclosed.

NHL Draft is Puzzle

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League draft next week may turn into a hectic session or it may be dwarfed into a run - of - the - mill affair involving few players because of pre - draft agreements.

Present indications are that the combination of deals and drafting may be substantial.

The NHL's three - day annual meeting opens Monday and private talks aimed at swaps likely will continue at least until the six clubs file their protected lists at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The league's internal draft is scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday. Each club can protect 18 players, plus two goalies, against the draft. The draft price is $20,000.

Pre - draft deals have become more or less the rule in recent years. Loaded clubs — and Montreal Canadiens have been a case - out in this respect — have been inclined to do pre-draft business with the have-not clubs.

The reason largely is that the loaded clubs, if they must lose unprotected high - class young players and established players, would rather lose them in a swap with a low - placed club rather than the draft to a hot rival.

Hockey men say money doesn't figure greatly in such deals because usually little or no cash is involved.

At the Belle

AN ACTOR DIRECTS

Until recently, no one ever knew exactly how Marlon Brando went about preparing one of his distinctive screen performances, because all the ground work was done privately. But when Brando turned director as well as actor for "One-Eyed Jacks," playing today, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre, he provided a tantalizing opportunity for viewing one of the most celebrated talents of the age in action.

A thoroughly unique romantic adventure drama, "One-Eyed Jacks" probes the hidden side of a man's personality. Shocks of character revelation pepper the film like explosions, and Brando's ways of making all the performances measure up to the story indicate he means what he says: "I want to be like anyone else is a mistake. I'd rather follow my own intuition."

The same intuition led him to tell co-star Karl Malden, about to be filmed watching the approach of a despised enemy, "Here he comes . . . watch him. He's made a fool of you and let everyone know it . . . Your chance is almost here. You've got that gun in your hand, but you are cool. You're like a mad, standing alone at the back of an old service car. The train is going sixty miles an hour, but you can count every bit on the track." An effective provocation for a specific mood.

At the end of the directing scale is the drastic way he made his leading lady, Pina Pellicer, fly into a rage: he had someone fire a pistol unexpectedly just behind her. "Act!" he made her furious, but that fury was Brando's only concern at the time and his pleasure in achieving it helped soothe her subsequent anger.

"Variety was the keynote in Brando's directorial methods. He was not above using good old-fashioned "mood-music" for atmosphere; neither did he hesitate to rant, rave and simply bully his actors into doing what he wanted. The result is "One-Eyed Jacks," an exercise in spontaneity and excitement, Brando style.

Windsor Asks Year Suspension

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor, one of the ranking members of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior circuit since the Second World War, will be minus a major OHA franchise next season.

Windsor Arena owner Bill Butcher announced here Wednesday that he has asked the OHA for one year's suspension from senior hockey activity for Windsor Bulldogs.

Butcher said he proposes to turn the club over to public ownership for part of each week with Junior B, minor, pewp and industrial hockey filling out the program.

The Bantam the Bulldogs were in a six-team circuit with Galt, Woodstock, Strathroy, Stratford and Chatham.

The Windsor withdrawal could have a pronounced effect on a scheduled explor story senior meeting scheduled for Woodstock this Sunday.

Last year's remaining five clubs plus other interested parties in such places as Kitchener, Welland, Whitby, Belleville and Barrie have been notified of the meeting.

Will Study Minor Problem

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—When National Hockey League owners gather in Montreal next week it is a virtual certainty they will take a hard look at a growing difficulty of wild competitive bidding for kids under 16 years of age.

During the last year or so as much as $10,000 has been paid parents of young prospects still in their early teens.

Essentially, the money - wasting pro clubs want to assure themselves of future negotiation rights to a twinkling little star by having him play with a sponsored junior club or a junior club's lower-class affiliates.

The owners, as a matter of financial self - interest, don't want to find themselves in a cut-throat situation of fantastic bonuses that fastened itself upon major league baseball.

The question of rights in hockey to youngsters has been a touchy one at times.

For a short period following the Second World War the names of youngsters could be placed on pro clubs' negotiation lists or youngsters could be signed to crisin forms of agreements as to attaining their 16th birthday.

RAISED AGE

But in 1950 it was decided this should be modified so there could be no such acquisition of young players until they attained greater maturity — their 18th birthday.

This system of negotiation rights should remain the same, decide to turn pro, is still in effect.

The sudden surge in competitive bidding for under-16 boys is not linked with the draft system of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The National amateur body allows junior clubs in its Ontario and Maritime branches to draft from the lower-age classes within a club's own branch. Players are subject to this draft when they reach 16.

So now the top scouts and bird dogs of pro clubs are at their busiest before the likeliest young prospects become 16. The scouts have persuaded their superiors that plenty of hard cash is needed to place these youngsters in the amateur chain that leads to the pro clubs, sponsored junior team and ultimately to the parent NHL club.

Given Car, Plaque

Lark Fans Honor "Rifle"

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 1,500 persons packed a downtown hotel Wednesday night for a $10-a-plate farewell dinner for Sam (The Rifle) Etcheverry, Canadian football's great quarterback.

The 36-year - old Etcheverry has signed with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League after last season with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

He was presented with a new car Wednesday night and with a plaque detailing the records he set.

Ted Workman, owner of the Alouettes, and Perry Moss, coach and general manager, were invited to the dinner but did not attend.

Workman engineered a trade with Hamilton Tiger-Cats that sent Etcheverry and Hal Patterson — both members of the Big Four's all-star team — to Hamilton.

Etcheverry claimed he could not be traded without his consent because of an agreement with the club. His contract was voided and he went to St. Louis.

Patterson signed with Hamilton.

WILL HAVE TO WIN IT

Ivy later said in an interview that Sam will have to win the quarterbacking job this season from two other top-line candidates "but a real pro likes it that way."

Paradoxically, seated next to Ivy was former Aloolette halfback Chuck Hunsinger, the man whose missue in a Grey Cup game propelled Ivy's career.

Ivy was coach of Edmonton Eskimos when they defeated the Als 36-35 in the big game in 1954 after Hunsinger threw the key pass and Jackie Parker scored the winning touchdown in the dying seconds.

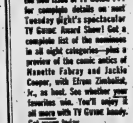
Eskimos were guided by Ivy won the cup the next two seasons, beating the Als both times.

'DON'T FEEL BADLY'

Doug (Peahead) Walker, who in the big game in 1954 and now a scout for the NFL New York Giants, was also at the head table.

He told Sam:

"Don't feel too badly. I was fired by Workman, too."



Charcoal is the man who launched Etcheverry's career in Canadian football, holding him out of a sports magazine because he liked the way Sam held the ball in a passing pose.

Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts and formerly with the Als, told the gathering the Argos plan to throw a bee for Etcheverry in Toronto June 22.

By BOB THOMAS

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—Can Benny Goodman make it with another generation?

Well, I think so, watching Benny swing out at Disneyland. Such excitement hasn't been seen since the 1930s, when the famed Pied Piper led the cool cats into a whole new world of music.

His recently organized a big band composed of a new old-timers but mostly young musicians. The first date was Disneyland.

The results were sensational. Crowds packed before the bandstand 20 deep, and couples were jitterbugging — not rocking, not rolling—jitterbugging.

Benny played the clarinet with the same facile style, and the crowd cheered every solo.

Still youthful at 52, Benny bounced and grinned as he led the numbers. They were strictly vintage stuff—Sing, Sing, Sing Jumping at the Woodside, And the Angels Sing, One O'clock Jump, and so on.

The youngsters ate it up.

Benny has stuck mostly to small combos in recent years, but he said he'll continue with the full band if the demand continues. "Hit bands, small bands — I'm in the music business," he said. "I'll play whatever the people want."

Mike Wallace Will Air Show Against Jack Paar

By CYNTHIA LOWEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Mike Wallace, a broadcasting veteran who started out as a radio principal practitioner of — the "tough question" school of TV interviewing, is on the threshold of a new career.

Starting next Monday night, Mike will be star of a new, syndicated late-evening television program which may ultimately become the first real competitor for Jack Paar's NBC movies have yet encountered.

The new, taped program will be titled PM, and will consists of two parts: PM East, an hour-long interview and varied format from New York presided over by Mike, assisted by Joyce Davidson, a pretty Toronto native who has appeared often on the Paar show, and PM West, a half-hour show hosted by Terrence (Terry) Sanford, a San Francisco newspaper columnist.

It will start in about 30 key areas around the country, and there are undenied reports that ABC, one of the major networks is eyeing it considering including the 90-minute program in its fall line-up.

NOT A BATTLE

Mike insists he is not inviting Parr to a late-evening ratings battle similar to the old Ed Sullivan-Steve Allen fray.

"I think there must be a lot of people around the country who stay up late watching TV and who must be ready for new of looking at old movies," he said.

In any event, PM will not imitate the format of Parr's all-around-and-make jokes show.

"We're going to build our programs around themes, subjects or sometimes around one person," he explained. "You know, I have one on show on supersitions, and talk to students of the occult. Please, ABC, 10:30-11 —Girls in Danger, perilous adventures of the heroines of the Pearl White period of movies.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Make a point now to let everyone you know by many months of the down-to-earth, practical goals that are yours. A very sensible plan can be arranged whereby you have more income or revenue or can save even your pleasures more enjoyable, whichever is indicated by your own sign following by greater meticulousness.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Look at any and all real estate you may have and be sure it is in the best condition possible. If not, consult with banking institution and then plan the right repairs on time that will add value as well as beauty to your property.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) It is important that you make the changes that are necessary right now so that you have personal and material security always as you would them. Don't let others impose upon you, but do not be suspicious and overly-critical. Use tact.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Quick meditation now will reveal where you have made errors and how to eradicate them, which you should do immediately. Then higher-ups will give you the support you need at this time. Be secretive, however—P.M. Aid the underdumals.

More Children (June 22 to July 22) Be understanding of the problems and trials of others whom you meet today, but be sure you do not permit one who is complainer and trouble maker to prey on your sympathies, no matter how stubborn he, or she, may be. P.M. Retire early.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) Be sure you put business and civic affairs in better order now. However, don't gamble unnecessarily where credit is concerned, nor be forceful with others or you may lose good will, which is more important than you think.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is wiser to face those obligations now instead of running away from them, because they will be more to meet in the future. Have a strong will power and you will find that these can be stepping-stones to real success soon. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't run off to authorities with your problems since they are not familiar with all facts and could not give you the right advice. In fact you may get into temporarily trouble — await a better day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure you know what your true position is with an associate. Be very tactful, however, or you make an enemy out of a good friend. By avoiding arguments, you can then go out to dinner or some charming spot and have lots of fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Much can be accomplished now, provided you labor in a quiet and diligent fashion. Being overly enthusiastic will only result in errors and damages. Be certain you avoid the opposite with a fellow worker who is over tired.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't labor under the erroneous idea that you can purchase whatever pleasures you desire, but endeavor to make others like you for yourself, not your gifts. P.M. Fine for having a good time inexpensively — smile, be happy, gay.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid that unhappy situation at home which is literally making you sick, and get out into the busy, happy world where you belong or you may accomplished that will be very remunerative. P.M. Restore harmony through right psychology.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Fine day for getting out written reports. However, conversations with associates may be a bit difficult if you do not use tact. P.M. Take it easy while out driving or you may get into an accident. Be calm, cool and collected at home.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be one of those very fascinating people who can easily acquire the habit of always taking from others and doing very little in return, unless you early teach that what is earned by the sweat of the brow is really enjoyed in the full. Give a fine education and good spiritual training, since the mind and ability here are of high calibre. The practical and aesthetic are in fine balance. Good chart for the banker, especially.

ATTACKS OF INDIGESTION-RHEUMATIC PAIN RELIEVED

"For a long time I suffered with tushy dizzines and Syntona is the first medicine to really help me", said Mrs. Charlotte Vinne, R.R. No. 4, Bear Line (near Chatham, Ont.) in a recent report.

Tells Her Experience

"I would get awful attacks of indigestion, gas and heartburn. Food just seemed to give me misery. Sour and hot, burning liquids would rise right up in my throat. I was afraid to eat to invite headaches.

"Many recently pains set into my back and muscles and many days I ached all over.

"I had become discouraged trying one thing and another without getting relief, so you can imagine how pleased I am with the good results I get by taking Syntona. In only a few days I found that the pain and pains were relieved and as I continued, it relieved me the indigestion and heartburn. Now I eat better, sleep more soundly at night and feel rested when I retire midnight.

"I can truly suffer no. Thank God now is the time to try Syntona. It has helped thousands of men and women and can do the same for you.

DESERONTO

Town Council Session Lengthy, Agenda Heavy

DESERONTO — All members with the exception of Councillor Marks were present for a lengthy session in the Council chambers on Monday night when the regular meeting of council was held.

A letter was received from P. Page-Higgins indicating that they were still to act as town auditors for this year for the $200, the council had allowed in the budget but would ask $900, next year.

R. S. Marek advised that he was willing to complete the roadway across the correct road allowance on Water St. if the council would grant him an easement for the right-of-way now used. The clerk is to advise Mr. Marek that the council will discharge the easement when the road is completed to the satisfaction of the Public Utilities who use the road for an access to the pumphouse.

A letter from Campbell and Smith regarding the survey for Water and Fourth streets was laid over to the next meeting.

Rev. J. McEwen on behalf of the Pentecostal Assembly requested the use of the town park on Saturday nights throughout the summer. Council felt that it would be unfair to grant a monopoly to any one group or organization and instructed the clerk to advise Mr. McEwen that a request for a specific night would not be granted.

The Home and School Association asked if council would advise it of any meetings to be held concerning the High School. Joining an area school. As no meeting for such a purpose has been considered the council will advise the Association of any meeting for such a purpose is held. The feeling seems to be against such a move because the council feels that once the school is closed it could never be re-opened.

A letter from E. Lindsay Thomas St. regarding the entrance to his driveway and the mud-hole in front of his property was referred to the Streets committee.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association advised the council of their plans for a foam bank for fire fighting. Council were advised on the matter by Fire Chief McClicker, the matter will be studied by the Fire committee and a report made at the next meeting.

AGAINST BY-LAW

Henry Klever addressed council regarding the soft drink and drink business he proposes to establish at his residence on Station St. Mr. Klever advised that there were over 100 children living North of the highway and they had to cross in traffic at any time they wished to buy a candy. No decision was reached on the matter and Mr. Klever was advised that at present there is no by-law prohibiting business in that area but council will now prepare a zoning by-law.

The letter from the County Engineer concerning the drain to be put across the road on Main St. West at Gilbert was caused some discussion. Finally council decided to contact the engineer for a clarification of the responsibility of the town.

A letter from Mrs. Ella Therrien regarding the street drain on the corner of St. George and Maple was referred to the streets committee. Councillor Howard reported that he had investigated the complaint and found water covering some twelve feet of the lane.

Councillor Alford reported to council on the condition of the tower holding the fire siren and the repair of the tower was left with the property committee with power to act.

GIVEN THREE WEEKS

The Chief of Police was granted three weeks leave of absence in place of the usual one due to the excessive number of hours he was working. The chairman of the Fire committee was given permission to purchase 500 feet of hose.

The street committe came in for some discussion due to the fact that Councillor Howard had been put in charge of that committee until the return of Councillor Marks. The clerk is to notify the street formeman and send a copy to Councillor Marks that Howard is to be in charge until relieved by council.

A delegation of Front Street merchants was present to inquire concerning the removal of the curb along the north side of Front St. They were advised that the cost would be some $1,300 and council could not consider it this year.

Clayton Brooks inquired of council regarding the water main requested last year along the West end of Dundas St. After considerable talk the matter was turned back to the Public Utilities for re-consideration of the cost which was reported to be $3,500.00. This would only serve four house holders.

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Perched on a hill in the bush 30 miles south of here are what appear to be two king-sized loudspeakers. They occupy 300 square yards of ground, ringed by a fence patrolled day and night by armed guards.

Inside the fence, men work at instruments under dimmed lights. Ringing telephones, buzzing generators and clacking teletype machines provide a noisy background.

The Remore, a DEW (Distant Early Warning) line base.

More than 200 servicemen and 22 civilians keep the radar station operating 24 hours a day. They work eight hours at a stretch, spending off-duty hours at the nearby military base or Timmins, Ont.

JOINT EFFORT

The Red Ensign and the Stars and Stripes are flown side by side at Remore, an integrated base manned by Canadian and U.S. servicemen and under divided responsibility to the Ottawa sector of the North American Air Defence Command. Remore is built at a cost of $5,000,000 in 1953 and was ranked operational in January, 1958.

The highly-trained personnel work in close co-operation with 41 other bases in the Pinetree line, one of the three major radar setups. Fighter pilots are ready to take off from NORAD bases within minutes of an alarm from any of these radar sites of the detection of an unidentified aircraft.

Day and night, seven days a week, the men make the 11½-mile trip into the bush to go on watch. But when the duty period is ended, life in the self-contained camp provides ample opportunity for relaxation. Tenpin bowling, league basketball and fishing are popular activities.

CONVICTED IN DEATH

TORONTO (CP) — An Assize Court jury Wednesday convicted Mrs. Bertha Peturrson, 60, of manslaughter in the stabbing death of her husband Dec. 16. The Crown accepted a plea of guilty to manslaughter after she originally had been charged with murder. Mrs. Perturrson said her husband had been an alcoholic for 17 years and they had been drinking when an argument developed.

DESERONTO

Fishing Derby To Be Sponsored By Firemen

DESERONTO — Plans have now been completed for the Fishing Derby to be held in conjunction with the Firemen's Jamboree on July 1st. As this is the first day of the bass season the firemen are advertising a good fishing of the Bay in the Deseronto Area. The contest is for the small-mouth bass only and they must be caught in the area bounded by Tugaws Island on the east and the Telegraph light on the west and on the south by Coles Wharf. Entry forms can be obtained from the firemen or from Jackaway's Hardware Store. There will be worthwhile prizes for the two largest fish. The biggest and the second biggest. The last weigh-in time is at 8.30 p.m. on Saturday, July 1, and the entry forms must be secured before 12.00 noon of the same day. The winners will be announced during the evening in the park.

There will be a street dance held on Centre Street by the post office and the firemen are engaging the Quintones Orchestra for this. Last year the crowd that turned out for the street dance exceeded the pavement from beginning to end and it is anticipated that the numbers in attendance will be greater this year. The Quintones, a local group, is fast making a name for itself as one of the best of the modern dance bands in the district.

FEW UNEMPLOYED

Norway, with a population of about 3,580,000, had 15,400 registered unemployed on April 30, 1961.

½ AWAKE Nights
½ ASLEEP Days..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys fail, these wastes can become acids that irritate the system. Disturbed rest, tired feelings and backaches often follow. If you don't like to feel this way, don't feel this way in the daytime—use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Then you feel better—and sleep better, too! You can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills.

NEED COMMONWEALTH PARLEY -- PM

Gromyko Brings 'Empty Pockets' Back To Geneva

Return to Laos Parley Does Not Ease Deadlock

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thursday, June 8, 1961

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the Canadian Government believes the United States and Russia are using a cautious form of caution unbroken for tankers on the Canadian St. Lawrence.

CNR President Donald Gordon says he doesn't envy Hees in the tenancy of Abbey of Canadian power on transport department enthusiasm.

Supplementary spending and transfer of funds for all parties was asked by Finance Minister Fleming with $60,000,000 included for the Canada Council.

Mr. Balcer said proposed subsidy aid for shipping could that $200,000,000 in 10 years.

The Senate is adjourned until Tuesday.

GENEVA—The international conference on Laos was still tightly deadlocked today with the United States and Russia sparring at each conclusions from both that sh agreement is desirable.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, returning to Geneva Thursday night for the first time since President Kheshchev met in Vienna with President John F. Kennedy, quickly doused hopes that he brought instructions to move the Communist position in a search for West's.

Soviet pockets are empty, Gromyko told reporters.

Gromyko said he had received no new instructions in the conference and added: "We still are ready for all parties are willing. It is possible to reach set agreement. I repeat, if all parties are willing."

WANT ONLY POLITICAL

The assumption was that he meant all parties were willing to go along with the Communist Pathet Lao forces in Laos holding the upper hand militarily, the Communist delegates at Geneva could see the cease-fire as effective and the conference could concentrate on the political future of Laos.

Britain and the United States forced the conference to adjourn after the conference sessions Thursday after the pro-Communist Pathet Lao fought the federal bolster, govern ment garrison out of the key military village of Padong, deep in Pathet Lao territory. The West called the attack on Padong a flagrant violation of the cease-fire.

The Western Allies refuse to participate in further conference sessions until the Communists agree to restore the powers of the international truce commission in Laos to be able it to check immediately on violations of the cease-fire. But President Kennedy indicated that the U.S. delegation was not quitting the conference to return home.

'SKYLL THAT'

"I think that's a key in General and one if we can come to a neutral and independent Laos," the president said.

Kennedy pinpointed the strategic Southeast Asian kingdom as the key point for Soviet-West negotiations in the cold war. If an effective cease-fire cannot be worked out in Laos, he declared, "then how difficult—if not impossible it will be to reach an agreement on any other question."

The New York Times reported from Washington that the U.S. had decided to tell the Russians urging them to co-operate in achieving an effective cease-fire in Laos, that Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Gromyko in Geneva last week as "our ultimatum" and set no time limit for action.

The report was reported to have said the U.S. is "eager to get on with the discussions about steps to guarantee the neutrality and independence of Laos," but cannot carry on with talks while the fighting continues.

Multi-Problem Families Sap Welfare Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Multi-problem families sap half of the Canadian welfare budget and must be treated in a special government program, the Ontario Welfare Council was told Thursday.

Dr. John Spencer, associate professor at University of Toronto School of Social Work, said at the annual conference only the government could afford to bring together the many agencies required to deal with cases.

Multi-problem families, the professor said, have at least three problems such as chronic ennesss, desertion, child neglect, mental illness, economic deprivation, truancy of children and criminal acts.

Such families cannot be treated by ordinary methods, he said. Money must be made available for a few specialized caseworkers who would carry a small number of cases.

Programs to help multi-problem families might go on for several generations with little progress in early stages. Often these families "quasi-criminal, quasi-medical problems get the worst of both worlds from society."

J. L. Amos, administrative officer of the rehabilitation services of the department of public welfare said Ontario has become more and more concerned about steps to guarantee the neutrality and independence of Laos, but cannot carry on with talks while the fighting continues.

NEW SHIPPING POLICY HIT BY LIBERALS

Say It Will Produce Storm on Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Liberal MPs suggested Thursday that the government's new inland shipping policy may create the economic weather on the Great Lakes that will produce a storm on the Prairies.

Lionel Chevrier and J. W. Pickersgill said in the Commons that the policy could lead to shipping rates that will give American wheat Large ocean competitive advantage, and thus reduce Prairie farmers' United Kingdom wheat market.

The two MPs spoke during debate on transport department estimates — a debate that involved the policy of restricting coasting trade in the Great Lakes and lower St. Lawrence River to ships of Canadian registry, so far as domestic trade is concerned.

Mr. Chevrier, former Liberal transport minister, voiced the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix as saying a British ship could move from ore to a Canadian port such as Cleveland, then move to Montreal, Quebec and Sept-Iles.

This would mean a hardship for the Lakehead and Canadian ports of Fort William and Port Arthur, since the British ships would not be under the new policy and thus would start hauling Canadian grain to ports such as Montreal, Quebec and Sept-Iles.

Transport Minister Balcer said the Canadian shipping certificate law had brought the federal bolster, govern ment garrison out of the key military village of Padong, deep in Pathet Lao territory. The West called the attack on Padong a flagrant violation of the cease-fire.

Eichmann in Cups -- Defence 'In Wine Is Truth' -- State

JERUSALEM (AP)—Completion of the prosecution case against Adolf Eichmann for crimes against the Jews foundered today in an argument over memoirs the defence wanted to introduce under the influence of drink.

Attorney-General Gideon Hausner sought to discredit the memoirs, obtained from Eichmann in Argentina by a Dutch journalist and former SS man in 1957, and 707, and ran into a storm of opposition.

The court decided the prosecution case must go on until Monday, at least. Originally the state planned to finish today, and Eichmann's lawyer said he'd take the stand Monday, June 19.

Presiding Judge Moshe Landau, Court Secretary Yaakov Koskovitz, contended the memoirs were obtained by the Hillel Kremer Company, Inc., the company of an Austrian, by playing Eichmann with drinks.

Hausner retorted with the proverb "in vino veritas"—in wine there is truth.

Eichmann's lawyer demanded that interviewer Sassen be produced. Hausner said it would be difficult to bring either Sassen or his unnamed Austrian to Israel to testify. Sassen, as an SS officer, would face trial here, the attorney-general pointed out.

The defence had a third alternative: Accept the memoirs and allow the defence to bring Sassen to Israel against them.

Judge Moshe Landau, presiding judge of the three-judge court, decided to put the issue off until Monday, start of the 10th week of the trial.

Earlier, Hausner offered documentary evidence that Hitler planned to kill 4,941 to 1941 to date all Jews in Europe and slaughtered 6 Germans and 10 Jews.

Hausner rammed this point home in such a manner that Eichmann was galvanized into a flurry of note-writing and gesticulations.

The focal point in the final presentation of documents lay in the testimony of Rudolf Kasztner, prosecution witness.

Frost Declares Commission To Probe Building Trades

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said today a royal commission will be set up to look into the construction industry conditions existing in the building trades and industries and to recommend ways to solve the problems between management and labor in the construction industry.

The commission arises from a strike in Toronto involving 3,000 workers in the metropolitan Toronto area and Mr. Frost, both management and labor in that dispute agreed to it.

The commission will be headed by Mr. Justice Wells.

In the meantime, Mr. Frost announced, a temporary arbitration board will be set up to settle the immediate issues and conditions of existing agreements in the Toronto strike, which spread Thursday from private building to the new east-west subway.

Mr. Frost also said a department of hall has been established to conduct spot checks in relation to vacations with pay regulations handed out work and other existing legislation dealing with similar matters.

The announcement followed a meeting of the provincial advisory committee set up to study the hall has metric which began May 29 when immigrant workers demanding unions conditions walked off their jobs.

The walkout spread to the $200,000,000 subway job Thursday as men came out of the Bloor-Yonge subway with the Russians Claim Provocation In Berlin by West Germans

BERLIN (AP) — Russia has protested formally to the Western Big Three that West Germany is using Berlin for provocational provocations and endangering peace by holding meetings of the West German Parliament in West Berlin.

The latest Soviet complaint was in notes handed the American, British and French embassies in Moscow. It was made public by Tass, official Soviet news agency.

Moscow Radio, in a companion broadcast, charged West Germany—with the support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—was trying to undermine the results of the Kennedy-Khrushchev talks.

The Soviet foreign ministry statement protested meetings now being held in West Berlin by committees of the West German Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, and the meeting plans to hold a symbolic Bundestag session in East Berlin, depicted hall of the Communist-surrounded city.

The committees meeting this week in West Berlin are considering a bill for a federal youth, internal affairs, and rehabilitation of Nazi victims.

The plan for a full session of the Bundestag in Berlin have been postponed for some time—last year, immediately after the Soviet-West Berlin crisis began. Such sessions formerly were held fairly regularly as a demonstration to the East Germans under Communist rule and a reminder that West Germany is a reunified Germany. But since the result of pressure on the city, the Bonn legislators have hesitated to do anything that might stir up trouble.

CNR PRESIDENT TARGET OF ATTACK IN HOUSE DEBATE

3 Backbenchers Want Him Removed

OTTAWA (CP) — Burly Donald Gordon, president of the CNR since 1950, was the target Thursday of one of the sincerest attacks ever launched in the Commons against a federal public servant. He was described as overlording, arrogant, inhuman, haughty and "the real enemy of national unity."

The attackers were three Progressive Conservative backbenchers who demanded that the government remove Mr. Gordon as head of the railway. The 59-year-old man earns $75,000 a year, including director's fees.

CALLS 'DISGRACEFUL'

At the same time Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier), a former transport minister, said it was "disgraceful" that the government had failed to announce whether Mr. Gordon is to continue as head of the railway system.

Mr. Gordon's regular term as president expired last September and the government has not yet announced his reappointment. He is continuing at his job on a day-to-day basis.

Mr. Pigeon said Mr. Gordon should be put on trial for the old steam locomotive when it is replaced by a diesel. He was detested by CNR employees.

"Personally, I think the government is responsible for this," said Mr. Webb. He did not believe that Mr. Gordon has the "good wishes" of Canadians.

Mr. Webb said Mr. Gordon is "overlording and arrogant." He said that applies equally to many railway workers. It became evident to him that the CNR president is "the real enemy of national unity."

The attackers came before the Commons railway committee as it began studying the annual report of the railway.

Canadian Parliamentarians Finish Conference on Kennedy's Yacht

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian parliamentarians planned to wind up their two-day Canada-U.S. inter parliamentary conference today aboard President Kennedy's private yacht "Honey Fitz."

Kennedy, suffering from an ailing back, offered the parliamentarians the use of the yacht shortly before he left by plane for West Palm Beach, Fla., for a three-day rest.

The president talked to the Canadian legislators during a White House visit Thursday and told them how much he appreciated the reception he got on his visit to Ottawa last month.

Canadian leaders assured the president the Canadian vocation came from the heart.

Should Discuss Britain Joining Common Market

Multi-Lateral Parley Favored by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today a Commonwealth conference, at the level of prime ministers if necessary, should be held to discuss Britain's move towards joining the European Common Market.

He told the Commons that he believes a multi-lateral conference among Commonwealth countries affected by the move would be more valuable than a series of bilateral conferences between British and individual members.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke in reply to Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) who asked for his comment on a London report that Commonwealth relations secretary Duncan Sandys and some senior ministers planned to tour Commonwealth countries on the subject.

Mr. Chevrier: Canadian government knew that Britain was applying how best to study the effects of the move on the Commonwealth countries.

NEED CONSULTATION

"We have made it clear to Prime Minister Macmillan and he has agreed that there should be consultation before any move in that direction is taken by the United Kingdom," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"There have been certain consultations at the level of government officials—the most recent of these took place in Ottawa two weeks ago.

"As to consultations at the ministerial level, nothing definite has as yet been arranged."

He said that while consultations on a bilateral basis was useful, he believed that there should be a conference in advance among all interested Commonwealth countries.

The report appeared in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which said that Diefenbaker went further the day after his father's assassination and was ordered held in protective detention by his brother, Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr.

ASK BLOCKBUSTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Merchant seamen asked for "blockbuster sea waiters" in wartime should De-delphor her war veterans allowance board of the Canadian Legion said Thursday. The suggestion by the Canadian veterans affairs committee was followed by a request from the committee that a flexible rule how eligibility should be judged.

Esther-Lillian Studio of Ballet Presents Ninth Annual Show

By EUGENE LANG

The Collegiate auditorium had few turned-up seats last evening as a sizable crowd was on hand to witness the ninth annual production of the Esther-Lillian Studio of Ballet. For over two hours the audience was transported into that nebulous world of the ballet as scores of students of Esther Hughes and Lillian Leitchford demonstrated their versatility and collective terpsichorean talents to the delight of parents, neighbors and relatives of the dancers taking part. Ranging from chubby cherubs and minuscule ballerinas through stripy strippers to adept adolescents, their performances gave evidence of many hours of practice and patience.

Space precludes the evaluation of all the numbers presented but mention should be made of two or three exceptional offerings. Donna Lee Griffith, in her solo dance, showed as much grace and poise as did Gail Parks in her double walk selection. Barbara Jones exhibited both rhythm and poise in her various numbers. Judy Shulman and Bonnie Bagnall deserve credit for their splendid duet. Pamela Marshall has well take top honors of the evening for her "Spanish" sailor dance routine. Her graceful manoeuvres that were performed with ease and assurance throughout, as were many other dancers who were proficient in their selections and can be justly proud of their efforts. In the group productions there was noticeable, at times, some lack of unity and co-ordination, but more consistent practice will no doubt eliminate these elements.

Tastily designed costumes by Esther and Lillian added immeasurably to the overall colorful effect of the spectacle-ment. Piano accompaniments by Mrs. Anthony Jeanes and Mrs. Gordon Little were agreeably played in all instances except one. Without these pianists' patient help through all the many hours of rehearsal the final production would be impossible. They deserve special note.

AUDIENCE NOISY

It is to be hoped that in future years ushers will endeavor to respect the decorum by patronizing front promenaders shuffling to their old last evening. The back of the auditorium sounded like a bowling alley, with the clogging of feet, rattling of seats etc., with such nonconcern that at no time could the speakers on the stage be heard when announcements were made. These young dancers deserve the attention that at times they did not get, through the lack of manners of the seat holders.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market progressed from its morning uneasiness and was higher during moderate trading today.

On index, industrials rose 3.31 to 275.80, gold rose .21 to 91.26 and base metals 1.30 to 191.75. The final volume was 2,857,000 shares compared with 2,180,000 Wednesday.

Mining trade was heavy, essentially in some of the speculative mines. Con-Key ticked over more than 340,000 shares in late - day trading and advanced.

Among seniors, losses were heavy. Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting lost more than a point, while Falconbridge, Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Quemont and Noranda had fractional losses.

In light gold trading, Malartyns Peruvian, Giant Yellowknife and Kerr Addison all fell, while Hollinger was up ¼ to 34¾.

Past President Gives Report On 1960 Work

TRENTON — Dick Burnet, past president of the Kiwanis Club, reported to the club last night on club activities for 1960 when he was president.

Mr. Burnet said that in his opinion the Trenton club's most successful year was when he was president.

Mr. Burnet outlined various club projects carried on in 1960, reporting on inter-club activity, and various community betterment phases of the club work. Mr. Burnet commended the press for its coverage of club activities. He told of the work done by various committees, including the committee which handled the boys' and girls' committee, support of churches' committee and the safety committee.

Mr. Burnet said the club was happy that Kiwan Club, comprised of high school boys, could be formed in the fall.

President-elect David Davis commended a committee headed by Paul Thorne which had made the arrangements for last week's 10th charter night banquet, and reminded members of the June 14 golf day, which is being sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Appoint Adjustment Committee

TRENTON — Council has appointed a committee of adjustment to deal with minor variances from the town's zoning by-law.

William Steenburg, contractor, was appointed for a one-year term; Gerald Weaver, businessman, for a two-year term, and Harold Blakely, who has had extensive experience in the building field and who has served as a member of the Court of Revision for a number of years, was appointed for a three-year term.

The committee of adjustment will provide the answer to a long-felt need. Up until now builders who found themselves at odds with the Trenton and Sidney Planning Board and town council were forced to appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board for a ruling.

One Fatality Last Month

TRENTON — According to the accident report for May, released yesterday by Chief Constable F. J. Taylor, 25 motor vehicle accidents occurred in Trenton during the month, with estimated damages totalling $3,835.

One person was killed and two were injured. On May 23, four-year-old Lynne Loucks died of injuries received when she was struck by a delivery truck. Two school children were injured in accidents involving cars.

There were 10 accidents which involved damage over $100 and 15 in the under-$100 category. There were two hit-and-run accidents, involving property damage only.

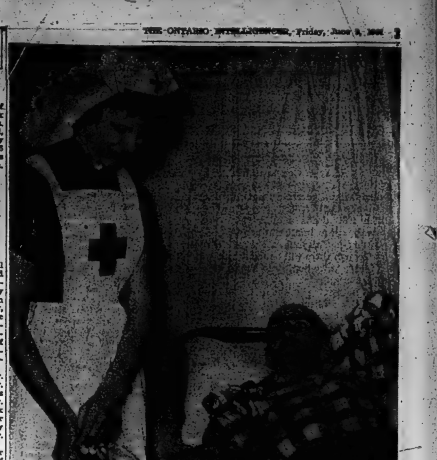
TRENTON — The body of seven-year-old David Patrick Riley, son of Cpl. and Mrs. William Riley of Smithfield, who disappeared on Monday night while fishing at No. 6 Dam on the Trent River, was recovered today at No. 5 Dam.

Pontifical Mass For W.H. Carty At St. Peter's

TRENTON — Pontifical funeral Mass was celebrated Thursday in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church here by Archbishop J. A. O'Sullivan for Rev. William Henry Carty, 62, spiritual leader of the church since 1953, who drowned Sunday in a boating accident at Buck Lake, north of Kingston. Assisting the Archbishop was Msgr. J. P. Sullivan of Belleville.

Deacon of the Mass was Rev. P. H. Murphy, assisted by Rev. William Dwyer, Father Carty's nephew and Rev. F. Murphy. Sub-deacon was Rev. Patrick Carty, another of Father Carty's nephews. The eulogy was delivered by Very Rev. J. J. Shannon of Prescott.

Forming a guard of honor were Fourth, Degree Knights of Columbus and the bearers were Joseph Ryan, Martin Murphy, Frank Murphy, John Wadchuck, James Williamson, William O'Neill, all members of the Knights of Columbus.



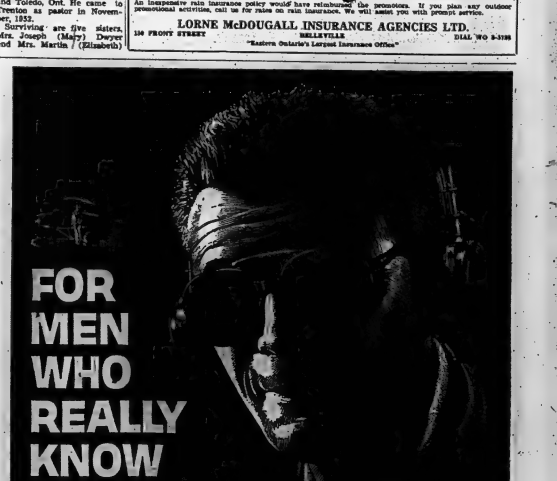
Interment was in Mount Calvary cemetery.

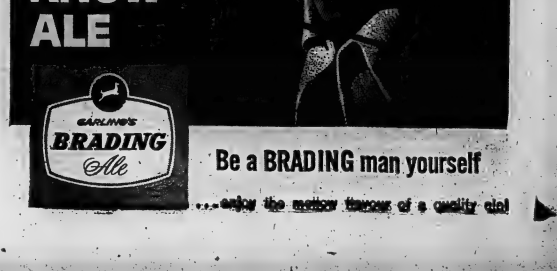
Present at the services were more than 500 people from centres in the Kingston diocese. Mayor James MacDonald, Town Clerk O. W. Ross and members of town council and provincial officials of various local denominations also attended.

Wednesday night members of the Knights of Columbus kept an all-night vigil in the church and on Thursday morning school children of St Peter's congregation attended a High Requiem Mass.

Father Carty was born at Newborough, Ont., and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carty. He was educated in Theological colleges in Montreal and Toronto and was ordained as a priest in May, 1926. Father Carty served in churches in Gananoque, Prescott, Bedford, South Mountain and Toledo, Ont. He came to Trenton as pastor in November, 1953.

Surviving are five sisters, Mrs. Joseph (Mary) Murphy and Mrs. Martin (Elizabeth)





THE BIG 60 — Allan Lott, R.R. 1, Belleville, has given 60 donations of blood since his first contribution as a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Egypt during the Second World War. Here he chats with Nurse's Aid Miss Dianne Cressman of Toronto, at last night's windup of the day-long Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic at the Kiwanis Centre. Archie Lewis, chairman of the local Red Cross Society's blood donor clinic, said today that 168 pints were collected during the clinic.

COULD THIS HAPPEN TO YOU?
A group of men decided to sponsor and promote a harness racing event. Their promotional costs were $350, but they expected to have their money returned through the gate receipts. About two hours before the first race, down came the rain. Only a few people paid to watch a race while standing in the rain and the promoters lost over $300.
An inexpensive rain insurance policy would have reimbursed the promoters. If you plan any outdoor promotional activities, call us for rates on rain insurance. We will assist you with prompt service.

New Murder Laws Ready

The House of Commons has, for all intents and purposes, completed the work of changing Canada's laws governing murder. All that is left is the final reading of the Government's bill which will divide murder into two classes, prescribing life imprisonment for one class and retaining capital punishment for the other.

Though there will be many who will quarrel with this legislation, it is not in principle bad legislation. Certainly it is infinitely to be preferred to having Cabinet decree endeavor to make the punishment fit the crime, which is what has been happening ever since the Disembarkee Government started granting so many commutations of death sentences imposed by judges in accordance with the law of the land.

One cannot help wondering, though what opinions the members of the House hold on the private bill of Miss Judy LaMarsh, which would have replaced the gallows with a lethal gas chamber. This bill has gone to the end of the list of private members' bills, which means that there is little chance of it being considered at this session. One wonders why the government did not suggest that the bill be embodied as an amendment to its own legislation—or, indeed, why such a change in the method of execution was not included in the government's bill in the first place. Surely it cannot be that the majority of members are opposed to such a change—those favoring the retention of capital punishment because the gas chamber is more humane and therefore not as harsh a penalty and those opposed to capital punishment because a more humane method of execution might diminish support for the abolition of capital punishment entirely? Yet, unless there is some reasoning of this nature, how are we to explain the evident reluctance to consider elimination of those horrible scenes which a Senate committee had so graphically described to it a few years ago?

To favor death as the penalty for murder is one thing; to require that this death should be painful is a quite different, and far less defensible, position.

Two of a Kind

"Our views contrasted sharply — ," reported President John Kennedy of his talks with Nikita Khrushchev.

"Neither of us was there to dictate a settlement or to convert the other to a cause, or to concede our basic interests, but both of us were there, I think, because we realized each nation has the power to inflict enormous damage upon the other, that such a war could and should be avoided, if at all possible."

These are not extraordinary views and yet their effect is extraordinary, if we read them carefully.

Deliberately or unwittingly, Kennedy is here conveying the distinct impression that he and Khrushchev are essentially men cut in the same pattern.

To state this explicitly, in this fashion, is to invite an immediate and indignant denial, to which perhaps the President would join. Yet may it not be basically true? Of course, their creeds differ, but each has a creed in which he firmly believes. Khrushchev has been called unyielding, and so he is. Is it not also possible that Kennedy, too, is just as adamant, just as toughminded?

If this be true, it seems to us to basically alter the situation which has existed during the past decade or so. Eisenhower was at heart a believer in compromise, though he early learned that the essential response, a willingness to give by the opposite number as well as to take, was generally lacking. Kennedy, though he is on record as preferring, in domestic politics, acceptance of the best arrangements obtainable to the futile effort to attain the impossible ideal, may not carry this spirit of compromise into the arena of international affairs.

This may add to the danger of the coming years — but it could also serve to heighten the logical reason for hope. With the Cold War, both Khrushchev and Kennedy may be willing to agree that what cannot be cured without compromise must be endured with patience, that, in the words of the President, "However difficult it may seem to answer this question (whether these two systems can ever hope to live in peace) — I think we owe it to all mankind to make every possible effort."

In the old days we used to say that when the United States economy sneezed the rest of the world went to bed with pneumonia. Now when the United States economy sneezes the other countries say "Gesundheit."—Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's council of economic advisers.

Porch Is Pleasant Place

Montreal Gazette

When the American short-story writer O. Henry was living in New York, he would often think back to his days in the south — in what he would call "Yo'th Ca'lina." He would daydream of the porches, with their honeysuckle vine, under a spring-time moon.

"Was thinking lately (since the April moon commenced to shine) of the porches of home. I'd like to be down south when I could happen over to Miss Ethel's or Miss Sallie's and sit down on the porch — not on a chair — on the edge of the porch, and lay my straw hat on the steps and lay my head back against the honeysuckle on the post — and just talk."

Soon Miss Ethel would go in and bring out the guitar. How would complain that the string was broken. But no one believed her, and pretty soon all of them would be singing "Swanee River" and "In the Evening by the Moonlight." And Uncle Henry, or Cousin Bill Henry, thinking back to those days, would be saying: "Dog-gone it, what's the use of wishing?"

A great book could be written about the part that the porch has played in the social life of North America. There is no other country has built more of them. Houses have them under different names, sometimes, "porches," sometimes "verandahs," sometimes "piazzas." But they all serve the same purpose. They make it possible for people to live outdoors while still at home. And they are one of the best means for casual visiting. To ask people indoors is ceremonious. We have them to come over to the porch is easy.

When many porches are near-by, they become almost communal. William Dean Howells, the novelist, describes how Conrad, the boy hero, is summoned from neighboring porches, when a "call" comes, by merely something worth hearing.

Howells had visited James Garfield (later President of the United States) on the verandah of his father's home in Ohio. He was sitting there with the Garfield family when he happened to begin talking about the great American writers he had known in old New England days.

Garfield stopped him. "Just a minute," he said, and he ran down to the grassy space to one neighbor's porches, and to another. All the families round about were, of course, sitting out on their verandahs, "all over here!" he shouted, with a wave of his hand, "and talking about Holmes, and Longfellow, and Lowell and Whittier."

Howells had never been seen in the dark stepping over the fences and cautiously feeling steps to the Garfields' verandah.

"How go on!" Howells was told when everyone was seated. Howells says he "went on, while the whippoorwills whirred and whistled round, and the hours drew toward midnight."

The very convenience of the verandah — where food is eaten and yet part of the house — presents certain difficulties. For when the doors and the windows of the house are open, what is said on the verandah may be heard indoors, and what is said indoors may be overheard by those on the verandah. Howells not matter, of course, but at times it does matter, as Howells knew.

Mrs. James T. Fields, the wife of the Boston publisher, tells the story of Howells in an embarrassing situation at Longfellow's memorial service in Westminster in 1881. They were dining indoors, on a warm day, with all windows open, as well as Oliver Wendell Holmes (author of "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table") was among the guests, and nobody could talk more wittily than he.

Unfortunately, he did not happen to notice that Charles Sumner, the Senator, who had died elsewhere, had come over to Longfellow's house, and was waiting on the verandah, just outside the windows.

Dr. Holmes began to talk about Sumner. "Mr. Sumner — Sumner is Mr. Sumner," they all said. But Dr. Holmes did not hear.

Longfellow grew nervous and rose to speak of Sumner. But still Dr. Holmes went on. The situation was saved only by Mr. Field suggesting that they all go out to the verandah and join the Senator.

There could be something horrible about life on the verandah of country resorts, especially in Victorian times when the guests sat along its length, in their rocking-chairs. A new arrival at the hotel had to face the scrutiny of all the guests already established. His self-possession might be severely disproved.

But an observer in 1880 has said that a new arrival would soon be able to take his place on the great verandah. The new arrival need, no pity, for the ending proportion of the matter as to picture and universal experience persuade us that a place must be found for him and he will shortly be established as one of the privileged, and in his turn a critic of his new rivals."

Verandahs, and porches, and piazzas are still to be found in great numbers, to be sure, but the spirit of their charm is that something pleasantly old-fashioned lingers about them — something of the long summer days that seemed too leisurely ever quite to come to an end.

Alcohol Gives False Sanctions Says Sydney

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What I resent most about liquor — or, more accurately, about the abuse of liquor — is that it gives men the sanction to do and say what they would not otherwise do or say, and then allows them to plead in extenuation that they were "under the influence."

Some persons, I am sure, purposely drink just enough, they should, just in order to be able to give vent to their real feelings of hate and hostility under the cloak of inebriation. Often, they are not nearly as drunk as they pretend to be.

There is a marvelous little story, I read long ago, in some old book of Scottish anecdotes, that sheds a great deal of light into this kind of behavior.

It seems that shortly after the union of the crowns, when Scottish gentlemen were beginning to find a set among the London Lord Harewood gave a dinner party to which were invited a number of southern lords and writers, both civil and military, for the purpose of getting them freely and the spirits of the group had begun to rise, General Scott, a Scottish gentleman of fame and a reckless bon vivant, stood up and said:

"Gentlemen, when I am in my cups, and the generous wine begins to warm my blood, I'm a man to call no man to account. Knowing my weakness, I hope no gentleman in the company will take it amiss."

He sat down, and a Highland chief, Sir Robert Sinclair of Blair-Atholl, presenting a front like an old battlement tower, slowly rose to his place and with the utmost simplicity and good nature, replied:

"Gentlemen, when I am in my cups and the generous wine begins to warm my blood, if I hear a man rail against the Scots people, I call it my duty and custom of kicking him at once out of the company, often breaking a few of his bones in the process. Knowing my weakness, I hope no gentleman will take it amiss."

The book reported that General Scott's face turned a deep crimson, and he was heard to mutter: "Sir Robert — Sir Robert is Sir Robert."

I wish more people would realize that they are not responsible for what they do when they are drunk, and that they should be held responsible for what they do when they are sober.

SPIRITUAL LAWS

People sometimes find it hard to get into their minds the realization that there are spiritual laws as well as physical laws.

The so-called laws of nature operate in the physical realm. They are the "rules of the game" by method of action with reference to material things. But the material world is only an adjunct to life and some people consider it a projection of the spiritual world. Matter is very real to us. The material universe must be very important in carrying out God's great plans. These plans are so great that we can only in a very small measure realize their nature and significance.

But spiritual laws are just as real as physical laws. If it were not for spiritual laws than the souls of man, and those who have gone before, and heaven itself would all be in confusion. Spiritual law prevails wherever spirit exists.

Happy living for us consists in finding out what those spiritual laws are, how they are governing our wills and actions to those laws. Real true spiritual law is humility before God, commitment to His will, faith in God, in ourselves, and in our fellow men.

People have sometimes scorned the Christian religion because it emphasizes submission. But whether we want to or not we have to submit to physical laws. We cannot break them in the realm of spirit. We submit — as a result we learn, we grow, we achieve.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

June 9th, 1941.

The increased industrial activity and larger population has necessitated the extension of water to be purified. During the last seven days the amount of water passing through the purification plant has been greater by an average of 700,000 gallons per day over that in 1940. In the month of April, 1941 it was six million gallons more than in 1940, and in the month of May it was ten million gallons more. The plant records show that one of the reasons for the increase is that consumers are using the water for lawn and garden sprinkling at other than the appointed times.

ways committee. He does so annually.

The refusal of the minister, Mr. Fisher said, to give a firm date for Mr. Gordon's appearance has given rise to speculation, perhaps unfounded—that the CNR president has declined to confer until the government clarifies his position.

At this point Mr. Chevrier asked Mr. Balcer, in comment on a recent suggestion in the Senate by Senator Gunnar Thorvaldson of Winnipeg, president of the National Progressive Conservative Association, that the management and administration of the CNR be split into two divisions.-Mr. Gordon now holds both these responsibilities.

Mr. Balcer's only reply was that government policy is never announced in the Senate. He did not comment on the demands that Mr. Gordon be removed.

Art Smith (PC — Calgary South), while stating that some of the criticisms of Mr. Gordon are based on fact, said he hoped no member would assume that because the CNR has a substantial deficit "the responsibility should be borne by the president of the railway."

Mr. Gordon, he said, was well able to defend himself. But there appeared to be an inclination by some members to hold the CNR president responsible for the difficulties in which the railway found itself.

Mr. Pigeon described Mr. Gordon as the "number one enemy of national unity." He had recently committed another "stupidity" naming another neo-Canadian vice-president.

"Out of 17 CNR vice - presidents not one is bilingual," Mr. Pigeon said.

Mr. Small said he had heard reports that Mr. Gordon had been offered a position with the Chase National Bank in New York at an annual salary of $125,000.

"I would say that if he were wise he would take it," Mr. Small said.

dicted he may take up the Senate speaker on his invitation to a round of golf in March. No dates were set.

State Secretary Dean Rusk welcomed the Canadians at the conference opening and when the talks went into private session, he disclosed to the members an announcement the U.S. made later in the day—the exemption from an export ban on special grain handling equipment to unload Canadian grain in Communist China.

The private talks touched on Canada's role in Latin America; Canadian reaction to the prisoners-for-tractors deal, tourist trade and defence.

American legislators asked for an expression of Canadian views on Premier Castro's offer to trade Cuban rebel prisoners for American tractors. One prominent Canadian view was that while the deal had the appearance of humiliation for the United States, it was best to go through with it in the same way that ransom is paid to kidnappers to secure human life.

Majority of Parents Favor Teaching of Oral French In Higher P.S. Grades

Although the tabulation of returns is still not quite completed, a healthy majority of ballots cast in Belleville would seem to favor the introduction of oral French as a study for the higher grades in city public schools.

From the questionnaire returns so far tabulated by the Belleville Home and School Council from 73 to 80 per cent of parents favor the introduction of oral French in public schools, while a slightly lower percentage — from 63 to 70 per cent — say they would agree to a portion of their tax dollar being used to pay for such instruction.

Two weeks ago a questionnaire form on the subject was circulated from city public schools and Home and School Council members are now completing tabulation of the results.

"So far we are very pleased with the results," stated Mrs. Elizabeth Fort vice-president of the home and school council. "It shows that Belleville parents are interested in oral French being taught in local public schools."

THREE QUESTIONS ASKED

The questionnaire circulated through the schools had three questions: 1. Whether oral French was favored as a subject for the higher grades in public schools. 2. Whether parents would be willing for a portion of their tax dollar being used to pay for the instruction. And 3. Whether parents favor setting up special class that is a volunteer basis outside of school hours, if the school authorities were unable to arrange for the subject during regular school hours.

A majority gave affirmative answers to the first two questions, while although many were agreeable to the third question, the general feeling was that this was not the answer for public school age children receiving instruction in oral French.

The reason for the high incidence of answers favorable to the introduction of oral French was given as the city being no longer composed of a strictly static population.

FREQUENTLY MOVED

Instead a considerable percentage of the local population is composed of either service personnel, or employees of factories who frequently are moved to jobs in other provinces.

Such families are almost 100 per cent in favor of oral French being taught in public schools as it is felt this assists children to fit in without loss of grades when they enter schools in other provinces.

So far oral French is not included in the public school curriculum, but the study has been introduced at Oakville with considerable success, while the city of Chatham also will shortly introduce the subject.

When the local survey tabulation is completed the results will be turned over to the public school board, who will take the matter under consideration.

VOTE AGAINST BARS

BRECHIN, Ont. (CP) — Mara Township residents voted against establishment of cocktail bars and dining room lounges Wednesday. Wets received 550 votes on the cocktail bar question with drys getting 644 votes. On the dining room question, there were 536 yes votes and 660 nos. A 60-per-cent majority was needed to change existing bylaws and wets received about 56 per cent.

EICHMANN

ers, where 2,500,000 Jews died.

Hoess made the statement to a Polish war crimes court which sentenced him to hang in front of the gas chambers he operated.

HITLER'S ORDERS

Said Hoess:

"In 1941 Reichsführer Heinrich) Himmler told me the Fuehrer had ordered the final solution of the Jewish question, and that we in the SS must personally take this task.

"I have selected Auschwitz (Himmler said). More detailed information will be given to you by Eichmann who will arrive."

Hoess continued that Himmler told him between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 Jews would come to Auschwitz.

Written instructions did not exist because of the secrecy of the hideous scheme, but he had the definite order: "Eichmann's transports must be exterminated and his operation cannot tolerate the delay of even one hour."

As the program was stepped up, Hoess said Himmler and Eichmann came to Auschwitz and ordered more unloading facilities created to speed up the killing. Eventually there was an extra crematorium which had been in disuse.

SAW PROGRAM WORK

After Eichmann left his Berlin headquarters to supervise "evacuation" of the 400,000 Hungarian Jews, he accompanied the first transport to Auschwitz to see for himself how it was going, Hoess testified.

The story of the dead Nazi chief of Auschwitz brought out a declaration that "Eichmann decided in the gas chamber" Transports were to be gassed and I was personally responsible to Himmler for any delay."

In additional documents, the prosecution in Israel established that Eichmann's office delivered the skeletons of 150 Jews killed at Auschwitz to a German research institute in Strasbourg, France, for study on ancestral backgrounds. One of the affidavits was a letter in Eichmann explaining that remains of Jews who had been subjected to "experiments" at Auschwitz had been sent to the institute.

Hoess also told his interrogators that he himself estimated that between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 Jews were murdered in Auschwitz. Eichmann, Hoess added, had given the number of exterminated Jews at Auschwitz as 2,500,000.

Hoess said Auschwitz was selected because its site made possible "mass annihilation without the danger of a hitch developing."

401 Road Between Brighton And Port Hope to Be Opened For Traffic About August 1

In something less than two months' time, Belleville motorists will be able to take 401 Highway all the way through to Toronto and beyond.

This was indicated today by Ontario Highways Department engineers at Port Hope, who said August 1st was the tentative date for the official opening of the 28-mile stretch of 401 highway between Brighton and Port Hope.

Currently there are four active paving contracts underway on the 27.85 mile stretch of still unopened highway. Top paving operations are now being carried out.

Following this will be trimming up operations with guide rail posts to be installed and sodding operations on the slopes of the many high slopes along the highway route in the area north of Colborne and Grafton.

Although the four-lane road between Highways 25 and 30 is still not officially opened a few motorists were said attempting to go "all the way" on 401.

"We are discouraging motorists going through until the road is completed," engineers stated. "Until the road is completed, public use of the highway slows up the contractors and presents a danger hazard not only for the workers but for the motorists themselves."

South Africa Topic at IODE Meet

At the June meeting of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., Mrs. Vera Wilson, convener of Empire and World Affairs gave an informative and interesting account of S. Africa. Speaking of Dr. Verwoerd's aims for the new republic she stressed three facts: first, the necessity for African and English speaking people to work together; second — that they must have complete sovereignty and independence either within or without the Commonwealth; third, that the solution of the racial problems depends on the separate development of the blacks and whites.

Mrs. Wilson told of the various racial groups that compose South, Africa's 17 1-2 million people the type of Government, both Federal and Provincial and how they were elected and finally of the educational system. Among the 9 1-2 million Bantus illiteracy is decreasing due to the building of many new schools and a university.

At the conclusion of her speech, both Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. G. MacEwen, who are moving away from Belleville this summer, were presented with a small gift from the Chapter.

NEW MEMBER

Mrs. M. Patterson, regent, welcomed Mrs. R. Safir as a new member of the St. Julien Chapter.

Following the treasurer's report, donations were voted to the many projects supported by the I.O.D.E.

Mrs. K. Pulham, educational convener reported several ladies had visited the adopted school on Commonwealth day when the pupils performed the program which had been given to them previously. At the close of this, the ladies gave them a party before the school dismissed for the holiday weekend.

Mrs. R. Ellis, public relations convener, made arrangements for pictures and stories of the chapter's interests and activities to be ready to turn in to the publicity committee of United Appeal by June 26.

Mrs. G. Hurst spoke briefly on citizenship and immigration and announced that the next Citizenship Court will be held on June 16th.

Mrs. Patterson announced further plans for the International Fair this fall. It is expected that three new citizen groups will also have displays this year and conveners were named to help them. The International Fair will be held at the Cliff Commodore on October 16, both afternoon and evening, when it is hoped that greater accommodation and better parking facilities will help even more people to view the exhibits.

St. Michael's Gr. 8 Pupils Visit Ottawa

On Thursday, the grade eight pupils of St. Michael's Academy left by bus for Ottawa, Ontario.

While there, they visited the House of Parliament and met Mr. Lennox in part of the morning session which dealt with the "Order of the Day". This was a most interesting experience. Through the kindness of honorable Lee Clark, M.P. they were taken to a large committee room in the west block where they had lunch.

They were privileged to meet the honorable Howard C. Green and his distinguished visitors, the Ambassador of Argentina, the President of the Argentine Canadian Institute in Buenos Aires; the Counsellor of the Argentine Embassy, Ottawa and the Minister of External Affairs, for the Latin American Division.

During the afternoon they saw the Musical Ride at the R.C.M.P. barracks, visited the archives and the museum. Following this, they went to the Mall where they received some souvenirs of their visit.

All in all, they had an educational and enjoyable day.

Farewell Gifts Presented to Pastor, Family

An enjoyable evening was spent at Coe Hill United Church recently when church members and friends gathered together in a time of fellowship with their minister, Mr. G. H. Hoult and family, before their departure from this city.

Mr. Hoult has recently graduated from Queen's Theological College and was ordained in Harcourt on June 8th.

The Rev. McDowell was chairman for the short program which consisted of a reading given by Mrs. A. Dickens, "A Manse Is Not an Ivory Tower," and a poem composed and read by Mrs. J. Greenwood, a vocal solo, "How Great Thou Art," by Mr. Garth McCreary and a piano solo, "Without a Song," by Mrs. I. Blakely, all of which appropriately befitting the occasion were arranged and sung by Mrs. R. Mayer to the tune of "So Long It's Been Good to Know You." Mrs. Hoult Moorcroft read an address of appreciation which was followed by the devoted service, not only of the minister, but also of Mrs. Hoult and the family, in the Sunday School, the choir and other organizations of the church.

PRESENTATIONS

Several presentations were made by Mr. Eric Hills, on behalf of the gathering. A clerical gown was presented to Mr. Hoult, a purse to Mrs. Hoult, a travelling case to Miss Reta Hoult, and tie clip and cuff link sets to Peter and Bobby by the church congregation and friends.

The gift of a magazine rack was made to Mr. and Mrs. Hoult from the Wedding Ring club and a Hi-Fi record from the Young People's Union to the family.

Also the presentation of a tea set of china was made to Mrs. Hoult from the Afternoon and Evening groups of the Women's Association.

Suitable replies of appreciation were voiced by Mr. and Mrs. Hoult expressing feelings of gratitude to the many friends they have made on the Belleville suburban charge since coming here a year ago.

Adult Workshop Discussed at OARC Meet

The work of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children is the type greatly needed in this and every community, stated Mr. L. Kells, superintendent of public schools, and moderator of a panel discussing Adult Retardation, at the public meeting of the Association on Tuesday evening.

Also serving on the panel were Miss J. E. Manson, superintendent of the Sheltered Workshop at the Ontario Hospital Cobourg School for Retarded Children; Mr. C. Hiuser, manager of the local Unemployment Insurance Commission, and Mr. T. Stovell, charter and past president of the Association.

Miss Manson described, with the use of slides, the workshop program carried on in Toronto where ill people are trained and have sheltered employment, depending on the type of work submitted and the possibility of it being done. About 50 per cent of those in the workshop are from day schools for retarded children and the rest from opportunity classes for mentally disabled persons, recommended by the Medical Health Service. They stressed training is most important because the telling of time, counting, weighing, measuring, tracing, sewing, cutting and tying knots have all been learned and mastered for use in the workshop.

Contracts from firms, such as toy companies and printers, are received. Tissue paper is rolled, bags are folded and carefully oped, sprons are sewn, rug cushions and pin cushions are some of the things made. The retarded adults are happy and satisfied to see the work they have done and also receive a small wage.

As well as the sheltered workshop the Toronto Metropolitan School has an occupation program providing an enjoyable instructional training program for those who have limitations in excess to those in the workshop.

Mr. Hiuser stated that there would be much sympathy and response by the people of Belleville for retarded adults attending a workshop here in the city. The Department of Special Services of the Employment Commission would bring all possible contacts with industry.

From an O.A.R.C. question sheet recently sent out, Mr. T. Stovell quoted that there is a small percentage of work with retarded adults being carried on in local associations. After the questionnaire replies the branching out to workshop training is possible. The Belleville Association hopes to try and organize a workshop of this kind by the fall.

Before the audience of over 30 heard the panel discussion, Association president Mr. Alvin Parkhurst, presided and received committee reports.

At the end of June two boys will receive graduation certificates from the School for Retarded Children.

Research chairman, Mr. T. Stovell, reported that of the $185,000 donated to the O.A.R.C. from the telethon held for the opening of T.V. channel 9, CFTO, money was being used to employ two doctors at the Hospital for Sick Children for research in the biochemical cause of mental retardation; in the purchase of necessary equipment for research work in education, and in the Smiths Falls Hospital School.

A summer playground program will be carried on at the Cobourg School, supervision and instruction of recreation and summer playground leader Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst.

All retarded children are invited to attend and especially those at home for holidays from Hospital Schools.

Women Study Problems, Prospects of Eskimos

WINDSOR (CP) — Eskimos, their problems and prospects, occupied the annual meeting of the National Council of Women Thursday night.

Earlier, the council discussed ways ranging from the burdens of estate duties and income tax on pensions; treatment of drug addicts, home - makers-housekeeper services, railway rates and provincial technical training programs.

He said in one, or at the most two generations, the Eskimos is expected to undergo changes greater than those white men have taken 2,000 years to achieve.

CITES 'DOUBLE IMPACT'

Earlier Thursday the council decided to urge the federal government to reconsider the double impact of estate duties and income tax on pensions, annuities and death benefits.

Delegates agreed the pensions, annuities and death benefits should not be subject to both duties and tax. They proposed the estate tax should not be levied on pensions and life insurance policies payable to the widow.

The government was commended for changes in the treatment of narcotics addicts in penal institutions and will be urged to provide adequate aftercare.

CNRA Assoc. Sponsors Social Evening

Upwards to 60 members and friends of the CNRA Association recently enjoyed a most delightful social hour in the cafeteria style. The tables were decorated with baskets of tulips and spring flowers, and individual place mats of white with matching napkins.

Following the supper, a social program took place with introductions and speeches appreciating: Rose Sweet, Art Sweet, several selections with violin and guitar; Lu Reynolds, skit, "Silent Duck Hunter", which was followed into a skit of laughter; Bob Smith, beautifully rendered, "Because" and "Bells of St. Mary" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Molly Haggerty. Jackeline better known as "Jack Fitzgerald," in her own special way of yodeling, and she brought down the house.

A half hour sing-song with Mrs. Haggerty at the piano, and the old familiar favorites were heard and clear as every one joined in.

Square dancing music was played by Miss B. Fox and Mr. R. Sweet, with, guitar; Mr. J. Sweet, violin and Mr. Bob Smith, with mouth organ.

Refreshments for the evening was spent playing cards, darts, and dancing to records.

DOOR PRIZES

Door prizes were won by Mrs. J. Hogan, Mrs. M. Mathews, Mr. J. Boomhour, Mr. J. Campbell, Mrs. Jackeline, Mrs. L. Reynolds and Mr. J. Chatten.

For a social evening much enjoyed by all, appreciative thanks are extended to Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, convener and to all those who assisted with time and talent which helped make this a most pleasant evening.

QUESTION BOX

Question — I have two children by a former marriage. I recently remarried. Now that my last name differs from that of my children, it causes confusion when I send for them by mail from school regarding them. Also in announcing myself as my husband and I meet an acquaintance who still calls me by my former married name. How can I tactfully give them my new surname? Also, when writing on when talking with a teacher in the school, how should I sign my name, or give it on the "phone? — Mrs. R. B.S., Bethany, Conn.

Answer — As far as the schools are concerned, this is very simple. Go to the school and talk with the person who teach your children. Explain the situation. They will be glad to look at it for future reference, and there should be no red-tape involved. You can meet acquaintances when you have not seen since your remarriage by introducing your divorced from your first husband), by perfectly frank statement about the bush and mumble around introduce your ex-husband. It embarrassed, let it go at that! There is no reason to be embarrassed, but to clarify your status, make it clear to one and all that you are now "Mrs. Doe," not "Mrs. Smith".

Question — Are my husband and I bad hosts when we do not serve liquor in our home when we entertain? An outspoken friend of ours told me that we are actually being rude when we know that some of our guests enjoy a drink and we do not offer them one. We are not rabid teetotalers or anything like that. We just don't drink ourselves (from religious principles) and we don't like to serve it in our home. What do you think about this? — Mrs. W. B. C., New York, N. Y.

Answer — That your friend is the one who is rude! If you and your husband do not wish to serve liquor in your home, that is your affair. If any of the guests whom you invite don't like this, let them stay home. If a drink is more important than their friendship with you, they aren't worth having for friends in the first place! Stick to your principles and don't worry. You are doing what you consider the right thing.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. J. C. — His high school graduation is one unforgettable by escapades and thrills. In some circles, you just don't "belong" unless you make it your business to be out all night with your classmates, watch the sunrise and have scrambled eggs at some one's home before staggering back to your own in evening clothes.

Since the trend is for each new class to try to outdo the previous one in the after-prom scene, Mrs. C might join with other parents right now to bring a community code into existence. In time for her daughter's graduation. That should take care of the "not-everyone-else-is-doing-it" wheedling. Everyone else may be staying out all night — but it will be according to joint planning by a three-way committee including kids, parents and teachers.

We hope Simon and the class have a good time. But we hope, too, that he remembers the other word for graduation, namely commencement. He's just starting out, his bent to pack so much adventure into what the teenagers view as their "right to howl." Hot-rodding and bat-hopping may turn ill, alas, into a "night to howl."

Young Couple Honored With Fine Gifts

HALLOWAY — Neighbors and friends met on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Pearson to extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Eric Emerson on their recent marriage.

Mr. Floyd MacInnes was master of ceremonies for a brief program. Community singing was led by Mrs. G. Roth and Mrs. C. Townsend, with Miss Carol Denyes at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. R. Hough and Mrs. F. Wellman.

An address expressing appreciation and best wishes for future happiness, was read by Miss Jean McMullen.

The young couple were given beautiful gifts, a combination book-shelf and china cabinet, a step-up table and a chesilla bedspread. Making the presentation, on behalf of the community friends were Carol Denyes, Teddy Reid, Ron Denyes and Harry Morgan.

Eric thanked the group on behalf of Sharon and himself for the lovely gifts and the warm wishes expressed, inviting all to visit them in their home in Belleville.

Lunch was served and a social visit enjoyed.

QUESTION:

Do you have or could you procure a recipe for the old-fashioned kind of ice cream made in a hand freezer — uncooked. Ingredients are eggs, sugar, vanilla, milk and cream, but the quantities I do not know . . . Marjorie U.

ANSWER:

The one word in your letter "uncooked" puzzled me. I do not know of a recipe for hand-freezer ice cream calling for raw eggs. The very best hand-freezer ice cream recipe I know is:

2 cups milk, 1 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 6 egg yolks, 2 cups 10 or 18 per cent cream ("Half and Half"), 2 cups heavy whipping cream, 2 or 3 teaspoons vanilla.

Put milk, sugar and salt in top of double boiler; stir well and place over boiling water, cover and heat to scalding. Beat yolks well, stir in scalded milk slowly, then return to double boiler and cook over hot water, stirring until custard just coats spoon. Remove at once and stadd in ice water, stirring until custard is cold. Stir in remaining ingredients (whipping cream is not whipped), mix well and turn into hand freezer can. Average freezer adds into outer can which will accommodate about 2 gallons. Pack ice for which 3 cups coarse ice cream salt will be needed.

LEYTER:

You have printed Cabbage Roll recipes made by all nationalities. Here is one my mother always used it is called Holishkas is Jewish and really are the treat of treat in my family.

HOLISHKAS:

(Jewish Cabbage Rolls — courtesy Mrs. H.T.) 1 large cabbage, 2 lbs. ground steak (or any beef), 1 large onion browned in oil, juice of 2 lemons, salt and pepper, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-egg, 1 1-2 cups water (from cooking cabbage), 1 cup cooked rice, 1 large can tomatoes, 1-2 cup raisins.

PART ONE:

Cut heart out of cabbage, place cabbage in boiling water to cover and boil 5 min. Separate leaves and drain. Save 1 1-2 cups water.

PART TWO:

Mix chopped meat with beaten egg, rice, onion and seasoning. Place tablespoon of mixture on cabbage leaf, form into roll and tuck ends in. Place rolls in small roaster on sliced onions and excess cabbage leaves. Cover with can of tomatoes, sugar, raisins and lemon juice and cabbage water mixed together. Cook 1 hour on top of stove, tightly covered, then uncover and bake in oven of 300 deg. for 3 hours till nicely brown, making sure there is juice in bottom of roaster throughout.

I serve this with another special dish we love: 4 cups cooked rice are added to 1-2 lb. sliced mushrooms, 1 sliced green pepper and large onion and 2 stalks chopped celery browned in cooking oil. Then add 1 small tin tomato sauce and mix well with rice. This is also good served with, broiled hamburger, top it off with apple pudding for dessert . . . Mrs. H. T.

CITY YARDS CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Most city back yards are so compact that an exquisite planting can be maintained at very little cost. Often, too, the owner of a back yard protected by walls or buildings from severe winter cold and wind can grow plants that only grow in climates somewhat further south.

In planting the city back yard one usually needs: (1) shade, (2) small lawn, (3) flowering and evergreen shrubs. It has been found that many of our most striking flowering trees will flourish in the city back yard. The flowering crab-apple, for example, will produce both flowers and shade.

Soil conditions in the average city back yard can be managed easily—permitting acid-loving plants, in areas where alkaline soils predominate and vice verse, as desired.

To get the most benefit out of the back yard planting, according to the Canadian Association of Nurserymen, it should be carefully planned. The range of plants that will flourish in metropolitan back yards is a very wide one, offering an opportunity to indulge in many colorful species, even espalliered plants that will bear fruit. City back yard planting can be a healthy hobby whose lovely results add a fascinatingly new recreational feature to most urban family life.

Read the Instructions With Your Appliance

If that electric marvel you yearned for has turned out to be less productive in the kitchen than seductive in the store, chances are you don't really know how to use it.

There's a small appliance available to do just about everything except the marketing for your meals. But to get full service from these mechanical maids you must know everything they can do and keep them handy.

Since most of us have neither the budget nor the space to have all the small appliances available, equipment should be planned to fit your way of living.

Electric hot trays and skillets are virtually indispensible if gracious family dining and entertaining are important in your life. If you entertain a good deal and enjoy cooking in the living room during the party, these items can take precedence over the blender your friends can't live without. If you prefer to eat informally in the kitchen, an electric mixer or a blender to whip up new dishes from set-lovers will be important.

When you get a new appliance, read the manufacturer's directions. This will prevent any costly damage and inform you of a variety of labor-saving applications.

For example, an electric Thermo Tray will do much more than keep buffet dinners hot for leisurely eating. It will warm the plates, keep food hot for late arriving husbands, and add a touch of glamour to Sunday brunch.

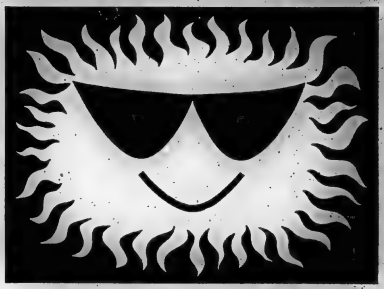
An electric blender will not only blend batters, but will puree fruits and vegetables and convert concentrated frozen juices into sherbet-like desserts.

So read the instructions. The little extra effort put into correct, regular care, will more than pay off in continuing dependable service from your mechanical maids.

HOUSE PAINTING HINT

Paint applied excessively results in improper drying and almost certain wrinkling. Brush out the paint sufficiently, and apply a second coat if needed.

MIXING PLASTER



To avoid lumps when mixing plaster, put water into the container first and then add the powder to the water.

Canadian Garden Service

By Gordon Lindsay Smith

Bugs and diseases are not the only enemies the gardener may have to guard against. Sometimes there are birds and concentrated attacks by rabbits, woodchucks, cows or deer. But the smart gardener can easily outwit all of these as well as most bugs and diseases. Treatment for the last mentioned will be left for another article.

To scare birds there are all sorts of "gimmicks" that shine in the sun and spin or whirr or flutter. There are also scarecrows and even shotguns. We can also plant special fruit and nut trees that the birds will prefer to the garden and will give us hours of pleasure watching them eat. For the rabbits, some people surround the vegetable garden with a row of glass bottles, with no tops and standing firm in just an inch or so of soil. The wind blowing across the open tops makes a noise that drives the rabbits or so it is said. For ground hogs, coons and deer, sometimes an electric fence will be necessary and it will also keep out the rabbits. In some cases, as with coons, however, the fence may have to include a foot or two of poultry netting stretched right down and into the soil, and the electric fence wire on insulators on top. With a little care, a battery will last several years.

If you live in one of the cooler areas of Canada, where there is danger of some frost/until the first of June, and again in early September, then we should select vegetable and flowers that will mature or bloom fairly quickly, early varieties that can be sown or planted after the last week in May and will still have time to make their proper growth.

The 1961 seed catalogue will give us this information, and tell us exactly what length of growing season is required. But it will give much more information than that. It will tell us how high and wide a certain flower will grow so we will know where to plant it in the bed, so that it will not hide other smaller things or be hidden by something bigger. It will tell us, too, about the kind of soil this particular flower or vegetable really prefers. Some like it heavy, some light, some thrive in sun and some must have shade. Some require a lot of water, some little. Colors of flowers are important as we do not want them clashing.

Split level beds have always been popular in gardening. Where the ground slopes considerably one should make the larger lawn and grounds generally condour - rather than trying to grade the whole thing artificially to one level. The simplest and perhaps most interesting treatment is to have an upper and a lower lawn, joining the two with a bit of stone wall or a strip of rock garden through both the wall or rock garden of course there will be a series of steps in stone, brick, or cedar timbers. Another way would be to have shrubbery on the slope joining the two levels.

Where these slopes are any size it is well to remember that unless anchored with rocks, or shrubs, or creeping vines, heavy rains will invariably wash out the soil and make a mess of things.

Practically all the common herbs can be grown in the Canadian garden and usually in the poorest part of it provided it gets full sun. Grown as annuals unfailingly are taken in for the winter, are rosemary, tarragon and sweet marjoram and dill. Truly perennial are thyme, sage, chives, the mints (apple, orange, peppermint and spearmint) and lovage. Parsley is perennial, but the finest flavor comes from plants that are started every season. Soak the seed overnight to hasten germination.

The Canadian gardener is well advised to make sure that all the flower and vegetable seed used comes from a Canadian source. Not because this may be considered patriotic, but because only such seed has been especially selected and tested for the Canadian climate and conditions. A flower or a vegetable that may give excellent results in England, or Virginia or Ireland, may well find Canada much too rugged for its taste.

The rose is the most popular of all flowers in the plant kingdom. Roses have many uses, which may account for their popularity as much as the beauty and quality of the flowers.

Consider the rose. It will flower from spring until heavy frost. It can be worn as a corsage. It helps in landscaping the property by affording continuous color and bloom. It makes an ideal flower for the dinner table or to decorate the home.

The perfume of many roses is delectable. They can easily be grown by anyone in almost every climate. They can climb up a porch, or any unsightly thing transforming it into a thing of beauty. The rose universally is a symbol of love.

A reasonably fertile soil is all that is needed to grow roses well, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

If your soil is too heavy, or too sandy, add peat moss. If rainfall is not sufficient, you water it once a week, and spray about every two weeks with a good all-purpose spray.

In the early spring, or after the heaviest first blooming period is over, add a handful of fertilizer to the soil around each plant.

With a dozen rose bushes one can have all the cut flowers he needs for the home and around the property. With enough to spare for milady to wear a corsage to her favorite meetings. And be sure to ask for ever-blooming varieties.

ILLUSION MIRRORS

Long mirrors hung vertically in a room tend to add height to the ceiling, while large rectangular mirrors mounted on the wall give the feeling of width and spaciousness.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Boss Wants to Date

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Is there any excuse for a girl going out with her boss, who is married? I have made great progress in my work with my present employer and have learned a lot. Just recently he has hinted that he would like to take me out. I have ignored the hints but pretty soon I will have to make it clear how I feel.

My girl friend says I am being mid-Victorian not to go. Others do. Believe me, I am tempted. Am I being too snotty about this?—SECRETARY.

DEAR SECRETARY — Snotty or not, you may be saving yourself and him from great hurt later on.

One engagement outside the office puts things on a different footing. You are friends now and can best stay that way, enjoying each other's company at work, by maintaining present relationships.

It's the so-called mid-Victorian girls who make it possible for men and women to work together all day, without spoiling everything with an overdose of sex. In the work environment the two sexes complement each other and make the job an enjoyable challenge.

Keep it that way and it can go on for years. Overstep the bounds of good, circumspect behavior and before you know it the fat's in the fire.

DEAR DORIS:—My little boy is three and a half. I am worried about him because he is so destructive. He deliberately threw a good cup on the floor and broke it. He pokes into light sockets with a bobbie pin. He climbed up on a chair and pulled over a floor lamp which is now a wreck.

How can I stop him from being such a threat to our house and his own life?—STILL SHAKING.

DEAR STILL SHAKING:—Your son is at an age to explore things. What he does is not likely deliberate destruction. He does not understand what you think he does.

Since he wants to explore, provide things he can safely handle and bang around. Co-ordinating toys like peg board sets, constructive trains, toys on wheels, finger paint, wooden, rubber, plastic and paper construction material, blackboard and chalk.

He needs variety as his attention span at three and a half is very short. Hide dangerous grown-up tools and anticipate his behavior. Show him how to take care of things and keep breakable things out of his reach for a while.

Constantly saying "Don't" may promote frustrations and then defiance.

DEAR DORIS:—My son's wedding reception will be at the bride's home. Can you offer any suggestions as to what is expected of my husband and myself? We are most anxious to do everything to make this the beginning of a wonderful life for our only son and his bride.—M. J.

DEAR M. J.:—At the wedding reception you and your husband are in the receiving line. Talk to the bride's mother ahead of time, offering to help in any way you can. Then start chatting with guests, with special concern for the groom's friends. You can help strangers to meet one another; and see that they are served and seated if possible.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Davidson of Downsview were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Philips.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Philips and daughter, Oala and Mrs Gordon King motored to Bancroft and back on Monday.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Ola W.A. is being held at the home of Mrs. Harry Philips, on Wednesday, June 7th.

The S.S. lesson at the Oral Pentecostal church was from Joshua, 14:7-15. The Bible has hinted that the beloved son of Mrs. Leslie McMurray, At the morning service, Mr. Elden Gunter of Gunter, Ontario was the preacher. Mrs. William Mallory also spoke at the close of the morning service; the communion of the Lord's supper under the direction of the Rev. William Mallory was observed. There was a good attendance at both S. S. and church service.

Last Sunday was the 350th anniversary of the original translation of the King James version of the Bible. Appropriately the Rev. K. McAlister chose the theme, "Know Your Bible". The Scripture reading was the first epistle of John, 1-10. There was a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. McAlister and infant son of Brockville were weekend guests of the Rev. and Mrs. K. McAlister.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Belsie and daughter, Susan were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry King visited in Belleville on Sunday.

Misses Barbara and Edith Philips, of Trenton were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Philips.

Mr. Cephas Stephens is in Toronto undergoing a minor operation. All wish him a speedy and complete recovery.

Sunday School Lesson

The Two Views of Life

By ROY L. SMITH

The Sunday school lesson for this week presents the two views of life, from which every modern man must make his choice.

The first view — taken from the cynical book of Ecclesiastes, in the Old Testament says, in effect, "Live while the living is good." The second view, taken from the New Testament book of 2 Timothy, says, "I have finished the race and kept the faith."

The former is the attitude of the fatalist who believes nothing can be done about life, and the latter is the attitude of the man of faith, who believes that nothing holy, honest, honorable, or faith-full is ever lost.

BEAUTY OF OLD AGE

The first verse of our lesson has been used through many years as a text for the evangelists who wanted to appeal to youth to live a godly life and it has served that purpose well, even though the original author has no such thought in mind. What he was really trying to say was, "Live life to the full while you are young, for old age is a terrible thing."

As a matter of fact, old age for the ancient Hebrew was kept to be a dreary experience. In the first place, life expectancy was little more than 30 years for the average man. Because no dental care was available, the years following 25 were apt to be painful, and after 40 they were difficult. Blindness was common, deafness was widespread and disease of one sort or another lurked behind every sunrise. With strength waning and faculties impaired the old person was doomed to dreariness.

Modern medicine, dental care, and public health conservation has changed all that, and the modern concerns for the aged have had the effect of painting the sunset years in glowing colors.

Meanwhile old age pensions, and a hundred other amelioratives measures have robbed the late years of life of their dreadfulness.

CHRISTIAN CONTRAST

It is impossible to estimate the contribution the Christian faith has made to old age. There is the story of an old Irishman who was whistling as he made his way down through the woods.

"You sound happy," said a friend who overtook him along the way.

"What makes you so happy?" the friend inquired, somewhat amazed.

"I'm a Christian," the aged one answered.

"Well!" exclaimed the friend, "Can't anyone be happy except a Christian?"

"Not at my age," was the reply and the old man went on whistling.

MAN OF FAITH HAS SOMETHING

The difference between the religious man and the irreligious man is the fact that the former has something deep down inside him which serves as an antidote for worry, fear, frustration, anxiety, hopelessness and frenzy.

The pigeon on the city's street moves among the trucks and lorries with confidence because he knows he has wings. The man of faith goes down into the valley of the shadow of death without fear because he has something within his soul that is greater than death or shadows.

Religion — good religion — does not consist of a set of beliefs to be believed, but an inner power to surmount difficulties and confront fears.

The last promise Jesus gave to His disciples was that they were to be infused with an inner power that would enable them to master the life they were going to have to live.

This is the great message of Christianity to the world, that the true believer may be absolutely sure that he will have power equal to his necessities, by the time he has arrived at the point of need.

Trent Canal Lock Operators Said to Be Working Under 'Treadmill' Conditions

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP said Thursday the government should give the Trent Canal to Premier Frost of Ontario for his birthday.

It would make a wonderful birthday present, said J. W. Pickersgill in a brief spoof on Commons debate about the canal. Mr. Frost will be 66-Sept. 29 and the canal runs through his riding of Victoria.

Mr. Pickersgill, member for Bonavista - Twillingate, questioned Mr. Frost's proposals for additional money in the next federal-provincial tax - sharing deal. Referring again to the canal, the Liberal member said:

"It could be made into a provincial park and the federal treasury would be spared this expense. Mr. Frost could probably charge admission and net his $100,000,000 in that way."

Earlier, F. B. Rynard (PC-Simcoe East) said lock operators on the Trent system in Southern Ontario are being forced to work under "treadmill" conditions of the last century.

Mr. Rynard told the Commons during debate of the estimates of the transport department that canal workers still must open and close locks with antiquated turnstiles.

The work was heavy and many men took sick from the stress and strain. It was not fair in the electrical age to ask men to do this type of drudgery.

Mr. Rynard said all locks on the system should be equipped with electrical operating and closing devices. This was necessary because of increasing traffic and for the welfare of workers.

Mr. Rynard also suggested that low-level bridges across the canal be replaced by high-level structures. Under present conditions highway and canal traffic was held up for long periods while bridges were swung open.

He complained particularly about the low-level bridge at Alberley which forms part of Highway 12.

"We are living in horse-and-buggy days," he said.

Two Executives Lose Attempt To Move Trial

WINNIPEG (CP) — The two chief executives of Brandon Packers lost a courtroom attempt Thursday to have their conspiracy trial moved from Brandon to Winnipeg and the court criticized lawyers for talking to newspaper reporters.

Their trial is scheduled for the next regular Assize Court sitting at Brandon but could be heard some time after Sept. 1.

In dismissing the application, Mr. Justice Monnin said: "The court must strongly condemn the practice which has grown here in Manitoba for the past two years of counsel speaking to the press outside of court.

"Counsel cannot attempt to build or bolster their case with statements made by themselves to newspapers."

Among exhibits submitted in support of the change of venue application were clippings from Winnipeg and Brandon newspapers which quoted one of the defence counsel, Stanley Monk, as saying a change in trial location would be sought because of possible prejudice in Brandon.

WASN'T PROVED

Mr. Justice Monnin said prejudice in Brandon had not been proved to his satisfaction and he would have to dismiss the application.

Mr. Justice Monnin said he had spent some time studying the matter of publicity given the case and had found that the publicity was not restricted to Brandon but had been published throughout Canada.

He also said the press had obtaining information from counsel. He said the press should obtain its information in court and from the reading of exhibits and exhibits which are public property.

CAN'T JUSTIFY LENDING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.-Ore.) said Thursday night United States Administration officials "simply have not been able to make out a case for the ill-fated invasion of Cuba." Morse is chairman of a Senate foreign relations Latin - American affairs subcommittee which completed its interrogation Thursday of those involved in the rebel invasion's planning.

Team of Top UK Ministers Will Tour Commonwealth Countries to Seek Reaction

LONDON (CP)—In what looks like the final prelude to its agonizing decision, Britain is sending a team of top ministers on a circuit of Commonwealth countries, it was learned Thursday.

The object is to find out, once and for all, how the sister nations will react if Britain finally and irrevocably decides to link her economic and political destinies with Europe.

Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys, and probably two or three other senior ministers, will make the tour perhaps within the next six weeks, an official source said. Each minister will visit a different part of the globe with a wealth to save time.

It had previously been reported either that Prime Minister Macmillan himself would visit Commonwealth capitals, or that a meeting of prime ministers would be held in London to consider the implications of British entry into Europe.

The final appointment of Viscount Amory as United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada is also regarded as part of the developing political pattern.

MAN SKILLED IN DIPLOMACY

Amory, former British chancellor of the exchequer, is the first political appointment Britain has made to the Ottawa post and it is felt that his mission is to "sell" Canada on the Brain membership of the European Economic Community, including France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

These nations signed the Treaty of Rome March, 1957, binding themselves to what ultimately is proposed as a tight political union.

The rapid progress of the European Common Market, the most publicized aspect of EEC, has alarmed British business circles. Since the so - called "European supermarket" set up shop, France has nearly doubled her exports within the six-nation groupings.

Opponents of British membership in "little Europe," on the other hand, visualize Britain's traditions of stable democracy being swamped in a foreign sea. The percentage of Communists is far higher, for instance, in France and Italy.

To many observers, it looks as though the government has already taken the decision in principle to join hands with the six, however grubby the alien clasp may be.

From this angle, the forthcoming ministerial tour may be seen more as an effort to placate sister nations than to ask for their approval.

The ministers are likely to concentrate their attentions on Canada, New Zealand and the Antipodes, the countries that have shown most nervousness about the likely impact on their economies of British "Europeanization." Canada is principally worried about unanswered goods and foodstuffs such as wheat.

U.S. Strategy to Slow Down Reds in Laos May Collapse

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

United States strategy to tie up the Communists in conference table chatter as a means of slowing down the Red victory march in Laos appears to be in danger of collapse.

In fighting a rearguard diplomatic manoeuvre when the West lacked sufficient determination to show military strength in Laos, President Kennedy was a strong point when he got Russia and Red China to agree to conference negotiations and to support moves to halt the Laotian jungle war.

But as Kennedy as discovered, there is a great gap between theoretical words and deeds and the great gap in East-West definitions of what constitutes war and peace, democracy, neutrality, aggression and popular will.

While the Communists agreed to sit down and talk at Geneva about establishing a neutral Laos and after an international truce commission reported fighting had died down, pro-Red action in Laos suddenly flared anew and another royal government community fell to the Pathet Lao.

HOPES DASHED

Padong is gone and there is no telling where the Pathet Lao will strike next, though again there is talk of a temporary lull in ground action. The significance of Padong is that the flare-up came some time after Kennedy met with Soviet Premier Khrushchev at Vienna. Khrushchev was reported to have agreed at Vienna that an effective cease-fire is important.

Undoubtedly Russia could exercise tremendous influence in the advance of the Pathet Lao. Soviet planes are supplying the rebel forces. The U.S. state department says these supplies are continuing. And so are American supplies to the royal government forces — pathetically weak in the face of the rebel advance.

On the basis of events so far, the West may soon be confronted with an accomplished fact in Laos — the complete takeover of the tiny country by pro-Communist forces.

And so the conversations at Geneva appear to be in vain. Britain and the United States have recently condemned the evident violations of whatever cease-fire existed and British efforts postponed the 14-country conference until there is greater assurance that the fighting had halted.

Most of the while "consultations" among some of the countries are to continue, apparently in the hope of reaching some better understanding of what the Geneva meeting can accomplish.

As it now stands, the whole Geneva operation seems to have an Alice-in-Wonderland atmosphere.

Gun May Have Been Loaded For 40 Years

SMITHS FALLS (CP)—A 115-year-old muzzle-loading shotgun has been sent to provincial police laboratories in Toronto to determine what made it go off Wednesday and kill a 13-year-old boy at Chantry, 20 miles southwest of here.

Provincial Det. Sgt. Ian Horsefield was killed by a classmate, Leonard Morris, 13, who brought the weapon to school for inclusion in a historical display.

Police said they were baffled to explain how the gun went off as they say it was not thought could have rested in the muzzle as long as 40 years.

The gun had often been used in skits and plays with toy caps placed under the firing hammer to cause an explosion. Many such caps had been fired without incident, police said.

Psychological Reasons Back Of Suicides Are Analyzed By Panel of Psychiatrists

MONTREAL (CP) — Children try to kill themselves or threaten to much more frequently than is generally realized, Dr. J. M. Toolan of New York said Wednesday.

He told the World Congress of Psychiatry that one of the most common reasons for a child turning to suicide is to call attention to an emotional problem.

"They feel they want to show someone or to get back at someone," he said.

A common factor in a study of 102 attempted or threatened suicides among children or adolescents was an unsatisfactory home life.

Dr. Toolan appeared on a panel with several other U.S. doctors analyzing the psychological reasons back of suicides.

Dr. Thomas P. Hackett of Boston told the panel there is no question that people can die of suggestion if they believe it implicitly.

He said authorities long have accepted the fact that natives can die of a "voodoo hex" put on them by a medicine man, but only recently have they realized that so - called civilized people can be affected by the same kind of suggestion.

Such a suggestion could be made unintentionally by a doctor who erroneously tells a patient he has an incurable disease, Dr. Hackett said.

He described the case of a man who was told by a doctor he had cancer. The man started to waste away and was actually dying when he went to another doctor who discovered there was no cancer. The man immediately started to recover.

Several cases were known of persons who sincerely believed they would not survive an illness or an operation. They almost invariably died.

Such persons showed no fear of death, but were completely resigned to it, Dr. Hackett said.

Alcoholics Anonymous would be more effective if so many of the members were not opposed to other methods of treating the problem, Dr. Joel Fort of Alameda, Calif., said.

He told a panel discussion that AA has been of "great help" to about half the "relatively small segment" of alcoholics who have tried it.

"Unfortunately the rigid opposition of many AA members to other treatment methods has worked to the disadvantage of other alcoholics."

Showdown Battle on Tariff Bill Postponed

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Government supporters in the Senate, defeated in the first round of the fight over the government's tariff bill, Thursday postponed the showdown battle until next week.

The move came on the heels jority on a committee vote of of a Liberal opposition move in the Senate banking committee which struck at a key section in the controversial bill — the proposal to give the revenue minister arbitrary powers to make final tariff rulings without right of appeal.

An amendment by Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) to provide for an appeal to the tariff board from ministerial decisions was carried by the Liberal ma-

A few hours later, when the amended bill came before the Senate itself, Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader in the upper house, asked that debate be postponed until the next sitting—next Tuesday evening.

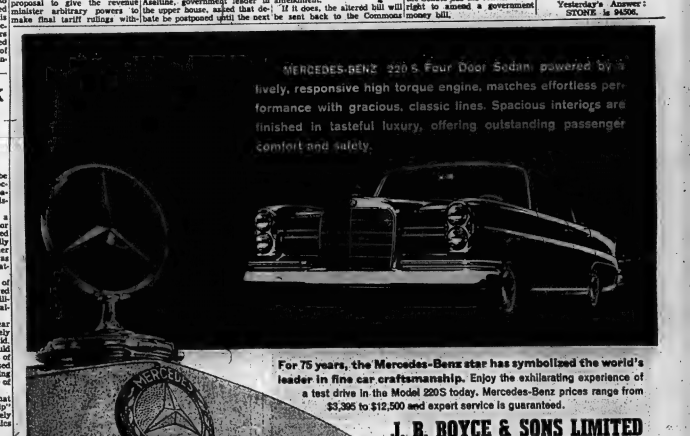
Senator Aseltine had told the committee earlier that the amendment would "defeat the main purpose of the bill and render it ineffective."

There appeared little doubt that the big Liberal majority in the Senate—its members compared with 25 Progressive Conservatives — will approve the bill.

If it does, the altered bill will be sent back to the Commons which has already approved the original version. The Commons, with its big Conservative majority, has the choice of accepting or rejecting the amendment. In cases of deadlock between the two houses, there is provision for a joint committee to work out differences over legislation.

Only once before since the Conservative government took office in 1957 has the opposition majority in the Senate changed a major government bill. That happened last July, on a measure covering compulsory retirement of judges at the age 75, and the Senate amendment was accepted by the Commons.

The present bill spells fuel to the long-standing—and still undecided—debate over whether the Senate has the constitutional right to amend a government money bill.



FIGURET

"I'll call you when we're ready," declared Andy. "But what's your new number?"

"It's what was the same old exchange," he said. "You can figure it out by yourself. Just reverse the order of the four figures and substract from the actual number, and you'll have the square or its second half."

Andy discovered the number, and he's not likely to forget it! What was it?

Top Drivers Compete At Mosport

There are two exciting sessions for British Empire Motor Club's Sports Car races to be held at Mosport Park, near Bowmanville, on Saturday, June 10. It is the first time that Eastern Canada's sports car fans will see European-type road racing on a closed circuit, for it is the first public event to be held at Mosport Park.

It is also the first event this year in which Canada's racing drivers compete for the coveted Canadian Racing Driver's championship.

More than 120 top drivers and machines have entered the event. Francis Bradley, who won plaudits from the world's press for his brilliant driving at Sebring earlier this year, will be driving the sleek and speedy "Miss Whizz" Lola. Ludwig Heimrath, fresh from his success at the season's opening races at Greenacres, will be piloting the very hot Eglinton-Caledonia Porsche RS60.

Other stars of the sports car racing circuits who will be in serious contention for top prizes will include Nat Adams, driving the completely-rebuilt Jaguar XKSS racing car which formerly was successfully driven by Ray Carter; Harry Entwistle, of Hamilton, who has the reputation of always providing exciting races in his Lotus 15, and Ed Leeman, of London, Ont., driving a Daimler SP250. Park is the large number of Big Healey at Mosport hillTop vantage points where fans can see as much as two-thirds of the 2.4 mile circuit. To get to Mosport Park, head for Bowmanville, then follow the signs. First race, starts at 11a.m.

Pop Bottles Fly in Soccer Brawl

CALGARY (CP) — More than 30 fans swinging pop bottles invaded the Renfrew Park soccer field Thursday night and attacked players of both teams.

The incident occurred when a fight broke out between players in Calgary First Division game between Be Fair and Crootia. The game was called with four minutes to play and Crootia leading 2-1. More than 30 fans and players were involved in the skirmish. Several players suffered minor injuries.

Jack Ring, vice-president of Calgary and District Soccer Association, said all players on the field were involved in the battle and all will receive disciplinary action.

Minor Baseball

In a couple of Pewee "A" division, baseball league games the Cardinals defeated the Yankees 4-1 and Jones Boys downed the Dodgers 6-1.

The Yanks scored the first run before the Cards tied it in the third and scored three runs in the fourth for the decision. John Holmes pitched the win while Bob Parson was the loser.

The Jones Boys led all the way in their victory. Jim McCreary was the winning pitcher and Jim Parks toiled in defeat.

ORANGE TOE SOLE

MONTREAL (CP)—Heads of the Big Four Football League decided Thursday to settle ties scored the in the standing on the basis of games won and not between the tied teams. The decision replaces the method of giving higher ranking to the team with the best for-and-against scoring totals during the season meetings. Should two teams be all even in the three season meetings will-one set other—such as a won, a loss and a tie each—decision on higher ranking then revert to for-and against scoring points.

Pay Out Million

Majors Bonus Wacky?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Major league baseball scouts, carrying bundles of money, are as active these days it seems a high school boy gets his diploma shoved into one hand and a bonus contract in the other.

Nearly $1,000,000 has been handed out this year as payments to untried youngsters headed toward a figure that probably will surpass the reported $7,500,000 spent by major league clubs on bonus kids last year.

Kansas City Athletics paid $125,000 to Lew Krausse Jr., an 18-year-old Chester, Pa., high school pitcher, whose father is paid about $7,500 annually as a scout with the club.

New York Yankees, who two weeks ago gave a $100,000 bonus to Jake Gibbs, All - American quarterback and ace third baseman at Mississippi, got fifth the act again. They paid $90,000 to right-hander Jack Spurgin and $80,000 to Harry Lowe, pitchers for Edison High School in Tulsa, Okla.

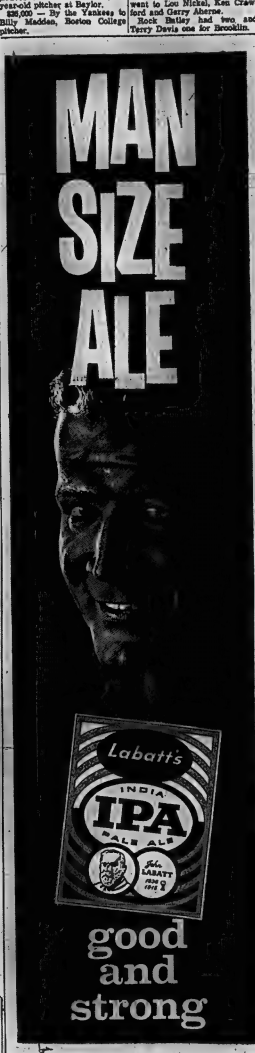
$100,000 total — By St. Louis Cardinals to Dave Fritz, University of Minnesota outfielder, and Craig Swagmiller, Provo, Utah, high school shortstop.

Milwaukee and Pittsburgh are reported ready to spend up to $200,000 for Bob Bailey, an 18-year-old high school shortstop in Long Beach, Calif. The winner will be announced after Bailey graduates from Wilson High June 16.



Lacrosse

PORT CREDIT (CP) — Port Credit Sailors came up with seven goals in the period to defeat Brooklin Hillcrests 15-8 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A game here Thursday night.

Barry Rose led the Sailors' attack with four goals, Bob Hannah, Brian Aberne and Pete Rusa scored two each. Singles went to Lou Nickel, Ken Crawford and Garry Aberne.

TORONTO (CP) — Hugo Dittfach of Calgary, who rode to riding honors through deep mud at the Fort Erie spring meeting, was right at home in the slop again Thursday and rode four winners.

Dittfach — with six winners —takes over leading rider honors from Avelino Gomez.

The daily double returned $86.20 when Pari Passu won the first race and Kayroman took the second event.

LANDS 36-POUND SALMON

HALIFAX (CP)—The fisheries department said Thursday a 36-pound Atlantic salmon was landed earlier this week by rod and reel on the St. Mary's River in eastern Nova Scotia. The fish was landed by fishing guide Dan MacIntosh and was the biggest caught in the river in at least 25 years. Veteran fishermen say the largest ever caught in the St. Mary's weighed 42 pounds.

CAN YOU SUCCEED IN A BUSINESS OF YOUR OWN?

You can if you have basic business knowledge and capabilities . . . provided, of course, the business you choose is geared to growing needs and that adequate financial training and assistance are available to newcomers.

Gasoline retailing is such a business. If you are seriously considering "branching out for yourself," you should investigate the opportunities and potentials in the ownership of a service station business. It is not, as some people tend to believe, a sideline for an auto mechanic. Rather, gasoline retailing is a bona-fide business requiring skills in money, sales and personnel management. Only those with the right personal character and abilities can succeed.

Here are some questions to guide you:

Q. Is gasoline retailing basic?
A. Providing automotive products and services is a modern economic necessity. Service stations make up Canada's fourth largest retail business.

Q. Is it growing?
A. Yes, and at a rate faster than most major retailing fields as more and more people drive automobiles, drive them farther and more often.

Q. Is it progressive?
A. Oil companies spend millions annually developing new products and techniques to assure a bright future for service station operators.

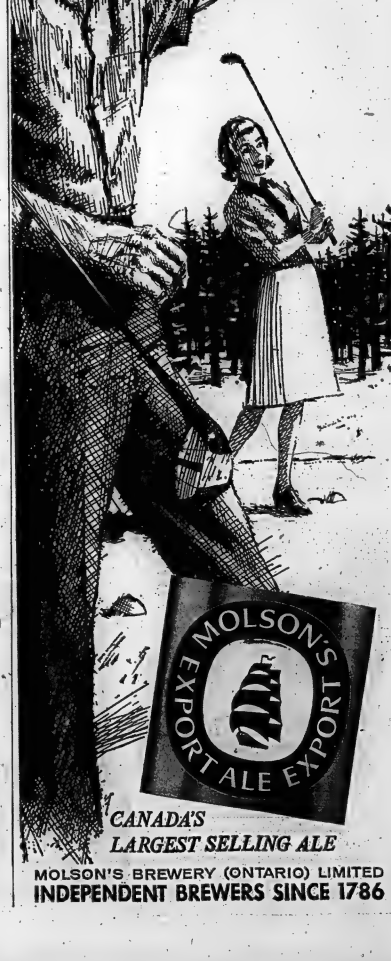
Q. How much can I make?
A. For the man with above average capabilities, service station profit opportunities are among the best of all retail/service businesses. Average dealers make $5000, or more a year. Outstanding men earn $10,000, or more annually. Furthermore, return on money invested is well above that of other retail businesses . . . far superior to most investment opportunities.

Q. How stable is the income?
A. Being basic, the service station business is relatively free of wide income "ups and downs" that characterize many retail fields.

Q. What would be my status in the community?
A. What is the status of any businessman grossing a quarter of a million dollars and more each year?

Q. How much money do I need to get started?
A. A relatively small personal investment is required. Various types of financial arrangements are available with oil companies for the ownership and leasing of service stations. BP Canada Ltd., for example, makes it a policy to give unequalled financial assistance to any prospective dealer the company deems to be the "right" man for service station management.

Q. What other help can I get?
A. Again we use BP as an example, because no other oil company in Canada offers its dealers more in assistance and benefits. Recognizing that some men fail, not because they lack ability, but because they lack guidance, BP provides its dealers with assistance in sales and personnel management, inventory, equipment maintenance, advertising and merchandising. BP pays you a salary while giving you thorough training — including an exclusive "money management" course — before you open your business.



One thing more: Success in a gasoline retailing business of your own, as in any business, requires above-average ambition and willingness to work hard. If you are sure you have these personal qualifications, plus basic business skills, then give your plans further assurance by investigating BP, an oil company with world-renowned products and a record of continuing growth. Because BP is relatively new in this country, it is extra important to the company to have the right kind of men representing it in its service stations. That's why BP goes out of its way to help its dealers . . . and will be glad to give you all the facts you need to make a sound decision.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

With blasting blockbusters spraying home runs to all corners and over the fences of major-league baseball parks, this could be the year that Babe Ruth's record of sixty will go by the board.

Hockey-wise a lot of people thought "Rocket" Richard's record of 50 goals in a season would become the most enduring monument of all time. Yet "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion, Montreal team-mate, in the playoff heights last winter and equalled the record of the Canadiens' famous sharpshooter.

Perhaps this is the year for the Mickey Mantles, Marises, the Aarons, the Thomases, the Mays and other sluggers of note who have already compiled an imposing list of four-base clouts.

However Hank Greenberg, the man who came closest to the Ruthing landmark with a stirring 58, does not think so. "The Babe hit 714 home runs," he said flatly. "No one will ever match that. Ruth was in a class by himself."

Greenberg said where the Babe murdered all other leaguers is the way he finished. He hit 17 homers in September and that's like breaking the record for the mile at the end of a marathon. "I went into September with forty-six homers, three ahead of his pace. But I couldn't hit even one homer in the last five days. The Babe boomed out three in his last three games."

Greenberg said Ruth was not bothered by the home-stretch pressure and pitchers. In the first place it was his home run record he was shooting for from the time he raised the total from twenty-four to fifty-four and then to fifty-nine.

"I had fifty-eight homers with five days to go," Greenberg reminisced. "We played the Browns in Detroit. Bebe Newsome, a real oaite, gave me nothing. Hewitt Wynn, a young lefty, walked me three times in the next game. I hit one, a solid shot, foul by inches."

"Later against Cleveland we played in the old league park with the short right-field and the long one in left. I did nothing against Denny Galehouse. The Saturday game was cancelled and we played a Sunday double-header in the big Municipal Stadium—the last day of the season."

"Bob Feller pitched for the Indians and struck out eighteen. The second game was called on account of darkness after five and one-half innings. All I got was a 430-foot drive to left centre. In any other park it would have gone for a homer. There it went for a double. So I stopped, or was stopped—at fifty-eight.

"There was good old Bill Dickey," said Greenberg. "The day before I went in the army they threw a party for me at the clubhouse. Dickey, Gomez, DiMaggio, and all the Yankees showed up. I was touched and thrilled."

"The next day I hit two homers off Tiny Bonham. I needed only one more to break 154. Never did I want one more than I wanted that, and even the Yankees were rooting for me. By this time we had the game already won and another homer by me wouldn't make silly difference."

"Atley Donald was the pitcher and he's wild. He feeds me three balls but I don't want to walk. I want that homer. Suddenly I hear Dickey whispering where the next pitch will be. I could close my eyes-tongue and nose. Again he tells me and again I miss. In comes the last pitch. I'm forewarned and forearmed. I wish I could tell you that I hit the homer—I didn't. I fanned, most ingloriously."

Greenberg said he should have known that a hitter isn't necessarily helped by being tipped off what's coming. In the seventh and deciding game of the 1940 world series, Ernie Lombardi was hurt and replaced by Jimmy Wilson. "When Jimmy crouched in the catcher's box he held his fingers so low we could see them in the dugout."

"We knew every pitch Paul Derringer would make and we tipped off our batters. But Derringer still beat us 2-1."

"I hope Ruth's record lasts forever," said Greenberg. "It is the least he deserved."

Yankees, K's Break Even

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians and the second-place Detroit Tigers still are a half game apart after splitting one-run decisions in a Sunday double-header shutdown for the American League lead.

The Indians, with a saving relief performance by Frank Funk, won their 10th straight game in the opener of the four-game series with a 3-2 victory in the first game of a double-header at Detroit Thursday night.

Righthander Frank Lary was became the first pitcher to win nine games in the majors this season with a protested 2-1 decision in the nightcap.

The Indians, New York and Yankees divided a double-header and three games back of Cleveland. The Yankees beat Kansas City Athletics 5-4, but the Athletics came back for a 9-6 win in the second game.

Minnesota Twins threw off their losing streak at 13 games and swamped the ailing with a 14 victory over Baltimore Orioles. Boston Red Sox beat Los Angeles Angels 4-1 in the first game of a doubleheader, pushing the Angels to the bottom of the league race. The nightcap was called because of rain and ended in a 4-4, 15-inning tie. The Chicago-Washington game was rained out.

First-inning doubles by Johnny Temple and Vic Power gave Cleveland its run in the opener and handed ace game winner Don Mossi his first defeat of the season. The Tigers lost their third in a row as Funk hung up his fifth save and nailed the victory for Jim Perry (4-0) with two innings of one-hit relief.

Detroit then broke through for its first score in 15 innings when Norm Cash homered off loser Wynn Hawkins (5-3) in the second game of the twinbill.

Larry singled and scored the deciding run on Charlie Maxwell's base-loaded grounder in the fifth. Lary (6-4) struck out eight and didn't walk a man. The Indians scored in the sixth on a pinch double by Don Dillard, who then was nabbed at the plate trying to score on a single by Temple.

The Cleveland protest came in the eighth inning. While Detroit manager Bob Scheffing was arguing that Cleveland's Bob Hale should have been called out at first base, the Tigers caught Hale off base. The Indians protested on grounds that time was out while Scheffing was on the field.

Bill Skowron drove in four runs for the Yankees in the first game, two with an eighth-inning homer that gave New York 5 home runs, a league record, for 17 consecutive games. Rookie Bill Stafford (3-3) won his third straight game with a five - hitter against the Athletics and Norm Bass (4-6). Southpaw Jim Archer (5-3) aided his home run spring and cut the Yankees' winning streak at six in the nightcap, allowing 11 hits. The Athletics' best, Danny McDevitt (1-2), coming from behind in a five-run third inning on a double by Hank Bauer and three consecutive triples by Lee Posada, Norm Siebern and Joe Pignatano.

A two - run homer by Billy Martin in the third inning off Jack Fisher (3-7) gave the Twins their second victory in the last 20 games. Jim Kaat (2-4) was the winner.

Boston beat the Angels and reliever Ryne Duren (1-6) with a pair of unearned runs on Gene Leek's error and Vic Wertz' two-run single in the seventh inning. Ted Wills (2-2) won with four innings of three-hit, shutout relief.

Leek's homer gave the Angels a 4-3 lead in the 12th inning of the second game, but the Red Sox tied it in their half on a walk and a single by Gary Geiger, who was trapped in a run-down after rounding third.

SPORTETTES.....

The international elimination wrestling card at Memorial Arena tonight is a brand new gimmick. Ivan and Karol have gelered with the promise their team will contact. Also entered are Man Mountain Campbell, Farmer Boy Townsend, Stan Stasiak and Les Lyman. This four will draw lots to see who will be whose partner in the three-set match.

The winners of the two preliminary tag team affairs will meet in the main bout for the honor and the glory.

Dan Dawson and his Wildwood combo which made such a terrific hit with the teen-age crowd two weeks ago is back at the arena tomorrow night, featuring their instrumentals and vocals of teen-age songs and music. Fun starts around 8.30.

With two straight victories under their belts in their last two outings, the Belleville Kenmore hope to make it three Sunday afternoon with the Port Hope Ontarios as their host. They do not play at home until a week Sunday when they entertain Cronos.

The Bobcats visit Cobourg tomorrow where they will try to maintain their unbeaten string. As of now the Cats have three wins and no losses. It looks like Bobby Hunter is ready converting to back the start brake-fluid reservoir for locked fluid level checking)

Colleges Wave Scholarships

US Competition Alarms NHL Brass

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League owners and general managers are finding that their greatest competition these days for young players is coming from the United States colleges and universities.

There are six stationed 35 to 40 U.S. schools waving hockey scholarships at young Canadians.

No one is guessing as to how many boys have crossed the border. Hockey men say the recruiting began in earnest seven or eight years ago and has been steadily on the increase.

When NHL heads meet here next week in annual session, along with top men of the minor pro leagues and amateur bodies, the situation is likely to be discussed at length.

Just what can or will be done is problematical.

The pros maintain they have no quarrel with a boy aiming at higher education and are ready to encourage it. But they feel the boy's education can be obtained as easily on his own.

To this extent the pros are willing to help financially — and have done so.

POINT TO TWO

They point particularly to two outstanding young hockey prospects — Bruce Macgregor of Detroit Red Wings and Johnny McMillan of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Each attended University.

The big concern of the pros in the U.S. college gradient is that it has created disruption of junior hockey "careers in Canada — an important stage of hockey development through pro clubs' sponsored amateur teams. The U.S. conscription is on players 18 and 19 years old.

There has also been expressed concern about young ones leaving Canada, perhaps for good, because of the hockey scholarships.

If a boy wants to go to college after his early hockey days, well and good, say the pros. But they want to lang on to him — certainly the sponsoring club does — should he decide to play pro hockey.

Apparently only a few who have gone to U.S. colleges have become hockey pros. They have the happy option of business or hockey careers.

The standout player who has combined the two is Billy Hay of Chicago Black Hawks. Hay is a Calgary boy who graduated in geology fro mDenver University. He is active in business in hockey's off - season.

UNDER NO OBLIGATION

The college man is under no obligation to hockey reser. If he has not turned pro 30 days after graduation, or even after quitting college, he becomes a free agent.

He could, however, be put on a pro club's negotiation list. By this means the club would have negotiation rights with him should he turn pro.

At the samh time it is most likely that, on deciding to turn pro, a boy would prefer to stick with the club that sponsored him during his early hockey days.

Authoritative NEL sources say that U.S. colleges agreed last summer to stop snapping up young Canadians of 16 and 19. But these promises have been discarded.

Importation has been fairly general along the northern border states — at University of Michigan, Michigan State, and universities in North and South Dakota and Montana.

It is much the same in the East, at schools in New York state and in New England. They include St. Lawrence University Canton, N.Y.; Rennsalaer Polytechnic, Troy, N.Y.; Clarkson University, Potsdam, N.Y., and Boston College.

Says He Can

Can Italian Stop Moore?

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Giulio Rinaldi knows what he has to do to beat Archie Moore in their world light - heavyweight title fight Saturday night.

After all, he won a verdict over a plumpish Moore in a non-title bout in Rome last Oct. 29 and he has checked films of Archie's losing heavyweight title fights with Rocky Marciano and Floyd Patterson.

"Marciano and Patterson pressed him," the 26-year - old Italian said Thursday. "They knocked him out. Move Moore back and his legs get tired. I guess that has been his trouble for a long time.

"He can't do the things he wants to do when he's pressed. I discovered that in about the fifth round in Rome."

CAN HE?

Only Rinaldi knows the answer. But can he do it?

"I think I can. Maybe it will take me seven or eight rounds, but I think I can stop him."

The challenger is as optimistic as any husky youngster should be at the prospect of fighting a fellow of 44.

But the big question will be answered by Archie. If old age hasn't caught up to him, he's apt to blast Rinaldi out of action in three rounds if the scheduled 15 - rounder. Archie, from San Diego, Calif., showed in training that he could still rip off power-packed combinations.

"I feel great," said Moore as he prepared to break camp at Monticello, N.Y. "I feel better now than I have in long time. All I can say is that I wish that Rinaldi makes good on his promise to go after me. Then it will be mighty interesting."

It will be Moore's first title defence in nearly two years. He hasn't been forced to trim down to the 175 - pound limit since he lulled out Tyen Buffalo of Bale Sie. Anne, N.B. in the third round of their second fight at Montreal Aug. 12, 1959. He lost recognition as champion by the National Boxing Association for inactivity but retains his title in New York, Massachusetts and Europe.

Madison Square Garden officials expect a crowd of 18,000 to contribute to a $30,000 gate despite television coverage by ABC starting at 10 p.m. EDT. The bout will be carried by CFTO-TV in Toronto.

Archie has been guaranteed $100,000 plus $12,000 expenses. Rinaldi will collect $25,000 plus expenses.

The odds favoring Moore have dropped to 8 to 5 from 13 to 5 but on limited betting.

Begley's Win Spring Bowling League Title

Begley's Aluminum won the Spring Bowling League championship at the Bowl-O-Drome last night, finishing the season with 52 points.

The new champions, consisting of Ron Saylor, Leo LaBelle, Wally Lancaster, Wally Dever, Jim Begley, Jerry Miller and Al Dever, were presented with the Seven-Up Trophy and individual awards.

Lady keglers of the league made a highly creditable showing. The Corner Pins won the Coronation Trophy ahead of the Alley Cats and Ki's Aces.

Individually the girls did well with Lil Summers taking the league-high single with a 403 and Gwynne Bellis finishing with a third high average of 244.

Weatherman No Friend Of Softball

If the city fans of the Belleville and District Softball League are anxious to see some ball these days, it would appear they will have to go out of town to do it.

The weatherman and a couple mixups in the scheduling, has been playing nasty tricks on this city's two league teams, Joyce Real Estate and the Bobcats.

Yesterday's heavy rainfall washed out the Cobourg-Joyce game slated for the Fairgrounds last night. Cesa week ago Joyce's home game against the Bobcats was also rained out.

And Tuesday night of this week, when the Bobcats were to have played host to the Picton Wells, the Hall Drivers took over the Fairgrounds and pushed the 'Cats out of that date.

Meanwhile, league games in Picton, Trenton, and Cobourg have all been played according to schedule, touch wood.

The Bobcats are also being forced to change the dates of home games against Kingston league teams because of previous arrangements made for the Fairgrounds by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, May 27, June 24 and July 22 are the postponements in the interlocking schedule.

No dates have been set for the postponed games at this time.

SHOULD HELP CLUBS

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government should help pay expenses of Canadian glider team travelling to Olympic soaring events, Ken More (PC—Regina City) said Thursday. He told the Commons Canadian glider pilots always have made good showings at the Olympics but did not attend the 1960 competition in Cologne simply because they couldn't afford it.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Clint Hodgins, making a brief return to Western Ontario from United States harness racing, registered a convincing win in the second heat of the feature invitation trot Thursday night at the Western Fair Raceway.

He took Dolly Dale B into the lead at the quarter and held the advantage all the way to win the Kin - McDonald Memorial race.

Dunc Campbell of Alles Crair steered Argyll Albert to a win in the first heat with a time of 2:05, then finished last in a the second. Dolly Dale B paced the winning mile in 2:05 1-5.

May Split W.H. League

CALGARY (CP) — A two-division structure, possibly with a salary cut-in, the number of interlocking games, appears in store this year for the Western Hockey League.

WHL directors hammered out at least his general agreement after the first two days in closed session Thursday.

League president Al Leader said he hoped more progress would be made today toward a decision on the makeup of the league's American section in 1961-62 and on the number of games to be played between sections.

If the league divides at the international border, the Canadian teams would be Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. Spokane, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and possibly San Francisco would make up the United States section.

With a balanced schedule ruled out by geography, the Prairie clubs were expected to press for as many interlocking games as possible.

Leader said the meeting had good potential but not attained final ratification of league franchises for Los Angeles and San Francisco.

An undisclosed technicality was connected with the bid of Coley Hall to move into San Francisco. However, Pigott said he is definitely ready to move his former Victoria Cougars into Los Angeles.

Larks Have Hot Grid Prospect

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—A spunky 17 - year - old from Trois-Rivieres, Que., is rated about the hottest prospect in the football training camp knotted Alouettes were conducting for homebodies.

But blond, crew - cut Mark St. Louis is up against a big drawback — he can hardly speak a word of English.

Lion coach Leo Cahill calls the raw 180-pound young tackle as good a prospect ultimately to make the club as any we have out.

But he says that language-barrier will have to be overcome.

"When you're out on the field with a bunch of the boys, you naturally have to be able to communicate with them to provide instruction," Cahill said.

A handful of the top Canadian players are to be invited to Winnipeg, Tex., where the All pitch their main camp July 1.

For some of the others with good potential but not attained final ratification of league franchises for Los Angeles and San Francisco.

LOOKING FOR SCHOOL

Chief scout J. I. 'Albrechi is scouring the New England states for a school that has at least part of the curriculum a French for St. Louis. But so far, he's come up with nothing.

St. Louis said he "loves football" and if he doesn't make the grade this season he hopes to come back in 1962 for another try, this time as a hilingualist.

Other summer clinics that yielded prospects were held in Quebec City, Granby, Que., and the Ontario communities of Kitchener, Kirkland Lake and St. Thomas.

Jay Sprague, Harmsworth On Television

Jay Sprague, Commodore of Prince Edward Yacht Club will announce plans for this year's Harmsworth Trophy race tonight on the sports telecast over CKWS-TV, Kingston, following the 11 o'clock CBC news.

Ted Darling (CKWS sports announcer) will conduct the interview and action shots of last year's Harmsworth will be shown. The Matinee 11 sportscast follows the late weather and local news.

The interview with Mr. Sprague will provide Prince Edward Yacht Club with valuable publicity for the Harmsworth, John Warg Trophy and Gold Dog races to be held on the Long Reach near Picton, on the Civic Holiday weekend, Aug. 5-8. Mr. Sprague will be accompanied to Kingston by Pat Hodgson, who arranged the interview, Jesse Mason, president of Picton Kiwanis Club and Barry Anderson, P.E.Y.C. secretary.

$125,000 Bonus Paid Scout's Son

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — A former major league pitcher whose top salary was $3,000 looked on proudly Thursday as his son was signed by his former club for a record $125,000 — on his recommendation.

The proud papa is Lew Krausse, Sr., who is scout for Kansas City Athletics, was instrumental in the club's giving Lew, jr. the cash figure that topped any previous bonus offer.

At a press conference, attended by club owner Charles Finley, general manager Frank Lane and manager Joe Gordon, young Krausse put his name to a Kansas City contract calling for a minimum $7,000 playing salary, in addition to his whopping bonus which will be spread over five years.

Krausse, Sr., pitched for the Athletics, when they were in Philadelphia, in 1951-53. He earned $2,500 his first year, $2,000 the next and was making the same salary when he was dropped in May of 1953.

Lew, jr., is so highly regarded that he will be kept on the big league club. Accepting in Lane, the 18-year-old right - hander has a live fast ball and a major league curve.

Young Krausse has buried 18 no - hitters and in his final high school game struck out 24 batters.

Marilyn Monroe Much Better And Wants to Go to Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carl Sandburg, recently pointed a finger at Marilyn Monroe and said: "You are not what is wrong with America."

In her Beverly Hills bungalow, she was cheerful and good humored.

"I was out to see Kay Gable," she said. "We stayed up late talking; that's why things are kind of disorganized today. Marilyn said she also is enjoying the single life — dating and all that. But she is also eager to go to work.

"Fox wanted me to do Goodbye, Charlie, but as far as I'm concerned it's hooey. Goodbye, Charlie, indeed! That's the play Lauren Bacall did on Broadway, in which she played a boy reincarnated as a girl. It is difficult to conceive Marilyn playing any boy, reincarnated or otherwise.

"I agree," she said.

"I'm very anxious to do Rain for NBC-TV. I'm going back to New York to talk about it. The problem now is a leading man. Frederic March would have been just wonderful, but he's going to do a play."

About her health — it's fine. She has recovered from her abdomen surgery of two weeks ago and recuperated lying in the sun in her private patio.

Networks Never Announce Just When Series Will End

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — In the uncertain world of U.S. television, it is the custom to wind up a series merely by stopping — no last gasp, no loose ends, no farewell scenes. Often this is a bit mystifying to the viewer because it is also network practice never to announce the demise of one series, but merely to herald the birth of a new one.

This system is handy because sometimes a discarded other finely etched characterization, that of a husty-yet-lonely man whose code of behavior clashes with the conflict of his time with society.

Brando's personal evaluation of his role: "My part is that of a man who is intuitive and meticulous and who is feeling. He has a touch of the vain and a childish and dispropor- tionate fondness for the manly ethics. He is lonely and generously distrustful of human contacts.

Brando's dual starring and directing assignment has been a notable departure for him.

"Through the years I've more or less directed myself in a how," he explained, "so directing my own scenes doesn't pose a problem. I've had all these acting areas before and I have confidence in myself. I know how to play the role. Also, I rehearse with the other actors so I can see the scenes pretty well. I think the experience will make me a better actor — and I've certainly learned more about a director's problems."

Will he add some of those problems entail? "I worked from 6 a.m. til midnight most days," he said, "rewriting scenes, fixing camera angles, attending to a thousand details. And then all those trips to the front office where they have a thousand ideas to discuss that have nothing to do with the actual movie."

KITCHENER (CP) — The Kitchener-Waterloo record says a second professional team and a Junior league may be ready appear in Toronto.

The papers quote Stafford Smythe, who operates the Toronto Marlboro Junior A club and is a director of the National Hockey League Maple Leafs, as saying both moves are possible.

Sports editor Lou Taylor says Smythe told him in a telephone interview that if the Marlboros follow St. Michael's Majors and withdraw from Junior A competition, the Leafs would probably organize a metropolitan junior circuit of top classifica-

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, June 10, 1961

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This Saturday is a day when you want to upset prearranged plans and when you are eager to put a whole new series of conditions into immediate execution. But actually it's only a day that is good for waking up what you have already begun and for rearranging plans as you wish them to be for a long time to come. Be conscientious, plod along.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Forget that plan to spend a great deal on recreation today or you will regret it later. Entertain inexpensively instead, without being elaborate, and you will also succeed in making others feel at home as well. Be amusing, charming.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) If you lose your temper concerning some situation or abode, a real quarrel will ensue that will be regretted. Be understanding instead and work out problems in a most harmonious and objective, intelligent way. Use new systems.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Don't permit that secret worry to keep you from attending to those Saturday duties and calls that are so important. However be very careful when driving and be certain to avoid personalities that are annoying or disturbed.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Make this a leisurely day, of fun with good pals instead of collaborating upon business or money matters, since others are not in a good mood and you would get nowhere. Forget any anxieties and dwell on what is pleasant, peaceful.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure not to be stubborn about civic affairs concerned or you get into hot water. Important you guard your reputation and are most courteous and conscientious with higher-ups. Show true admiration for their capabilities. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) An ideal day to delve into new outlets, meet new people, adopt better systems so that you become happier and more successful by thinking along a higher level and be sure to drop those persons who are a hindrance.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Don't waste time with so-called experts who give poor judgment advice, but listen to helpful sensible suggestions of good friends who have your interests at heart. Then you make real progress.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) It is imperative that you remain neutral during an altercation between a partner and a higher-up who is very influential or you get into trouble and they become fast friends. Attend to any personal business that is pressing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget self-righteousness now and be more tolerant of others, since this is the road that will lead to greater happiness and success. Avoid that co-worker who irritates you. Later, get into sports, take a little drive, etc.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is possible to have a wonderful time at favorite hobbies today, provided you play the game fair and are not envious of others. Also, it is not necessary to spend so much money. More charm and friendliness is the answer.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you don't permit your routine duties to bog you down, this is a good day to indirectly find out exactly where you stand with key people in the business world. Also show greater co-operation when dealing with associates. Expand.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Important you plan your Saturday duties wisely, or you will simply flit about starting one and then starting another and thereby get nowhere. Otherwise this can be a most productive and happy day to help make your coming week more successful.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be somewhat of a paradox in early years, if you do not give the right training in both spiritual and practical matters, since the tendency is to dwell on the lofty one minute and literally get into the clouds and the chaos of the unimportant the next. Give attention to the diet early and supervise constantly until all is regulated properly. Then the chart is very good for business, in particular, or sports.

Jury Acquits Three Men In Bribery Case

Accused Still to Face Other Charges in Fall

TORONTO (CP)—A Supreme Court jury Friday night acquitted three men of a charge of conspiring to bribe a provincial police constable.

The jurors, all male, brought in the verdict after more than five hours' deliberation, interrupted at one stage when they filed into the courtroom to report they were unable to agree.

But Mr. Justice W. F. Spence sent them back for another try. They returned at 10.10 p.m. with the verdict that freed Robert J. Wright, a suspended provincial police constable, and gamblers Vincent Feeley and Joseph P. McDermott.

The Crown sought to prove during the six-day trial the trio had conspired to bribe Const. George Scott, an OPP undercover agent, to give them advance impending gambling house raids.

JURY APPEAL

Special prosecutor Colin Gordon told the jurors after the verdict he heard that the Crown will give serious consideration to an appeal.

The charges against Wright, a 39-year-old married man from Toronto, were laid on three counts of corruptly paying money to Scott, while McDermott and Feeley were charged with keeping a common gaming house.

McDermott cried: "Oh, my God!" when Jury Foreman Edward Echlin reported the acquittal. Wright placed his hand over his face, then leaned down to the floor.

The jury retired at 4:46 p.m. after hearing lengthy summations by Mr. Ford, three defence lawyers and Mr. Justice Spence.

GAVE SUBSTANTIVE

Mr. Justice Spence told the jurors they could convict or acquit the three men together or and acquit the third. It also was conceivable there could be disagreements, he said.

Before returning to the jury room to consider rendering a judgement, Mr. Echlin asked for a copy of the charge in writing. He said he wanted to check Justice Spence's ruling on circumstantial evidence.

Mr. Justice Spence said the jury may not convict on circumstantial evidence unless the circumstances are such as are inconsistent with the guilt of the accused and not consistent with any other rational conclusion.

Patrick Hart, counsel for Wright, said the Crown's case referred from the gambling squad to a Belleville posting, making it impossible for Wright to have his own undercover investigators. He described the position of the squad in his dealings with Scott.

CLAIMS IN MIDDLE

John Brooke, counsel for McDermott, said his client was brought in the middle of the game of deceit between two young police officers and had no part in any conspiracy.

Joseph Sedgwick, Feeley's counsel, said there was no evidence to show Wright or Feeley had ever paid McDermott or Feeley in connection with the bribery fund.

Of the telephone calls mentioned during the trial, he said, there was nothing to prove they were sinister or suggestive about them.

Afrikaners May Have Nightmare On Their Hands

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The Afrikaners have made their dream come true, but it would not take much to turn that dream into a nightmare.

Today, South Africa is on its own. Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd, the granite - like prime minister, heads a republic that has rejected its ties to the Crown.

But much of the world concerns this government's treatment of 13,000,000 non - whites, distrusts its economic stability and has misgivings about its future.

It seems only historic justice that the Afrikaners, who outnumber the English-speaking whites of South Africa should achieve the completely independent republic they died Dutch, German and French ancestors fought and died for.

But to create a republic founded by 3,000,000 whites without even consulting its 13,000,000 Negroes, 1,500,000 colored or mixed ancestry and 500,000 Indians, resident in the country but without political rights — is of questionable validity.

RAISES DOUBTS

Verwoerd's theory of separate development for the non-white population in reserves or Bantu homelands is raising serious doubts among apprehensive whites in South Africa.

Even in his own National party, Afrikaner intellectuals have expressed distaste for the rigid policy of color separation and called for more flexibility, consultation and co-operation with responsible non-white leaders.

But the Nationalist government has refused to budge. Verwoerd holds that one consolidation will be the first step on the road to another Congo.

Non-white leaders know their most important weapon. It is the work stoppage. If they stay home as it is known here, where strikes by non-whites are illegal.

If none dynamite leader threatened such a dislocation every month now new republic could have a full-scale crisis on his hands.

South Africa is often described as a police state. This is not true. Although free assembly is banned under the current emergency, there is no censorship of the press or outgoing dispatches. The courts are independent and highly respected. The government is controlled by the Nationalists, there is a highly critical and vivid opposition to government policy.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Canada wants Britain to remain with the common market countries before joining the Common Market bloc.

Justice Minister Fulton outlined plans to organize modern factories within federal prisons for convict training.

External Affairs Minister Green declared he is optimistic that the conference on Laos will not collapse.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: While thick fog blanketed many areas across Southern Ontario during the night, cooler air was pushing southward across the north country. The fog is expected to lift shortly during the morning. Cooler air should reach the lower lakes this evening, bringing some clear with it. Sunday should be mainly sunny across the province.

UNION LEADERS ENDORSE PLANS FOR INQUIRY

Special Grievances Must Be Settled

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost Friday announced a three-point program to settle the province's construction woes.

Union leaders endorsed plans for the inquiry but made it clear no peace would come to Metropolitan Toronto's construction and housing industry until specific grievances are settled.

Charles Irving, international vice-president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association (CLC), a leader in organizing immigrant construction workers, said nothing actively will be stepped up on the housing problem.

Mr. Frost said several days' discussion among provincial cabinet ministers, management and union representatives produced "what I personally agreed upon" steps to a solution.

A provincial board is up on on a temporary basis to adjudicate complaints; 2. A special investigation team leads the department of labor to hold spot checks on employers to pay, hours and conditions of work; 3. A commission of inquiry, headed by a royal commission to provide a long-term solution to problems in the industry by investigating conditions and recommending solutions and legislation including a common gaming bonds.

McDermott cried: "Oh, my God!" when Jury Foreman Edward Echlin reported the acquittal. Wright placed his hand over his face, then leaned down to the floor.

The jury retired at 4:46 p.m. after hearing lengthy summations by Mr. Ford, three defence lawyers and Mr. Justice Spence.

2,300 Honored by Queen In Official Birthday List

LONDON (CP) — The Queen today bestowed a peerage on the chain store chief who is Britain's biggest seller of women's underwear.

In the list of honors on the Queen's official birthday, a barony was granted to Sir Simon Marks, a Jewish businessman whose name the chain store empire bears, Marks and Spencer Limited.

The Queen also made Britain's former railroad boss, Sir Brian Robertson, a baron—the highest an African chief, Seretse Khama of Bechuanaland, who was made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

The Queen's actual birthday is April 21, but she marked it officially today with her honour list of 2,300 names in the annual trooping the color ceremony. Queen Elizabeth was 35th birthday. Her husband, Prince Philip, celebrated his 40th birthday today.

The Queen honored a cross-section of British life and livelihood. Diplomats, governmental officials and civil servants of high and low rank were honored.

Among sportsmen motorcycle racing driver John Surtees, international footballer Tom Finney and race horse trainer Capt. Charles Elsey were rewarded.

Sir Simon Marks is an astute business man who has been living steadily in the shadow of big business in Britain. Through his big department stores, he has altered across the kingdom. Sir Simon has made his trademark St. Michael a household word with every British woman.

Queen singer Jean Sutherland was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire. Australian born, musical award went to bandleader Victor Silvester who made a strict tempo ballroom dancing.

Castro to Talk With 4-Man Team on Tractor Exchange

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro said early today he will receive four negotiators from the United States to work out details of swapping 1,200 captive Cuban rebels for 500 tractors.

But the prime minister raised anew his alternate proposal to exchange the prisoners for a full April invasion for "political prisoners" held by the United States, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Guatemala.

He received the U.S. tractors-for-freedom committee that he would receive its technicians, to negotiate the tractor-prisoner exchange as a "humanitarian" gesture. The Cuban prisoners mission sent to the United States to negotiate the deal.

The freedom committee announced in Detroit its tractor-for-prisoners exchange as a "humanitarian" gesture. The Cuban prisoners mission sent to the United States to negotiate the deal.

The committee said it will keep the $200,000,000 subway at a standstill unless three demands are met.

The unions demand reinstatement of the seven truck drivers, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT), fired by McMinnamara-Raymond, a subway contractor, after refusing to cross picket lines.

Other grievances include refusal of McNamara-Raymond subcontractor to sign a union agreement, and refusal of concrete tractors to boycott four major ready-mix suppliers, Mr. Irvine said.

Mr. Irvine said Mr. Frost's statement left the door open to immediate negotiations with the committee.

"But the whole job will have to be union," he said, "we won't be a party to anything else."

Mr. Frost said he is convinced the Toronto subway will be built with bring peace to the industry, "with a little tolerance and fairness on both sides."

The premier said the commission will be empowered to report from day to day and report "if we see anything wrong up all around the world since the end of the Second World War."

The week-long congress, attended by 1,000 delegates from 62 countries, ends today.

"Teen-agers as a group normally suffer from a feeling of insecurity," Dr. van Krevelen said.

"But one of the phenomena today is that they are trying to identify themselves with their peers."

Other teen - agers, however, could not give them the security and guidance they need, Dr. van Krevelen called a "life prospect."

India Asks Laotian Parley Meet Monday, Hopes Rise

GENEVA (Reuters) — India has asked Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the Laotian conference, to call a plenary session Monday, it was reported today amid hopes for progress to end Communist revolt.

An authoritative source said that India, chairman of the International Control Commission in Laos, made the request Friday.

A note Friday which regretted no session has been held since May 12.

The sources also said the chief Indian delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon, left Friday to Nice Sunday for talks with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodian chief-of-state who originally sponsored the 14-power conference on Laos.

Western hopes of getting the stalled conference going again rose Friday night after a 20-minute meeting between the chief United States delegate, W. Averell Harriman, and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Harriman disclosed a note to the Soviet official from President Kennedy.

A high American source said Harriman gained the impression from the talks with Gromyko that Russia was anxious for the conference to get down to negotiations.

The Big Three Western delegations have been temporarily boycotting the conference sessions because of the attack by Communist forces on Western forces on pro-Western Laotian government troops around the town of Padong in Laos.

The pro-Western forces there had to fall back under heavy artillery and infantry attacks.

Harriman conferred with Foreign Secretary Earl Home, and Gromyko. The two men are co-chairmen of the conference.

In a report published here Friday the Indian-Canadian-Polish control commission in Laos said it had been unable to investigate reported cease-fire violations because pro-Communist forces would not guarantee the safety of visiting teams.

U Of B.C. Student Would Do It Again if Released From Jail

VANCOUVER (CP)—A segregation-hating University of British Columbia graduate student shortly be released from a Jackson, Miss., jail where he was sentenced for eating in the Negro section of a bus depot restaurant.

"But," said Michael Audain of Victoria, in a telephone interview from Jackson, Miss., Friday, "if I was released today I would—enter the colored facilities of the bus, depot."

Audain, 23 - year - old social science student, was jailed Wednesday when convicted of charges of breach of the peace. He was touring states to study Negro social conditions.

FULTON ADMITS RED THREAT IN THIS COUNTRY

Will Not Divulge Number In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — How many known Communists are there in Canada?

Justice Minister Fulton declined in the Commons Friday to report the number but said "We do have a Communist threat."

He was replying to Louis Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm) who asked the minister to state the number of Communists in Canada known to the RCMP. Mr. Pigeon said he had heard there are about 7,000.

"I am not able to answer that question, since it would involve the kind of information which should not come from our own records," Mr. Fulton said. However, he added, the RCMP Communist party itself claims to have 3,000 card-carrying members in Canada.

The minister stoutly defended the RCMP security and intelligence work after it was criticized by several MPs during consideration of the estimates of the justice department.

WORK ESSENTIAL

Mr. Fulton said there has been some public criticism of RCMP activities. "Some of their work best added that it cannot be publicized but is necessary to preserve national security and neither the government nor the RCMP can do that."

Federal security agents for the most part were doing their work "unobtrusively, efficiently and with the least possible inconvenience to the law-abiding citizens of Canada," he said.

He had no apologies to make for recent RCMP questioning of students at Laval University in Quebec City, which drew media criticism from both Gabriel Roberge (L—Megantic) and H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West).

Some students were questioned, Mr. Fulton said. But he said never was there "any idea" was an infraction of a person's right if he were asked a question.

"It is an unfortunate fact that it is a tactic of communism to infiltrate perfectly respectable organizations," Mr. Fulton said. Therefore, it took objection to investigation of members of the RCMP in investigating Communism, stating that it was his personal opinion that a Communist would not likely join such a movement.

He stated that we can maintain freedom only by being carefully on guard. "It is only by making certain that all those who are responsible to the people of Canada practice that freedom which we preach and which we believe."

Detailed Study Of Hydro Rates Is Being Made

TORONTO (CP)—A detailed study is being made of hydro rates for rural Ontario customers, W. Ross Macdonald, chairman of the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission, said Friday.

Mr. Macdonald told a meeting of faculty in supplying low - cost hydro power to the vast majority of many customers to municipal utilities through annexation.

Thousands of Britons, Tourists View Trooping Color Ceremony

Thousands of Britons and tourists lined the Horse Guards parade ground as the Queen, riding a 16-year-old chestnut mare named Burmese, inspected bearskin-hatted troops.

It was the first time since her coronation that the Queen took the salute marking her official birthday. The actual birthday came April 21 when she turned 35.

Her husband, Prince Philip, whose 40th birthday was today, rode behind the Queen along Pall Mall to the Horse Guards parade ground about a mile from Buckingham Palace for the ceremony.

The Queen rode side-saddle. The prince had a new mount, Linnhe, a 10 - year - old brown mare of the police force.

The Queen's mother and Princess Anne drove in an open carriage along the processional route with Queen Elizabeth.

Russian and television viewers this year for the first time watched the ceremony live. The arrangement was in return for the live screening in Britain on the May Day parade in Moscow May 1.

The first ceremony was in 1805. The pageant commemorates the traditional army custom of showing the flag as a rallying point in battle.

Boycott Of UN By U.S. Possible If China Seated

Canadian Legislators Given Warning on Visit

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States legislators, meeting with Canadians, have warned that admittance of Communist China to the United Nations might lead to strong domestic pressures that the United States boycott the world body.

Canadian legislators, touching on prospects for Canada joining the 21-country Organization of American States, suggested such membership could be a stepping to the UN. There might be occasions when Canada might have to split with her neighbor on major policy.

Discussing some elements of cross-border political agreement and disagreement on world issues, the 44 members of the Canada - U.S. interparliamentary group ended a two-day conference strongly united on the view that the West must show firmness in dealing with Communist aggression. But the federal committee members, meeting all major political parties, failed to agree on how to approach the Communist problem in an uneasy period of peace.

SPLIT ON TRADING

They did, however, recall the conventional strength of the 15-country North Atlantic Treaty Alliance be increased and that West Berlin should be defended even if this meant the use of nuclear weapons.

Federal security agents for the most part were doing their work "unobtrusively, efficiently and with the least possible inconvenience to the law-abiding citizens of Canada citizens," he said.

He had no apologies to make for recent RCMP questioning of students at Laval University in Quebec City, which drew media criticism from both Gabriel Roberge (L—Megantic) and H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West).

Some students were questioned, Mr. Fulton said. But he said never was there "any idea" was an infraction of a person's right if he were asked a question.

Frost Criticized For Statements Made to Press

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the committee on municipal law Friday criticized Premier Frost for statements made at a press conference Thursday regarding the affairs of municipalities.

Vernon Singer (L—York Centre) said the premier was showing contempt for the select committee by discussing topics it had under study.

Mr. Singer said if the premier had any suggestions to make on municipal problems he should inform the committee instead of working on his own.

Nemo E. Thomas (CCF—Orenwa) said it is "unethical" for Mr. Frost to make such a statement while the committee is sitting.

Mr. Frost he should be supposed to tell this committee what he has in mind," said Mr. Thomas.

Dana McNeil (PC—Elgin) said he could not understand the opposition's complaint because Attorney-General Kelso Roberts and CCF Leader MacDonald frequently discuss developments on municipal affairs and had not offered to come before the committee.

The nine-member committee is studying the Municipal Act and related statutes with a view to modernizing and simplifying municipal legislation.

POST REWARD

TORONTO (CP) — A reward of $2,500 has been posted by the attorney - general's department for information leading to the arrest of two men who assaulted municipal tax collector Dutch Schmidt and his wife last month. The men broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hord and beat him and his wife. Mo-tive for the attack was not known.

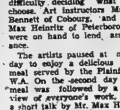
FIREMEN ANSWER TWO ALARMS

Two alarms were answered by the Belleville Fire Department over the past 24-hour period. The first occurred at 9.00 p.m. yesterday when a station wagon belonging to a Mr. D. Dickey of RR. 1 Halloway, caught fire. The automobile suffered some damage. The incident took place at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Church Street.

The second alarm occurred at 11.30 o'clock this morning when a tarpot was overturned opposite 185 George Street. No damage took place.

50 Artists Meet at 'Scuttle Hole'



Over 50 members of the East Central Ontario Arts and Crafts Association recently met at the "Scuttle Hole" near Plainfield, for their annual spring sketching trip.

The turbulent river, shady pools, rugged rocks and gnarled old trees provided a variety of subject matter for the enthusiastic painters, who came from as far away as Oshawa, Bancroft and Peterborough. There were so many intriguing subjects in one small area that most of the painters had difficulty deciding what to choose. Art instructors Major Bennett of Cobourg, and Mr. Max Heindel of Peterborough were on hand to lend assistance.

The artists paused at midday to enjoy a delicious hot meal served at the Plainfield W.A. On the second day the meal was followed by a review of paintings, and a short talk by Mr. Max Heinrich.

On Saturday evening Mrs. Lewis Andrews held "open house" at her home and every one had an opportunity to get acquainted and discuss the day's activities.

When the leaves are turning in the fall, the group will meet again, possibly in Bancroft, for another "painting weekend".

Bond Markets Moved Higher During Week

Canadian bond markets moved slightly higher this week with the Government of Canada short terms all posting small gains.

The Canada 2¾ - par - call bonds due Sept. 1, 1965, rose fractionally higher at 99.85-99.90, while the Canada 4½ - par - call bonds due Sept. 1, 1965, gained 25 cents at $99.75-$99.85. The CNR five-per-cent due Oct. 1, 1978, were unchanged at 94.75-95.00.

Thursday treasury bills sold at 3.05 per cent compared with 3.16 per cent last week and the 182-day bills at 3.18 per cent compared with 3.30 per cent. Day-to-day money closed at 2¾ per cent most of the week and closed at 3% per cent.

The Ontario 5½-per-cent due April 15, 1981 and the Province of Quebec 5½-per-cent due June 1, 1980, each gained 30 cents at $100.30 - $101.00 and 99 - 99.50.

The recent Province of Newfoundland six-per-cent issue due May 1, 1981, also gained 30 cents at 99.75 and $100.25.

The corporate market was firm and some issues improved slightly. The B.C. Electric 2¾-per-cent first mortgage bonds gained 25 cents at 89-89.50, while the B.C. Electric 5¾-per-cent bonds due Jan. 2, 1986, gained 75 cents at $103.25-104.00.

Cross-Canada Survey

The Great Outdoors Lures So Many Vacationers That It's Now Big Business

By ALEX MORIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fastest-growing trend in the Canadian tourist industry as it looks ahead to what promises to be another big year is the increasing popularity of camping in the great outdoors.

More and more tourists also are showing a preference for plain sight-seeing, shopping and visits to historic sites although fishing, hunting, boating, swimming and visits to parks and archibilitions continue as staples of the $1,000,000,000-a-year industry.

The trend to camping, spurred by construction of the Trans-Canada Highway and government building of camp and picnic facilities along it and other main highways, is causing mixed reactions.

Some of the hurting operators of conventional resorts but others say the over-all industry will benefit in the long run.

All in all, Cross-Canada Survey has revealed that there are high expectations across the country for 1961.

EXPECT RECORD YEAR

"Indications are that we'll have an even better year than last," reported Jim Field, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

Last year foreign visitors increased their spending in Canada by seven per cent to a record $417,000,000. Tourists from the United States alone spent $371,000,000, up $30,000,000 from 1959. Foreign spending was matched or surpassed by Canadians travelling inside their own country.

What worries Canadian officials is that spending in other countries by Canadian tourists rose from $332,000,000 to $352,000,000 — Canada's deficit in tourist trade rose to $215,000,000 from $207,000,000 the previous year.

The biggest factor in getting Americans to cross the border will be more dollars to spend. Canadian weather as U.S. weather.

"If U.S. cities have a hot spell in May and June, people spell in May and June, people will take their plans early and we can expect a big influx," Mr. Field said.

At its current session, Parliament passed legislation providing for long-term loans of up to $25,000 to tourist operators to accommodation facilities.

The Ontario government this year is offering to match dollar for dollar money spent for publicity and development of tourist features by regional tourist associations.

The Quebec legislature passed a bill providing for creation of a tourist council that will set in different parts of the province to study the tourist situation and recommend improvements.

The British Columbia government of recreation and conservation has adopted a policy of consulting individual tourist operators, giving them pointers on what tourists expect in food, accommodation and recreation. It has found this more effective than Public boards of trade and chambers of commerce on good-tourist practices.

In Prince Edward Island there was a concerted drive last winter to establish deep-sea fishing facilities, a large number of fishermen taking a course at Charlottetown and qualifying to carry passengers in their fishing craft.

There are many examples of the terrific impact of tourists. In Prince Edward Island this form of holiday increased by 36 per cent during 1960. The Ontario travel and publicity department now publishes a 250,000 copies of a guide to campsites where it once put out only 25,000.

Manitoba's provincial tourist commerce department reports 375,000 camper-days of camping last year, up from 348,000 the year before.

SUSPENDS INSPECTORS

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert Wagner announced Friday the suspension of 36 school construction inspectors in a snowballing scandal over payoffs by contractors. Investigation Commissioner Louis J. Kaplan told the mayor he had uncovered 47 incidents of board of education employees accepting Christmas liquor, gift certificates and similar items from contractors whose work they were supposed to supervise.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Man Asks Why Birthday Should Be a Retirement Determinant

By THOMAS COLLINS

"It doesn't really make much difference to me," the man said, "but a lot of people have to quit their jobs at 65 just because that's all inbred on this retirement business."

He worked for a big company which has a mandatory retirement age of 65. They compulsorily used to me. It revolved much of the pressure during my last year on the job and gave me a nice personal, some engraved cufflinks, a story in the company newspaper and a sendoff with cocktails.

"It was about as nice a company as you can come by — and I enjoyed it.

"The company," the man said, "has done some amazing research over the last 15 years on computers for the business office, distribution of the company product and on the product itself. But in this period the company has done no research on the people who are going to retire at 65. It has, in fact, adopted as a policy the cruel, stupid assumption that a woman at age 62 and a man at age 65 are no longer desirable or productive.

"People remain as the most important single asset any company has. Where then is the logic if a company does not research on a group of people and then, on their birthday, suddenly tell the worker beyond that millestone that he is no longer wanted by the company he has helped to build?

"Some of this mandatory retirement on employee was allowed to work until he became old or too sick to perform a job, whereupon he was told to go home. That is a simple case of the survival of the fittest, and whether you agree with it or not, it at least made sense. What companies have now is a system which puts the good, the bad, the weak and the strong on a decorated wheel. It revolves at the age of 65 and wheels them out the door.

"There is an awful difference between the two practices as they affect the human spirit.

"In the earlier days a man had a chance to die in his boots if his liver held out. Now he has an option of choosing how well his liver is behaving. And it is not just his own company that discards him. All out through society the impression goes that a man who has been retired is not needed. He is old, done for, an insurance risk and a problem. He is the most dispensable man in all history."

The man seemed to feel that modern companies could do a bit of research on their own human resources and benefits themselves as well as the people they were pushing back out to the world.

"I think most business executives never realize until it is too late just what damage they do the spirit of their older employees. This damage comes in just at the climax of the retirement, but it starts one or two years before. At that point they begin to undermine the condition an employee for the role he is going to play in starting using up on his job to get him accustomed to idleness.

"Pension, considered though they are in keeping the body and soul together, are an insult to mankind, I base this statement on the belief that a man must first work to do the best job of his life and that any economic medicine that is prescribed to give him idleness is fundamentally bad. Man somehow has got to work and the fallacy that a 65-year-old man has had it, is not to be found.

"I am not bitter about this situation, but I cannot get away from the conviction that if my company had a policy whereby I could work as long as I fit, and whereby I would have to scratch or starve when I was no longer fit I would be going into my late sixties better equipped to be a useful human being."

4 PC Backbenchers Think Wintermeyer Losing Grip

By DON BEENEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ATHENELEY (CP) — Four young Progressive Conservative back-benchers said Friday night the last session of the house of commons gave them the impression that Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer is losing the leadership of his party.

The four, all Lawrence of Toronto St. George, James Auld of Leeds, John White of London South and William Hamilton of Peel, took part in a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative association.

Nearly two YPCs gathered for the weekend conference.

Mr. White said it became apparent there was a "deterioration of the Liberal ranks" when several leading Liberals failed to appear during the last days of the session. He mentioned Arthur Reaume, Liberal member from Windsor, and Albert Wren from Kenora.

"We saw he was having difficulty keeping his members in line," said Mr. White.

MEMBERS MOVED IN STUNNING

He said Elmer Sophs, Liberal member for Sudbury, further split the party when he made serious statements about organized crime in Ontario. He said Mr. Sophs was trying to gain the Liberal leadership.

The four panelists said the Liberals, who have called for a royal commission investigating labor and crime in Ontario, were using the subject for political purposes.

Mr. Lawrence said none of the Liberals had produced any evidence to back up a claim in their charges.

The conference opened officially today with an address by Health Minister Dymond. Resolutions and reports, the YPCs will hold election of officers, followed by a speech by Hon. George Hees, federal minister of trade and commerce.

Mr. Diefenbaker speaks at a banquet tonight.

Resolutions up for debate Sunday include one which calls for the return to corporal punishment in Ontario penal institutions and the stiffening of penalties for crimes of violence.

Our thoughts are ever near.
Out lives must travel on
And hope be green
And never fade away.
Sadly missed and remembered by her sister Cissie, brother-in-law Bert, niece Jean and family, also by sister Ethel and brother-in-law Basil Bedrick and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Garbutt would like to express their sincere thanks to all their relatives, friends and neighbours who sent cards, flowers and gifts and also given them on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Sea Cadets Enjoy Cruise On Frigate 'Buckingham'

Seventeen Sea Cadets from Belleville were the guests of the Royal Canadian Navy for an all-day cruise yesterday aboard a frigate, thanks to the generosity and interest of H.M.C.S. "Buckingham" commanding officer, Lt. Commander T. L. B. Hebbert, and her officers and crew.

The members of the local Sea Cadet Corps, R.C.S.C.C. Quinte, boarded the ship at 10.00 a.m. Once the ship was under way on a course charted through Lake Ontario's waters, the Sea Cadets were taken on a comprehensive tour of the ship from stem to stern and bridge to engine room.

During the course of this tour the lads had a chance to watch and query the operation of a great variety of RCN equipment and gear used in radio communications, ship navigation and anti-submarine action.

Such words as "squid," "sonar," "radar" and "ship's telegraph" became actual pieces of equipment which could be viewed first hand or watched in operation. For many of the cadets this was their first time on board ship, especially one of Her Majesty's Canadian ships, and in just about every department of the Prestonian class frigate there was something new and interesting to command their attention and bring forth questions for their guide to answer.

Not all of their time was spent watching and querying, however. During the morning they had a chance to man the various Bofors guns and right on an imaginary target. During the afternoon the ship was stopped, a whaler lowered, and the lads were given practical instruction in whaler pulling.

SPLENDID MEAL

The noon meal was certainly one of the highlights of the day with many getting a taste of deep fried scallops for the first time. Fresh vegetables, green- beans, sliad, soup, pumpkin pie and milk rounded out the dinner menu and quickly settled any doubt as to whether or not the Navy eats well.

It was close on to 4.00 p.m. that the ship dropped her anchor off Cobourg harbor and the day's cruise for the cadets was over. It was evident that few would forget the day's experience, however, and many took home with them such souvenirs as ship's cap tallies, badges and photographs as well as fond memories.

The Sea Cadets were accompanied by the corps' new commanding officer, Sub-Lieutenant J. D. Phippen, Mr. Don Adamson, one of the corps' civilian instructors, and Mr. R. Peter Willis, president of the Navy League of Canada, Belleville Branch, which, through funds raised by the Belleville United Appeal, supports the local corps.

USED FOR TRAINING

The ship the local cadets were on is one of two HMCS frigates which will be on the Great Lakes throughout the summer for the purpose of training members of the Royal Canadian Navy Reserve of which there are a number of shore establishments or divisions along the St. Lawrence and the lakes.

Some 35 to 45 RCNR personnel at a time are accommodated aboard these ships for training periods of two weeks' duration to supplement with practical experience the more formal training which they receive during the winter in their reserve division.

Along with the two frigates there are also three Bay class minesweepers on the Great Lakes to provide shipboard training for RCNR personnel. One of these is the local corps' namesake, HMCS "Quinte."

It is anticipated that she will be visiting the local waters towards the end of the summer and at that time can take part in officially presenting her retired While Ensign to the Sea Cadet Corps for safekeeping.

ROME (AP) — Seven noted and experienced actors were screen tested for the role of Jesus in Italian producer Dino de Laurentis' $10,000,000 film Barrabas. But one part finally went to a sound engineer working on the picture, Roy Mayano 28, a brother of film star Silvano Mangano, who plans the feminine lead in the picture.

PM Asks All To Help Reduce Traffic Toll

OTTAWA — Calling on all motorists and pedestrians to realize their responsibilities in reducing Canada's heavy toll in traffic, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has pleaded for sensible, safe driving and walking "not only in the vacation period but in approaching but throughout the year." The Prime Minister, in a message to Ira C. Needles, general chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, referred to the increasing travel by Canadians in Canada. As they are joined by the thousands of motorists who come from the United States," he said, "the traffic on Canadian streets and roads has risen to remarkable proportions. Motoring hazards grow accordingly, particularly in the summer vacation months, and ever- ixians must be taken to meet the threat of increasing traffic hazards."

The Prime Minister's message was issued in support of the Council's "Slow Down and Live" campaign which began June 1 and continues to the end of August, in conjunction with the same campaign in the United States.

Want Quebec Independent

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Devoir report today that nearly 30 per cent of the people who replied to its recent poll believe Quebec's independence from Canada is both possible and desirable.

Nearly 30 per cent believe it both undesirable and impossible.

The Montreal daily says 4,098 mailed in answers to the poll, but 69 ballots were discarded. 69 of these because they had Conservative ideas filled in en masse. Le Devoir has 40,000 to 42,000 subscribers and estimates readership at 100,000.

The poll posed two questions: Is the establishment of Quebec as an independent state desirable or not? And is it possible or not? Some who replied answered only one question.

Results showed 2,988, or 75.2 per cent of those who answered, thought independence desirable. A total of 3,908, or 74.7 per cent, thought it possible.

Those who thought it both desirable and possible numbered 3,705, or 69.76 per cent. Those who thought it both undesirable and impossible numbered 77, or 29.94 per cent.

Home-Grown Radishes and Onions on Mart

"It was a big outdoor market today. Undoubtedly it was the largest one so far this year. While produce was in good supply the only new vegetable seen were radishes (three bunches for 25 cents) and green onions (three bunches for a quarter).

More than two dozen district farmers set themselves up in business on the market square this morning and prayed that the rain would hold off until much later in the day after the day's shoppers had gone home. One woman selling home-made bread, who formerly had space inside the market building, had to do business outside on the curb because of renovations under way inside. She hoped the rain would hold off so that her bread would not become soggy. As it was, she and other farmers had to contend with a Scotch mist.

Farmers reported things slipping into high gear on the farm. Some of them expected to have the season's first fresh strawberries available within a week or two. If the coming week is sunny and warm, a few had hopes that strawberries would be available next Saturday.

Peas are expected to show up in any quantity much before the end of the month because of a late planting and wet weather. The usual mid-June first harvest of the early crop is expected to arrive some time after the middle of the month.

No sign of raspberries yet on the canes. Farmers reported dense foliage on their raspberry canes but said the first berries of the year won't be along for a while yet.

All prices on the market remained steady at those of last week.

A magnificent supply of transplants and potted plants was available and was enough to keep those with green thumbs looking for hours.

Maj.-Gen. Harry Templer Alexander, a Briton who is Ghana's defence chief headed the first United Nations troop contingent to the Congo, was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath.

A special honor went to Dame Evelyn Adelaide Sharp, Britain's top woman civil servant. She was made Dame Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire, equivalent to highranking Knighthood. Dame Sharp is permanent secretary of the housing and local government ministry.

Among distinguished scholars knighthoods went to Thomas Malcolm Knox, principal of the ancient University of St. Andrews, Scotland, and Henry Lee, headmaster of exclusive Winchester boys school.

Servite Khama was called from Bechuanaland 19 years ago after marrying a white woman in 1956, he was allowed to return to his homeland and this year he stepped back into the colony's public life by winning election to the legislative council.

Footballer Finney also got the OBE. He is one of the finest international players awarded his time and has represented England 76 times.

Veteran Bernie Surtees was awarded membership of the Order of the British Empire and trainer Elsey was made a commander of the same order. Both for their services to sport. Elsey saddled 1,500 winners before his retirement last year.

Not all the names were well known. Among those honored with the British Empire Medal were Mrs. Annie Pulford, who has been foster parent to 35 children; C. K. Trezise, keeper of the Wilderness Rightboat Club at Hull; Mrs. Gwen Cripps, by polio wife in the RAF and Harry Jones but in a rehabilitation workshop, and Dick Glaister, a miner who has served six days a week for 36 years as a voluntary part-time orderly in a hospital ward.

Also awarded the British Empire Medal was F. S. Jones, a Welsh postman who hasn't missed a day delivering the mail in 45 years.

Call For Efforts to Bring Arts, Sciences Together

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The head of one of the three Montreal universities playing host to the conference of learned societies called Friday for efforts to bring science within the humanities instead of those who are not scientists.

Mary must be found, said Dr. Henry F. Hall, principal of Sir George William University. "We bring the arts and sciences closer together.

Speaking at a session of the Canadian Association of Physicists, he said science should be part of the general education of people and it is up to both educationists and scientists to bring this about.

At a session of the Canadian Political Science Association, Prof. Roger Chartier of Laval University, Quebec City, said Saskatchewan is the only Canadian province where the principles of liberty apply fully in union management relations.

Elsewhere, parties to industrial disputes were "compelled to use governmental machinery exactly as determined by statute" and were not allowed to enter into an agreement on certain matters.

Many government acts are deliberately time - consuming, in the hope, doubtless, that the heat will have partially cool off."

The meaning of this, Prof. Chartier said, is that "our legislation may have been shot by fear rather than by freedom in the face of the real problems and disputes between different interests."

The prolonged intervention of the state as a conciliator in union - management relations usually led to more conflict.

When the political scientists turned to economics, Dr. D. Campbell of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said Canada is facing the loss of grain markets in western Europe but may find a bigger market there for livestock and dairy products.

Presbyterians Study Separation Case in Ottawa

By KEN PRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of a special commission which last year refused the removal of Dr. Ian A. Burnett as minister of St. Andrew Presbyterian church, Ottawa, pleaded Friday that the case be reopened.

Rev. L. K. Fowler of Aurora, Ont., made the appeal to the 69th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada while presenting the commission's reasons for judgment. He said the case "concerns mostly a married separation."

Dr. Burnett, who came to St. Andrew's from Glasgow in 1946, is a former moderator of Ottawa Presbytery and a candidate for moderator of the church. He delivered the eulogy at the funeral of the former prime minister W. L. Mackenzie King in 1950.

LAW IS 'MORE CLEAR'

"This has been a most tragic case, but the law of the church was most clear and the commission reached a unanimous decision speedily," said Mr. Fowler, clerk of the general Assembly and chairman of the commission.

He said a continuation of the controversy, which came into the open in 1958, would cause further heartbreak.

"Dr. Burnett has not asked that the matter be reopened, nor has Mrs. Burnett. Why reopen it?"

Objection to the pastoral separation still is being made by a group of St. Andrew's members, who have a petition before the General Assembly, and Ottawa Presbytery has complained about the decision of the separation commission delivered in Ottawa last July.

The assembly Friday referred the petition and the complaint to a judicial committee which planned to give them immediate study.

The special commission, established in 1960 to investigate the Ottawa pastoral relation, ruled that a "fama clamosa" or public scandal existed. It found that Dr. Burnett and his wife had become separated in 1958 and neither had reached a reconciliated nor changed their status to one acceptable to the church. As a consequence, Dr. Burnet did not live up to one of his functions—that is, to rule well in his own house.

PERMITS DIVORCE

Mr. Fowler noted that the church permits legal marriage and divorce.

In his report accompanying the lengthy reasons for judgment, Mr. Fowler said the report of a session of Ottawa Presbytery in effect condemned Mrs. Burnett, but she was not heard. "I failed completely to convict her."

He said Mrs. Burnett returned to Scotland after the separation and "is teaching school there."

The special commission's report said that Ottawa Presbytery had made "grave errors of law and procedure" in handling the case. This finding was reviewed by the commission in June and July, 1960, on instructions of the 1960 General Assembly, which had received complaints from members of St. Andrew's.

DECISION FINAL

Dr. Fowler said the special commission's decision is final, subject only to one safeguard against human error—provision for appeal to the assembly on the grounds some part of the judgment is ultra vires of the commission.

The judicial committee will decide whether there was ultra vires action and can order the commission to reassess its study of the Burnett case at the point where any error was made.

Dr. Burnet has not made application for a certificate to transfer to another church and is employed in non-church work in Ottawa.

Meanwhile St. Andrew's called Rev. Arthur W. Currie of Runnymede Presbyterian Church, Toronto, who became minister June 1 this year.

The Chinese Trade Tempest

The two-day tempest over grain suction pumps for ships carrying Canadian grain to China appears to have blown itself out, but it may have left the natives restless. Whether or not they have good cause for their uneasiness is difficult to say.

From the practical point of view the U.S. ban on the sale of unloading equipment for tankers became unimportant as soon as Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that Canada could produce its own unloading equipment within three weeks and would, if necessary, do so and fly the equipment to Communist China. But neither this announcement, nor the action next day of the U.S. in reversing its field and lifting the ban, alters the fact that, in theory, the situation may have involved principles that are of utmost importance. If it did, the facts of the case ought not to be conveniently shoved into a dark corner, where they can be forgotten until that unhappy day when they again threaten to become a potent influence in the functioning of our economy. If it cannot be said with certainty that such principles are at stake, that is the result of the confused reports.

The Toronto Globe and Mail first reported the machinery sale ban as affecting "grain carriers" and as "jeopardizing shipment of more than 100,000 bushels of wheat and barley grain to China in the next three years." It said, however, that the ban was imposed because of suspicion the machinery would be installed on ships chartered by the Chinese government and that Mrs. Margaret Schwartz, acting head of the foreign assets control office, said the ban would not apply if the ships were chartered by the Canadidan Government.

The Canadian Press report modified the impact of the ban, saying that the machinery involved was intended only for tankers, which would be used to move only a small portion of the grain, but it reported the ban covered ships chartered to China, "although the control was intended to avoid the ban, we have go logical complaint. But if the ban would have been applied to Canadian or Canadian-chartered ships, just because these ships were trading with China, we have a very real cause for protest. We question whether this point is adequately explained by the announcement of the lifting of the ban. While this announcement says that the treasury department had ruled the equipment could not be sold because it was to be installed on Norwegian tankers under Red China Charter, we cannot escape the uneasy feeling that the treasury department's decision might have been the same if these ships were under Canadian charter but were delivering the grain to Red China. It is all very well for Prime Minister Diefenbaker to praise the "good sense" shown by the U.S. administration in lifting the ban, and for him to call this action, for Canada's sake, "an example to all the world." But what Canadians should be concerned with is not the obtaining of privileged treatment from their friendly and powerful neighbor, but the safeguarding of our sovereign rights to conduct our trade in any way we see fit.

Just to keep the record clear, our government should say something like this to Washington: "Look here, we do not presume to tell you with whom you should trade. You can, if you want, ban trade with us. But we want to know where we stand. We are not asking that you permit your firms to sell us goods for trans-shipment to any country with which they are prohibited from trading direct. But if you sell us goods for our own use, we want it distinctly understood that we do not recognize your right to put any restrictions on the use to which these goods will be put." In other words, if you sell us parts for trucks, and we use these parts to build such trucks, we will not recognize your right to tell us to whom we can, or cannot, sell them. If you sell us equipment for our ships, or for ships chartered by us, we will not recognize your right to tell us with what countries these ships can, or cannot, trade. If you are not prepared to sell us certain kinds of goods without strings attached, tell us now what these goods are, and we shall make arrangements to obtain them elsewhere. In making this demand, we are not attempting to dictate to you what your trade policies should be; we are merely refusing to permit you to dictate to us, directly or indirectly, what our trade policies should be."

Water Diversion Case

Ottawa Citizen

Perhaps Canadians should revise their thinking about the lengthy agitation for diversion of further amounts of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago. So much, emphasis has been placed on the international aspects of this diversion that the navigational features have become obscured. Yet as a navigation project it may have merit.

Canadians would be justified in declining to take the word of Chicago's mayor more water from Lake Michigan which is part of the Great Lakes system with a bearing on lake levels and upon the St. Lawrence Seaway, if his were only a plan to save Chicago the expense of building new sewage disposal plants. For whatever reasons, this is the way many Canadians have come to understand the scheme.

Official opposition at Ottawa has been based on that concept. When Prime Minister Diefenbaker was asked in the House about Chicago's request to divert water from the Hudson Bay watershed, he replied that his government "stands unalterably opposed to any further diversion of water at the request of Chicago."

His comment has been criticized by Mr. A. J. Meserow, Illinois member of the Great Lakes Commission, who claims that Ontario and Chicago officials are more sympathetically disposed. His point is that seven Great Lakes state are in favor of the diversion, so that it is "not the isolated request of Chicago or Illinois alone." The reason is navigation.

Already under construction is a channel designed to connect the Calumet River, which flows into Lake Michigan, with the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal. This is a line between the Mississippi-Illinois River system and the Great Lakes. Envisaged is an interior waterway joining with the St. Lawrence Seaway to give ships access to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean as far as New Orleans. Whether the waterway will be completed is doubtful, but to permit large vessels will no doubt require only the volume of water available.

In any event, the whole project, as it affects Canada, may require a new and harder look. Something more than sewage disposal is involved.

Wrong Way To Fight Reds

Maclean's Magazine

Davie Fulton, the minister of justice, has been exhorting his fellow Canadians to keep their shirts on, to appeal as routinely innocuous as the plea to help stamp out the Asiatic influenza. There is a soothing familiarity about these rhetorical calls to arms. They are as old as Eden and as sternly just, without actually requiring us to do anything in particular.

Lately, though, we have been reminded that in some people like these warlike slogans literally, and seriously, do mean a lot. Laos the pious urge to "fight Communism" has got the United States, and Britain, and the whole Western alliance, in to considerable trouble without being preposterous. The French mutineers in Algeria, the Belgian dictators of Katanga, the apostles of apartheid in South Africa and Rhodesia, the overseers of forced labor in Portuguese Angola — all these by their own account, are "fighting Communism" too. So before Canadians are thankfully to be mobilized for ideological battle, it might be well to stipulate exactly what it is we should be careful not to do.

Not to appeal to the false or implicit rejoinders to political events. It's hard to imagine a situation more like that in World War III than the policy of intervening with military force to forestall or frustrate every political upheaval. In many parts of the world the status quo is indefensible and intolerable. We must recognize this as a fact, and expect revolts against the status quo from time to time. Some of these revolts will be led by Communist leadership. If we regard this as a threat to us, or to others war really does become inevitable.

Instead, we should not attempt by economic aid to bolster up incompetent, corrupt and obsolete regimes, whose whole purpose of foreign aid is destroyed when it is found to appear as a device for perpetuating unknown tyrannies and feudal societies.

Third, we should not damn as Communists every man, party or state that stand a little to the left of the United American conservatism. For one thing, it gives the Communists credit for more skill than deserves. Men like Nasser in Egypt, Kassem in Iraq, Tom Mboya in Kenya are national heroes. If we insist on calling such men Communists we have in the past and shall probably do again in the future, we merely teach their followers that Communists and heroes belong to the same class.

Finally and above all, we should not become so obsessed with "fighting Communism" that we become incapable of making peace. Communism is here established and accepted system in about a third of the whole human race. No quick "victory" over it is possible. Ultimately, it will run its natural death as freedom grows — and freedom can only grow in peace.

Stevenson Has Big Job

Montreal Gazette

Adlai Stevenson, the American representative to the United Nations, has commenced a visit to South America that will last for more than two weeks. It is a visit made at a fretful time, one which could have important consequences for the foreign policy of the United States in the Latin American area.

One of Mr. Stevenson's important tasks will be to restore confidence in the intentions, policies and decisions of the American Government, in country after country in South America. His standing has already been shaken in the wake of the Cuban fiasco.

If anyone can efface the impression of confusion and doubt it is Mr. Stevenson, as an individual he is immensely popular in South America. His strong and sympathetic attitude in South America, which long antedates the present American administration, is widely regarded as genuine and sincere. In addition, a number of issues were picked for the visit, since the initial reactions to the Cuban invasion have been so keen.

There is another purpose to Mr. Stevenson's visit. It is to explain and to interpret anew President Kennedy's foreign aid program for South America. The events in Cuba, and the extreme poverty in many parts of South America, help to justify Mr. Kennedy's contention that there must be more than a one-way street to economic progress and justice to these countries.

More, important than money, is the use these countries will make of the money they will receive, and the reforms they are prepared to introduce. Real progress in these countries must come from the inside, not the outside. Mr. Stevenson should be able to do more than any other American statesman could to encourage some governments to undertake long needed reforms.

Not the immediate aim of Mr. Stevenson's visit should be overlooked as an aspect of patience and sympathy with Latin American problems that may offset the bitterness and resentment that have been recently given rise.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

PART OF THE VAST CREATION

Can we really make contact with God?

Every syllable of the Bible indicates that we can. God did not create us and then go away and leave it. Neither did He give us His universe and then abandon them to the struggles of life unaided. One of the most significant things Jesus said was made was that the hairs of our heads are numbered. It can't be meant that the universe in every particular hangs together. The hairs of our heads are a part and parcel of a material order which includes the farthest star. The God who made the hairs of our heads created also the gigantic stars and the planets in their orbits. Everything hangs together in God's universe.

Accordingly, God is in everything. This is not pantheism which identifies God with only only amid the particles of His created universe. All we know about the magic of the Bible hold that God is objective to His universe as well as in particle.

There is the greatest means by which we make our connections with God, the always hears prayer. He does not always grant us our petitions. Often He provides something much better than we had knowledge to request.

Prayer, Bible, Church, meditation Christian service — these are the avenues by which we approach God and by which God approaches us.

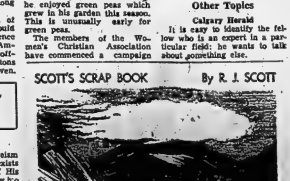
Memory Pill Might Do Ill

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Two California researchers are endeavoring to develop a pill that will improve one's memory.

Such a pill would have advantages as well as disadvantages. Mental lapses are embarrassing. It is unsettling to realize as a result of accidents we've forgotten his name or to go home empty-handed on a wedding anniversary.

But life could become miserable if we were inclined by some kind of medication to recall in sharp detail every social faux pas and every error in judgment ever committed.



One learns from mistakes and it's inexcusable to make the same mistake twice. But let's be wary about artificially stimulating the restrictive capacity. As someone has well said: "Forgiver is human; to forget is often humane."

To Your Good Health

Electrocardiogram Only One Way of Testing Heart

By Joseph C. Meisner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Meisner: I have a rheumatic heart. How can the results of an electrocardiogram devices denote very little change," when I myself know by four years' time the difference in my breathing, tiring, etc? Can you throw any light on this? — Mrs. J. O.

Yes, I'm sure we can clear up the confusion.

Different tests tell different things about the heart. No single one tells the complete story.

If an electrocardiogram (cardiogram for short), gave all the necessary information, there'd be no point in using the stethoscope. X-raying the heart, observing how the patient breathes and sometimes using less common tests, such as heart catheterization, for example.

However, the egg does not tell us the state of the heart — if there has been enlargement, or changes of shape. The X-ray gives us that. And the stethoscope gives us the sounds, the murmurs, of the pumping heart.

Now in the case of a rheumatic heart, the trouble is in one of the valves. It's mitral valve, or chamber, distorted in shape.

This interferes with the efficiency with which blood moves from one chamber of the heart to another, and to the body. A proper relationship of pressures, too, makes everything work. So the difference in the electrical rhythms which are read on the egg, little, that, by itself, would do the marked difference you've noticed in your efficiency on "heart attack."

The amount of change in the egg may vary widely from one patient to another. After all, the details of rheumatic damage to the valves can vary too.

It's needless to say, I presume, that the physician is pleased when the egg does not change too much, remains quite normal, and he is likewise encouraged when the cardiograms show no change.

Taking your temperature doesn't tell the whole story of the other kinds of illnesses. It's important, and it's a good thing to have a fever subsides and the temperature again approaches normal. But after a siege of illness, a patient may be weak, weak or listless even though his temperature isn't rising.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes underarm rash? Every time I use a deodorant it turns out. — A. K."

First possibility would certainly be allergy to the deodorant you use. Try different kinds in the hope of finding one to which your skin is not sensitive.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Our boy is now two years old and so far has not experienced any disadvantage due to not having had a circumcision. Please advise us as to what is the best interests. — A. W."

If there is no irritation of the area, I would do nothing. Careful bathing is important. I favor circumcision immediately after birth (in the first few days). But if it hasn't been done, then, I'd say don't do it unless there's obvious need for it. After the earliest part of life, circumcision is a painful sort of experience. It can be done at any time, of course, if required, but it's no longer so simple.

British Car Proves Tough

Windsor Star

There is a tendency to underestimate the durability of well-built automobiles. This is demonstrated by a motorless case in Reading, England.

There a 30-year-old motorist was convicted of attempting to bribe an official to get a "test certificate" for his 27-year-old car. He evidently thought he had had driven it himself with control of its age, in getting it approved though he himself was certain it was in good condition.

He was assessed a modest fine for his attempted bribery. The irony was that when he later took it to the garage for a fine overhaul, the crafty whatever getting a roadworthy certificate.

This wasn't an "antique" car which had been laid up and then brought out again and renovated mechanically. The man had driven the thing during its 27-year period and still drives it at least three times a week. The only major overhaul work on it during all that time was a replacement of the engine, overseas during World War II will not be surprised to learn, with an engine from the then ancient taxis still giving good service around town. It simply that London taxis don't get plenty of wear and tear.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The reason it is so hard to persuade people, especially city and town people, to use a packsack is partly because it is that to most of them lighting a fire is a very difficult business.

"You take the average city man," said a Bush veteran, "who takes half an hour to get the furnace going for the first time in the fall. Or who spends fifteen minutes blowing his flame-thrower before he can get a camp fire started to heat the waters. There's the real danger in letting troubles loose in the bush. They're not that starting a fire is a laborious and complicated business. Unless they have had to build and seen their camp fire suddenly set the leaves and grass ablaze and watched in horror as the flames licked up a baby pine in one gulp, slipping like quicksilver to under the dead limbs and blooming up in explosions thirty feet above. Or seen it in a ten foot pine sapling, most of them don't know what we are talking about. They've been used to toss their cigarette butts away, and to build a lunch fire near vegetation, and never to go away without sloshing the fire down with what actually put your hand into them.

"Then if you are trying to light is one thing. A fire you don't plan is another. And a bush fire is the greatest, wastefullest, and fiercest of all."

ON COMPLAINING

The commonest complainers are found among those who have the least about which to complain!

Theodore ("Teddy") Roosevelt preached and practiced the strenuous life. He was a busy man nature in a rare way. He knew that the one who continually serves and works rarely complains. And we know that the person with a large family, even where she has to work hard, rarely complains. Self-pity is the hallmark of the lazy.

There is a most uncommon beauty and peacefulness about a berg of sheep or cattle grazing in some valley or open space. In my travels I have watched such spots with joy, and have always left with a higher sense of life's values.

I have never seen cattle quarrel among themselves. I have never seen sheep in any conference with its companions.

Human beings do most of the complaining. I have noticed — that those who really have some reason to complain, do not. Those the blind man, the cripple, the one who is thrown upon the world all alone and yet displays bravely whatever comes, these are not the complainers.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Our boy is now two years old and so far has not experienced any disadvantage due to not having had a circumcision. Please advise us as to what is the best interests. — A. W."

If there is no irritation of the area, I would do nothing. Careful bathing is important. I favor circumcision immediately after birth (in the first few days). But if it hasn't been done, then, I'd say don't do it unless there's obvious need for it. After the earliest part of life, circumcision is a painful sort of experience. It can be done at any time, of course, if required, but it's no longer so simple.

Milan Tribune-Herald

When they heard that Italian taxes were soon to be lowered for those living 3,280 feet or more above sea level, 200 villagers at Martina France (which is 3,500 feet above sea level) decided unanimously to abandon their homes and build new ones 20 feet higher.

A Lift For Living

Preparing for the Future

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

June is the month of commencements. Another crop of graduates will hear advice about facing the future.

We might ask what good it does to face the future, since we cannot see into it. No one of us knows what will happen to him in five years or in the next five minutes. Back in the Old Testament is a writer called Ecclesiastes. His book is so pessimistic that readers sometimes wonder why it was included in the sacred Scriptures. But its inclusion is a proof that religious faith does not spring from mere wishful thinking. Running almost like a refrain through the chapters of Ecclesiastes is this question "Who can tell a man what shall be after him in the sun?"

Physically we are built so that we look in front of us as we move through space. We walk more naturally going forward than backward. We can use our hands better in front of us than behind us.

But in our movement through time, we can only see what is beside us in the present and behind us in the past. We advance into the future like a man rowing a boat, with his back to the prow. The ancients, in their desire to pierce the curtain of the future, resorted to oracles and fortune-tellers.

WHAT IS AHEAD?

We of the scientific age have pretty well graduated from fortune-telling, but yet are just as eager as the ancient to know what is ahead. In fact, the faster the pace of living, the more desperately we desire to see into the future. We pay a few cents for the daily paper which gives yesterday's news, but some men would gladly pay thousands of dollars for today's paper if it could furnish tomorrow's market prices. What would parents not give to know what will happen to their children in 1957?

The present generation, as Joseph Wood Krutsch has said, is less sure of what is ahead than any previous generation. Why? Because for the first time in human history man could commit race suicide. No matter how evil men were in the past they had neither the power nor the proximity to their neighbors to kill them off. Now we have both. With our nuclear energy we have the power. With our missiles and space travel we have the proximity.

While we do not know where we shall be next year or ten years from now, we can and should know what kind of person we wish to be five or fifty years hence. Nothing has changed the goals of life. The principles of godly living as given by the great Hebrew prophets and Christian apostles are still sound. The Bible can still be trusted as a road map for character.

Remember, ideals and attitudes abide even when the skills change. Some of the tradas we learn today may be outmoded by automation tomorrow. But mental resourcefulness, moral reliability and cooperative goodwill will continue as invaluable aids however conditions may change. Despite all the uncertainties of life we are not left wholly without guidance for the future. History does not repeat itself but it helps to keep us from repeating our mistakes. And it does reveal some sequence of cause and effect. Life is a game but it is not a lottery. And there are seers like the Old Testament prophets and the Christ, whose depth of insight becomes akin to foresight.

At the fiftieth reunion of the Harvard class of 1881, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said that the best service we can do for our country and for ourselves is "to see so far as one may, and to feel the great forces that are behind every detail — for that makes all the difference between philosophy and gossip, between great action and small."

4th THURLOW — A few close friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne A. Cummins, 4th of Thurlow, met at their home on June 1st, to celebrate their ...nding anniversary ... Mrs. Cummins.

Guests included Mrs. Cummins' mother, Mrs. Robert Kincaid of Shannonville, and Mr. Cummins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mitchell of Front Road.

Following a bounteous dinner which thoroughly enjoyed by everyone, the numerous gifts were opened, and Mr. and Mrs. Cummins expressed appreciation to their guests for their thoughtfulness and good wishes.

Pictures were taken and everyone enjoyed a lovely social evening.

Beta Sigma Phi Chooses 'Girl of the Year'

A gay outdoor barbeque to honor the "Girl of the Year" climaxed the season for Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority and brought activities to a close for this season.

On Tuesday evening, members and their husbands gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. McCormick, 183 Dufferin Avenue, for the annual "cook-out". Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. MacKinnon and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wolfenden, both ladies being honorary members of Gamma Mu Chapter.

During the evening a singsong was led by Mr. D. MacKinnon and following this, several husbands showed off their culinary skills at the barbeques. Assistance in serving refreshments was given by the hostess, Mrs. W. McCormick.

Social director Mrs. Victor White, was called upon to announce the winner of the "Girl of the Year" award. Every charter member is eligible and the award is given to the girl who has made outstanding participation not only within the chapter but also in community and allied projects.

Mrs. Bruce Bishop was the recipient and was crowned "Girl of the Year". Mrs. Bishop expressed her appreciation of the honor bestowed and thanked members for their gift of a sterling silver engraved bracelet.

Special farewells were said to Mrs. Bishop and to several members leaving the chapter to go to the north shore.

Gamma Mu Chapter is Epsilon Phi Eta Chapter in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson Barton are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Mary Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murphy, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Barton, also of Belleville. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville).

BARTON — MURPHY

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was solemnized at Bridge St. United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 27th, when Sheila Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murphy, Selena Ave., was united in marriage to Frederick Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Barton, of Dalside Rd. The Rev. Harry M. Davis, minister of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Alex Gordon, organist, played the wedding March and organza with scoop necklines, high fitted bodices and bouffant skirts over taffeta. Tucked bands adorned the shirts and they wore matching headdresses of organza with shoulder veils, and carried bouquets of pale pink roses, lily of the valley, and maidenhair fern.

The maid of honor was Miss Joan Murphy, sister of the bride, while the bridesmaid was Miss Diane Barton, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed alike in floor length gowns of pale yellow and green organza with scoop necklines, high fitted bodices and bouffant skirts over taffeta. Tucked bands adorned the shirts and they wore matching headdresses of organza with shoulder veils, and carried bouquets of pale pink roses, lily-of-the-valley, and carried a basket of pink carnations and white mums.

Mr. John M. Davison, R.S.I. Belleville, attended the bridegroom while the ushers were ushered by Messrs. Keith Barnett, Belleville, Robert Davison, Toronto, and Fred Moore of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the Prince Edward Suite of the Hotel Quinte .The three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Alex Grant, of Ottawa, was topped with a miniature bride and groom, in silver candlebra. The bridal flowers completed the table decor.

The bride's mother received in Mr. Jason Rose's gown featuring with matching shoes and gloves and purses corsage of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley and a kolinsky stole completed the ensemble. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother in a floor length silk shantung with matching shoes, organza petal hat, purse corsage of lily-of-the-valley and a mink stole.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at showers at the homes of Mrs. D. Barton, Stanley Park Drive; Mrs. Brenda Black, Cherry Gardens ,when Miss Diane Bailey was co-hostess; Mrs. R. Lewis, Glendale Road, when Mrs. J. W. Dunning was cohostess and a coffee party at the home of Mrs. R. L. Smith, Eastwood Park Drive.

ULCW Names New 1961-62 Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the U.L.C.W. was held last evening in the Trinity Church, Melrose Crescent.

Mrs. Hazlett, president, Mrs. Brinkhurst and Mrs. W. Calbery were in charge of devotions.

Mrs. Hazlett gave the annual report of the work accomplished during the past year, and the making of the 1961-62 appointments on the election of new officers, the topic "Women in Prayer" was chosen. The committee in connection of church women through the Canadian Council have been very busy, not only with new work but there are a few that have been slightly neglected. Among the most important of these is the ever increasing upkeep of manse and Student School teachers. Also the ever important Parish Visiting Service, although it is supported to a certain extent, could be improved.

Mrs. B. Thompson, president, was in charge of the meeting.

The only new business was the announcement of a Vacation Church School to be held this summer for the children of the congregation.

Mrs. Bartleman gave her yearly report on the Manse. Her ladies and their committee in the many activities have been and had been a most successful year, not only monetary and activities, but in the spiritual growth.

Mrs. Bartleman thanked the executive members and also the committees members for their co-operation during the year.

A special thanks to Mrs. A. Quast for looking after the responsibility of the church services.

Mrs. Calbury, Christian secretary, reported that during the year the following was accomplished: 5 complete layettes have been made, 2 layettes for the church and Sunday school, 1 communion set and servettes; 21 stuffed toys for the CAS; vestments for the Junior choir; 2 quilts for CAS; the stair-rods at Christmas; 4 parcels of used clothing; 4 parcels of booklets for India; the catering to suppers, one on Mothers' and Daughters' banquet Sunday, May 15, and one on anniversary; 80 lbs. of used clothing had been sent to Lutheran World Relief, Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

Mrs. T. Paisenen, membership committee chairman, reported that there are 33 members with the average attendance at the meetings of 20. One new member visitation was made during the year by the committee.

Mrs. H. Lindeman, offerings committee chairman, reported that the monthly offerings and mission offerings were exceptionally good and that the goal on a free will basis was met with a little over and above and how much each person gives. A Budget wasn't made for the year as it is a very little difficult being the first year of organization.

There was no report from the Christian service chairman available, but a large number of pamphlets on missions and almost a load of reading matter on missions of the world had been purchased.

Should be Mary's report was not immediately available, but the Mary Hawley treasurer, Mrs. H. Bosh and Mrs. A. Quast, also to the auditors, Mrs. S. Willoughby and Mrs. R. Vine.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Thompson for the ballot and closed by the repeating of the Missionary Benediction.

AIRMAN - PARSONS

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Frank George (Maude-Thompson, 56, oldest air pilot, has died Friday at his suburban home. A veteran of the Boer War at the turn of the century, he gained his pilots wings in 1911 in a Blariot monoplane and flew his own plane until three years ago.

Mr., Mrs. N. Brown Celebrate Fifty Years of Married Life

Anniversary congratulations were the order of the day on June 7th for Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown of 65 Highland Avenue, when they observed their golden wedding anniversary.

Residents of the Belleville vicinity for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Brown moved to their present home some 40 years ago on the retirement of Mr. Brown from the Canada Cement Co., Point Anne, where he had been employed for 32 years.

They now have a small guest home where they are both developed their hobby of receiving new people. Their home has become a "home-away-from-home" for many young men and young women who come to stay with them from time to time, as well as guests from British Guiana, Jamaica, Barbados and other lands.

Mrs. Brown is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Charles MacDonald, and was born on the 1st concession of Thurlow township. Mr. Brown is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, and was born on the 2nd concession.

Both are active in church work. Mrs. Brown, or "Pat" as she is known by her friends, joined the Front Road Church when she was a girl and during her years in that vicinity, and at Point Anne, taught a Sunday school for 42 years. On coming to Belleville they both became members of Bridge Street United Church, where they have made a number of fine friends. Mrs. Brown is also a member of the Ladies' Aid Guild.

FAMILY DINNER

On Sunday a family dinner was held at their home, 31 Wednesday afternoon a large number of friends, relatives and neighbors gathered to them. Their only daughter, Helen, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. C. MacDonald, Mr. B. Moorman and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and invited the guests to sign the guest book.

Many greetings and congratulations were received by the happy couple, the guests were from Toronto, Ottawa, Mrs. R. W. Jeffery, Mrs. O. Bertrand, Mrs. Van Vader and Mrs. Tydon Ketcheson.

The lace-covered table was given a floral centre-piece of mixed carnations, decorated in gold and white, and flanked with tall candelabras with gold candles.

Presiding at the silver tea services during the afternoon were Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw, Mrs. James Garbutt, Mrs. Donald Bradshaw and Mrs. Charles Hopper. The latter two were bridesmaid and pianist, respectively, at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Garbutt and Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw are members of the Quinte Women's Institute, which Mrs. Brown joined when she was 18 years old, and of which she has continued to be a member.

During the evening, Mrs. V. Bailey and Mrs. H. Outinpelto presided at the afternoon and evening tea. Mrs. A. of Holloway St. United Church, presided at the bridesmaid table, assisted by Mrs. Garbutt and Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw.

ARRANGING PLATES

Those who arranged the attractive plates and made the tea were Mrs. G. Green, Mrs. E. Bosh, Mrs. M. Kirk, Mrs. D. Cameron, Mrs. Ken Parks, in the afternoon, and Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. M. Kirk, Mrs. G. Dobbs, Miss G. Bush, Mrs. Symons and Mrs. Wiley in the afternoon.

Those serving included: Mrs. Don Cook; Mrs. Fred Cook; Mrs. Lough; Mrs. Winters, sr., Mrs. J. Bridgeman, Mrs. Bayfield; Mrs. Oliphant; Mrs. Meyer; Mrs. Campbell; Coulter and Mrs. Johns for both afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were the recipients of many lovely gifts, among which were a pair of beautiful chairs from their daughter and her family, a lovely flower centre from the W.A. of Holloway St. United Church; a beautiful sup and saucer from the W.A. of Front Road United Church and other floral arrangements and gifts too numerous to mention.

CONGRATULATIONS

Anniversary congratulations were received, as well as many personal calls, from Premier Leslie M. Frost; Prime Minister John F. Diefenbaker; Hon. Alvin Hamilton, Minister of Labor; Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South; R. Deacon, M.L.A. and Mrs. Deacon, Mrs. Brown's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacDonald, and framed plaque from the provincial secretary, John Yarmouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are the parents of three children, two boys, whom they lost at an early age, and one daughter Mrs. A. C. Harry Atkinson. They have two grandson, Richard and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown extend to their many friends deep appreciation for making their special day such an enjoyable one. The community also extends best wishes for this fine couple in the days that lie ahead.

Premier's Wife In Quebec Best-Dressed

MONTREAL (CP)—A jewel of 1961 fall fashions and of what is expected to be fashionable for years to come is in style will be shown Sunday when awards are presented to the 10 best-dressed women in Quebec province.

The awards are being presented in conjunction with the 10th annual fall fashion show by the Toronto Dress Group.

Picked as the province's best-dressed women were Mrs. Jean Drapeau, wife of Montreal Mayor; Mrs. Ossaime Gagnon, wife of Quebec Lieutenant-Governor; Senator Josie Quart of Quebec; Mrs. Mathieu Samson, daughter of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent and wife of a prominent Quebec City doctor; Mrs. Paul-Henri Guimont, president of the Women's Musical Club of Quebec City; Mrs. Sam Isaac, wife of a Quebec City lawyer; Mrs. Percy Flynn, Quebec City club woman; and Nicole Germaine, Marcelle Chamoux and Michele Thaspyre, all well-known Montreal t-e-l-e vision personalities.

OES Members Attend Church Service

Belleville Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star (No. 96) was host to members of the Eastern Star from Picton, Wellington, Consecon and Milgrove Chapters on Sunday evening, and attended Tabernacle United Church in a body.

The Rev. Morgan G. Macpherson, B.A., gave an inspiring sermon entitled "Lessons From Ruth." During his address, the choir rendered "One More Day to Live." Mrs. Douglas Young sang a solo, during the offering, "Repent Ye."

After the church service, the members were invited to the church hall, where they were graciously received by the Worthy Matron of Belleville Chapter, No. 96, Mrs. Lorne Brickman, and the Worthy Patron, Mr. Clifford Booth.

A short program followed with hymns being sung, led by a quartet from Tabernacle church choir. Mrs. Hal Cooper, of the Salvation Army, also rendered one of several numbers they sang by Miss Enid Cooper, Miss Joanne Brooker and Miss Lois Cuthbert of the Salvation Army, which were enjoyed by all present.

A delicious lunch was served by a church group from Tabernacle Church.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. JUBILEE W.A.

The Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge St. United Church met in the lecture room before the summer vacation on June 7. There was a large attendance. Mrs. Ross Johnson, Mrs. Skinner and Mrs. Pat-terson's group.

To open the meeting the president, Mrs. B. Colden, gave a short reading.

Reports from the conveners of the various committees were read.

The president turned over the meeting to Mrs. Ross Johnson. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Dougall, who gave a brief review of the study book to date and Miss Marion Hoag gave a vivid description of a trip by two missionaries to the north and of their visit to a new hospital at sea surrvyors of the Indian hordes. Dedication was to the Peace Park, Peace Bell and Peace Museum, all memorials to the victims of the bombings.

Mrs. Helen Jones gave a short interesting review of the book "Journey to the Stone" book. The review gave all listeners a better understanding of the people of "Ecumenism".

"What They All May Be Once," was the theme of the worship service; these taking part were Mrs. Ross Johnson, who read the Scripture and Mrs. Dougall Smith, who offered a prayer. Miss Brenda Dougall closed the program by presenting a humorous story about the meeting of the Angel Gabrielle with the Lord. Gabrielle was late for work and asked the Lord (after the reason) whether he could have a day off. The Lord granted the request and told Gabrielle to go to the people to spread the gospel.

A Companion for Youth

By ALMA MASON

Today we were young, our parents realized that Mother Nature had provided us exciting personal adventurous for the young hearts. Delving into the inexhaustible storehouse of material beauty in our vicinity helped quench our thirst for adventure and help curb our restless young spirits.

We became acquainted with an enchanting and fascinating fairyland. We were turned loose in woodland tracts peopled with small and alluring four-footed friends; we were subjected to the amazing facts of insects scurrying insects; we were allowed to associate ourselves with birds and urged to imitate their calls and lovely songs.

Living so close to nature's intricate and marvellous wonders made us more and more aware of the faults and deficiencies in our own natures. This caused us to analyze our friends more carefully than some young folk would. We selected only our friends without thought of material possessions. We pasted the rules in the front book, basing on their awareness of the lovely world about them in relation to their personal desires and habits. We grew closer to them if they shared our joy in the magic of a sunset; our delight in a moon pond lily floating in the moonlight; an oriole framed in a sprig of apple blossoms.

An increasing desire to delve more deeply into God's creatures and astounding outdoor world, served to cultivate a keen thirst for good music and provoked a hunger within us for the arts and sciences. We revelled in the library in our small town. Books filled with the lore of birds and flowers and trees led us on to another wondrous world; the world of excellent literature.

Our wise parents knew that a deeply-planned love of forests and mountains and deep green valleys would stabilize and provide eventual well-rounded maturity into the wind-blown plant of youth.

Do you want him to be a wonderful child?
Courageous and stalwart a-n-d gentle and mild?
Has he designs in a forest with fern for a bed
And a star-studded cano y over his head?
Do you want hi to be a sad reaching for
The diamonds of happiness though big's grip don't Shall he treasured a flower and loved a bright bird?
Have the beauties of nature his boyish heart stirred?
If he's lived with vast mountains, lakes and blue skies,
He'll be staunch and valiant and loving and wise;
He'll be a fine son, kindly, stable and true;
He'll be a good soldier, a pan thru and thru.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Lilac time is here again. Because this flower and other flowering shrubs are with us for such a short time, they seem especially beautiful. It is reasonable to assume that, if we had lilac flowers all the time, they would cease to be so exciting and beautiful to us; such is the way human interest seems to work.

Lilacs are luxurious, and satisfying as to waken in the morning with the fragrance of them coming in the open bedroom window from the tall bushes outside. Or as to come upon piercing sweet as to ours one's nose in a bouquet of them in the valley! But then, there seems to be a special affinity with every flower when it comes along.

Having been blessed with sight, hearing, touch, taste, we are sure many of you have noticed in the window, is vastly disturbed by the chatter and scurrying and chasing of a couple of sparrows in a nearby tree, with noisy, noisy blackbirds bothering the little sentinels.

EXAM TIME

Exam time is here with the illness and the sun; even the parents of the studying children seem to have a worried look. Noise is kept to a minimum and nerves are getting taut. It seems a shame that important exams have to coincide with the weather and nature are at their best.

We must strike another sour note even if the world is so lovely in June. Last Saturday, June 3rd, there was something to say about traffic accidents. Yet the risk of accident is greater in the home than on the highway. Last year in the United States there were small over, half a million more accidents in the home than on the road and in industry combined.

A paragraph in the UNESCU Courier says that the kitchen, the stairs or the bedroom of a modern house hold more dangers than the fastest car or plane, the steepest mountain, or a ship in a storm. Simple things like the spirit left lying on a table, a kettle of boiling water, a forgotten edge tool, will make more cripples and kill more children this year than the poliomyelitis and tuberculosis together.

The same is said too often; watch that fire, be careful with that boiling water. And an absolute rule for baby's bath always put the cold water in first before the hot water. If possible, do not have children around the kitchen when the meals are being cooked. On no account should toxic substances such as paraffin oil, petrol or turpentine be kept in bottles originally intended for other purposes — soft drink bottles, jams jars, etc.

A properly insulated electric fence, a step repaired in time, a safety bar or wire netting fixed in the window, it is on details such as these that the life of a child may depend.

FIRST AID KIT

Camping and cottage time will soon be starting where the hazards are often multiplied. A complete first-aid kit is very necessary; falls, cuts and bruises, must be looked after to guard against infection. The whole family should be trained in fire, boat and water safety.

This past week, we saw the film on mouth to mouth resuscitation and feel that this should be seen by as many people as possible. The film is available at the Bell Telephone Company and shows clearly the method of procedure. The method is an ancient one which was abandoned for a long time, but is now considered by the Red Cross and the World Health Organization as more effective than the usual push pull methods.

This question should have been used last week when dealing with car accidents. "Mother" Shipton (1488-1561) said, "Carriages without horses shall go, And accidents fill the world with woe".

Beta Sigma Phi Chooses 'Girl of the Year'

A gay outdoor barbeque to honor the "Girl of the Year" climaxed the season for Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority and brought activities to a close for this season.

On Tuesday evening, members and their husbands gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. McCormick, 183 Dufferin Avenue, for the annual "cook-out". Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. MacKinnon and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wolfenden, both ladies being honorary members of Gamma Mu Chapter.

During the evening a singsong was led by Mr. D. MacKinnon and following this, several husbands showed off their culinary skills at the barbeques. Assistance in serving refreshments was given by the hostess, Mrs. W. McCormick.

Social director Mrs. Victor White, was called upon to announce the winner of the "Girl of the Year" award. Every charter member is eligible and the award is given to the girl who has made outstanding participation not only within the chapter but also in community and allied projects.

Mrs. Bruce Bishop was the recipient and was crowned "Girl of the Year". Mrs. Bishop expressed her appreciation of the honor bestowed and thanked members for their gift of a sterling silver engraved bracelet.

Special farewells were said to Mrs. Bishop and to several members leaving the chapter to go to the north shore.

90 Attend Annual P.E. District W.I.

HILLIER — The W.I. annual for Prince Edward District was held at Wesleyville, Hyer on June 7, with about 90 attending.

Mrs. Robeson, guest president attended. She displayed her badge in form of a pin like the wales tulipiere without the wall of the conference at Vancouver.

Mrs. R. Weeks presided for all the business morning and afternoon. Mrs. J. McAlpine acted as secretary.

Mrs. Weatherbee and Mrs. C. Barber, welcomed all the guests and members at the time and everyone attending was made to feel at home, which paved the day for a friendly meeting.

The highlights of the day were not only a fine program and splendid reports which included Mrs. R. Foster's report of the F.W.I.O. meetings but the interest shown by Mr. J. Bell in attendance. He was most interested in the Millinery short course, in which Mrs. Cain View and Hillier W. I. participated.

The former group modelled their lovely creations.

Hillier was only exhibiting their hats but also had a sample of the different types of coat on display. Each girl modelled a sample of "Focus on Textiles."

Mrs. A. Wennemaker in speaking of the work accomplished by Hillier expressed the appointment over the missing exhibit from the class. The class was instructed by Mrs. Andrews of Belleville and regretted it could not have been present to show what the class had accomplished.

A lovely dinner was served at noon, after dinner they visited the display where their work done there has been a project exhibit. Mrs. View W.I. Mrs. Cain W.I. M.P. project on "girls' work" and asked Mrs. Lewis of Hillier for comment on their fine table of exhibits. Focus on Finishes.

Mrs. Smith officiated in installation of officers who were installed by Mrs. S. Foster. Mrs. E. Hicks will be district president for 1962-63.

Next year Elmer Mills W.I. will be hostess for the yearly gathering.

THE MAGIC MIGHT OF A MITE

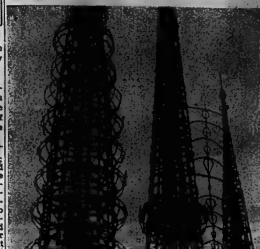
A sign noticed on a school lawn read: "Help! Help! We want to grow so the children will have a nice place to play this fall. Please keep off us now." Signed — "The Grass."

Should you receive a letter from France bearing a 30-franc green, red and bistre stamp, look at it closely. You will see three flowers of a tobacco plant, the conventional symbol of four tobacco leaves. At its left is a portrait of Jean Nicot, from whose name science has derived the name nicotine.

Nicot was a mid-16th century French ambassador to Portugal. Nicot received a birth from the new land, America, now called tobacco. Claimed to have many medicinal qualities. Nicot sent some to his queen, Catherine de Medici, as a cure for her migraine headaches. A scholar and author of "Treasury of the French Language, Ancient and Modern," Nicot called the herb "Nicotiana" and defined it as "an herb of marvelous virtue which cures sores, ulcers and other such things."

Time's touch has turned the tables somewhat and today the tobacco plant is in need of a cure for an ailment of its own; namely, the bookworm. Thanks to a scientific discovery, relief is possible, entirely due to research by the Plant Protection Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture. Its new weapon, which kills 185,600th inch, it is reported, Czechoslovakia and the United States.

Splendid photos of this tiny organism, which it measures, Dr. C. S. Hanson of the former Hilda ("Dot") Beamish of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beamish and Mrs. G. R. Beamish, 366 John Street.



Dr. Hannay's discovery was made possible with the aid of a powerful magnetic electron lenses of a $300,00 electronic microscope, capable of magnifying 200,000 times, complete with a very complicated panel of controls. Also that light will like a global machine when it operation. When I was in a room of 85 wtnl A room in the Pesticide Research Institute on Western Road, London, Ont.; the only laboratory of its kind in Canada, and operated by the Federal Department of Agriculture. It was built in 1951 because agricultural officials realized the need of research to "fight to the finish against insect pests" and in concerned with insects as well as their potent effects on mankind. It has rooms with steel doors and double bars where insects are raised as carefully as a babe in an incubator. A small rabbit and mouse colony provide toxicity and virus work. There are indoor plant growth rooms where light, humidity and temperature are well controlled. A biochemistry lab, experiment material such as barley and potatoes.

Since the law requires that residue (remnants of poison left on the crop) must be less than 100 per cent below the safety level, the Pesticide Research Institute is to produce pesticides that do not endanger humans. This is highly specialized, expensive procedure. Millions of dollars are invested in the development and tests (which take at least two years) that are required before any firm may introduce a "new bugkiller" on the market. It includes the immediate effect of toxic chemicals is successful, the industry is satisfied. But a fully satisfactory answer as and how chemicals really act. This is the purpose of the Pesticide Research Institute. Why do pesticides break down in soil? Does another chemical and thus affect future crops? The lab is interested in substances found in nature, and is interested in the new development in insecticides, called the systemic type, whereby these are absorbed into the plant, a lethal nourishment for pests which feed on it.

Many discoveries are being made, and still more questions and answers are sought after a staff of 28 distinguished scientists from the world every chemists, biologists, plant physiologists and plant physiologists.

From this institue, worldwide honors have been gained through discoveries, such as the special bacteria "mite" made by Dr. C. E. Hannay. An honor, in this case, indeed, in which Belgium rejoices with special interest.

Going Places

ONE MAN'S LIFE WORK are these towers in the former backyard of Simon Rodia, an uneducated Italian immigrant to Los Angeles from tearing down what it considers a great example of "folk art".

Man Took 33 Years to Build Giant Architectural Doodle

By Shirely and Bob Sloane

Los Angeles — Simon Rodia's story could have taken place only in this city where the major industry is make believe and where everything and all that appeals to visitors, from Forest Lawn to the La Brea Tarpits, is unique. Yet any script writer who would have dared dream up Simon Rodia's story would have been fired.

Simon Rodia is an uneducated Italian immigrant. Today, at the age of 82, he lives in obscurity near Bakersfield, Calif., and still works at the only trades he has ever known, common laborer and sometime tilesetter. A bachelor with no relatives or close friends, he will one day die as he has lived, poor and alone.

One thing sets Simon Rodia apart from most other people; he has created by sheer genius.

In recent years he has become the cabin vortex of a storm. He has seen, though little noted, a furor stirred up about him that has shaken art circles throughout the world and incited the foundation of a municipal power in Los Angeles. A committee has been founded to preserve his life's work from soulless civic government. Distinguished architects, engineers, and artists whom he has never met or heard of have rallied to his unheeding side.

Why?

WHAT WAS IT?

In 1920 Simon Rodia bought a wedgeshaped lot in a modest section of Los Angeles called Watts and built himself a tiny home. Shortly afterwards neighbors noticed he was building something in his backyard but couldn't figure out what it was. When children began playing around the project Rodia put a strangelooking little inland fence around his property. Soon neighbors began to take his eccentric labors for granted and paid Rodia little mind. But what rose to 9 1-2 m Rodia's backyard, evenings and Sundays, day after day and year after year for 33 years, turned out to be the most remarkable architectural accomplishment of one man in history.

From materials gathered in junk yards and on beaches — steel bars, wire mesh, shells, broken tiles, dishes and bottles, millions of pieces in all — Rodia built a series of lacy ribbed towers, glittering with mosaic and color, soaring as high as 10 storeys into the air. And then in 1954 he decided he was not heard from for years.

While Rodia couldn't care less about his vast architectural doodle, architects and engineers have been staggered by its esthetic and scientific soundness. At the behest of interested citizens they proved its strength with stress tests to city fathers who wanted to tear it down as unsafe after Rodia left. Psychologists, too, have marveled at the constancy, energy and devotion of this lone man in his apparently meaningless project.

From inside the tiny pie-shaped property, this backyard Disneyland appears as a cathedral to Rodia's obscure faith. Trees was turned into a cloister-like concrete patio, the floor covered with scroll impressions made from cookie cutters and wrought iron.

There are fanciful fountains, birdbaths and barbecues. The base of one tower is a cheerful fireplace lined with stone benches. One wonders whom this lonely bachelor would have entertained here. The walls are tiles, impressions of wood tools and mosaics of crumbled glass.

Straight up, spiral transparent cement-covered ribs, braces and buttresses of the towers, interswining and curving with free-flowing grace. Crowning two of the towers are beer bottles, and a third boasts a headless Venus retrieved from some long ago rubbish heap.

What intrigues every one, of the course, is why on earth Rodia devoted his life to such a project — and then abandoned it.

Artists have called it his spiritual fulfillment, and psychiatrists have come up with their explanation that always brings a smirk to the faces of the pragmatic. Rodia himself has said he just wanted to do something big and offer a tribute to American.

Once we read of a man who built a remarkable machine with thousands of moving parts. But it served no purpose; it just worked. Perhaps the towers were Rodia's private protest against the nagging utilitarian philosophy of our times.

Maybe he built something just because he felt like building something.

95 Members Of Harry Clan Hold Re-union

There are 165 relatives and out of these 95 were present at this gathering. Rodia's is one living. Mr. William S. Harry, who is the last of a family of two boys and two girls.

There was much reminiscing at this get-together. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon. A wonderful time was had by all and there is some talk of having a Harry picnic every year.

Those present with their families were: Mr. and Mrs. William S. Harry, Mrs. Geraldine Harry of Oakville, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harry and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harry of Brockville, Mrs. Joyce Ostcerhaus of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harder of Bellrowter, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Harder of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Harder, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harder, Misses of Consecon, Mr. and Mrs. Mallard Harder, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Harder, Miss Alvin Pethder of Salem, Oregon, U.S.A., Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harder of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harry and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Lewis of Marmora, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Dod Sharpe of Brighton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nobes of Centenary, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pethrick of Campbellford and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McCory of Stirling.

ST. THOMAS SR. W.A.

St. Thomas' Senior W.A. closed its year's work with a picnic supper at Pinafore Park.

Mrs. Simpson, Dorcas convener visited the value of the articles donated, for the gifts to be sent to the Arctic and Hong Kong.

Mrs. H. Smith said that six of the members helped to pack the Arctic Christ Church last week. She also described the roomy tables loaded with articles for Hong Kong and the Arctic, donated by the Deanery of this Diocese. The gifts were sent to the nurses and members of the staffs in the areas.

Mrs. Watson read a letter from Mrs. Morrison thanking the W.A. for articles sent them for their mission.

Mrs. Fairbairn the president thanked the members for their co-operation and excellent work during the past year.

The Rev. Canon A. S. Mcdonell conducted the members upon their splendid work. He said that they always had a full day at the end of their year, especially those in less favored lands.

Mr. David Sinclair, the newly appointed Curate at St. Thomas', briefly spoke. It is a pleasure in coming to St. Thomas' Church, he said, and that his work here would prosper.

The members pictures were snapped by Mrs. Bryan on the lawn at the back of the Parish House.

Mrs. Fairbairn will not meet again till the fall.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. H. A. — He has recovered but refuses to come home.

Spencer A. — I'd get sick all over again there.

Mrs. H. A. — The nightmare Spencer describes has been pronounced cured of the mental disorder for which he was confined to hospital three months ago. But, rather than come home, he prefers to live in the hospital and hold on to a job in the laundry there. This is ridiculous for a man with a law degree.

He reports to the out-patient clinic twice a week, but he could do that from home. At the rate he's going he would put up the threads of his practice. But I keep portioning the discharge. He seems to dread returning. What can I do to help?

Spencer A. — I can't come right out with it and tell my mother that most of them back home need the same kind of help I had. My doctor in the clinic understands my problem and will go back to that houseful of neurotics. Besides my parents, my grandmother and her sister, my great-aunt. And they're always quarrelling.

I feel stronger than ever now, but not strong enough to face that lineup. In a few months I'll decide whether to go from here to a job or nothing. And whether I'm strong enough to live at home. It takes steel and I'm working on it.

The Council: A quarrelling household isn't the worst kind we might remind Spencer. If it's nearly impossible to live with least everything's in the open and he can see attitudes pretty clearly. And remember that the ultra-polite family with hates, fears and anger seething beneath mollen lava is a live volcano. Spencer's chief task now is to get back by starting with Mr. A.'s co-operation, at the family therapy.

More and more mental health experts are attempting to prove how the so-called schizophrenia and other behavioral disorders can be speeded up by having therapists visit the patient, rather than vice versa. Hospital confinement, these doctors find, may often be avoided, or at least greatly shortened, if the untra-family relationships are kept revved themselves to the utility expert.

This may be the forerunner of a better way of treating such patients. No longer will it be necessary for members of a family to be institutionalized and at the same time discuss the abnormal behavior of the member who is being benched to your budget.

St. George's Guild Enjoys Kingston Trip

A pleasant day was spent last Tuesday when the members of the St. George's Guild and their friends enjoyed the annual bus trip, this year to Kingston, via the scenic route over Prince Edward County.

There were two highlights of the trip one at the lunch-eon off to the Lake on the mountain. The day was clear and one could see for miles over the countryside and the Kingston Penitentiary, the Fort Aolphustown Memorial Park, and Amherst Island. The old cemetery which has been restored in memory of the landing of the U.E. Loyalist pioneers.

Sometime was spent at Kingston for dinner and a shopping spree, later driving on to Napanee for supper.

The drive home was nice watching the sun set in the west.

All are hoping to meet again for a bus trip next year.

QUESTION:

... have quite a lot of bacon drippings in hand which I carefully strained. Can Cindy tell me you will tell me how to use it in cookies? Care back I tried a nice recipe for brown sugar cookies if they were crisp as I recall but a bit soft. Some Irish eh? Hope you get what I mean but cannot find it so do not know the amount of drippings, etc. It calls for . . . Jessie S.

ANSWER:

As you know, Jessie, the brown sugar is an essential ingredient in the chilling for bacon drippings because it will turn the strong flavor of vanilla.

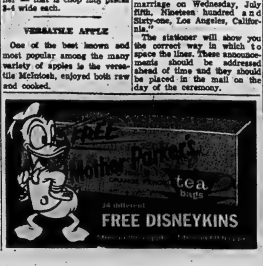
SUGAR COOKIES

1 cup sugar, 1 cup shortening, 1 egg, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. cream of tartar, 2 cups flour.

Cream butter and sugar, add remaining ingredients. Roll out on top of jam. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. Cool before cutting.

ANSWER:



CHICKEN SOO GUY:

("Barbecued Chicken, also spelled "Shee Guy")

One-half roasting chicken, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 1 tablespoon honey, 1-2 teaspoon hoisng new fun powder, 1 tablespoon sherry, 1 tablespoon salad oil, pinch pepper, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Mix all ingredients except chicken into sauce and rub thoroughly into chicken. Allow to soak for 10 minutes. Place chicken on medium hot grill or in medium hot oven. Roast or grill chicken 30 or 40 minutes. Baste frequently with sauce as it cooks to insure rich even browning. When cooked to succulent juicy tenderness take chicken and chop into fricassee pieces or slice-chop in Chinese manner — that is chop into piece 3-4 wide each.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — I am to be married next month, and I really have a big problem. Neither the man I am to marry, nor myself, have one single relative living. Should I try to send out an announcement of our marriage, or don't know who should make this announcement. We are having a very quiet wedding at the home of friends, and only a few others are being asked. Then we would like our other friends and acquaintances to know about it. Can you help me? — Miss H. P. W., Los Angles, Calif.

Answer — I will certainly try! It is perfectly proper that you announce your own marriage. It should be engraved (never printed) just as a wedding announcement would be made. The wording would be somewhat as follows: "Miss Elizabeth Dow and Mr. Allen James Brown, announce their marriage on Wednesday, July fifth. Nineteen hundred and Sixty-one, Los Angeles, California."

Would Double Employment In Manufacturing Firms Of 4 Atlantic Provinces

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Eighteen hundred Atlantic region businessmen have set themselves a forcible task—to double the number of people employed in manufacturing in the four easternmost provinces.

These men are members of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council whose researchers say only a large-scale expansion of secondary industry can create the jobs needed to cut the area's chronic unemployment down to the national level.

How can it be done? After six years of research, APEC has come up with a formula its leaders believe will work.

In an outline of its program APEC says:

"The profit climate here must be made sufficiently attractive to investors. . . To this end APEC recommends the adoption of fiscal policies having specific application to lagging regions as distinct from pinpointed distress areas."

WANTS LOW RENTS

As the No. 1 inducement the council wants governments agencies to build plants for rent to manufacturers at low rentals while the industries get on their feet. A Nova Scotia Crown corporation, Industrial Estates Limited, does this now. APEC wants the idea broadened and applied throughout the region.

But APEC says the people of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, even with the help of their provincial governments, cannot do the job alone. They will need outside help, which means aid from Ottawa.

APEC says the federal government should:

1. Improve tax incentives for regional industry.

2. Improve transportation facilities and lower freight rates between the Atlantic area and the central provinces.

3. Set up a capital projects coordination to plan public works that would stimulate development.

The council suggests the tax benefits should include relief from corporation taxes through (a) a deductable production incentive, 'th' a lower rate of tax, (c) accelerated depreciation, or some combination of these.

ROYALTY PLAN

For example, a firm might be allowed to write off up to 130 per cent of an asset with an initial cost of $20,000. Over the lifetime of the asset the firm could claim $26,000.

APEC wants federal agencies, institutions and services directed to labor surplus areas such as the Maritimes and Newfoundland and provincial legislatures are planned and supplies are purchased.

Other planks in the APEC platform are directed more specifically to the region's young people and their leaders: 1. Continued development of power resources. 2. Expansion of food processing. 3. Development of export markets. 4. More support of the tourist industry by business and industry.

Atlantic businessmen often quote from speeches by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and for. Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield about regional development and equality of opportunity for all Canadians.

In the words of APEC: "We say the time for action which they referred to has come. As the policies of the national council unite governments and the accumulation of industry and wealth in the central provinces, so future central government policies can make possible compensating industrial development in the four Atlantic provinces."

DEMOCRATIC POW-WOW — Indians in Northwestern Ontario are replacing the old tribal pow-wow with democratic elections and council meetings. The changes are encouraged through leadership training courses sponsored by federal and provincial governments. This is a band council meeting in session at Kawene, Ont. (CP Photo).

N. Ont. Indians Seek Ways To Improve Knowledge Of Democracy in Action

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KAWENE, Ont. (CP) — A democratic revolution is under way on Indian reserves in Northwestern Ontario.

The residents aren't on the warpath—they're merely seeking ways of improving their knowledge of democracy in action.

Among features of the revolution are adoption of secret ballotting and parliamentary procedure at band meetings, replacing the old tribal methods of selecting chiefs and councillors and the inefficient powwow.

The changes stride from a leadership training program for Indian councillors presently held at the Quetico Conference and Training Centre, a recreational retreat on the wooded shore of Eva Lake near this community 170 miles west of the Lakehead.

The course is sponsored jointly by the Quetico centre, the Indian affairs branch of the federal citizenship department, and the community programs branch of the Ontario department of education.

The Indian Act, revised in 1951, provides for the use of parliamentary procedure in band council meetings and for an elective system who choose chiefs and councillors. But in any when she arrived that she barely spoke.

By the second evening she danced during a social session with instructors and by the end of the course was taking an active part in all proceedings.

C. M. McIntosh, director of the centre, said it is likely that next year the chiefs' and councillors' course will be extended to provide optional training in advanced leadership for returning delegates.

These people have a fierce desire to improve and are free to modify the course to meet their needs," he said.

SALES PRICES DROPPED

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto druggist told Ontario's select committee on drug prices Thursday that the average price of prescriptions has dropped during the last year. W. Isaacson, owner of a chain of drug stores, said the average prescription cost fell from $3.76 last fall to $3.30 at present. Asked by Premier Manning Bowman, chairman of the committee, whether the druggist had profited as a result of the committee's hearings, Mr. Isaacson said he did not know, but it was possible.

Successful Living

Nothing to Do

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Last month I had a week's holidays with nothing to do. I expect to get two next year and it is beginning to worry me greatly. We have always entertained Well and gone places. But I won't have enough to do nor enough money to go anywhere. It will mean scrimping on a very small pension. I should work but I am not extra strong and my doctor says I should be looking forward to taking it easy. I don't. I worry away at the prospect and can't find any comfort.—JOHN JONES SR.

DEAR JOHN:—Make a career of being retired. One pair of pensioners practised retirement on a very small income and it became a real challenge. They even wrote a newspaper, story about it.

Now is the time to watch bargains and shop closely. To read the cookery columnists about hints on economical eating. To find out about breadstuffs and other foods which can be homemade and for a little fussing can be served as a treat to company. Here you substitute work and ingenuity for cold cash—and with better results.

One hint worth noting is that you can also substitute good conversation or a special event. Listen to this from the pen of one of the pensioners mentioned above:

"If the meal is too ordinary (when friends come), cook up a brisk conversation or a project that must be undertaken immediately, and complete carefully planned meals aren't missed!"

Taking it easy does not mean sitting with hands folded. Concentrate on finding a hobby that suits your talents. Gardening, painting, carpentry, stamp collecting—are any of these the one for you? There is one, you know. The right one will relax you more than doing nothing!

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Baptists Told State of Angola World Headache

WINDSOR (CP)—Baptist missionaries returned Thursday that the tiny African state of Angola is likely to be more of a world headache than the Congo has been.

Dr. Edgar J. Bailey of Westmount, Que., told the Ontario and Quebec Baptist Convention that many missionaries have left the country because of danger from Angolans hospitable for self-rule. Twenty - four missionaries—some with families—are working in the country.

"We should face the realities of Angola," Dr. Bailey said, "the violence is extreme at times."

Dr. Bailey said the foreign missions board should consider a temporary abandonment of the country.

Some 700 Baptist clergymen, laymen and their wives attended the four - day annual meeting which ended Thursday.

HELP IN QUEBEC

Rev. H. C. Wilkinson of Montreal said the convention must offer more financial support in Quebec, about 8 of the convention's 420 member churches are located in the strongly Roman Catholic province.

"We Baptists must reassess our position in Quebec and decide whether we want seriously to continue the work of evangelizing French-Canada.

"If we do then we must support it with more than as well as prayers."

This year two ministers in the Grande Ligne mission field are paid $300 less than the minimum for ministers in Ontario.

New Sleek White Canberra Carries More Passengers Than Any Other Ship Afloat

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP)—The new Canberra is a cruise ship designed to handle about 3,200 persons—passengers and crew — without appearing crowded.

She carries more passengers than any other ship afloat, with accommodation for 2,238, of whom 1,690 are tourist accommodations, and a crew of about 590.

But her airy public rooms, wide promenades and open deck areas give a feeling of spaciousness unusual even in ships of 45,000 tons. This is due in part to the placement of the engines and funnel aft. Also, most of the little room has been reserved for cargo except for the luggage cars of passengers—many of them emigrants headed for Australia or New Zealand.

Because much of her sailing will be under sunny skies, there are large open areas with four swimming pools — one for the crew—and a wading pool for kids, lounge chairs and deck games.

Garden Notes

Adding Beauty With Tulips

By FLORA M. HAVELIN

I have been sad, since mid-month reading the reports to report that every city, town and village is dull and drab.

The fine new hybrid tulips are being used more and more, and the display beds this year have seen the lily flowered, Kaufmania, Darwins, Cottages and Fosterian hybrids mixed in private gardens, around public buildings and in parks.

Our decidedly cool spring has delayed the tulips but the blooms but those that have opened have been holding their petals an unusually long time due to the low temperatures. With a brief glance, returning later that there was something really striking about them. Stop and examine them. Pace slowly around the plantings if you can. If they please you find out the source and the name.

KEEP NOTE BOOK

If you are like me, gifted with kind-sight, next fall you will be racking your brains trying to remember some particular form or color you would like to have in your garden. Keep a small note book. Ask questions and make notes. You will be glad you did.

In the fall of 1958 the girl guides and brownies planted thousands of yellow tulips. They beautified the grounds of their parks and community hall. Now a church hall, community hall or a school. These tulips will bloom there for many years and perhaps inspire others to add child plantings.

Have you noticed how well Darwins, Cottagebury, especially evergreens? A mass of orange tulips such as Holland Glory against the deep greens is a brilliant picture.

I noticed a few beds, a focal point in one garden made of torquois, green and coral tiles. It was quite unique in its setting, a large round bed of pink, white and yellow tulips made it spectacular. Later I was told this bed will be planted with coral tiles and pink petunias. Last year they used shrimp pink salvia.

A big stone jar, a low dry wall, an arch or a stone garden seat are used to add importance when plantings of tulips are grouped near.

Some gardeners have a real flair for choosing the right plant materially but I still each garden spot. If you do not have one or lack confidence, turn from something you have seen. Make notes on what pleases you and study the various varieties and file them away for future reference.

MOST ATTRACTIVE

Try some of the newer types such as dwarf Fosteriana Tulips for the rock garden, beside steps and for windy places. The species, or "wild tulips" as they are called, and their hybrids are usually shorter than the other types. Many have

Johnson Says Asia's Freedom Worth a Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Johnson said Friday the United States will not surrender the free people of Asia to communism "without putting up a fight."

He said it was his judgment that "freedom in Asia is worth fighting for" and that the American people, once they understand the tremendous issues "are ready to follow the path that insists freedom-loss just as for Asians, but for ourselves as well."

In an address prepared for a conference of United Press International editors, the vice-president declared:

"The front line of freedom lies today in nations like Viet Nam, Thailand and Pakistan. It is our obligation to ourselves and to our descendants to so conduct ourselves that those lines will not be breached or pushed back."

He said we must work with the people of Asia to improve their health, their housing, and their standard of living so they will have something to fight for."

Marmora

MARMORA — Mrs. J. L. Shannon attended the wedding of her nephew, William D. Wilkins, to Miss Irene Riley, in Solborg, recently.

Mr. John Moffatt is seriously ill in Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rice left this week for a six-week visit in England.

Mr. Charles Sopha is a patient in Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Leonard Coens, who suffered an eye injury, is able to be home from Civic Hospital. Leonard was playing soccer when a player's shoe flew off as he kicked and struck Coens in the eye. It was feared at the hospital that he might lose the sight in it.

Mrs. C. Jones spent the week-end with Mr. Murvis Jones and family, Alex.

Seven members of Marmora Branch of the Women's Institute attended the district annual meeting in Bancroft on Thursday. Marmora branch put on a skit composed by Mrs. James Black, "Too Many Seamstresses."

Residents of Marmora were shocked at the news of the sudden death of Ford Woodhouse. Ford received word of the death of his school education and all of high school here. Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Woodhouse and daughter, who were also residents of this district.

SUFFERS STRIPPING INJURY

Peter Empey, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Empey, narrowly escaped serious injury when he was struck by a car on a Marmora business street. He ran out from behind a parked car. He was rushed to a Peterborough hospital, but was released the next day.

Mrs. George Empey is able to be around and out again, somewhat improved in health.

Flowers on the altar at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday were in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kourt, and placed by their daughter, Mrs. Findlay Cunningham, of Peterborough.

The Right Reverend K. C. Evans, M.A., PhD., D.C.L., D.D., who was visiting the Anglican parish of Peterborough, called on his old friend, W. J. Cotton, at the Alexander Nursing Home. Mr. Cottrell was a duly licensed lay reader in the Diocese of Ontario, when stricken ill in October, 1950.

Mrs. T. Quinn is able to be home again after an illness, spending some time in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 10, 1961

With the huge new CC-106, largest cargo plane to be built in Canada, forming a backdrop, the RCAF colors are seen being marched onto parade square as part of yesterday's ceremonies marking the opening of the Trenton Air Station's new hangar. Two hundred airmen emerged from the CC-106 and, with an equal number from other transport aircraft, are seen formed up on parade square.

New No. 10 hangar at the RCAF Station Trenton, as seen from the air, which was officially opened yesterday by Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, Chief of the Air Staff. The new hangar, covering six acres, is the largest cantilever hangar in Canada and will house six of the new CC-106, the largest aircraft ever built in Canada. (RCAF Photo).

TRENTON — Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, Chief of the Air Staff, yesterday officially opened Hangar 10, a new cantilever hangar at RCAF Station Trenton and, in a colorful ceremony with the new hangar as a backdrop, officially introduced the RCAF's largest new transport aircraft, the Canadian - built four-engined turboprop CC-106 into service. The enormous aircraft, was christened "The Yukon" by Mrs. Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell said, "I christen this aircraft, 'The Yukon'. May God bless her, all like her, and all who fly in them." She then cut a ribbon at the nose of the aircraft, releasing a bottle of champagne, while the RCAF Central Band played a fanfare. On leaving the christening stand, Mrs. Campbell was presented with a bouquet of roses from LAW J. Coulson of Halifax.

Air Marshal Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, with their official party, arrived at RCAF Station Trenton at noon yesterday. They were greeted by Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, air officer commanding Air Transport Command and Mrs. Carpenter, Group Capt. D. J. Williams, commanding officer, RCAF Station, Trenton, and Mrs. Williams and other air force personnel. A 50-man guard of honor on the parade square was viewed by the party.

The special ceremonies commenced at 3.30 p.m. Various transport command aircraft were towed into the ceremonial area within view of the many spectators. Each aircraft was described over a public address system. More than 500 airmen were lined to form a "wing" in a close column facing the dais from which the air marshal was to conduct the official ceremonies.

The color party was led by Flying Officer R. M. Mayfield and the color attendant was LAC Earl Schleyer.

Parade Marshal was Sqdn. Ldr. G. S. Tinker, and the RCAF Central Band was led by Bandmaster Flying Officer Wilfred V. Boyce, a bandsman since 1940.

TAKES SALUTE

The ceremony of uncasing and marching on the colors was carried out with precision. Air Marshal Campbell took the salute.

Air Commodore Carpenter welcomed Air Marshal Campbell and Mrs. Campbell and the other guests to the ceremony.

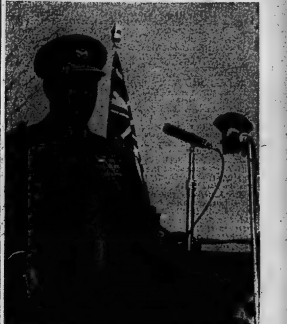
Air Marshal Campbell spoke to the assembly. He said that he had followed the progress of the "Yukon" and the new hangar very closely from drawing board to reality and that he was gratified to see this new equipment come into use. He said that although equipment was not an end in itself, it was a means to an end.

"It is one of the means which enable us to discharge our responsibilities to the government and to the people of Canada . . . responsibilities which stem directly from the objective of Canadian defence policy."

The Chief of the Air Staff commended the officers and airmen of Air Transport Command for their record of service. He explained many of the unique features of the new aircraft.

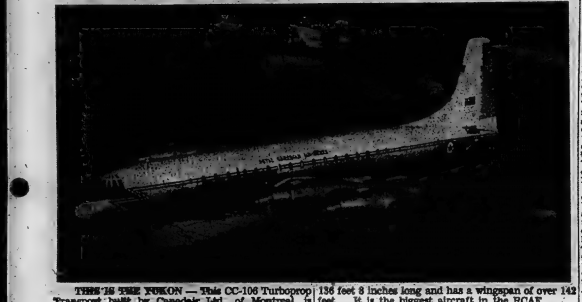
"I take a great deal of pleasure in declaring this hangar officially open and in presenting to you the Yukon," said the air marshal.

As a CC-106 was towed from the hangar to a position in front of the reviewing dais, the Air Marshal and Mrs. Campbell were escorted to the christening stand by Air Commodore Carpenter and Group Capt. Williams. Mrs. Campbell then christened the aircraft and the party returned to the dais from which they viewed the marching off of the color.



At the conclusion of the official ceremonies, the spectators inspected the Yukon and the new hangar.

The double cantilever hangar is the largest of its kind in Canada. It provides more floor area (six acres) than any other hangar in the country. Each side of the double hangar is completely independent of the other.



The hangar is equipped with a foam sprinkler system for fire protection. Sprinklers are triggered by a sudden increase in temperature.

The CC-106 turboprop transport, built by Canadair Ltd., of Montreal, is 136 feet, eight inches long and has a wingspan of more than 142 feet.

Early this year, Air Transport Command received delivery of its first CC-106. The tail of the giant aircraft is higher than a three-storey building and the cargo compartment has a floor area as large as that of a five-crowned house. The CC-106 can carry five times as much cargo as the North Star aircraft it replaces in the command, and can go 3½ times as far as the North Star without refueling. The aircraft carries fuel weighing more than a Second World War heavy bomber.

THIS IS THE YUKON — This CC-106 Turboprop Transport built by Canadair Ltd., of Montreal, is 136 feet 8 inches long and has a wingspan of over 142 feet. It is the biggest aircraft in the RCAF.

Following the christening ceremonies, Mrs. Hugh Campbell was presented with a bouquet of flowers and with a plaque of the 425 "Thunderbird" Squadron badge. Airwoman 1st Class M. R. Saugstad of Bella Coola Isle, B.C., is seen presenting the plaque as Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter looks on. Group Captain D. J. Williams, commanding officer RCAF Station Trenton, is in background.

Burglars Interrupt Court Case

NEW YORK (AP) — The magistrate was, understandably, annoyed when patrolman Henry Ferrell interrupted court proceedings by shouting "Hey, look!"

But Magistrate Kenneth Phipps and all others present looked through the courtroom window and saw three men climb a fire escape and enter a window in an apartment across the street.

Ferrell dashed from the courtroom. About 10 minutes later, he and two other patrolmen arrested three youths rifling the apartment.

When Ferrell returned to courtroom, where he was to testify in a case, he apologized to Phipps.

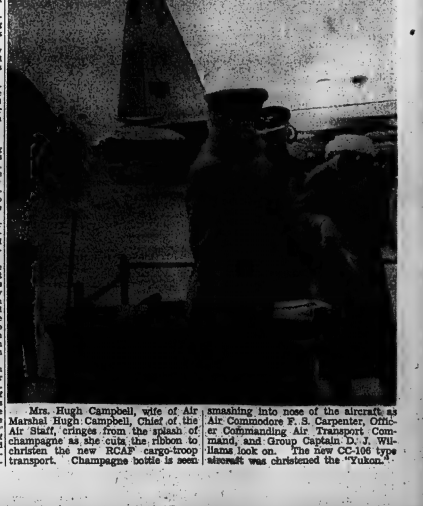
"That is perfectly all right" the magistrate replied.

SPORTS CAR

The Austin-Healey sports car got its name from designer Donald Healey and the producers, Austin.

Air Traffic Stalled by Soupy Fog

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS



A soupy fog which oozed across the southern Great Lakes Friday night, paralyzing shipping and bringing air traffic nearly to a standstill started to lift early this morning and was expected to clear by noon.

The fog eased in from the northwest and by 7 p.m. had reached the west end of Lake Ontario.

The United States coast guard at Port Huron said Friday night only one ship was moving in Lake Huron. Shipping was moving in only a small part of Lake Erie.

Several flights from Toronto's Malton airport were cancelled.

Mrs. Hugh Campbell, wife of Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, Chief of the Air Staff, cringes from the splash of champagne as she cuts the ribbon to christen the new RCAF cargo-troop transport. Champagne bottle is seen smashing into nose of the aircraft as Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, Officer Commanding Air Transport Command, and Group Captain D. J. Williams look on. The new CC-106 type aircraft was christened the "Yukon."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

THE DIVERSITY PATTERN

Our American bittern is seldom mentioned for the simple reason that it is so seldom seen. True enough, though often heard booming in the marshes, it is especially in spring and early summer; however, the sound of this strange and astounding evening is come from sources other than Bluebird.

The bittern's haunts are quiet marshes where boggy bays with cattails abound. Here the big, reticulate brown streaked bird stands motionless for long periods and hesitatingly lowers a bill, that has been identified by its color, slow beat of its broad wings, the horizontally held bill, gliding in and out of cover unheard, not behind. But exactly where did it land? We try to follow the sound, but after a long search he shows with binoculars that the bittern is invisible. Only sometimes otherwise unbeknown anybody may she bittern's love song, could never, guess that the author was a great bird. The bird's popular names "thunder-pumper" and "stake-driver", quite appropriate, but the description is "pump-a-lunk." The sound borders, I think, on the heartbreaking distance and location difficult to estimate a great proximity, so close is the sound is so song.

The bittern's method is he who has been able to see how it all works. They loiter in Twenties, and raises his head and throws it back, then forward with open beak, at the same time opening and shutting the bill with a click. The sound is produced by a sound which resembles a hiccough. The bittern is breeding air until is lower neck fairly bulges.

BIRDS LIKE FUNSY

Then up comes the air in groups of three, well-screened by cattails. Suddenly he may be heard half a mile away, and sometimes when even more distant. To some people the sound exactly like someone working an old-fashioned hand pump. It ceases to lift the water beyond the bottom point. To others it is exactly the sound of someone mallet to drive a stake into ooze. Sometimes the sound is like a log on the wood, then the noise of the stake entering the mushy mud.

It is really hard to believe that the bittern and a little crane found from the often invisible bittern.

Summer Heat Brings Vapor Lock Trouble

By EUGENE S. BELMOR

Along about this time of year, vapor lock rears its ugly head in motorists' lives. It's not a big bugaboo as it once was. Vented carburetors, thicker gaskets to cut heat transmission to the carburetor, better pump and fuel line insulation and straight blends which don't vaporize so readily have helped ease the problem somewhat.

Take a sizzling hot day, bottle up a mass of cars in traffic and vapor lock starts to work. The symptoms are familiar. The engine coughs, sputters and finally, the engine won't restart.

Here's how it happens. Extreme heat causes fuel to vaporize much as it changes water into steam. The resultant vapor bubbles which form block the fuel flow off and on. If you can't restart until fuel line, pump or carburetor has cooled off, although you can speed things along with the help of a cold wet rag.

T. W. writes: "The strangest thing happens in my car. As soon as the automatic choke is put in motion, my car will actually begin to run backward. Why does this happen?"

(A) The control linkage adjustment needs correction. Your mechanic or dealer can take care of this without difficulty.

From G, Y, — "When driving to the drive-in theatre, my car ride is really rough for the first few miles. After the summer it's smooth and easy. Is this because shock absorbers or fluid tends to congeal when cold?"

(A) Everything does — shocks, springs, tires, etc., become rigid when frigid — thus the car's hard and rough until parts warm up.

H. D. Asks: "My car keeps losing a small amount of brake fluid. I can't discover anything wrong with the lines or wheel cylinders. Any suggestions?"

(A) One—as a brake expert might say—is a damaged cup-tight switch diaphragm could be at fault, but as you mention the trouble lies, leakage might quickly increase until suddenly — [illegible]

J. L. writes: "Will removing the thermostat help the engine to run cooler?"

(A) Only for a short time. In other words, a correctly operating thermostat helps promote engine heat only during the first few minutes of operation. Heat control valve is important. Removing it for summer is a mistake, and unfortunately, a common one.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mrs. DeShane is home from Belleville hospital where she underwent a major surgery there.

Mrs. Ross, the Drive-In Theatre is home from Kingston General Hospital after several weeks there, following major surgery. Both are wished a speedy recovery.

"A Jackson city policeman asked me to move to the white circle [a line in front of the police] are on duty at the bus depot. I was arrested and taken to jail."

Audain said he was in a cell with 40 other prisoners when he said he was not a member of the "Freedom Riders."

"I won't travel with them because I do not consider myself to be a professional agitator. There are about 70 to 80 riders in jail in Mississippi, including another Canadian university student."

Jack Travis, Mississippi prosecuting attorney, in a television interview identified the student as James McDonald, 22, of Huntington, N.Y., who is enrolled at the University of Toronto.

Travis, commenting on Audain's arrest, said, "Your father had a friend, one of the biggest bankers in the state, trying to talk to him. He assume he wants to sit out the 60 days."

Audian described the "Freedom Riders" as a "great bunch of people.

"I admire their courage, especially that of the girls. At night, in our cells, we sing. We sing hymns and the "Freedom Riders'" song."

Tweed District

Pickerel Run, 1961

By R. E. WHITFIELD, D.I.F.

Since the year 1954 when the last hatchery stockings of pickerel were made on a district wide basis in the Tweed District, considerable assessment work has been done on this species in local lakes.

Most of the major waters containing pickerel in the district have now been surveyed and pickerel populations of these waters have been examined.

All fishers examined to date with the exception of one, have shown evidence of natural reproduction occurring.

The degree of quality of naturally produced pickerel in lakes varies somewhat from one lake to another. This variance cannot wholly be contributed to the inability of this species to reproduce itself under natural conditions, but is also contributable to the natural variable carrying capacity of the lakes themselves. Some lakes lend themselves to the support of pickerel while others do not.

Introductions have been made in a large number of district lakes over a 45-year period that previously did not contain native pickerel. These waters when first introductions have been made, very considerably altered the carrying capacities and fish production. Because of the variance in carrying capacity of the lakes and that the density of pickerel in these waters will vary accordingly, and they do.

A test of natural reproduction was conducted earlier this year after the pickerel had completed spawning as a ripids in one of the lakes in the Mississippi Chain.

Millions of eggs were deposited by pickerel at this rapids and could be clearly seen on the bottom.

There was such a preponderance of eggs on the bottom that they could be scooped up with an ordinary long handled shovel.

A considerable quantity (1 quart) of these eggs were collected and moved to the hatching battery at the White Lake Hatchery and Stanford Lake.

The eggs when collected appeared to be approximately 40% fertile. After the unusual handling and during incubation there was a loss in these eggs amounting to approximately 15% with the remaining 25% reaching the hatching stage.

Hess Lakes

Elsewhere in the Tweed district where many pickerel runs were observed, reports are that the runs of adult fish were large. The low water prevailed this year, at spawning time, was considered extremely good for natural reproduction, as pickerel were not able to reach some of the upper, usually dry areas of rivers to deposit their eggs which usually go for hatch quickly when crest waters recede.

It has been known for many years that pickerel populations in lakes will separate at the time of spawning with part of the population entering rivers while the remainder will spawn on shoals and along shorelines over rocky areas in the open lakes. Because pickerel will spawn both at rapids and at shoal shorelines almost eliminates the possibility of population curtailment because of inadequate places to spawn. Uncontrollable factors such as temperature of water, rapid drop in water elevations at the time of egg incubation (10 to 20 days) poor aeration, etc., can all play a part in elimination of portion or even all of

Only examination of year class strengths (pickerel produced in any given year) is strongly indicative that these factors are constantly at work, regardless of the variance in the strength of year classes of pickerel that are present in lakes. By aging the many pickerel taken in our nets during pickerel population surveys we have found outstanding numbers of pickerel that are all- the same age while other age groups are either mediocre or weak, but as a rule never consistently the same.

FISH RELUCTANT

The most outstanding problem at present in the management of the pickerel fishery is the reluctance of pickerel to accommodate the angler by biting at the desired time when anglers prefer to spend their leisure hours on our lakes (July and August.)

Our surveys have shown that pickerel populations exist in healthy numbers in these lakes, and are capable of withstanding considerable angler harvest of pickerel annually without causing any detrimental effect to the fishery itself.

Lakes with exceptionally high concentrations of pickerel—are no exception, as often these species remain to be more readily caught from lakes with high concentrations than those which are only carrying mediocre populations.

Anglers may be required to devise new methods of angling and exert greater effort in their fishing, before 4-5 pound returns are to be increased.

Negro Stars Quit Meet In Protest

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Most Negro track stars entered in the 1961 Meet of Champions withdrew Friday night from the contest shortly before the finals started. They withdrew in protest to what they called segregated seating of spectators.

John Thomas, world record-holder in the high jump, and Hayes Jones, world record-holder in the broad jump, said they would not compete as long as Negro pickets were outside the stadium protesting segregated seating.

About 30 demonstrators, carrying signs such as "Segregation is a sin," paraded in front of the main entrances. However, meet director Johnny Morris said the seating in the stadium was not segregated.

Later, Adolph Plummer, University of New Mexico star, told the Albuquerque, N.M., Journal by long-distance telephone that threatened violence prompted him to join the other Negro athletes in pulling out of the meet.

Plummer said they had been suggestive calls warning Negro athletes not to cross picket lines and insulting remarks in Houston.

Plummer said the negroes decided to withdraw, not only for their protection but because the demonstrations had political stakes.

"The same deals here (to Houston) to compete and not take part in politics," Plummer said.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A goal by defenceman John Ford with less than two minutes remaining gave Brampton Hambers a 7-6 win over St. Catharines Athletics in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A game Friday night.

The victory gave Brampton undisputed possession of first place in the five s team standings with five victories in seven games.

Brampton's Bob Dobbie was the only player to score two goals. Single Brampton goals went to Jack Madgett, Bert Russell, Dave Foster, Bert Neyer and Ford.

Doug Smith, Ted Howes, Gary Ouzo, Jim Howes, Jake Bamberry and Gary Bind scored for St. Catharines.

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Main Cup champion Port Credit Sailors beat Niagara Falls Tranport 16-4 Friday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A Series game. Port Credit scored 10 goals in the second period.

TRIUMPHANT LEAP — Avelino Gomez, Canada's top jockey with a record 270 victories last year, leaps high from his mount, Songbird, after winning at Toronto's Old Woodbine track. It was Gomez a previous victory aboard the 33-year-old Cuban—a reaction similar to that reserved for greats in other sports such as baseball's Ted Williams and hockey's Maurice Richard. (CP Photo).

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Avelino Gomez is the best jockey in Canadian horse racing and just about everybody's bucket to bet on Ontario tracks would like to get across to the little guy ma mbat they can't stand him. This behavior is nothing new in sport.

Hockey fans outside of Montreal spent years cursing Maurice Richard. Ted Williams and Willie Mays have taken their share of abuse and Georges Vezina quick to point this out, says "I guess yeh gotta be good to be booed."

He isn't a cocky or smart-aleck type of fellow. He has been razzed so steadily and so long just about everybody's built the business and he has become philosophical about it. Now he encourages fans and returns the compliment by laughing and waving at them.

He knows his capabilities and so do the bettors who continually parade to the mutuels to back his mounts. It has reached the point where they expect him to win every race.

ODDS ARE SHORT

Before they make a beeline to cash in their tickets they gather around the winner's enclosure to boo and holler at the colorful little Havana-born Gomez. The two-dollar bettor who pounded the track out of frustiful of money by backing Avelino Gomez because the return is a trifle.

The payoff almost always is in change—dimes and nickels, quarters and half-dollars.

Gomez knows and Don's a bum," the 32-year-old Gomez said in an interview in the jock's room at Old Woodbine Toronto two other day. "I win and I'm still a bum because people bet their money and lose it. I'm a bum because I'm faithful of money by backing horses I've ridden could read the bettors and be scared to death at the prices.

"I used to get a little mad when people booed me, but now I love 'em. They're the guys who pay the freight and all I want to boo they can go right ahead. It doesn't bother me. Fans is people every sport rats the good player."

KNOWS HE'S GOOD

Gomez has begun his "business" career as a page-boy in the big gambling casino at Havana, realizes he's good without being jaunty about it. He can pick his own mounts and mention that he is Canada's best reinsman, and if any proof is needed the figures are there to back him up.

"I don't like silly chances and I don't think I do anything different than any other jock. I like my job a lot—I always do my best."

The black-haired, thick-armed Gomez has been Canada's champion jockey every season in which he has ridden in the country. Last year he set a Canadian record with 270 wins.

He is only a few months during the rain-drenched spring meeting at Fort Erie this year and lagged far behind Hugo Dittisch of Calgary when the races moved to Toronto. Right now, he's only a couple behind Dittisch and, barring accidents, it's a cinch he'll finish the 196-day Ontario racing season next Nov. 23 as the country's No. 1 jockey for the sixth time.

HAS FEW MORE YEARS

Gomez is married, has a 10-month-old son, owns a home in Toronto and hope to retire in four or five years and train a small stable of his own.

"I started riding in 1944 and I think that 20 years in the game is enough." He figures he doesn't owe racing anything.

He still remembers his days in the gambling casino. He got out because the tips were small and he had more money working at Oriental Park in Havana were making big money.

"I quit my job and did everything around a stable but ride for three years and I didn't get a nickel for it. All that time I lived off my family and friends. I learned the hard way."

Geo. Chuvalo To Meet Besmanoff

TORONTO (CP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight champion, will meet Willie Besmanoff of Germany in a 10-rounder here June 27, matchmaker Jack Allen announced Friday night.

Besmanoff, 25, fighting out of New York, was guaranteed $5,000 or 25 per cent of the gate plus transportation.

Allen signed the two last summer but the bout was called off when Besmanoff sprained an ankle.

Chuvalo, rated fifth among world challengers, won a 10-round decision over Alex Miteff of Argentina in his last fight.

SEEK BROADENING

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia will try to broaden the definition of amateur when the International Olympic Committee meets in Athens June 16-26. The Soviet delegation will suggest that amateur status be granted all competitors who do not use their sport as a means of earning a living. The present definition is "one who participates in sport solely for pleasure . . . and no material gain of any kind."

Tribe Twists Tiger Tail, Up Margin

Yanks Stay Within Reach

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians have gained a 1½ - game edge in their battle of one - run decisions with Detroit Tigers for the American League lead.

They knocked off the second-place Tigers 5-4 on a ninth-inning home run by Bubba Phillips Friday night for a 2-1 lead in their four - game series. They end the series today.

It was the ninth time this season the Tribe won a game in the last inning, top total in the league for final flings.

Barry Latman collected his with a 4 2-3 innings on one-hit relief — giving Tribe relievers a record of four victories and five saves. Cleveland has won 11 of 'Lil' last 12 games.

The third - place New York Yankees stayed within three games of Cleveland by beating Kansas City Athletics 4-3. Washington Senators swept a doubleheader from Chicago White Sox, winning 1-0, in 10 innings and 10-9.

LOST THE NIGHTCAP

Boston Red Sox defeated Los Angeles Angels 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader but the Angels took the nightcap 5-3 with Ryen Duren striking out seven men in a row for a league record. The Minnesota-Baltimore game was rained out.

Phillips' winning shot came on a 3-2 pitch by Paul Foytack (3-4), the loser in relief. Willie Kirkland also honored for the Indians, delivering a three-run belt as they scored four runs in the third inning off starter Phil Regan. Latman had just one lapse, giving up a tying double by Rocky Colavito after relieving Bobby Locke in a two-run fifth inning.

The Indians put it away with the help of a rookie's running error. The game ended with an odd doubleplay when catcher Johnny Romano grabbed a foul pop by Steve Boros, then nailed pinch - runner George Thomas as he tried to go from first to second after the catch.

Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, each crashing home runs, drove in six runs between them for the Yankees. Maris' 18th homer of the year, tops in the majors, came with aman on base and broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning off reliever Ray Herbert (3-5). Luis Arroyo (2-2) won in relief.

A SINGLE DID IT

The Senators beat the White Sox on a run - scoring single by Harry Bright in the opener as Dick Donovan blanked his former mates on six hits for his second victory of the season. Reliever Warren Hacker (1-1) was the loser.

In the nightcap, Washington came up with four runs in the ninth inning, beating Frank Baumann (4-3) after Chicago had unearned run on Danny Oconnell's pinch single. Dale Long and Willie Tasby hit consecutive home runs in the rally, which gave reliever Johnny Klippstein his first victory of the year.

Yastrzemski, making his first start, began his record string by fanning Frank Malzone for the final out in the first inning of the second game against Boston. He then added Pete Runnels, Jim Pagliaroni, Don Buddin, Lee Thomas, Mike Fornieles, Chuck Schilling and Gary Geiger, falling one short of the major league record set by Max Surkong of Milwaukee Braves in 1953.

The Red Sox beat Art Fowler (0-2) in the opener on a pair of two - run singles by Schilling and Vic Wertz in the fifth inning. Billy Muffett (2-5) was the winner.

DODGERS BUY OUTFIELDER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers Friday bought the contract of outfielder Gordon Winchorn from their Omaha farm club. Winchorn, 27, is batting .292 and his runs batted in total 49. He played with the Dodgers briefly in 1958.

Bucs Win $200,000 Bonus Baby

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League have shortened their search for a left-handed Long Beach, Calif., shortstop to 3a, leaving Bucs will be more than $200,000, a record.

The newspaper says the signing will be announced next week after Bob Bailey, 18, graduates high school.

So fierce was the competitive bidding between the three major league baseball clubs that Pirates' President John W. Galbreath flew into Long Beach to direct the final round, it added.

The newspaper identified one of the two other clubs as Milwaukee Braves, parent club of Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Archie Moore, the ageless clown prince of the ring, who is 47, going on 67, defends his light-heavyweight title in Madison Square Garden tonight against the Italian challenger, Giulio Rinaldi.

The aging patriarch of punch lost a decision to the youthful challenger in Rome earlier in the year, with the lard bellies over the top of his trunks and the scales telling him he weighed 194 pounds.

This amazing man peeled off the poundage and the other day was pronounced by a pair of doctors "a young man physically and psychologically. He looks better today than ever before."

How much longer can Archie do it? He lords on the lard in off-seasons with alarming swiftness. He takes it off almost as quickly, although the last two times out the time has lengthened.

The self-styled "Old Mongoose" laughed off his defeat at the hands of the young Rinaldi, who became an overnight Italian sensation. However, he walked away with $10,000 American and a contract for a return bout in the United States. Which is just what the crafty old fighter was gunning for.

This could be Archie's swan song. We doubt it. Reports from the Italian's training camp say the youthful challenger has been "sensational" in workouts.

Yet here is Ole Arch, posted down to the official weight, pronounced beautifully fit by a brace of doctors.

A title bout for the light-heavyweight was an elusive will-o'-the-wisp for the patient Moore in his earlier years. Then Joey Maxim, the titleholder, fought Sugar Ray Robinson in fantastic heat at Yankee Stadium and retained his crown over the Harlem Dandy.

Finally the long-feared, long-denied Moore got close to Maxim and the crown and on December 2, 1953, in the city of his boyhood, St. Louis, Moore trounced Uncle Joey to take the title.

But Archie didn't earn a son that night. In fact, he and manager Charley Johnston, after paying the Maxim guarantee, had to borrow from the International Boxing Club to get out of town. They were also $1,500 out of pocket for training expenses.

Moore's story is a saga of persistence. He had started tramping boxing's highways and byways in 1936 as a middleweight. By 1939 his quality was such that the Bolly Krolyers, Al Hosiaky and Fred Apostolis were giving him a wide berth. In 1940 he was a hair's breath away from a title fight with Ken Overlin. Overlin was ready to sign but Moore came down with a perforated ulcer. It put him on the shelf for two years.

Archie came back as a light heavyweight and promptly became the scourge of the Pacific coast which again made him unpopular with the glamor boys he wanted to fight.

He came east to join with Jimmy Johnston and it looked like the barn where glamorous Jimmy could charm or terrify promoters. One morning came the numbing news—Jimmy had died. Charley Johnston, Jimmy's brother, said he would see it through.

The wily Jack Kearns was Maxim's manager and by early fall, 1945, Joey was in hot water with commissions everywhere. He resigned as a contract to fight Freddie Mills in London and American bigwigs said Maxim could do one of two things. Go to England or give Moore the title shot.

Maxim told Moore had two title fights, one in Ogden, Utah in 1953, and the other at Miami in early 1954. In 1953 Kearns' fine hand was behind the building up of Carl Bobo Olson for Archie's Operation Hitler on the then middleweight champion Ages.

Trying to step a notch higher on the title ladder, Archie failed with honor in the fall of 1952 when he'd floored Rocky Marciano, but finished on the deck himself.

When Marciano retired as heavyweight champion, Moore was aiming for the title again in 1956. Patterson knocked him out of that ambition but Ole Arch kept marching right along as champion of his own division. Today he is completing his ninth year (in most places) as champion with less challengers in sight than when he'd first reached the top.

He may lose it tonight. As was noted before, we doubt it.

Ole Arch Favored Over Italian

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—A sleek, if aging, Archie Moore tonight defends his place of the light heavyweight title against young, husky Giulio Rinaldi of Italy.

If the graying, 46-year - old Moore hasn't lost too much in the battle of the scales and with father time, he figures to knock out the Italian from Assisi within five rounds of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Moore is favored at odds ranging from 9 to 5 to 2 to 1.

This will be Moore's ninth defence of the title he won 8½ years ago and his first since he flattened crude but powerful Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., at Montreal in month ago.

He weighed 174½ pounds for that return fight. Since then the National Boxing Association has stripped him of his title. He is recognized by New York, Massachusetts and Europe.

Moore, holder of the world record of 130 knockouts, has flattened his last challengers in title fights. Only Joey Maxim has gone the distance with him in title bouts at the 175-pound division limit.

WEIGHT WATCHER

The strong - armed, master boxer and puncher wrested the crown from Maxim at St. Louis Dec. 17, 1953 on a 10-sided decision and has outpointed Maxim in two title defences.

Rinaldi, 26, solidly built and deep-chested, comes to the big chance by outpointing Moore in a non-title bout in Rome, also last Oct. 29. Moore was a plump 180½ to Rinaldi's 181¾.

The black-haired Italian, who was only one year old when Archie started fighting professionally 25 years ago, has a 25-5 record with eight knockouts. In workouts at Stillman's gym, Rinaldi's heavyweight champion has displayed little power and appears wide-open.

If he presses Archie — as he must to win — and leaves an opening, it could be disastrous. That is, if Archie's reflexes aren't shot.

FINDS FLAW

"He can punch hard when he's going back," said Giulio, "I noticed that in my fight with him and I say what Rocky Marciano and Floyd Patterson did to him when I watched the films. They pressed him and forced knocked him out. I think I can too."

"All I hope is that he comes after me like he says he will," said Moore. "It could be interesting and an early ending."

Moore's record in 213 fights is 181-25-6. He has been stopped only twice, Rinaldi, who has stopped once—on cuts—and supposedly should have been floored.

With the light six-ounce gloves in use, Rinaldi's no-fall record will be put to the test. As customary for title fights in New York, the championship over a one round rule will be waived along with the mandatory eight-count rule. Scoring will be by the rounds system.

Moore has been guaranteed $100,000 plus $12,000 expenses. Rinaldi will collect $25,000 plus expenses.

CHOSEN BIG FAVORITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowl of Flowers is expected to start as the even - money favorite in the $75,000 - added Mother Goose Stakes at Belmont Park today. The 1¼ - mile race is the second of the New York triple crown series for three - year-old fillies. Nine are entered. If Bowl of Flowers is victorious in $86,125, the winner collecting $57,285.25.

Drysdale Beats Phillies

Dodgers Hurdle Redlegs For Lead

By RED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Don Drysdale, picking on his favorite patsies, is a winner again for the first time in a month and Los Angeles Dodgers are on top once more in their leap - frog battle with Cincinnati Redlegs for the National League lead.

Drysdale, the Dodgers' side-arming right hander, knocked over the last - place Philadelphia Phillies with a four-hitter for a 5-0 victory Friday night. It was his fourth victory of the season and the third over Philadelphia.

The win gave the Dodgers a half - game lead over Cincinnati after St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Reds, 9-4. The Dodgers and Reds have swapped first place five time in the last seven days.

The third - place San Francisco Giants twice came from behind and beat Pittsburgh Pirates 9-6. Chicago Cubs defeated Milwaukee Braves 11-10.

RUN BREAKS TIE

Wally Moon's 15th home run of the season broke a 1-1 tie for the Dodgers in the fourth inning against the righthander Frank Sullivan (5-7). Don Demeter, a former Dodger, had two of the Phils' hits, driving in their run with a fourth - inning double. Drysdale (4-3) walked three men and struck out seven for his first complete game since beating the Phils 5-2 in a five - inning game May 9.

The Cards, winning four straight games for the first time this year and climbing back to .500 with 13 victories in their last 30 games, built a 5-3 lead against the Reds with a three - run third inning. Ken Boyer's single drove in two runs and Stan Musial brought in the winner against lefty Jim O'Toole (7-5) while grounding out. Bob Gibson (6-6) was the winner.

San Francisco overhauled the Pirates for good on a three-run homer by Jim Ray Hart that capped a six - run seventh inning. Bailey's shot came just after Bobby Shantz had relieved as Pittsburgh's third pitcher, but tagged the loss on Elroy Face (3-3).

WINS FIRST GAME

Ed Bouchee, who has first game in the majors, singled and drove in four of the Giants' runs and Orlando Cepeda, the league's home run leader, knocked in three, one with his 16th homer of the campaign.

The Cubs blew 6-0 and 8-4 leads as the Braves unloaded four home runs, then came from behind with two runs in the ninth inning and beat Warren Spahn for the first time in nine decisions since June 10, 1958. A slip by Moe Thacker brought in the clincher and handed Warren Spahn (6-6) his second loss in two days, this one in relief.

The Braves rallied on pitcher Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., for relief in the seventh inning. He was treated roughly, giving up four hits, two bases on balls and three earned runs in 1 1-3 innings. He recorded one strikeout.

Joe Torre, Joe Adcock, Ed Mathews and Lee Maye homered for the Braves, with Maye a grand - slammer in the ninth inning that gave Milwaukee a 9-8 lead. Bob Anderson (3-4) won in relief.

U.S. Coach Picks Que. Quarterback

MONTREAL (CP) — A hard-nosed young quarterback from Montreal's tough east-end has won a football scholarship at the University of Arizona in Tucson.

Larry Fairbolm, 19, is the product of what the Montreal Alouettes hope will be a legion of talented young Quebec football players to go south of the border to sharpen their athletic skills and get a college education in the bargain.

The six-foot quarterback, who directed Emmanuel Bombers to the 1960 Canadian junior football championship, was spotted at the Big Four Football Union team's spring camp for promising young players by Arizona coach Pat Ramsey.

Steppe Sons Took It All

Russ Win Elimination

They may not rate peanuts in a popularity contest, but the Russian weightlifting trio Stepanian steppes the Kalmikoff Konnets tugs, no back steps from anything in a wrestling ring.

They've been coming here so often they're getting mail in Belleville and that's not all.

Last night they stepped on a gang-show of the survival of the fittest and went home top-dogs after a three-bout tag team card that left the western giants hanging on the ropes.

The elimination series had two see-saw bouts as wrestler-supers with the winners meeting for the mythical championship. Uncle Joe Golosh was the one-man judge and jury.

The low-slung stocky-built Russians took on Les Lyman and Man Mountain Campbell for the soup course and they sent them to the showers while they waited for the real beef winners of the second affair.

Farmer Boy Fowsend and Tom "Thumper" Jones enjoyed this pre-final gizmick against Sailor Jim Clark and the "Unmasked Marvel".

If you put the Farmer Boy atop the Emperor's shoulders you would have yourself 13 feet of meat and muscle and they used everything they had to dock the Sailor and tie up Lyman alongside.

In fairness to the Farmer Boy and the Emperor it should be said they went into the ring against the Beards with little or no rest while the K boys had sat the second bout out and appeared fresh as Ukrainian daisies.

And so it came to pass that after several minutes of grueling going the Steppe sons were handed the mythical lateral wreath of victory and the "international" championship of Hastings and Prince Edward County, Clarke's Island and the Trent river.

Jersey Wins Over Chiefs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

International League secretary Harry Simmons says the only thing wrong with baseball's oldest minor league is the weather.

Simmons, commenting recently on the league's franchise shuffling, said "we're close to holding our own now on just about every front. But that cold wet stuff has been murdering us."

Simmons produced statistics showing that attendance was running ahead of last year's edition in the bargain.

The six-foot quarterback, who beating Syracuse Chiefs 3-0, Toronto at Columbus, Buffalo at Richmond and Rochester at Charleston were rained out.

The Jerseys went ahead to stay with two runs in the first inning on a walk to Ulvis Alvarez and successive doubles by Jim Pendleton and Don Money Jon. They added another run in the fourth off Ralph Lumenti on a double by Borrego Alvarez and Cookie Rojas' single.

Lumenti headed the bases with none out in the seventh. Then the rain came.

Not Unanimous

Race Body Bans Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Without naming a controversial drug that has been the centre of discussion most of the week, the National Association of State Racing Commissioners Friday banned pre - race medication that could affect the speed of horses.

The decision was not unanimous and some delegates complained the resolution was confusing.

R. Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the Ontario Racing Commission, urged that it be reworded to include a medicinal known as butazolidin on which conditioning experts presented during the week - long session.

"Bring this out in the open," said Bigelow.

Ontario and some American states already prohibit use of the drug. The association comprises supervisors of thoroughbred racing in North and Central America.

AMERICAN DISAGREES

Goshen claimed butazolidin helps increase the speed of a horse. He referred to a report on the drug's effect on thoroughbreds and argued:

"The only thing it proved was that it took 80 grams to kill a horse."

The resolution states the ban does not apply to horses withdrawn from racing while undergoing treatment and spells out the rules on medication.

"All medications of any type may be administered to horses in training during a race meeting only by a licensed veterinarian or his assistant, it under their personal order," it states.

MUST REPORT

The veterinarian or trainer shall hand the racing stewards a signed report giving "the name of the horse, date, time and circumstances of administration, identification of each medication, its quantity and name of the person administering the medication."

If stewards find any medication affected the speed of a horse in a race, it says, they shall withhold any earned proper under any of the rules of racing.

It passed 13 to 4. Opposing it were delegates from Florida, Maryland, New Hampshire an Rhode Island.

Noted trainer Hirsch Jacobs told the meeting races od doped horses winning races are few and far between. The axiom had had given "the public confidence in the sport because they feel that all horses in a race are on an equal basis."

Jacobs called for tighter security measures at many tracks around the stabling and testing of horses and barns under the direct control of the trainer. He cited New York as "too lax, too careless."

Charity Horse Show

By ANNE M. McDONALD

For many years spring and early summer horse shows have been popular in Western Ontario and many exhibitors from the Quinte area, travelled west to take part in these shows. Such shows usually give their profits to a charity or hospital, exhibitors appearing without remuneration and only for the love and keen interest in this sport.

Early in 1960 a group of exhibitors from the Quinte district met and decided to support and promote Belleville's first ever summer horse show. Under the chairmanship of Gerald Vance the day's outcome was most encouraging both for the exhibitors and the committee.

At the annual meeting of the Quinte district horse show exhibitors it was decided to encourage spring and early summer horse shows in this district, Kingston having had one successful show and interested to keep up the interest. Using Belleville as a hub, exhibitors in Picton and Napanee were approached and the results are that during 1961 eight shows are being held in all four centres.

The Belleville charity horse show committee, having a keen interest to develop the show end and encourage public support, decided to seek a sponsor who would put any funds made to a good and charitable use. It was decided to ask the Lions Club of the city to sponsor the 1961 show and any financial results would go toward the club's work in the interest of retarded children in the district.

The 1961 show has been greatly developed. The show will get under way at 12.30 on the June 24th at the Belleville Fair grounds. There will be a total of 30 classes in number which will give a full day and the show should be over at 5.30 p.m. The classes support a great variety of horses and ponies, including hackneys, harness horses and ponies, children's ponies and saddle horses to hunters and jumpers. It is expected that exhibitors from as far east as Ottawa and west to Toronto will be present. Many of the harness and horses taking part will, during the year, take part in the large Canadian and American shows.

From such shows the exhibitors receive no remuneration, only the ribbons and trophies that the top three in each class receive. In the children's classes many ribbons are intended to be given to each child showing in children's classes.

Depending on the type of horses and ponies one has and the equipment required, a great deal of money and time 12 months a year is put into this great sport and pastime by the exhibitor. The interest in this hobby over the past 10 or 12 years in this district has developed to such an extent that at all the fall fairs classes are made to accommodate light horses and ponies and the quality of the shown meets in competition with the best in the country.

CHILDREN ENCOURAGED

The committee of the 1961 show hopes that the horse show has gone to great lengths to bring the best exhibitors in the district and to encourage the many children to bring their ponies and horses. Particular attention has been given in the preparation of the classes to give the children taking part an opportunity to show their animal and horsemanship to the best advantage as these are the district horsemen of tomorrow.

This day offers a great opportunity to the public and exhibitors to support a worthwhile charity, have a great family outing and the continuance of a developing horse fixture in the Quinte district.

Raymond Burr to Continue With Perry Mason Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fans of the Saturday night who-did-it will be happy to know that all is peace once more in the Perry Mason family. Perry is back in the fold.

Raymond Burr is the living image of Perry, or at least he ever will be in the minds of millions of fans of the Erle Stanley Gardner mysteries. Include me in that group. Perry Mason is the only TV show family that watches on a regular basis.

For a few anxious weeks, it looked as though Burr might fly the coop. Now the troubles are resolved, and the resolution bodes well for future years of popular series.

Burr explained: "It wasn't a matter of my holding out for a big change of contract or a change of venue." These legal terms have rubbed off on him; the latter means change of a trial, for good cause shown, from one county to another.

The actor wasn't seeking to change countries. As he put it: "The issue was whether they would change the show so I could continue with it."

HAD TOO MUCH

Burr's situation has been well chronicled in this space and elsewhere. It was that he found himself faced with a superhuman task of delivering weekly more dialogue than the average leading man has in a feature movie.

And did it for four years with scarcely a let-up, except for enforced stays in the hospital.

The producers came up with a formula to keep their Perry before the bar.

"It is quite simple," said Burr. "I now will work only five days out of every six. In other words, no matter how long the shooting of a program will take, I will be returned to it with day off. That will be enough to regain my strength, whereas working six or seven days at 14 hours a day became virtually impossible."

Coffee Story Of Brazil On CBC Radio

Canadians drink enough coffee to float a battleship — five billion cups annually.

Much of it comes from the great plantations of Brazil.

"Tropical Gold", on CBC Radio's Venture program Sunday, is about the Brazilian coffee industry. The program will be heard at 5 p.m. on the Trans-Canada network.

Free-lance broadcaster Graham Gordon visited one of Brazil's largest plantations and found a small self-contained empire similar to the cotton plantations of the American south in the last century.

The plantation owner lives in a large colonial mansion equipped with such extras as a library and billiard room and set on a vast expanse of perfect lawn.

The 25 families who live and work on the plantation have their own school, theatre and chapel.

From the plantation the coffee goes to the Brazilian Coffee Institute, a government agency which buys all coffee from growers at a set price, grades it and then sells it to best advantage on the world market.

The port is Santos, with miles of dock and warehouse facilities, is the funnel through which coffee flows from Brazil to all parts of the world.

Each giant warehouse in Santos has a capacity of 150,000 bags, each weighing 132 lbs. At the warehouse different types of coffee are sorted for loading aboard the ships of many nationalities. Each country has its own preference. In general, Europeans prefer the strong, black beans, while North Americans grink a lighter, blended brew.

Says Society "Rotten To The Core"

AFTON, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Couey says the current basketball scandal is representative of American society which he called "rotten to the core."

"I find it awfully hard to make these ball players any more criminal than the "point shaving" on millions of income tax returns and illegal insurance rebates that many try to finagle," the Boston Celtics' star said in an interview with The Evening Press of Binghampton.

Taylor Wins Another

J. S. Perimen, publisher of the Daily Racing Form, presented the couple with an oil painting of the 1960 champion horse, Victoria Park.

Perimen said no man has made a greater contribution to racing than Taylor, adding that suburban Windfields Farm has felt the presence of Mr. Taylor.

L.A. Enters W.H. League

CALGARY (CP)—The operation of a Los Angeles team in the Western Hockey League this year was formally approved Friday by league directors, who accepted an undisclosed subsidy which franchiseholder Jim Pigott would pay to teams making the long road trip into Los Angeles.

The travel allowance would not, however, be paid if San Francisco also is allowed to operate.

At the Belle

MARLON BRANDO'S "ONE - EYED JACKS" LEAVING TONIGHT

"One-eyed Jacks", starring Marlon Brando and Karl Malden, is playing Today for the last times at the Belle Theatre. The Technicolor and VistaVision drama, three years in the making, marks Brando's production debut as a director.

Filmed in sun-baked Death Valley and along the northern coastal lush Pacific coast line at Monterey, California, the Paramount release tells a powerful story of friendship, revenge and love.

Karl Malden, who also starred with Brando in "A Street Car Named Desire", and "On the Waterfront", share top billing with the actor-director. Katy Jurado co-stars and Mexican actress Pina Pellicer is introduced as Brando's leading lady.

Heading the featured cast are Larry Duran, Miriam Colon, Ben Johnson, Slim Pickens, Sam Gilman and Timothy Carey. The music, including the popular "One-eyed Jacks" love theme, is by Hugo Friendhofer.

"MEIN KAMPF" ON MONDAY . . .

Columbia Pictures' "Mein Kampf", written and edited by Erwin Leiser and a prize winner at the Fourth International Festival in San Francisco, last year, opens Monday at the Belle Theatre. Tracing the true story of Hitler's Reich, "Mein Kampf" includes scenes never publicly shown before, film footage from secret Nazi archives so horrifying that they were wisely kept from the German people. These include unbelievable scenes of the Warsaw Ghetto, mass lines of graves, the Eichmann executions and the other tragic events of the time.

The Philadelphia News speaks of "Mein Kampf", coming to the Belle Theatre on Monday in the following terms: "Mein Kampf is a 'Must' — as it if you dare — but see it you should!"

SUCCESSFUL RUN

The Broadway musical My Fair Lady, which has filled England's Drury Lane Theatre for four years, will run at least another year and a half.

AT THE PARK — Susan Hayward stars with William Lundigan in the most beloved motion picture experience of all time! "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain", in Color by Deluxe, opens at the Park Theatre on a continuous run basis for an engagement of three days. On the same program an added attraction "Chesper by the Dozen", in Color, stars Clifton Webb, Jeanne Crain and Myrna Loy.

JOINS HAMILTON

HAMILTON (CP) — Catcher Ted Carney, a veteran of the Hamilton Optimist junior team and Hamilton Red Wings, has signed a contract with Hamilton Cardinals of the Senior Inter-County Baseball series, it was announced Friday.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Marlon Brando, Karl Malden, Katy Jurado, Pina Pellicer in "One-Eyed Jacks" in Technicolor and VistaVision. 1.15-4.55-8.35.

Astrological Forecast

Sunday, June 24, 1961
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This is one of those days when your mind is very logical and when you can certainly make a big step in finding out what you want and how you can live more in tune with lofty precepts by study, research, etc. Later, get out and visit relatives, neighbors, etc., but be sure to use real intelligence in avoiding trouble.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Be sure you get out and listen to the varied speakers from favorite pulpit; so that you may know how to regulate your life along more spiritual lines. Later, be with wise individuals for lofty conversations that will help your career.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Try settle any problems you may have now, whether of a family or business nature, fall back upon the proven experience of the past, P.M. make plans for the new week ahead in a constructive and detailed way so there is little loss of time, effort.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Fine day for analytical thinking and considering any personal flaws you may have, whether in character or personal appearance. Later part of day is then fine for social pleasures and renewing old acquaintanceships. Be up and doing!

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — Ideal day for deep meditation and clearing up any matters that puzzle you of late. Then, remember this is a holiday and do only those things that are pleasant. Still, it is fine for any honorable romantic intentions. Grow.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — you are able to get many a fine idea during any hours that might be most helpful in the future. So, be sure you contact the right people. Get up off that easy chair! Then get about socially, tonight to meet influential individuals.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 20) — Get busy early and see what you can do to improve civic life about you. Contact old folks in your community and increase prestige as well. P.M. have dinner at some charming place and become better known and loved. Expand.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) — Get to current enlightening spiritual lectures available a.m. Then take a little trip you have been planning for some time, but be sure you drive extra carefully. Also, make any changes that are necessary at this time.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Be sure you get into the so-called Silence for a while this a.m. and permit wonderful intuitive faculties to work undisturbed. Then you can come to a fine understanding with loved one and plan next week's work intelligently.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — By getting off to church and then being sure to follow the Golden Rule, you will then be able to work more harmoniously with associates and others about you. Evening is fine for making new friends and being respected, loved.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Live in such a way now that you become an inspiring example for others. P.M. fine for taking health treatments you need, putting wardrobe in order, planning the new week wisely and generally becoming more organized. Work.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) By being your most serene and humanitarian self now, this can be a very happy day and evening. Be sure you wear that lovely smile, especially in the evening when you can go out socially and meet people you have fun.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A day to be devoted almost exclusively to home and kin. Be particularly kind to parents and others who serve you unselfishly. Then add good touches to the old cooking and have a delightful time at own hearth, as it were. Enjoy.

If your child is born today—there will be much tremendous help in his life, but he/she must early teach to be more humanitarian or else progress will go through ills being misunderstood and possibly quite collapse. Given the right spiritual training is given, the chart then becomes very successful, especially where selling or the handling of property is concerned, or banking and the like.

Monday, June 12
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: A beautiful day for you to get into the world of outside activity and be successful. Your personality is in a position to help you get about more quickly. Combine your logical thinking and reasoning now with that mandatory flexibility for which you are also so noted. Inventive ideas plus the work required to fashion them into results now.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Contact at an early hour with those who can clarify your position or any misunderstandings or problems that exist. Then get shopping done, P.M. fine with good friends, but do not neglect any important studying later. Be serene.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Trust your own intelligence in your approach to others or any problems or matters of importance at hand; your persuasive action will be commensurate therein. Get advice of higher-ups and experts, too, P.M. Take the health treatment you need.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Begin new work properly by knowing what your aims are and how best to go after them. Latter part of the day and evening should be spent gaining about socially so that you meet the people you desire to have in your orbit in the future.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Planning your activities for the future is very wise this morning. Take initial steps that lead to success in respective field. Then spend remainder of day and evening at cultural pursuits and romantic nothings. Be happy, gay.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can easily gain the cooperation of good friends and associates who love you for bettering your lot in life. Be very sociable, too, since the persons you are apt to meet today will prove most valuable to you in the future. Smile more.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — If you haven't done so, this is the day to contact Big-wigs for their support which will spell the difference between mediocrity and affluence. It's up to you. Don't procrastinate —get dressed in fine taste, shape up and at 'em!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —Lots of changes and new beginnings, so be sure you are prepared for any opportunities to grasp quickly, and be sure you are prepared for any opportunities that may present themselves quickly, and be sure you are actively engaged throughout the day and evening.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —If you adopt new and better systems of operating, you will advance and grow much more quickly, P.M. important you are very devoted to loved one and not take your mate so much for granted. Also, be very patient.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Partners of all sorts are now more than willing to do their part and co-operate more in any joint associations, and it behooves you to get together early to work out any problems, settle differences amicably. P.M. Have fun.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Since you are the type who is very fond of angling in business affairs, this is one day when such tactics pay off very well. Also, clear up any decks of work and get ready for a new spurt or getting into some new outfit soon.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —An ideal day to bring your affairs up to date before those who are able to assist you to greater heights in your career. Then plan ahead for the sort of evening you enjoy the most. Proper arrangements will mean a memorable evening for you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Begin this week properly by first taking care of security matters and then arranging for family needs. Then you will know greater success. Also, get any new outlets going intelligently that will take some time to come to full fruition.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be a veritable human dynamo and will early want to make a big success in life, so be very sure you accord the finest academic education possible. The sky is the limit, as it were, in this chart, provided your guidance as parents, is of the best and there is fine spiritual training in early youth, too. There is also a humanitarian quality in this nature that will draw others to your progeny like flies.

MAKES CONGO FRIENDS — Besides maintaining communications for United Nations troops in The Congo, the Canadian Army signals detachment helps to create friendship and understanding with the Congolese. Sgt. O'Brien of Calgary does his bit to make friends in a small village near Leopoldsburg. (CP from National Defence).

Senior Canadian Army Officer at Luluabourg Will Become a Mayor Unless —

LULUABOURG, The Congo — The Canadian Army's Col. Jean-Paul Brazeau will be elected mayor of Luluabourg if he keeps glad-handing the populace.

Brazeau, from North Bay, Ont., and Montreal West, is the 36-year-old liaison officer with the Canadian Army signal detachment in this central Congo city, the decaying capital of Kasai province.

He is senior officer with the 10-man detachment, charged with maintaining communications between the Ghanaian army brigade, which patrols Kasai for the United Nations, and UN headquarters at Leopoldville.

When not keeping an eye out on behalf of his detachment, however, he conducts a campaign that would put world heavyweight 'no a threats to shame.

LESSON IN DIPLOMACY

A stroll through the downtown area of Luluabourg with Brazeau is an education in diplomacy.

Any encounter with a Congolese rates at least a "moyo"—"hello" in Tshiluba, language of the native Lulua tribe—and one or two other phrases guaranteed to bring a wide grin in the normally subdued Lulua features.

Toward the growing number of Belgians returning to the city Brazeau reserves a firmly sane friendship that seems and a polite acquaintance for others.

He turns on the full treatment for the Ghanaians. His favorite greeting for the soldiers on their daily patrols is five-storey UN headquarters building in Leopoldville, punctuating the lilting English of the Ghanaian ranks. With their official friendship thus established from the British Army, he keeps up a close liaison.

COMPETE FOR VOTES

Sharing much of the friendship chit-chat is Brazeau's second-in-command, Sgt. Tom Abbott of Calgary.

"When Tom and I walk together we compete for votes," the captain said. "Every time we get someone to say 'Hello', he's ahead. I get even when I say 'There's a good deal of jokking about the tactics we've got to use in the field. If the captain is busy waving to one group of people, I tell him I've got the votes of a big gar bunch he missed while his back was turned."

A FAMILY OF SIX CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION

Some time ago we secured the services of Dr. Barnardo's to find five children through this column. Now there are glowing reports of this wonderful couple who would like to adopt a family of children. Their own children have married and have brothers of 3, 2, 6, 8 and 10 years of age. We are lucky to have fine looking, mannerly, healthy children for this family and they are LISA, RICHARD and GREG. The Barnardo's have established school progress for Lisa, 8, at the Public School on Bridge St. East and the younger children have normal intelligence. It is so important to have these children have a chance to grow up together since they care about each other so much. We would be more than delighted to have this deserved Privileged couples. Write:

Board Orders Special Hearing On Union Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Labor Relations Board has ordered a special hearing next week into the jurisdictional dispute between the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) and a rival union of marine engineers, Information said Thursday.

The new hearing, set for June 15, was called as a result of new allegations against the SIU by Maurice Wright, lawyer for the Canadian Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

Mr. Wright requested the special session to hear evidence indicating the board "was fraudulently misled by the SIU" during two previous hearings.

The rival unions claim jurisdiction over marine engineers on Canadian Great Lakes ships.

The dispute has been before the board twice before—in December last year and again in March.

The second hearing was ordered by the board because it was "disturbed" by recruiting tactics of the SIU.

WITCHES TO DIE

'Potato Putsch' Brings Results To Farmers

MORLAIX, France (Reuters) Angry farmers staged a "potato putsch" Thursday in this Brittany town and it temporarily paid off in part

Irate over falling potato prices and government farm policy, some 1,500 farmers acted like rebellious Algiers' French settlers.

Having pitchforks, the farmers occupied the government headquarters building here for four hours.

A little later, the government announced a number of emergency measures to prop up potato prices.

But, still, the potato pot was kept a-boiling.

A mass meeting here was told by farmers' representatives that the farmers' fate the government at home or abroad.

Farm policy—"or we will resume our action in still greater strength."

The first regular meeting of the Tyendinaga 4-H Calf Club was held at the farm of the leader, Charles Bates on the evening, May 29th. The president, Grenville Pound, called the meeting to order and a newspaper account of the organization meeting was read by John English, eleven members were present.

The next meeting will be held, on July 10th at the farm of J. R. Wadsh and Sons. A twilight meeting is planned for July 30th at the farm of Don Martin of Tweed. A bus trip through Hastings County was also discussed.

The meeting was later turned over to the assistant agricultural representative, Gibson Patterson, who led a discussion of the Calf Club Manual. A class of four cows was judged with Gordon and Greyton Pound giving reasons for their placings. Mr. Patterson presented a final set of reasons.

A quiz on the parts of a cow was conducted by Mr. Patterson, who also answered questions pertaining to the feeding of the calves being raised by each member.

The president thanked Mr. Bates for his hospitality and for the use of his cattle.

WORKS FOR PEACE — Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, recently retired from Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple, plans to step up his campaign for disarmament. The 61-year-old Reform rabbi, a regular participant in disarmament rallies, also intends to write a book about his reflections on life, man and the world. (CP Photo).

Rabbi A. Feinberg Plans To Spend Retirement Years Trying to Prevent A-War

By ALAN WALKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Rabbi Abraham Feinberg has been thinking about the essential problems of mankind for most of his 61 years.

He has spoken at disarmament rallies, written articles for newspapers and has been a moral and spiritual leader for Canada's largest Reform Jewish congregation since 1944.

Now Rabbi Feinberg has retired as head of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple. His work will begin in earnest.

"The threat of nuclear war hangs over us more blackly than any other cloud," he told a reporter a few days after announcing his retirement. "This is the sphere in which I deem it most vital and challenging to work out my own mission of destiny."

Rabbi Feinberg is a man of logical but certainly not a dogmatic pacifist. Whether including words at a disarmament rally or sitting in his study surrounded by books, there is a direct, urging emotion in everything he says.

WILL WRITE BOOK

His plans for the future involve increased work for nuclear disarmament and the writing of a book which he says will be a "compact and thoroughly frank condensation of what I have learned about myself and felt about life, man and the world throughout my years as a rabbi."

World peace is his primary concern.

"With nuclear arms we are faced with a stark choice, either to accept the risks of faith, reach out our hand to Russia and say 'stop this madness,' and to be motivated by fear and build bigger and bigger missiles against the so-called enemy.

"Faith, in the long run, is more practical. Fear must lead to nuclear war and destruction."

Rabbi Feinberg has decided to branch out only after long inner and outer questions.

"Before you can deal with social and moral problems, you have to have a private, personal concept of God. You have to have a deep concern for society to society."

REQUESTED RETIREMENT

The rabbi said he has always been ruled by an inner voice which drives him to do more. His care is to find he must leave his rabbinical duties to concentrate on his major purpose.

Two years ago he explained his position to his congregation and asked that they seek a replacement. The congregation reluctantly agreed. Even in retirement, however, he maintains contact with them as rabbi emeritus of Holy Blossom.

"Every man must do what ever he can, according to his nature and capacity. Those who can respond to the moral challenge of our times have been so equipped by destiny. They must exert their leadership in whatever way presents itself."

Exerting his leadership, Rabbi Feinberg leads many who would consider a difficult life. His hours are long. As chairman of the Toronto Committee for Disarmament, he has made speeches in Massey Hall. In spite of a threat on his life, he marched with 1,000 disarmament supporters.

"Disarmament groups form the spearhead for a new revolution for peace," he said.

"The Communists have linked the equality of the proletariat, the concern for the working class with atheism. They have linked rebellion against social injustice with rebellion against religion."

MUST BE POSITIVE

Rabbi Feinberg said he has no faith in "the pretension of human reason to solve the people.

"The Communist philosophy has a contempt for people and

Science at Work

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Secrets of hearing pigeons; hibernation in space and electricity from hot lava.

BIRD BROADCASTS

The 80-mile flight of a homing pigeon has been tracked accurately by U.S. Navy Research scientists. They used a tiny radio transmitter, weighing less than a ounce, strapped to the bird's back.

Later they hope to use sensing devices to record physical changes by birds and other animals as they navigate—all in hopes of discovering and applying their remarkable navigational secrets. That could result in new miniaturized navigation and detection systems for man and his modern weapons.

The new approach also could check on guesses whether birds "home" by sensing magnetic lines of force, responding to the earth's rotation, or using the sun or moon for navigation.

SPACE PIONEERS

Turtles, ground squirrels, bats and woodchucks all are space pioneers, living for low gravity part of each year.

These lightweight hibernators look promising as early space voyagers, to learn the effects on living things of prolonged weightlessness and how to cope with them.

Those effects may be a big problem on months or years long trips to other planets, says Dr. K. J. Musacchia, St. Louis University biologist.

Hibernating animals wouldn't need food, or present problems of getting rid of their waste products. And they would be good subjects to learn the effects of cosmic radiation on living animals, he adds.

HOT LAVA

A buried lake of molten lava on the island of Hawaii apparently could be tapped for heat to supply cheap electric power, scientists report.

Eruptions of the Kilauea volcano 18 months ago created a lake containing 80,000-200 tons of molten lava, with heat enough to produce 25,000 kilowatts of electric power for 10 years, says Dr. Kenneth D. David T. Griggs, geophysicists at the University of California at Los Angeles, and climate in a Rand Corporation report.

Focus on Health

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Highway stress, early detection of cancer, 'a summertime hazard, and advice to grandparents.

STRESS OF DRIVING

For some people there is a definite wear and tear in driving a car at high speeds or in city traffic.

German researchers found that out of a group of healthy persons, some show great changes in their breathing and pulse rate after driving at 70 to 80 miles an hour, or after driving in traffic conditions.

In these otherwise healthy persons, the appearance of these changes indicates borderline disorders and may explain some faulty reactions that sometimes result in sudden accidents, the researchers said.

CAUSE OF CANCER?

Nickel workers have a high rate of lung cancer and the culprit has been identified as a toxic gas containing nickel which has produced cancer in experimental animals.

Now researchers have found that the smoke from both nonfiltered and filtered cigarets deposits nickel in the lungs. And a person who smokes two packs a day for a year to 18 months at the current amount of nickel needed to produce cancer is risky.

SUMMERTIME HAZARD

Some persons are sensitive to bee and wasp stings—so sensitive that a number of stings may send them into shock, may even cause death.

In some cases a person can be immunized against the allergy to yellow jacket sting much as hay fever victims can be immunized against ragweed pollen. Either a history of the whole insect or just the venom can be used. Protection lasts only about three months.

However, doctors warn, little is known about the hazard of continued use of the treatment. It is possible in sensitive persons that even the allergy injections may bring on shock.

ADVICE FOR GRAMPS

With summertime here and visits to grandparents in order, a University of Michigan psychiatrist has some advice:

Grandparents should keep hands off matters calling for discipline of a grandchild. Leave it to the parents. Grandparents are likely either too strict and rigid, or too overly permissive to be able to help parents, suggested Dr. Stuart Finch.

Even a three - year - old is capable of playing grandparent against parent to get what he wants.

Dragging operations are continuing today in the Trent River, south of No. 3 dam, shown above, for the recovery of the body of Rene J. Rochon, 60, of Ottawa, drowned Sunday with his son-in-law, Cpl. Reginald Nind of Belleville. Cpl. Nind's body was recovered Sunday evening. The two men were fishing on the far bank when Mr. Nind slipped from the docks and the other man went to his rescue. Divers from the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club are seen at right during the search for the two men's bodies. Dennis Kent, Batawa (right) recovered Cpl. Nind's body below the dam two hours after the accident.

RCAF Cpl. R. R. Nind and Father-in-Law Drown While Fishing at No. 3 Dam on Trent

The Trent River, north of Trenton, was searched two more drowning victims Sunday as a Belleville airman slipped from the rocks while fishing, and his father-in-law died in a vain attempt at rescue.

Drowned were Corp. Reginald R. Nind, 23, of 275 Macdonald Ave., and Rene J. Rochon, age 60, of 342 Frank St., Ottawa.

Provincial Police said the two men, Tilcog with Nind's parents, were fishing from the east bank of the Trent just below No. 3 dam, south of Batawa. Mr. Nind went to help his son and slipped off the rocks into the rushing water. Mr. Rochon then attempted to rescue his son-in-law, but slipped also into the water.

Police said they did not know whether either of the two victims could swim.

The accident occurred shortly before five o'clock Sunday afternoon.

FOUND BY SKIN DIVERS

The body of Cpl. Nind was recovered, caught in the weeds at the bottom of the dam about two hours later by skin divers, members of the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club.

Provincial police and skin divers continued dragging operations until dark last night and this morning the search was resumed. Airmen from Trenton were scheduled to aid today in the search for Mr. Rochon's body.

Mr. and Mrs. Rochon were weekend visitors at the Belleville home of their daughter and son-in-law.

Provincial police today paid tribute to members of the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club for their efforts in searching for the bodies of the two drowned victims.

Yesterday's dragging of the river was the third drowning accident in the Trent River in the past week.

A week ago a seven-year-old Smithfield boy, son of a Trenton airman, was drowned in the Trent at Frankford, while he accompanied his father on a fishing trip.

ENDS TRANE STRIKE

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Local 512, united Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America (CLC) have agreed to settlement terms which will end a two - no nth strike by 220 employees of Trane Company of Canada Limited in Suburban Etobicoke.

The new agreement runs for 18 months and provides a package settlement of 10 cents an hour; three wage increases of three cents and one cent to the skilled trades group.

Ratification meeting is scheduled for tonight at which the agreement is expected to be approved. Airmen from Trenton were scheduled to aid today in the search for Mr. Rochon's body.

Four Drown as Motorboat Swept Over Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Four almost a mile, persons died Sunday night when a small motorboat capsized in the seething rapids of the Niagara River and were swept over the 160-foot falls.

Three plunged over the brink to the rock-strewn cataract below. The fourth was sucked through the intake of a power plant.

The victims:

George Stewart, 49 - year - old druggist from Ridgeway, Ont., and his wife Judy, 44, owners of the boat;

Stanley Tessman, 36, and his wife, Gladys, 41, of Buffalo, N.Y., friends of the Stewarts who owned a cottage in the Ridgeway area.

One battered body was recovered from a tank in the depths of the Canadian Niagara Power Company Plant, 15 feet below the intake. It was believed that a man lost his grip on a rescue rope after holding on for

Red's Proposals on Germany Do Not Suit U.S. Says Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk says it's obvious the Soviet Union does not agree with the latest Soviet proposals on Germany and Berlin.

He declined to say when the United States will respond.

Rusk told reporters Sunday that "apparently involving Germany and Berlin is something that will have to be discussed with other governments." Other U.S. officials reported consultations would proceed with Britain and France, the two other West Berlin occupation powers, and with West Germany and others.

The Soviet proposals were contained in a memo which Moscow made available Saturday when Premier Khrushchev had handed the memo to U.S. officials at Vienna a week ago following Kennedy's meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

U.S. officials said the memo basically was a reoffering of previous Soviet proposals which the West has rejected.

Khrushchev called for an immediate peace conference on Germany. The conference would write a peace treaty to fix Germany's irrevocable borders, East Germany's role and establish "free city," and the Allied occupation rights and turn over control of its life-lines to the East Germans Communists.

The U.S. does not want an immediate conference on Germany, officials said. Only the West and Communist East Germany should work out a settlement before such a talk is held.

The Western Allies have long held that any German peace treaty can be written only by the wartime coalition that defeated Germany and a freely elected government representing all of a reunified Germany. They have refused to sit down at a conference table with East Germany.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin were united Sunday in terming unacceptable Khrushchev's proposal for a peace conference without prior German reunification.

Denominational Teaching In Public Schools Opposed

ATHERLEY, Ont. (CP) — A resolution supporting religious education but opposing denominational teaching in public schools was approved by a majority following vigorous debate at the annual convention of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association.

Delegates defeated a motion opposing promotion of the views of any particular denominational religious group in public schools in Ontario schools.

Later a group delegates attempted to have discussion on the resolution postponed until later date but the move favored its removal from the agenda.

Another resolution urging that religion should be left exclusively to the church was stricken from the agenda.

Yvonne Beatty, a Toronto delegate, said well organized minorities were foiling their opinions on majorities "if we destroy or lessen religious education, they should have it," she said.

Thomas Strong of Toronto said he favored religious education but not in public schools where instruction had a "tendency to lean toward particular Protestant denominations."

Another Toronto delegate, Robert Thomas said he had taken religious instruction in a suburban North York school but found it beneficial and non-denominational.

Newspaper Man Claims to Have Found Fabulous Mine in B.C.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. — A newspaper man with a flair for the dramatic says he believes he has found the legendary Lost Creek gold mine which men have sought for 70 years.

Elmer McLellan, city editor of the British Columbian, wrote about the fabulous lode Saturday in his column and made a weekend visit to the spot, staking claims.

Legend says 23 men have died searching for it and its $100,000,000 potential.

McLellan found no gold on earlier visits but during the weekend he staked claim to 750,000 square feet of land covering a tunnel and underground cavern which he believes to be the fabled mine.

His next move will be to have a mining expert examine his find and have rock samples from the area assayed.

McLellan, who did consider-

Thai Delegates Quit Parley Over Seating Laos Parties

GENEVA (Reuters) — The Thailand delegation to the 14-country conference on Laos here walked out of the parley following a dispute over seating of right wing Laotian political parties.

The walkout came at a session of the conference which resumed this morning after nearly a week "no ise" because of cease-fire violations in Laos.

But a U.S. delegation spokesman said he understood the walkout was only temporary "and does not represent a permanent departure."

Chief Thai delegate Dirak Chiyanan had risen on a point

WILL REVISE WAR MEASURES ACT BEFORE CLOSING

Say Act Conflicts With Bill of Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — With time running out in the current session of Parliament, debate was expected to be heated in the Commons today when Prime Minister Diefenbaker asks the House to take on a new, heavy committee assignment.

Mr. Diefenbaker served notice Saturday he would ask the House to set up a committee to revise the War Measures Act, which now empowers the cabinet to take on sweeping powers to govern by order-in-council in wartime.

The act, passed during the First World War and used for tight control of the Canadian economy during the Second World War, is in conflict with the Bill of Rights. It permits the cabinet to issue orders arbitrarily affecting individual rights and invading provincial fields of jurisdiction if necessary, without an appeal to the courts.

The act now is dormant on the statute books. It can be brought into force by a proclamation declaring that Canada is threatened by war, insurrection or invasion.

MODIFIED ACT

Mr. Diefenbaker's Bill of Rights modified the act by requiring the proclamation to be upheld in Parliament and pro-

Dutch Airliner Hits Sand Dune, 19 Are Killed

CAIRO (Reuters) — Nineteen persons were killed when a Dutch airliner hit a sand dune and burst into two while attempting to land here today.

Everything appeared normal as the four-engined plane made its approach. The tower at Cairo Airport cleared the plane for the approach and advised the pilot a "happy landing."

The plane burst into two after the impact, each section skidding about 100 yards through the sand before coming to rest.

KLM, the Royal Dutch Airlines announced that the plane carried 29 passengers and a crew of seven. There were 17 survivors, four of them crew members.

Some of the survivors were in critical condition, the announcement said. Two of the dead were Canadians aboard.

The plane was, a four-engined DC-6B operated by KLM and flying Amsterdam via Rome to Cairo, Karachi, Rangoon and Bangkok.

The crash area was strewn with clothing, luggage and children's toys. Some bodies were burned beyond identification.

One man was found alive 200 yards from the wreckage. A dead child lay next to him.

St. Michael's hockey area has 300 gold ingots aboard the plane. Most were engraved with the names of wrist watches aboard were scattered and broken.

Police searched all persons leaving the scene of the crash.

Portuguese Pilot Lands in Street To Bring Food to Town in Angola

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Portuguese Air Force pilot landed his plane in the main street of a remote Angola town a few days ago, bringing food and supplies to settlers besieged in the hinterland by Negro terrorists.

European residents of Sanza Pombo were so grateful for the pilot's errand they renamed the street after him.

Air force planes are taking off daily from the dream-like airside resort of Luanda, airlifting goods and encouragement deep into the African bush. There white settlers and Negroes are locked in perhaps the most murderous chaos so far in the attempt of the Negro to throw off racial rule.

The Portuguese are meeting terror with more terror, frenzied hatred with vengeance. In the process many of the 4,500,000 people in an area almost the size of Quebec province fear for their lives. Some uncountable hundreds already have been massacred — already have died.

The uprising, now in its fourth

RCAF Will Get 66 Voodoo Jets In Plane Swap

Diefenbaker Announces Deal in Commons Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced in the Commons today that Canada will receive 66 F-101B Voodoo jet interceptors from the United States to re-equip RCAF squadrons in Canada, and that the two countries will produce in Canada $200,000,000 worth of F-104G Starfighter jets under a joint mutual aid program for NATO allies in Europe.

As part of the deal, the RCAF will take over the manning, operation, maintenance and financing of 16 stations in the Pinetree radar line hitherto the responsibility of the U.S.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the agreement, worked out in lengthy negotiations with the U.S. government, would ensure more effective use of the productive capacities, skills and resources of each country. It also would demonstrate the mutual determination of the two countries to strengthen NATO and North American air defence.

He said the Voodoo jet fighters to be obtained from the U.S. would be Canadian manned and armed with conventional weapons. They will be used, to begin, to equip the RCAF squadrons allocated to NORAD, and will be operated in accordance with NORAD plans.

The squadrons have been flying the obsolete CF-100 designated CF-. 100 twin jet all weather fighters.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

The Voodoos will be delivered immediately and taken into service as rapidly as the air force can absorb them, he said.

The American planes are being obtained by Canada in return for the assumption by Canada of the U.S. commitment on the Pinetree radar line, which

Father Bauer Transferred to B.C. College

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. David Bauer, coach of the St. Michael's College junior hockey team, winner of the Memorial Cup, has been transferred to Vancouver.

Father Bauer will teach at St. Mark's College next term.

His new appointment was one of a number announced Saturday by the general council of the Congregation of St. Basil which controls St. Michael's.

Born in Kitchener, Father Bauer starred in the Ontario Hockey Association and the National Hockey League after the war to enter the priesthood. He joined the staff at St. Michael's after his ordination heven years ago to teach religion and history in addition to his extra-curricular hockey duties.

St. Michael's this week withdrew the Majors from the OHA and Junior B groups to concentrate on hockey team. School officials at St. Michael's say plans to reduce the number of games and the long playoffs conflicted with players studies.

71 Are Hurt In Gas Truck Explosion

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Toledo Fire Bureau today opened an investigation into the explosion of a gasoline tank truck which caused injuries to 71 persons Saturday. Five of the 71 still in hospital were in critical condition.

Three experts from Standard Oil Company of Ohio's Cleveland headquarters were summoned to participate in the inquiry. The company's truck carrying almost 8,000 gallons of high octane gasoline left the edge of the downtown district, overturned and caught fire.

A giant blast ripped the area as soon as firemen poured water on the fire. Windows in buildings two blocks away were injured. Nine homes were set afire but two were destroyed. At least 20 children were injured.

MOTHER AND SIX OF 10 CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Two in Hospital With Severe Burns

ALBERTON, P.E.I. (CP)— Fire in a two - storey home in nearby Campbellton Sunday claimed a 32 - year - old mother and six of her ten children.

Mrs. Gerald O'Halloran died in bed along with her 10-year - old daughter Irene and sons, Michael, 7, Dwight, 5, Carl 3, and Randall, five months. Earl, 5, died in hospital here several hours after the fire.

It was the worst fire in the Atlantic provinces this year.

Last month five children died in a tenement house fire in Halifax.

In hospital with second- and third - degree burns are 13-year - old Gerald O'Halloran and his two - year - old brother Gerald, Jr., in the children were not home when the fire started. Geraldine, 9, was in Charlottetown where she attends school and is staying with grandparents in Campbellton.

The father, Gerald, was reported working as a laborer on a Distant Early Warning radar site on Baffin Island.

Neighbors who reached the building soon after the flames were first noticed about 5 a.m. said the mother pushed three children through windows to safety before being overcome herself.

Cause of the fire was not known. Neighbors who visited the home Saturday night and watched television said there was no live in the kitchen stove when they left.

No inquest is expected.

Tip Top Trophy Won by Mac White

Mac White, who crops a curling stone and prides himself on a club with little variation in dexterity, had a fine weekend on the links.

Mr. White not only shot a low 36-hole score of 146 to help win the Quinte Cup Saturday for his club but on Sunday came through with a low net of 72 to win for himself the Tip Top Trophy.

Another highly creditable performance was that of youthful Allan Mott who carded a low net of 74. Allan shot a 94 with a handicap of 20.

Some thirty club players took part in the competition.

'Beaver' Buys Sunday Paper

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express has bought out The Sunday Dispatch, it was announced here today.

Associated Newspapers Ltd., owners of The Dispatch, announced that the paper was "a victim in the highly-competitive Sunday national newspaper field."

No indication of the selling price was given in the announcement that The Dispatch was to be merged with Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express shortly.

FOUR DROWN

police, who patrol the riverfront in the famed tourist and honeymoon centre, were notified of the boat's disappearance. Chief MacIsaac and Const. Robert Chevrette raced in a hunting boat the power company makes where one man was struggling in the water.

We threw him a rope," said Chevrette, "He had on for a minute or less. Then he slipped away and was swept into the rapids."

At the same time a second man, Angus Gosselin, was also floated by in mid-stream headed for the brink of the falls.

Other witnesses to the tragedy were Mr. and Mrs. James C. Artman of Murrysville, Pa., who were standing near the brink about 8:15 p.m.

Artman said he had been taking pictures when he noticed four cushions from a boat being swept over the falls, followed by the body of a woman, with long blonde hair and the waist of red shorts. Then another woman, wearing shorts and a powder blue blouse, went over.

For some time police, piecing together eyewitness reports, were uncertain whether three or four persons were lost.

A search of the river turned up the Stewarts' unoccupied car and boat trailer on the west of the Welland River, a Niagara Parkway road a few miles upstream, and led to the identity of the victims.

The Stewarts, enthusiastic boaters, had used the launching site frequently and were believed to have had a wide knowledge of the river.

Mrs. Stewart, one of the eight-seeing boat Maid of the Mist that ferried part of the smashed hull of the 16-foot boat of plywood and synthetic glass construction to the U.S. power outboard motor was missing.

Let Contract for Building 4½-Mile Stretch of Madoc-Foxboro Road Says Member

The contract for the construction of the four-and-a-half miles of county road at Hyslop Hill has been let by Ontario Department of Highways to the Roc Construction Company of Welland, it was announced today by Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

Weather permitting it was hoped the work would be completed by Nov. 30th.

Hastings County Engineer Leroy Langdon said that, other than notification from Mr. Rollins, he had received no official word of the contract award, and consequently was unable to say when the work would commence. Ordinarily he said it takes from two to three weeks from the time of the contract award before the construction engineer is able to move in equipment and commence operations.

He said County forces did the brushing and clearing required for the new eight-rod way and are now engaged in erecting the new fencing required.

The four-and-a-half mile of county road to be rebuilt this year is the first phase of a three-year operation which will see the Madoc - Foxboro County road rebuilt throughout its entire length.

The road is being rebuilt by the Highways Dept. as a developmental road ,so secondary highway standards, following which it will be returned to the county for maintenance.

Yacht Club Completes Plans For Junior Sailing Program

A meeting was held Saturday morning at which the final details of the Junior Sailing program of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club were arranged for the coming season. The course which has, in past years, provided a number of Canada's top boys between the ages of 10 and 18 years with sailing experience will be run, it is announced this year on July 3rd.

Bill Sprague will be the chief instructor for the course, which will be conducted over the entire month of July. Participants being able to sign up for two-week, one-month, or a two-month session. Both local lads and lasses have already signified their intentions and Fred Vealland, chairman of the program, advises that there is accommodation for approximately a dozen more students.

Mr. Sprague will be assisted during the course by Messrs. Gibson and Stewart Sprague as instructional staff.

A new feature has been added to this year's course. Mr. Vealland said, that instruction in the use of power boats as well as sailing craft, in order to make the course more inversal li ts coverage and appeal. A number of members of the Yacht Club's Power Squadron will be giving both practical and theoretical instruction in this phase of the course.

There are three steps to the sailing course at the local club, which is one of many across the continent which are promoting junior sailing. The first stage gives the beginner knowledge and experience in several hooks, a familiarity with the parts of a boat and a knowledge of proper water safety and what to do in an emergency in a boat.

The second stage gives progressive experience with knots and includes basic rowing and rigging a sailboat at dock. Sailing positions, rules of the road, the different types of boats and artificial respiration are also included at this stage.

The third and final phase of instruction finds the trainee taking part in club activities, racing rules and sailing in strong winds amongst other subjects. By the time he has completed this stage the student sailor is qualified to act as a crew member on a larger craft with adults.

HOG SAILING RACES

Sailing races with junior sailors from other yacht clubs form a most interesting part of the summer program. In 1960 members of the course participated in regattas in Toronto, Trenton and Montreal. In the latter centre, they took part in the Junior Olympics, which is held every four years, where lucrosers did quite well in several district meets last summer and have high hopes of even stiffer ware from the adult teams.

This year races are being planned for juniors with no sailors from both Brockville and Trenton. International competition is available for junior sailors also but it's not expected that the boys will be ready represented this year since the event next is being held in Miami Florida.

Junior sailing has become a growing movement in the past few years and for this reason the association has been formed. The local club has been actively supporting this work for some seven years now in an effort to provide boys and girls with constructive course in sailing and safety boating. Many parents of boys and girls interested in courses may get further information by call from Mr. Vealland at WO 8-8700.

Angler Injured When Run Over By Own Car

Suffering a number of broken ribs, internal injuries and facial lacerations, Carman Bruce, 46, of Stirling, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital late Saturday night after he had been run over by his own car at a fishing spot on Parker Lake in Hallowtton earlier in the evening.

Mr. Bruce was accompanied on the fishing trip, which incidentally proved to be ill rewarding, he went to bring the car in order to load the fish gear and pick up the boat in the lake. Mr. Bruce left the car on a slight incline so his window around behind it to swing the trailer down. At the same time the car started to move down the knoll and Mr. Bruce was overturned and the car passed over his chest.

He was taken to the Red Cross Hospital at Stirling where first aid was administered and later rushed to the Belleville Hospital where he is under the care of Dr. Donald Scott. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Four Injured When Two Cars Hit Head-On

TRENTON — Four persons suffered minor injuries and damage totalling $1,000 when two cars collided on Highway Dufferin Ave. here Saturday night.

Injured were Delbert Baldwin, R.R. 2, Ameliasburg, driver of one of the cars, who suffered abrasions over his left eye; Allan Laffman, a passenger in his car, suffered bruises; Miss Margaret Crowe, 18, of Frankford, another passenger in the Baldwin car, suffered a bump over her left eye, and Joan Hollingshead, 16, of 178 Henry St., Trenton, a passenger in the other car, required stitches to close cuts on her forehead.

Police said a car driven by Paul Gravel, 19, of Trenton, was travelling north on Dufferin Ave. when it was in collision with a car driven by Mr. Baldwin.

A west-bound transport hit the top of the bridge early Saturday morning knocking 4-inch pipes from the top of a truck.

A parked car owned by Gerald Chard, West St., received $400 damage Saturday night when a tree struck it on Front St., by a vehicle that, police said, kept on going.

Aldersey Arrives

TRENTON — Town engineer, Eric Aldersey, Mrs. Aldersey, Michael, 9, and Susan, 2, arrived in town Saturday. This morning, Mr. Aldersey was in his office, and has officially assumed his position as town engineer. Mr. Aldersey served as commissioner of works in Trenton from 1956 to November, 1959, when he resigned to become city engineer at Barrie. He was rehired by town council this year, after Barrie council had rescinded the by-law by which Walter Murray was hired as town engineer in February, 1960.

Man Jailed

TRENTON — Donald Cummings, 30, of Colborne is in Cobourg jail charged under the criminal code with assault and committing malicious damage. He is charged to have attacked his brother-in-law with a pocket knife in Colborne early Sunday. Windows of the brother-in-law's car were broken.

Directors Meet

TRENTON — Directors of the Chamber of Commerce meet tonight to organize a membership drive, Immediate plans of the chamber involve publicizing the town with a brochure, planning the tourist trade. It is hoped that the tourist booth at the foot of Parliament Hill will be opened by July 1. Chamber directors have appointed Mrs. Ruth Morrison, area chairman for the March of Dimes and asked her to take over the booth for the summer. However, Miss Morrison said today that she had informed the chamber that her work with the March of Dimes would preclude accepting the position.

mitting debate on revocation if any 10 members of either the Commons or Senate sign a petition.

Government sources said it is unlikely the committee will do much more than make one partial review of the act this session. More detailed work probably will be put over until next session.

Mr. Diefenbaker said earlier this session that many younger MPs with limited knowledge Parliament could complete its work by July 1, and suggested that if the work is not done by then, Parliament might take a six-week summer adjournment.

The committee will be composed of 15 members from all parties, will have power to subpoena witnesses.

Its chief task is to write a law for use in a wartime emergency which will enable the government of the day to invoke full resources of Canada behind the war effort, but retain traditional safeguards against arbitrary invasion of fundamental freedoms and rights.

COMPETEX DEBATE

Completed by the House Saturday was debate on spending estimates for 1961-62 of $34,347,-221 for the fisheries department, and $34,721,830 for the justice department. Debate on both departments had been completed from earlier.

The House also began debate on $12,981,427 in estimates for Hugh John Flemming's new forestry department. Immediate criticism came from Jean-Paul Racine (L—Bonaventure) who called it a ghost department.

Mr. Racine said the government is to more interested in forestry now than it was before the department was created. He described Forestry Minister Flemming as a messenger between Ottawa and Fredericton where he was formerly premier.

J.R. Mutchmor Favors Nuclear Weapons

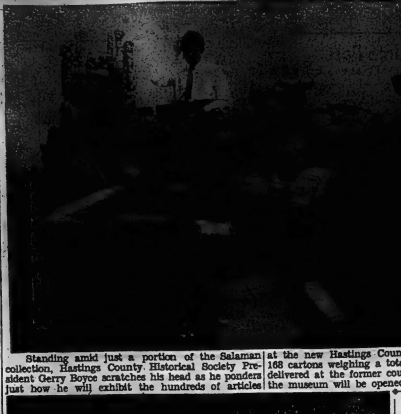
SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Acknowledging the "complexity" of the problem, J. R. Mutchmor of Toronto said Saturday night he favored nuclear weapons for Canada as long as "should the question come to a head."

He told the Maritime conference of the United Church that minds are capable and responsible minds are against me on this." They included Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson.

Dr. Mutchmor, chairman of the United Church international affairs committee, rejected the idea that "if we go along with the United States on defence policy we'll become a colony or sub-contractor to them. We have a responsible part to play and we should be partners in our own right."

He expressed agreement with the general council of the church in supporting the government policy on Honest sites in Canada, including warheads for the missiles.

Dr. Mutchmor also supported the Canadian government's action in selling wheat to Red China. It was "not only good common sense and good business but good Christianity."



A. W. LOVE, B.S.A., M.P.D.

Bishop Filmer Limited are pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. A. W. Love, of Lorne Gerrow Store Manager as of June 1st.

Mr. Love was educated in Hamilton, Ontario, graduated from Niagara Parks Commission School of Horticulture in 1940 and from the Ontario Agricultural College in 1946.

Bill is a highly qualified seedsman. His experience includes both retail and garden seed business — wholesale and retail — as well as two years with a farm seed processing concern in western Canada.

Bill is an ex-pilot with the R.C.A.F., a Mason, and a member of the Agricultural Institute of Canada. He is also an avid golfer and curling enthusiast. He expects to take up permanent residence in Belleville with his family of four very shortly. — (ADVT.)

Standing amid just a portion of the Salaman collection, Hastings County Historical Society President Gerry Boyce scratches his head as he ponders just how he will exhibit the hundreds of articles at the new Hastings County Museum. Saturday, 168 cartons weighing a total of 12,000 pounds, were delivered at the former county registry office where the museum will be opened early this summer.

Gerry Boyce, president of the Hastings County Historical Society, and Thomas Ransom, society treasurer, pose with two items from the Salaman collection. Mr. Boyce holds a "stringed instrument" (no given name), while Mr. Ransom holds a bed warmer, forerunner of the modern electric blanket.

County Museum Shaping Up, Salaman Collection Moved To Former Registry Office

With a target opening date of early summer, the Hastings County Museum, being set up in the former registry office on Church Street, is commencing to take shape.

Nucleus of the many exhibits to be on display at the museum will be the Salaman collection from the Isle of Wight in the English Channel, which was bequeathed to the city by a former Belleville resident, Mrs. William Salaman.

In storage for the past four years at the LaPalm Movers' warehouse in Trenton, the Salaman collection, totalling 168 cartons containing period furniture, paintings, chinaware, and other antiques, was delivered to the museum on Saturday. The collection, weighing in total at 12,000 pounds, filled two moving vans.

Gerry Boyce, president of the Hastings County Historical Society, sponsors of the county museum, and energetic leader in getting the museum underway, extended enthusiasm Saturday as, with the delivery of the Salaman collection, it was beginning to see the fruition of months of hard labor.

Along with other members of the Historical Society, Mr. Boyce has put in countless hours in readying the old registry office and fitting it up as a museum. A new oil furnace has been installed and the interior covered with a fresh coat of paint.

The big job ahead now is to place for viewing the many items of the Salaman collection. In addition to period furniture and chinaware, the collection includes old paintings, figurines and other articles of antique interest.

The collection was the gift of Mrs. William Salaman, sister of the late Bert Docter of Belleville.

Mrs. Salaman had lived in England and on the Isle of Wight since her marriage.

On her death she bequeathed much of the contents of her Isle of Wight home to the city of Belleville.

The gift was accepted on behalf of the city by Jack Bolt, then mayor. Since the arrival of the collection in Canada it has been in storage, due to the lack of a suitable place for showing.

Aircraft Wheel Found on Beach

TORONTO (CP)—An aircraft wheel found on a lakeshore beach indicates a missing Peterborough pilot may have been knocked down by the same weather disturbance during which lightning killed a 13-year-old girl here last week.

The wheel was identified as belonging to the aircraft in which farmer Henry Sharpe, 40, left for Toronto early Thursday. Mr. Sharpe, bound for the Island Airport and a milk producers' meeting in Toronto, never arrived.

At between 7:45 and 8 a.m. it was estimated Mr. Sharpe's Piper Pacer would have been over the area where the wheel washed up. At that time Toronto was experiencing a cloudburst and within an hour Patricia Hargrave of suburban West Hill was killed by a bolt of lightning.

Harbor police say they are ready to drag for a week in the area Mr. Sharpe's plane is believed to have crashed, but it takes in several miles and in parts the water is 60 feet deep.

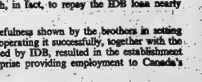
"Go you teach arithmetic," commented Bob. "I bet you make it interesting."

Sally smiled. "Of course," she told him. "We have fun sometimes."

"Fine," said Bob. "And how many in the class?"

"Well, you'll see what I mean," the girl replied. "A half of them are under thirteen, a third under twelve, and six are under eleven years old.



A FAMILY AFFAIR ... idb

The central figures in this business story are three brothers who wanted to join forces to start their own manufacturing enterprise. All had for several years had good jobs with other employers—in production, sales and administration respectively—and they felt their abilities would fit together well to provide balanced management for a new family venture.

The combined financial resources of the brothers fell about of being enough to pay for the production equipment which would be needed, as well as to provide working capital. They soon found that term financing of the type they needed was hard to arrange—especially for a brand new business which had yet to prove itself.

When the principals brought their problem to Industrial Development Bank, they were able to show a well-thought-out plan for setting up production in a new plant. Their sales objective was based on a thorough survey of the market for their product, which was being partly supplied by imports from abroad; and with modern equipment the brothers were sure they could produce and sell at competitive prices.

Discussion with IDB officers revealed some aspects of the project which could be changed to advantage and, when plans were settled, the Bank agreed to assist the new company to finance the cost of the required equipment. As expected, the first few months' operation showed losses, but initial operating problems were soon overcome, the company was "in the black" by the end of the first year and subsequently earned good profits . . . good enough, in fact, to repay the IDB loan nearly two years ahead of time.

The initiative and resourcefulness shown by the brothers in setting up this family business and operating it successfully, together with the timely term financing supplied by IDB, resulted in the establishment of another flourishing enterprise providing employment to Canada's expanding labour force.

The Industrial Development Bank was established in 1944 to provide financial assistance to small and medium-sized enterprises unable to obtain satisfactory term financing through other channels. For further information, and a descriptive booklet, you are invited to write or visit the nearest IDB office or consult your auditor, lawyer or chartered banker.*

P.S.—We have a full colour movie based on the case of another company assisted by IDB financing. If an organization or group in your community would like to have it shown, the nearest IDB office will be glad to make the arrangements.

May License Rowboats

Hon. Leon Balcer, Federal Minister of Transport, told the members of the House of Commons on Friday that the government would regulate and license all small boats, including not only sailboats but perhaps even rowboats.

If he does this, we hope Mr. Balcer finds himself up a long creek fully equipped with outboard motor, sails and paddles—but without the necessary licence.

Of course, the minister gave assurance that "there is no intention at the present time of bringing forward regulations that would more or less put the (tourist) industry into a strait jacket."

Of course, the amendments to the Canada Shipping Act, which would give the government authority to regulate all small boats in the manner described, have an objective above reproach —the reduction of boating accidents.

We wish, though, that some members of the Commons who, like William M. Benidickson of Kenora-Rainy River are keenly alert to the problems of small-boat operators, would quit regarding them merely as an industry. Instead of suggesting that the tourist industry would perhaps have a say in the proposed changes, Mr. Benidickson could have proposed that a national conference be called of all boys owning punts.

Just why it is impossible to pass laws regarding the safe operation of boats, and to enforce those laws, without going through the red tape of licensing every rowboat, we are at a loss to explain.

We sometimes wish, too, that people who are acutely safety conscious would not limit this concern to the safety of the body. There is such a thing as the safety of the spirit and, paradoxical though it may sound, it is safety it is occasionally permitted to meet danger face to face.

Even if the licensing of rowboats is necessary to reduce accidents in their operation—a condition of affairs which we doubt—is it not possible to purchase safety at too high a price? We know of no statistics on the subject, but would venture a guess that the fatalities per man-hour spent in a rowboat are not greatly in excess of the fatalities per man-hour spent swimming. If this is true, then if the licensing of rowboats can be defended, it is equally true that the banning of all swimmers is permissible and desirable.

If you license swimmers, why not football players, or skaters? Boys should be permitted to run only after their cardiac equipment has been certified in good shape by a qualified physician. Old ladies over seventy obviously should be required to obtain licences before venturing out on icy sidewalks, the incidence of deaths following dislocated hips being what it is. These licenses might be a bit of a nuisance, but they are obviously in the best interests of safety, as proven by the accident-free operation of automobiles on our highways, which can only be ascribed to proper regulation.

Parents Deserve Praise

Belleville parents are to be congratulated.

Between 75 and 80 per cent of those questioned to date favor the introduction of oral French instruction in public schools here. It is perhaps a little disappointing to discover that not all those who favor such instruction in theory are prepared to endorse it in practice; only 65 to 70 per cent say they would agree to a portion of their taxes being used to pay for such a course.

Still, there is here conclusive proof that the overwhelming majority of local parents have no silly prejudices against their children being taught French at an early age. This is not to suggest that all those who oppose such instruction do so because of prejudice—it is possible to think of other, and less unfortunate, reasons for answering the current questionnaire in the negative.

The Home and School Council here is to be congratulated on undertaking this survey. Knowledge of another language never did harm to any person—and the ability to communicate is becoming increasingly important with every passing year.

Children of many of our New Canadians are living examples of the ease with which another language can be learned at an early age —while all too often their parents are likewise living examples of the difficulties that even the most intelligent and studious adult may face if the same task is undertaken later in life, when the native accent almost appears to have become crystallized and the tongue appears to have lost some of its youthful flexibility.

I live in the crowd of jollity, not so much to enjoy company as to shun myself.—Samuel Johnson.

Jobless Dig Into Past

By Nino Frank in UNESCO Features

Some recent Italian films have brought out the magnificence of an unusual setting: Rudolf Valentino at Taormina, Anna Magnani, in the 2nd Century A.D., this emperor created replicas of all the wonders of the world he knew.

These expressions of an imperial whim have been known ever since the Renaissance, but with such success as to lend much to their original splendor only during the past ten years. Today, however, emperor Hadrian's estate overshadows, by its beauty and variety, most of the tourist attractions of the countryside around Rome, where there is certainly no shortage of such attractions.

Amongst the work recently completed at Tivoli is the excavation and restoration of the Canopus with its huge pool almost 600 ft. long surrounded by colonnades, the pleasure-pavilion and chamber of the Villa, and lying between the large and small theatres.

An interesting and little-known sidelight on this work is that all the excavations have been carried out by the disoccupati, or unemployed, working in special archeological camps created by the Italian Government.

Italy, like most countries, has laws which provide for temporary assistance to the jobless. These laws also stipulate that their projects, generally road-building or construction work. About ten years ago, the Italian Government decided to set up special camps for the archeological or problematical excavations under the supervision and direction of the Antiquities Department. These camps are organized in collaboration with the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare, and the Ministry of Education. Funds budgeted by the Ministry of Labor for the 1950-1951 financial year period 1949-1950 amounted to about 1,200,000 dollars.

Besides offering regular jobs and regular pay to the unemployed, the projects provide other advantages. Often, excavations in Italy have led to the opening of new areas of interest to tourists — and tourism is a very important factor in the Italian economy. In addition, the projects have stimulated scientific and historical research in regions where previously it was inexistent. Digs in Etruria, Sicania, in the Marches and Lucania, for example, have revealed hitherto-unknown zones of life in ancient times.

Another very remarkable result has been the educational influence on the workers themselves and on the local populations. Many of the workers' sons progressed to the workers' become fascinated by their task and to share in the excitement of the final discovery.

Also, considerable public interest has been shown up to now in archeology, workers from half a dozen camps have unearthed amphitheatres and temples, baths, mosaics (floor and porticoes) of the ancient Graeco-Roman city of Libarna. Other excavations are in store in Romagna, particularly in the area of Classe, Ravenna's port incidentally, produces the best seats in Italy. These teams work on as far as 21,000 square cm tombs; while other former projects, such as Ostia Antica in the province of Emilia, have brought to light ancient Roman cities such as Pompeii and Velleia.

The Latium, round Cerveteri and Tarquinia, Etruscan necropolises and buildings have been discovered. Others should throw important light on social and religious life in the Etruscan period; in the Abruzzi, large-scale digs are revealing the buildings of Sectium and Ovid's Villa at Sulmona; while in Apulia, in the plain where Hannibal defeated the Romans, the ancient city of Candae is awakening from its long slumber.

Prohibitoric research is also being made under the supervision of the Italian Institute of Human Paleontology and men of thousands of relics dating from the Upper Paleolithic to the Neolithic, have been discovered in Thrasio (Apulia), (Calabria), Reggio (Sicily) and Sassari (Sardinia).

It is scarcely surprising that this project should have met with such success in land such as Italy which bears traces of a rich and flourishing ancient civilization like that of Rome. But the Roman Empire extended far beyond the borders of Italy, and its vestiges lie hidden everywhere in the soil of Europe, in North Africa and in the near East. Besides, both West and East have known other civilizations in fairly recent times.

Add this to the fact that, in many countries, there are unemployed who need help, who must be given both bread and work. They certainly would be very willing to lend a hand to modern historians and archeologists.

QUESTIONS

Children sometimes annoy us by the insistence and persistence with which they ask questions. They keep a barrage of questions directed toward us all the time. We may, indeed, grow tired of them. But we remember that they are encountering for the first time situations of which we have long become accustomed. They must know about all these things. They learn by asking questions.

Sometimes, of course, is a unless everybody realizes this. But so often we find it hard to enter enthusiastically with the child into this enterprise of discovery.

Let us remember that it is the nation or the race intent on asking questions which makes discoveries and gets ahead in the world.

Columbus wanted to know what was beyond the horizon. Astronomers search the skies with their telescopes. They want to know. They have questions that no one can yet fathom. Laboratories today men are working hard on their questions, and in the back of their minds are questions.

There may be some questions which will never be answered. Perhaps they do not need to be answered. But we can be sure that all the questions which need to be answered will be answered.

Our great international questions will be answered if we keep on asking them hard enough. Our spiritual questions will be answered — not perhaps the way we expect that they be answered, but answered after God's fashion.

Since its inception in 1863, the County Council of Hastings has been outstanding in its administration of the county affairs and bears a proud reputation to this effect in the province. Administration of its affairs by highly capable men has been one of the main concerns, irrisating factors. Thirty-one men administer the money of the taxpayers of this county. In the shadow of such outstanding ex-wardens as Bills Flint, E. D. O'Flynn, A.-F. Wood, W. A. Aylesworth, H. G. Bleecker, W. H. Nugent, Peter McLaren and others they will, as their predecessors did, discuss the pros and cons of rural government. Nearly all of them are scions of the pioneer families of this district. They come by their knowledge of the county's needs through real experience and not by reading and hearsay. Other forms of government would do well to study the methods of Hastings County Council.

No Known Cure for Shingles, But Pain Can Be Relieved

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Your article regarding shingles is not completely accurate. Having had this nerve injection twice over a period of years, and knowing how miserable it can be, I would like to share a specific cure. Tincture of benzoin, applied externally over the area covered by blisters, leads to dry and half the development of spreading. Alleviates itching and lessens to its healing effect lessens the pain. — J. G. W."

All sufferers from shingles, I hope, will read the rest of today's column before assuming that J. G. W. has a "specific cure."

There's a difference between a "remedy" and a "specific cure" and the two should not be confused.

Tincture of benzoin may be a remedy; it is never a cure for shingles.

Getting right down to facts, there is no known cure for shingles, but there are remedies which will ease the symptoms.

For many conditions, there are medicines that are very specific — meaning that, if, and treat, a certain disease, insulin, antibiotics of certain types adrenalin hemplex, penicillin, anti-convulsant drugs, and a host of others are more or less predictable results.

For other afflictions, doctors know from experience that what happens to work for one patient will be a total flop for another.

That's the case with shingles. Ten pleased patients will acclaim as head of state, off came her pleasing, and the next patient used the F H R insignia from the mail boxes.

And for great pleasure, away went the outmoded trappings, or royalty from the lowly playing pack of fifty-two cards.

A Royal Flush in any other country is called a Royal Straight in South Africa — but it's a Republican Flush.

Then the gimlets and jacks are now barred to card players. They've been replaced by the beckoned, the "Old West," symbolism of the covetedness.

Instead of "Jacks or better" cards is President Kennedy, Grover, and Rose. The President - ace card is, of course, Truman; and the ten is the Statue of Liberty used in the nonetheless' coron troces.

Nevertheless, Flush or Royal Flush, it still takes home the pot. But it's rather like Alice in Wonderland's croquet.

"When I use a word," Humpty Dumpty said, "it means just what I choose it to mean — neither more nor less."

"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."

"The question is," said Humpty Dumpty, "which is to be master. That's all."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Pigeons are obviously the original inspiration of the blues. No blues singer can sing as blue as a pigeon on a wet, drizzly, trough outside your bedroom window at five o'clock in the morning. Put a wet, miserable cat on the back fence at 2:30 in the morning and you have a tremolo as the best of them. Middle-aged husbands and quilts over the windows had no effect in deadening the doleful hooting and cooing and gurgling of bird. I tried putting a stuffed owl on the roof-ridge, but that no avail. I flung dickybirds up on the favorite perch of the creatures. I put a fierce-looking tomcat on the best of them. Middle-aged husbands and quilts over the windows had no effect in deadening the doleful hooting and cooing and gurgling of bird. I tried putting a stuffed owl on the roof-ridge, but that no avail. I flung dickybirds up on the favorite perch of the creatures. I put a fierce-looking tomcat on one of those trick perches that tilt sideways and dismiss it conspicuously on the top of the window frame.

The pigeons went right on yodelling himself sadly to death, and slowly died of grief.

Republican Flush Wins

By Al Kapiin, writing from Johannesburg in the Toronto Telegram

When the dour Dutch Afrikaner became a Republican, they went the whole hog.

Down came the official portraits of the British monarch as head of state, off came her pleasing, and the next patient used the E H R insignia from the mail boxes.

TODAY'S TALK

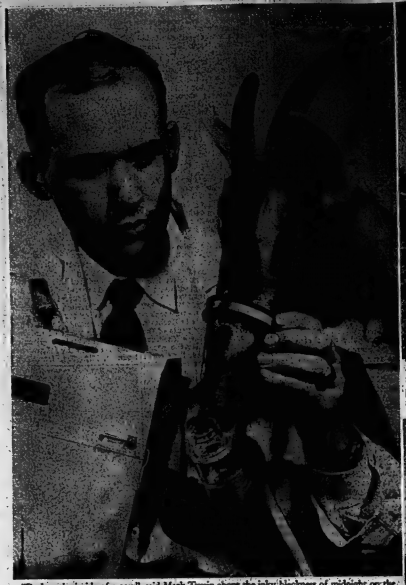
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE AIMS OF LIFE

Oliver Wendell Holmes, speaking of Emerson, has this to say: "The end and aim of his being was to make truth lovely and manhood noble, and to bring our daily life nearer and nearer to the external, immortal, invisible."

And so, running down the years, the thinkings and teachings of the Emerson mind have satisfied all seekers after new aims and renewed efforts into the strivings of those who have been content to live mediocrely.

Without steady aims behind what we do, all effort falls in a heap, spineless and of no account.



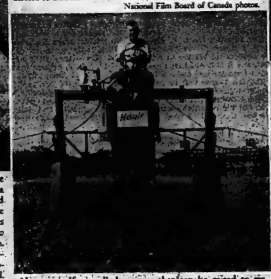
There is no need to worry about what we are going to get out of this life just so long as we can be sure that we are putting something of standard value into it.

The sordid thing about money making is that you are all the time trying to get something that has nothing in it with character worth. When you get too much of it you are also liable to boast about something that otherwise, less fortunate, has not got. And if there is one standard in this world for measurement and that is the value through and through, it is the money standard.

If you would be truly happy aim toward those things not revenged by mere money value.

The aims of life should be wrapped about the pleasant and the helpful. And we shouldn't bother our heads about Heaven and rewards. There is nothing so wonderful as helping to build heaven here and now, and the rewards of service are rarer and more precious than any other than can be imagined.

To Seek, to Find – Increase the Yield



"Dark as the inside of a cow", said Mark Twain about the inky blackness of midnight on the Mississippi. Today, scientists at Canada's Central Experimental Farm — within the Ottawa city limits — are shedding bright lights on that once-dark interior. Above, Dr. G. I. Pritchard of the Animal Research Institute takes a sample of after-dinner breath from Lorraine, one of the small and tractable goats used as "guinea pigs" for research into the digestive processes of grazing animals. Such basic research, aimed at finding out not just what works, but how and why, is the real purpose of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Research Branch. The Ottawa farm — 1200 acres of greenery only 10 minutes from the Parliament Buildings — is the head fork in a chain of farms, laboratories and stations spread across the nation. Together, these farms have helped to make Canada one of the big breadbaskets of the world. Information is exchanged with many countries ranging from Brazil to the Soviet Union. News of improved farming methods and new crop varieties goes to the farmer through provincial agricultural officers, bulletins, radio and T.V. Results: a more efficient farmer, a continuing well-stocked larder for Canada.

Above, a worker at the Ottawa Central Experimental Farm marks out beds for new breeds. The small experimental plots have produced big advances in crops ranging from alfalfa to zinnias.

National Film Board of Canada photos.

Above, a self-propelled sprayer that can be raised to six feet for corn is lowered to six inches for strawberries. The maintenance of old virus-free stocks is as essential as the more spectacular development of new strains.

R. E. Graves, the Department's scientific modeller, peers critically at his handiwork. It has to be good: his displays are used for study, identification and as a basis for attack. He is working on a model of Aceria tulipae (Keifer). Despite its large name, this "dry bulb mite" — a threat to Alberta wheat — is so small it cannot be seen with the naked eye.

The problems never end. Above, scientists thresh selected flax plants, grown in "flax-sick" soil, in an attempt to find a disease-resistant strain. So the struggle goes: the quest to find new strains, to combat old diseases, to increase yields, to lower costs. In all of which Canada's Experimental Farms lead the way.

GOULAH — WHEELER

Mauve and yellow mums adorned the altar in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, for a recent very pretty springtime wedding when Phyllis May Wheeler of Belleville, daughter of Mr. James Rodney Wheeler, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Wheeler, was united in marriage to Leonard Peter Goulah of Roseboro, son of Mrs. Anne Goulah and the late Mr. Goulah. The Reverend Terence Boyle, P.P., officiated.

The wedding music included "Panis Angelicus," "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Ave Maria," sung by Mr. Robert Smith, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace over satin and tulle overskirt, fashioned with a molded bodice having a Sweetheart neckline with lace bolero and fitted elbow length sleeves. She wore a sequin and seed pearl headdress with chapel-length veil of illusion tulle and carried a cascade bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

She was attended by Mrs. Raymond Morrison, as matron of honor, wearing a green nylon cocktail-length gown with pleated neckline; matching flowered hat and carrying a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Miss Theresa Wheeler, sister of the bride, was dainty in her mauve nylon dress accented with pointed collar with pleated bodice and sleeves gathered with a bow. She wore a matching bonnet and carried a basket of Shasta daisies.

Mr. Joseph Goulah, of Rossmore, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Stan Goulah of Tweed, and M. Clifford Wheeler, Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at Hotel Quinte, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with pink and white carnations, and centred by the wedding cake.

The guests were received by the bride's sister, Mrs. Ronald McGhee, who wore a sheath style gown printed gown with matching bolero jacket, white accessories and corsage of white carnations. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in a two-piece gown of pink linen, trimmed with white lace, matching white accessaries, and corsage of white carnations.

For travelling to New York City, Mrs. Goulah chose a navy-blue suit fit salmon shade with Peter Pan collar, white blouse, navy accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

Those attending were from Detroit; Montreal; Toronto; Peterborough; Tweed and Rossmore, Ontario.

The bride was entertained previous to her marriage, by two miscellaneous showers; one by Miss Betty Morrison of Belleville at home given by relatives and friends of the bride and another, Mrs. Raymond Morrison, of Belleville as hostess, by the friends and business associates and carried a basket of Shasta daisies.

Mr. and Mr. Goulah are residing at 225 Coleman Street, Belleville.

Drinking Mother Society's Troublesome Alcoholic

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mother who drinks is society's most dangerous problem, says a team of research and treatment personnel from the Alcoholism Foundation of British Columbia.

Past histories show a greater incidence of heavy drinking among children from homes where the mother is an alcoholic than from a home where the father is the offender.

The observations are made by clinic physician Dr. Osborne Minovitz, senior counsellor Sydney E. Kerslake and counsellor Barbara Jones, reporting on a new women's ward for treatment of female alcoholics in Vancouver.

Their reports give a composite picture of the female alcoholic:

She comes from a home background either a wife or divorcee. There is conflict in the home. She is intelligent, fairly well educated, at odds with her environment and rebellious.

EARLY DRINKING

Usually she is attractive, has started drinking at age 18 or 17 or after high school graduation, more often than not is from the country, rather than the city, and is promiscuous. When she goes out she drinks with males.

HOLY TRINITY W.G.

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville was held at the home of Mrs. V. Kuipastra on May 30, with 13 members present.

Several members donated an article for the Silver Tea and Mrs. Muriel Fitzgerald won the flower prize donated.

Mrs. W. Houston presented Mrs. A. Skillicks with a corresponding gift on behalf of the guild.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald spoke on behalf of the guild, thanking Mrs. A. McBride for the fine work she has accomplished in the past several years.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald closed the meeting.

Next meeting to be held at the home of Miss Grace Foy on June 6, with Mrs. N. Edwards in charge of the program and Mrs. S. Fitzgerald in charge of the devotional.

Roll call bring an article for the bazaar.

The hostess served delicious refreshments which was enjoyed by all.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Melrose United Church was held at the home of Mrs. L. Weese with an attendance of members.

Mrs. J. Millsip, president, opened the meeting promptly, thanked the hostess for her kind hospitality and invited all as her theme for the worship service was "For I was an hungred and ye fed me".

Mrs. W. Embury read the Scripture, Matthew 25:31-46 and the president conducted several paragraphs written by Dr. Alan Knight, who is an Agricultural Missionary and his mission was asked, "Have you ever been hungry?"

The secretary Mrs. E. Embury announced the School for Leadership Training in August, and it is hoped that some ladies from Melrose can attend. The fall meeting will be held in October.

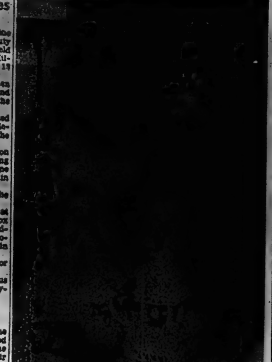
The treasurer gave her report and the recent canvass of the community for funds was very successful with a total of $60 to date.

An Educational discussion was held re the new organization of Church Women. A circuit meeting will be held on June 14th in the evening.

Mrs. R. McCarthy, group leader, took charge of the meeting and gave a timely reading "Let Us Pray Then". Other readings given were as follows — "Religion in Life", by Mrs. C. Reid; poem "Do You Read Your Bible", by Mrs. R. Mumbley; "Do and Be", by Mrs. Lorne Weese; "Building Tomorrow's World", by Mrs. W. Embury; Mrs. J. Bates an interesting account of "Robert Moffat" missionary who is rightly regarded as founder of the Sunday School Movement. He was a son of father as owner and editor of the Mirror, "Gloucester Journal", and was a keen student of the Bible. He taught three principles as the foundation of social reform: vice is preventable; idleness is the parent of vice; ignorance is the parent of idleness, and later he added a fourth principle — begin with the child — teach him".

In July 1786 he opened his first Sunday School for which a time only boys were admitted. As time went on he was forced to admit he was doing work of immense social value and that there was a greater sense of Sabbath peace and tranquility.

An article in his paper stressing the good done by a S.S. was recognized by other newspapers throughout the country and soon hundreds of Sunday Schools were opened all over the country, and this movement was the start of a higher spiritual plane when teachers would be paid for their work but did it solely out of their love for Christ.



Mrs. MacFarlane thanked all who had helped on her programs and Mrs. W. Embury kindly offered to be hostess for the July meeting.

Lunch was served and a social hour followed.

EULER — DICK

Wellington United Church was the setting for a wedding of wide interest when Barbara Jean Dick, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dick of Bloomfield, R.R. 2, became the bride of Dr. Karl August William Euler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Euler of Belleville, before an altar banked with ferns, white mums and white snapdragons, with the Reverend A. Currie officiating.

Traditional organ music was supplied by Mrs. J. McNeil, with Mrs. Ron Burr as soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her handmade gown of white brocade satin featuring a pleated flared collar, long pointed sleeves, with front in princess style. Her over-skirt of pearl de soie ended in a cathedral train carried by Master Allen Dick, as page boy. She wore a coronet headdress studded with seed pearls and shoulder-length veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of white carnations mingled with stephanotis.

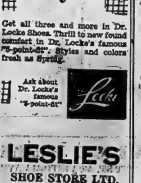
The bridal attendants were three classmates of Macdonald hall, Guelph: Ann Smallman-Tarr, of Ottawa, as maid of honor; Miss Ellen Dadiadana, of Toronto; Miss Donna Frankie Kitchener, of Miss Doris Euler of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in handmade frocks of floral silk in shades of grey blue and green, featuring bateau necklines, full skirts, matching headbands, blue satin shoes and carrying nosegays of pink and lily.

Little Vickie Werden, wee cousin of the bride, was a winsome flower girl in lace-trimmed blue organza over taffeta, with bandeau of pompon mums and nosegay of roses and lily rosebuds.

The bridegroom, who is a graduate of the O.V.C. Guelph, was attended by Dr. Bill Greer of Oakville, while Dr. John Henry of Port Credit, both classmates of the bridegroom, acted as usher, assisted by Messrs. David Dick and Robert Wood, brother and cousin of the bride, respectively.

The bride's mother received in a dusty rose two-piece turquoise silk with matching organdy duster, white flowered hat and gloves, with corsage of white carnations; she was assisted in the receiving line by Mrs. Euler who wore a blue silk sprigt dress, navy linen duster, white hat and gloves, with corsage of white carnations. Also in the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden, grandparents of the bride, the latter in pink cotton lace, with corsage of accessories and corsage of roses.

The reception for approximately 100 guests was held at the beautiful home of Dr. Dick. The bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered basket of lily candles and baskets of pink and white mums, and the tiers and accessories of the tables were appointed with white linen and graced with flowers and silver candelabra and boxed favors of wedding cake and place cards.



The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle Mr. James Dick, to which the bridegroom responded, and toast to the bridesmaids, by Dr. Bill Greer.

After the reception, guests were invited to the home of the bride's parents to view the gifts and see the bouquet stripped off on their honeymoon to Western Canada. The bride's choice for travelling is a suit of silve green rayon broadcloth; beige accessories, and a yellow orchid corsage.

Dr. and Mrs. Euler will reside at 840 Harmer Street, Wallaceburg, Ontario, where Dr. Euler will practise his vocation. After the holidays, Mrs. Euler will return to Guelph for the final year at Macdonald Hall.

Quilting Industry Serving Useful Purpose in Kashmir

VANCOUVER (CP)—A handicraft developed in England centuries ago to aid uneducated and unemployed women is serving a similar purpose today in Kashmir, says Mrs. Diana Hay-Thorburn.

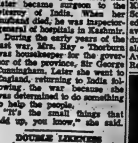
Mrs. Hay-Thorburn initiated the English quilting industry in the province on the Indian subcontinent. Her beautiful and intricate designs decorate bedspreads and drapes. Showcase of the art is her housetent on the Jhelum River.

Mrs. Hay-Thorburn told of the work in an interview here during a visit prior to a cross-Canada last year and a visit to England before returning to India.

She said she employs eight Kashmiri who work to give their children an opportunity for education. As business expands, more mouths are fed.

"If you've ever seen a starving child, you'll know how important this is," she said.

A cousin to the Duke of Montrose, Mrs. Hay-Thorburn was born in India of a military family. She married Colonel Harold Hay-Thorburn, a Scottish University graduate, who later became governor of the viceroy of India. When her husband died, he was inspector-general of hospitals in Kashmir.



During the early years of the last war, Mrs. Hay-Thorburn was housekeeper for the governor of the province, Sir George Cunningham. She later went to England, returning to India following the war because she was determined to do something to help the people.

"It's the small things that add up, you know," she said.

Oven Meal No. 1
(Could Be Automatic)

By Mary Moore

Some years ago with the help of readers, I compiled a release of favorite Automatic Oven dishes. The request I have been pending out to you copies of this release for years.

An increasing rash of requests for it have been arriving lately and I decided it should be revised or enlarged or changed to suit the times.

So the Moore household has been fed on oven meals this week and my sort-publishing discoveries are about to be launched to a waiting world. (Now if these are duds and I misfire I shall retreat to obscurity.)

My first try was braised beef. This is not a specialty of mine but should be. If was inspired by a friend of our family who has done much of the research work for a new $1.00 Holiday in Canada book, listed hotels, motels, restaurants, tourist attractions that make Canada sound fabulously interesting. It is too. He says in one restaurant in Southern Ontario he ordered the best braised beef he ever ate. This ruffled my ego for I just never feature braised beef as I used to work. So it could be included in my "oven meal" story, I added Oven Mashed Browned Potatoes to the menu.

Dinner Menus
by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Cheese Liver and Willabire Bacon Strips Noodles Tossed with Poppy Seeds; New Green Peas; Carrot and Cucumber Slices; Glazed Strawberry Tarts with Whipped Cream; Coffee.

BRAISED BEEF (to serve 4)1.

One flank steak weighing 1-3 pounds (67c per pound) (or 2 lbs. "braising ribs" (37c per pound). 1 tablespoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, 1-3 tablespoons flour, 1-3 cup each finely diced carrots, onions, celery, Mix together the flour, salt and pepper. Rub the meat on this and add all (loose flour too) to 2- 1-3 tablespoons melted fat (not too hot frying pan and sear meat, stirring constantly, until it is a rich dark brown. Don't hurry this — it takes about 15 minutes of constant stirring over rather high heat Mix diced vegetables, turn into meat, casserole, add boiled onions (if desired) and 1-3 cup whole milk and salt and pepper. I stirred this well but left it in the oven with the braised beef about 2 hours at 300 deg. Fah. meet was done— I stirred it 2 or 3 times and by meal time it was nicely golden and well flavored.

For dessert we had

APPLE CRUMB (for 4):

Cream 3-4 cup apples, 1-4 cup butter, 3-4 cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 1-4 cup flour, 1-4 cup brown sugar, sprinkling nutmeg, 2 tablespoons water. Mash, pare, core and slice apples into shallow baking dish Mix together all other ingredients except water. Put this crumb mixture over apples finely. Drizzle water around edges. Bake 3 hours at 300 deg. Fah. Serve with milk or pouring cream.

Watch for another oven meal next week . .

RULES FOR THE YOUNG SUMMER GUEST

After graduation, lots of young people will be invited to be invited them to spend a week or two at their summer homes in the mountains or at the beach. This brings up the question of just what is expected of the visitor when accepting this hospitality. Are there certain cut and dried rules that should be followed?

Not necessarily — but-another-it's not great care should be taken to make yourself a welcome guest and not a burden on the family you are visiting. Take the following suggestions into consideration and you won't go wrong!

When plans are made, be sure to set a definite time for arrival and departure. "Come for a few days" is a bad approach to the whole idea. It may result in your over-staying your welcome. Make it clear that you understood that you will arrive on Friday, June 16th, as take your leave on the 23rd of June. Above all, terminate your visit on the day designated in the original invitation. Even if urged to stay, don't. Leave while you are still wanted, and you can bet another invitation will be forthcoming in the future.

If you wish to take a gift, it is perfectly proper to do so. Rather than simply taking one for the girl you are to visit, why not something that all the family will enjoy? Candy, books or records always fit in well for this purpose. A gift is not obligatory, however.

Upon your arrival, make every effort to fit in with the mode of life of the family you are visiting. For example, if there's no maid in the house (and you're usually in not these days); be sure to make your own bed. Don't leave your clothes all over the place or leave the bathroom looking as though there had been a tornado. Offer help with the cooking, cleaning up after meals, or in any way you can think of that you feel will. Don't overdo it. If your hostess says "I'll do that, you didn't; do something you have offered to help with, let it go at that. Don't insist on your point. If there's any outing, rules to be lowed in the family should, of course, also be written.

I have aimed the above suggestions toward the girl visitor, but they also apply to the male guest who is the guest of one of his chums. Both should make a point of realizing that, in the home of their friends, some one's home consideration to what the host's family is a must.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question—If a person is invited to two parties for a bride-to-be, shouldn't they be invited to the wedding? I had been to the first one last month. I had known the bride-to-be for years, but the other group, together, I have been quite hurt that, after giving gifts to her at two showers, not being at the parties along, I was not asked to the wedding. Indeed was a big church one, followed by a reception at the club.

Answer — I am rather afraid that the bride really skipped up here. Only in the case where the wedding is very small, which might mean that the bride left out some friends and acquaintances, should such a slight be made. If a friend is close enough to be included in showers and the Gerald Stratton and "Happy Birthday" was sung for them. Plans were made for the strawberry tea to be held soon. The secretary read a letter of thanks from Mrs. Hayter of Belleville, for the many sympathy cards she received at the time of her husband's death.

Mrs. Albert Hayter invited the ladies of the W.A. to her home for the July meeting.

Mrs. D. Stratton dedicated the offerings, after which delicious refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Mother of Duke of Kent Becomes Princess Marina

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The royal wedding has come and gone and Britain has a new Duchess of Kent, a 26-year-old girl who in the past has preferred riding and walking to society balls and comfortable tweeds to Paris frocks.

It will be hard for Britons to get accustomed to the new image. For more than a quarter century, the words "Duchess of Kent" have called a distinctive picture to the mind of the Greek princess, style - setter to the British court whose courage pulled her through a premature widowhood to a special place in the heart of the nation.

From Thursday afternoon, the Duke of Kent's gracious, 58-year-old mother once again became Princess Marina, as she was before 1934, wedding of the youngest son of King George V.

RECALLS ERA

The name recalls a nostalgic era for many middle-aged Britons—that Indian-summer period in the last years of George V's reign when Hitler's shadow was still only the size of a man's hand and most of the gaiety of the 1930s lingered on.

The wedding in Westminster Abbey at 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT) and his classically beautiful bride from Athens drew crowds of onlookers from all over Europe. It was the first royal wedding to be broadcast in full.

Britain took Marina instantly to its heart as the fashion color of the 1934 season was called Marina blue.

Then came the Second World War. In 1942, with his younger son Michael barely seven weeks old, the duke was killed on active service with the Royal Air Force.

Since then his wife has become a British institution in her own right. During the war she became head of the Women's Royal Nave service.

As The Guardian of Manchester said this morning after the wedding: "Her coming among us brought a gaiety and grace . . . she has served her adopted country finely."

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

SHANNONVILLE — The monthly meeting of the W.A. of the Shannonville United Church was held at the church hall, on Thursday, June 8th, with 12 members in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Orval Stratton, welcomed everyone. Mrs. Arthur Knutson accompanied the singing. Due to the illness in the absence of the pianist, Mrs. Demoss Hinchey, Mrs. Knutson played the reading, "The Grace of Humor," and Mrs. Charles Hall's group leader took charge of the devotional which dealt with the theme for the month, "The Home." Mrs. George Osborne read the Scripture lesson from Luke 19, and Mrs. Wood read two poems entitled "Busy Martha and Her Sister Mary," and "Christ Our Guest." She also read "June Bride" and Mrs. Gerald Strike gave a reading on wedding customs and traditions of other countries as well as Canada, which was most interesting.

Mrs. Wood thanked her group and also Mrs. A. Bonnell for presiding at the piano and to Mrs. Mrs. Stratton graciously thanked the W.A. for the flowers sent to them on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Stratton took charge of the business portion of the meeting and Mrs. Robertson, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Albert Hayter and Mrs. Gerald Stratton and "Happy Birthday" was sung for them. Plans were made for the strawberry tea to be held soon. The secretary read a letter of thanks from Mrs. Hayter of Belleville, for the many sympathy cards she received at the time of her husband's death.

Mrs. Albert Hayter invited the ladies of the W.A. to her home for the July meeting.

Mrs. D. Stratton dedicated the offerings, after which delicious refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

READS OLD FIRM — A 12-to-14 hour working day is normal for Ruby Hanne, new president of John Northway and Son, 86-year-old retail women's clothing firm with headquarters in Toronto. A native of Toronto, she returned to the city last December after serving as executive assistant to the president of a big New York Store.

Engaged Woman 'Dynamo' To Run Northways, Owner Never Regretted Choice

By DEIRDRE MUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When David Rush paid nearly $2,000,000 last December to acquire John Northway and Son, an 86-year-old retail women's wear firm, he was fully aware that he didn't know anything about merchandising.

"So I went out and hired real pros."

The major find was Ruby Hanne, a diminutive, dark-haired dynamo schooled in the cut-throat competition of New York's Fifth Avenue, who in May became president of the firm.

"I had no opinion about women in business until I was exposed to Miss Hanne," said Mr. Rush. "I found her to be of top executive calibre, competent to deal in any area and as good as, if not better than, any male executive I've seen.

"She treats a business with loving care—more so than a man. From now on I would lean to women executives."

Miss Hanne handles the day-to-day operations of the firm which has headquarters on Yonge Street in downtown Toronto and four branch stores in suburban Toronto, Hamilton and Oshawa.

This leaves Mr. Rush free to investigate expansion, with plans to acquire 15 to 20 more stores in Ontario and eventually make Northway a country-wide operation.

Five - foot - one and just 90 pounds—she would love to fill 100 in her 5-foot-2-inch frame—Miss Hanne is a native of Toronto and four branch stores in suburban Toronto, Hamilton and Oshawa.

Five - foot - one and just 90 pounds—she would love to fill 100 in her 5-foot-2-inch frame—Miss Hanne is a native of Toronto who got her start with the T. Eaton Company where she sold ready-to-wear clothes and later became head of stock and then assistant buyer.

In 1947 she joined the A. J. Freiman department store in Ottawa. On a business trip to New York she was offered and accepted a position with Franklin-Simon, a country-wide chain in the United States.

ONLY WOMAN VEEP

"I was the only woman vice-president and was in charge of branch expansion," she said. "I didn't find it difficult to deal with men in business and I thought nothing of attending meetings with 10 to 50 of them.

"I can hold forth with the male animal in every aspect of business and I don't find there are any barriers. Men seem to be more attentive when they are exposed to women in the same business.

She came to Northway last December from New York where she was executive assistant to the president of Stern. At first she took a job in a part-time consultant in merchandising, commuting between New York and Toronto.

Although she now has a full-time job with Northway, she still finds time to catch a weekend plane to New York where she relaxes in her apartment, does charcoal sketches of work associates and browses through art galleries.

KOOKY LOOK

"My interests run along artistic lines. I thought I would proceed into fashion illustrating since all my interests were there. I attended the Ontario College of Art but I found I was too temperamental to be a good commercial artist and I'm content to use it as a hobby."

Miss Hanne says her ambition for Northway is to give the store "a definitely fashion image." To that end she has introduced to Toronto such modern trends as the "kooky" look and fashions in burlap to go with the store's "traditional" lavender and lace."

She proposes to offer clothes from the domestic, American and European market, cater to the "chic" girl, produce and borrow some ideas from New York, including a bird cage restaurant fashioned after the one at Lord and Taylor.

Cobourg Club Guest at WMS Meet

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle W.M.C. held its June meeting Thursday evening, June 8th, in the church with Cobourg W.M.C. as guests and the W.M.C. president, of Ajax was also a guest.

Mrs. F. Spring welcomed everyone as well as Mrs. G. Curry, President W.M.C. president. Mrs. F. Spring led in prayer and W.M.C. president. Mrs. Bell Smith, of Cobourg, was in charge of the meeting. The vice-president, Mrs. Haupt, of Cobourg, led in singing "Our missionary hymns. Mrs. Walton read the Scripture reading from Psalm 23. Mrs. Harsden, Ajax and Mrs. G. Curry led in prayer. A Cobourg woman's trio sang "Near to the Heart of the Shepherd." Mrs. Harsden of Cobourg read a poem, "Mother's Prayer." Mrs. Haupt of Cobourg rendered a vocal solo, "Will Me His Name Again."

Mrs Bell Smith conducted two Bible quizes and Frankford defeated Cobourg. The both teams tied in the second quiz.

W.M.C. district secretary Mrs. Ellis of Cobourg brought greetings from the district of Quinte. Mrs. Ellis of Cobourg conducted a question and answer period from Epiaias 1:1-4, and verse 27.

Prayer closed the service, after which refreshments were served and a time of fellowship enjoyed by all.

Aux. 8. LAPM Celebrates Anniversary

At the last regular meeting the Belleville Aux. 8. LAPM, R.C.L.A.F. celebrated its 29th birthday.

Following the order of business, a social evening was enjoyed with the games played bingo, after which a delicious supper was served at individual tables. The table was centred with tiny birthday cakes, made by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Harwood. Mrs. Marjory Large also made a large birthday cake which was served to the members at the supper, while the small ones were presented to the guests, and the members who were present.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the committee by Mrs. Annie Meeks. Mrs. Nina West and Miss Jennie Redner a few of the birthday cakes, as well as to the members who assisted in making the evening a success.

At a previous meeting the members had the pleasure of hearing McNichol of London, Ontario, president of the Department Association of Ontario, make an address to the members was enjoyed by all the most commendable.

Mrs. Vera Sommers and Mrs. Hannah Jessen presented Miss McNichol with a gift from the members, which she graciously expressed her thanks.

The members of Belleville Unit 8 feeling that the pleasure of her company doesn't count for much. People who assess their own charm and worth too low are prone to "fill in" with packages to make sure the host is glad they came. Evidently Eileen has a higher sense of self-worth. She knows that she will be invited (or not) regardless of any material donation to the friendship.

If it's a weekend stay at the shore, on the other hand, of course bring the steaks or what. That figures. Or if your hostess loves those little Italian cakes which are available only in your neighborhood Jennifer, of course bring her a few. The "warm gracious touch" is often imparted via a jar of homemade preserves or a potholder woven by your-own-hands. Driving around compulsively, however, looking for the "something" that she "must bring" reveal Jennifer's insecurity about herself.

Pardon an old pun, but Jennifer must realize that there's pleasure in her presence, not just her presents.

Eileen T.— She won't walk into a home without a gift. Jennifer — Has there been a you-go pleases simply handsoft. • • •

Eileen T. — My sister and I share an apartment. Although we work for different organizations, I've made most of it's my friends and co-workers, and she most mine. As a result, we're usually invited around socially as a couple.

What gets me is that Jim insists upon bringing a hostess gift, no matter how casual the invitation. Many's the time we have driven out to a small town to see someone's garden or Siamese cat, and Jim won't get out of the car until I find a candy store or a gift shop where she can pick up a present. On Sundays I've had to scour adjoining towns for a place that's open, which leaves little time for the visit.

I can't convince her that it's quite unnecessary.

Jennifer T. — When people go to the trouble of inviting you to their home, rounding up your other friends and setting out a hearty spread, they don't just walk in like a building inspector on a tax collector — cold and grasping!

I believe in the warm gracious touches, Eileen. I think how important it is to bring some tangible token of friendship along. She and I agree on almost everything else; our style arrangements are the same, except when I make her chip in for the flowers or the laundry bag I buy for our hostess.

It it's the money that bothers her, I'll be glad to pay my share rather than suffer the embarrassment of being a free-loader.

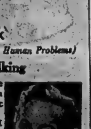
The Council — We're with Eileen. Jennifer, you're in experiment with the empty hand once or twice. It is brings the most shocking results in finding out. She may be amazed to find that she will be invited being invited places for their own sweet selves alone.

Not that you have to cut into the gift shop business. When the occasion warrants — when it's a housewarming or a babyshowing or a bon voyage party, by all means shop horse and framed butterflies. What we disagree with in Eileen's contention that there's no must about a package under your arm. Let's make it a casual call.

Instead of "white elephants" get passed around. We've heard of a useless (though attractive) item that has been passed around as a hostess gift until it got back to the original donor who got the point. Now she's waiting for the next rummage sale.



But the issue here is Jennifer's feeling that the pleasure of her company doesn't count

Family Enjoys Walking

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Here's one for the book. I am a professional man with a family of four. There isn't a single car in the family, not even a kiddie car.

It happened this way. For years I drove to work, my wife drove the children to school, my son drove his girl to the school dances and shows. At one point there were three cars, as well as family man hours, devoted to getting people places.

Eventually the car bills got so heavy that I staged a major rebellion and with my wife's consent, sold the cars. Now I walk to my office and feel better. The children get where they are going under their own steam and are learning how the other half lives. My wife walks a good deal but takes taxis when she needs them, with my blessing. So does my son—and pays for them himself.

I am saving a cool $2,000 a year this way. Not to mention the beneficial effects we all feel from that good old custom of walking from here to there—EXODONTIST.

DEAR EXODONTIST:—Thanks very much. It's wonderful what you can do if you think you can. We hate to Canadians are becoming a nation of sissies. Nice to have somebody proving that we aren't.

DEAR DORIS:—In June I will be married for the first time. I am 41. Is it proper for me to wear a formal white gown and a wedding veil?—JUNE BRIDE.

DEAR JUNE BRIDE:—Can you still look your best in the traditional white? Many women still look young and lovely at 41. You may find, though, that an off-white or soft pastel tone is kinder to your complexion and hair which has become a little less than June-rose fresh.

However, or not you are having bridesmaids counts, too. If you wear a veil will they look their best in the traditional bridesmaid's gown?

All things concerned, you may find that a chic, well-styled afternoon gown will present a more charming general appearance and be more suitable than a white formal.

There is no law to say you can't wear whichever you like. The informal wedding can be a very comfortable affair and much less expensive, if this counts.

DEAR DORIS:—I happened to drop in at a house where the grandmother was taking care of three children while her daughter and son-in-law went out for a trip.

I actually heard her say to the little boy, "Now, I'm telling you, if you are bad like that again, I'm going to call a test and leave you." Is that what I mean?

Is there any sense to a threat like that?—NEIGHBOR.

DEAR NEIGHBOR—It's complete folly, however you look at it.

What the mother and father sincerely away, every last shred of security would be gone if Granny left. The prospect might bring about temporary good behavior out of fright. But not more love of Granny, who is rejecting him.

And this is not a threat she can carry out, so it is doubly senseless. Soon Junior will learn she talks and doesn't act. So he does as he pleases.

She threatens to desert. So he lies. She expresses despair (and inability to cope with him) in saying she can't stand it. I hope Pop and Mom got back soon.

DEAR DORIS:—Who does the house belong to? The adults or the kids? Ours is overrun by little tramps (who live next door). There is not a surface of our furniture that doesn't show the wear and tear.

I say if they can't behave like civilized people my wife should keep them but of our home. She says our boys like them and that seems to settle it. But I pay the cleaning bills.—PAPA PAYS.

DEAR PAPA PAYS:—It belongs to all of you. A mother does more for her children's future by welcoming the neighborhood in for cookies and cocoa than the cheesecake with a spotless livingroom that nobody lives in.

Either build a recreation room or get slipcovers for the furniture. When the children are older your mother will take more care and you can take the covers off. And they will have grown into sociable human beings through practice.

DEAR DORIS:—I must go into hospital for a major operation and am worried about the time at home when I am getting better. My mother will not be able to do any nursing or waiting on me outside of getting meals, as she is not well herself.

Even a nurse who could come in part time would be a help.—DOTTIE.

DEAR DOTTIE:—A Victorian Order Nurse would pay you a visit daily, or as often as you need her while you are recovering at home. She would do whatever nursing service you need, and would bathe you and make you comfortable. Fees are adjusted according to ability to pay. Your doctor can put you in touch with the branch of this organization serving the community you live in.

DEAR DORIS:—Please recommend a book to help me with study habits. I just can't concentrate and feel I need some system to my studying. I am trying to get through arts by taking night courses and a summer course, so I work the rest of the time.

This means I can't afford to waste time with poor methods of working.—AMBITIOUS BILL.

DEAR AMBITIOUS BILL:—My hat is off to anyone who studies for an arts degree after doing a day's work. At the same time, such "leisure time activity" — so-called!—can be a fine means of enriching life and making one's world broader.

Organizing your time is essential. I can recommend two booklets to you: "You and Your Work Ways," which is a text-workbook in the Canadian Guidance Series, available from The Guidance Centre, 371 Bloor Street West, Toronto 5, Canada, and "How to Get the Most Out of Your Textbooks," available from W. J. Gage Limited, 1500 Birchmount Road, Scarborough, Ontario.

Macmillan Declined to Tell Parliament About His Talks With President J. Kennedy

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan, apparently believing discretion is the best part of, international goodwill, firmly refused to tell Parliament anything at all about his talks with President Kennedy.

Curious Opposition members peppered him with questions on everything from Berlin to the Common Market. For each Macmillan produced a collective and caustic answer: He had nothing to add to the communique issued after the meeting.

President Kennedy had wished the discussions to be private, he said. As far as he was concerned, they would remain so. No coaxing by Labor members could make him say more.

Macmillan's gentlemanly reticence both bewilders and annoys modern Socialists. They see his brand of suave and unpublicized diplomacy as a simple way of evading issues of national importance.

PATTERSON TRIED

On this occasion even the pleas of Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell left the PM more him. Surely, Gaitskell asked, the House was at least entitled to know what Macmillan himself had said?

The prime minister countered this neatly: "Discourteous as I think it would be to give an account of what the president said, it might be even more discourteous for me to give an account of what I said."

Dye Whistling Swans' Wings To Learn More About Birds

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — If you see any swans with purple wings the Maryland biologist Vernon D. Stotts would like to know about them.

Stotts dyed the wings of a dozen whistling swans in late March and so far he's had reports of sightings from Ohio Wisconsin, North Dakota, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The waterfowl biologist with the Maryland game and inland fish department is trying to learn more about the whistlers — their migration routes, resting and feeding areas while migrating, breeding and summering areas, mating, migrational and breeding periods.

Such information might lead eventually to taking the swan off protected lists and placing the species under management, letting hunters take them in limited numbers such as they now can ducks, geese and other wild waterfowl.

"At present we just don't know enough about the species," Stotts says.

The Maryland biologist got into the study by accident two years ago. Swans were spoiling the traps he had set for ducks, so he banded and released in studies being conducted along the Atlantic flyway.

Maryland is the largest wintering ground on the U.S. east coast for whistling swans, with approximately 36,000 of the estimated total of 62,500 in the flyway stopping off here.

Stotts decided if the whistlers were going into the traps and coming back for bait, he would put them to work. He dyed the white wings of several and released them with the hope the dye would last long enough to identify them.

Stotts has received reports of sightings at Meadows, Man., 12 miles northwest of Winnipeg, and Swift Current in southwestern Saskatchewan.

Ironically, the swans as well as coloring their wings, but the dye will be quickly replaced by the next moult.

Two other biologists have initiated similar projects in Ohio and Manitoba, Stotts said.

Karl Bednarik of the Crane Creek and Wildlife Experiment Station near Oak Harbor, Ohio, has applied green dye to the upper breast and green and yellow to some whistlers.

Frank R. Martin of the Shiawasser national wildlife refuge at Saginaw, Mich., is trying a similar experiment, using blue dye on upper breast and lower neck region dyed red.

Hospitals Will Crack Down On Visitors

TORONTO (CP)—The hospital visitor who sits on the patient's bed, swipes his grapes under a cloud of his own tobacco smoke, will become the target of public hospital administrators in Ontario.

Most visitors act as a tonic, the administrators say, but those in a fleeting minority have a nuisance value out of proportion to their number. And previous attempts to convince this minority that rules for visitors benefit the patient have failed.

Now, backed by the Ontario Hospital Association, the hospital administrators hope to eliminate the problem with a series of colorful posters containing humor and horse sense.

The posters lampoon the visitor who chummily sits on the bed; others to share his cigarets with the ailing host; wanders into every private room before he finds the correct one; and with his fellow visitors turns every bedside gathering into a family reunion.

One poster has the caption "I heard you like books!" and shows a visitor unloading and landing with a grin on a hospital patient.

Stanley W. Martin, executive secretary-treasurer of the OHA, said the campaign will use humor as their weapon but this does not lessen the seriousness of the problem.

"Hospitals are deeply concerned about the hostility in the situation because of its very real effect on the provision of patient care," Mr. Martin said.

"Those who do not always follow the rules probably mean well, and we hope that if they can recognize themselves on these posters they will quickly see the error of their ways."

"Just a Second"

"I just asked to leave the room. I didn't say anything about returning."

Bill Veeck Bows Out

CHICAGO (AP) — Allan Bill Veeck bowed out of baseball and Chicago White Sox ownership was narrowed to two men Saturday as Attorney C. Allyn Dolight cut his majority control partners, Veeck and Hank Greenberg for an estimated $2,500,000.

At a surprise press conference, Allyn, 63-year-old owner of numerous corporations, said:

1. Veeck, convalescent from a heart attack, resigned from the club after selling his 50-per-cent holdings in the majority group.

2. Vice - president Greenberg sold his 40 per cent but will remain as the general manager and executive vice-president "to complete change of the club."

3. Allyn will retain his 56-per-cent holdings in the club despite persistent sale rumors.

4. Allyn has made no overtures to buy out Chuck Comiskey, owner of a 46-per-cent interest in the club.

Allyn and Greenberg and Veeck were paid "a somewhat higher" per share price than they paid when a Veeck-headed syndicate bought the 56-per-cent holdings from Comiskey's sister, Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, in March 1959 for an eventual $2,350,000.

CHEZ BIG $PLAY

It was guessed that the cash purchase which also said the completed Thursday night would give Greenberg $1,400,000 and Veeck $1,150,000.

"This whole transaction was triggered by Bill's health," said Allyn. "I certainly feel that he should regain his health before he would be welcomed back as a White Sox leader."

Veeck, while serving as a major in the South Pacific in the Second World War, was injured when struck by the brake of a receding antiaircraft gun. His right leg was shattered, and unsuccessful amputations on the leg have been the aftermath.

Actually, the purchase of Veeck's and Greenberg's stock was made by the Artzell company, an investment holding firm owned by Allyn and his brother, John W. Allyn.

Allyn stressed that the operation of the White Sox would be under the direction of Greenberg and field manager Al Lopez.

May Reduce Player List In N.H.L.

MONTREAL (CP) — A rule cutting the playing roster launches the annual meeting of the National Hockey League governors today with the question of reducing the number of team players the issue.

The question arose after a survey by league President Clarence Campbell showed that six clubs have been getting by with less players than they are entitled to carry.

A possible reduction, perhaps by one player, was expected to be considered by the governors. But the final say in the matter is for the club owners. The committee can make only with a recommendation since the personnel limit - rule involves salaries.

Campbell's survey showed clubs were shorthanded at the start of a game in last season's 210 - game schedule. They could, under the present rule, dress 17 players exclusive of goalies and up to Dec. 1, 18 players.

A possible snag in any move to reduce rosters to 16 is the protected list. From the draft, each club can protect 18 players plus two goalies. Unless this limit was reduced, a club would be faced with the problem of what to do with an extra man.

Concerning playing rules, only minor changes were expected to come under discussion.

About 175 hockey men from United States and Canada gathered for the three-day meetings. They include delegates from minor leagues and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The NHL draft is slated for the latter part of the meeting.

Negroes Leave Track Meet

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The director of the organization that led 20 Negro athletes out of the Track Meet of Champions Friday, said he was never able to fully convince high jumper John Thomas he was doing the right thing.

"I never did convince Thomas," Eldrewey Stearnes, director of the Progressive Youth Association, said Sunday night. "He had some element of brainwashing behind him that we never did completely overcome."

Thomas, world record holder in the high jump, and 19 other Negroes refused to take part in the track meet Friday night because of what they called segregated seating for spectators.

Stearnes, 27, a law student at Texas Southern University here, organized the Negro association a year ago to protest segregation at public places in Houston. He called Thomas an insult to his race before the athlete withdrew.

Stearnes said "Jackie Robinson and some of the others sent letters," and that the president of Tennessee A and I — where Ralph Boston, record breaking high jumper is a student-athlete — Boston not to compete.

Stearnes denied a charge by Adolph Pfluger of the University of New Mexico that he and other Negroes had been threatened with violence if they competed.

GETS ENCLAVE

DIJON, France (Reuters)—Canadian Ambassador Pierre Dupuy Monday took official possession of Canada's newest land acquisition — a 444-square-metre vineyard in eastern France. The gift was made by Henri Maire, an Arbois wine merchant who called it "Canada's enclave." Maire promised the ambassador he will care for this land and send the wine each year to the Canadian Embassy.

Defeats Three District Clubs

Quinte Wins Tourney

A Bay of Quinte Country golf team won the Quinte Cup from a field of district clubs here on Saturday.

The Picton Golf Club took consolation honors with Trenton Golf Club third and the Belleville Golf Club next in order.

Individual awards went to three Quinte players with Mac White leading the low gross title with a 146. Garry Bowerman carded a 153 and Peter Jones a 156.

M. Mack, Trenton, won the low net award wit hs 144. A. L. McCallum, Quinte, was next with a 146 and Davy Jones' of Quinte was third with 154.

Playing members were:

Quinte: T. A. Carruthers, G. Bowerman, Peter Jones, Mack White, Davy Jones, A. L. McCallum, S. Easton, Mike Acquafredda and A. Tobe.

Picton: Lipson, Wright, Scrutt, Bastuscek, Goodwin and Sims.

Trenton: Niddery, Charlton, Mack, Yatcher, Chambers, Bazner, Rank and Todd.

Moss Likes Rookie Play

Perry Moss, ecstatic about the calibre of play in the camp his Montreal Alouettes are conducting for homebody, said Saturday at least 20 of the 70 players will make the club within five years.

Moss spoke after whipping the players through a 114-hour scrimmage marking the windup of the first half of the two-week camp.

An intra - squad game will close out the camp next Saturday and the Als will select about five players for their final training camp in Whoopaki, Vt.

Moss said the rise in calibre was doubtless the result of the thorough scouting job the Als conducted this year throughout Quebec and in parts of Ontario.

FINE BIRDS

Asks Weight Not Number Of Fish

HALIFAX (CP)—Dr. Gustave Prevost of the University of Montreal's biological bureau said Sunday regulations governing the size of fish caught should be replaced by catch limits.

Speaking during the opening day of the four-day Northeast Wildlife Conference, Dr. Prevost said anglers should be able to keep all the fish they catch regardless of size until they have a certain weight and then quit.

Some 450 conservationists from 11 New England states, the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and Ontario, are attending the conference. They represent the northeast sections of the Wildlife Society, and fish and game commissioners, directors and administrators, and the Conservation Law Enforcement Chiefs Association.

Dr. Prevost said many of the fish caught, particularly larger fish which put up a struggle, would die when thrown back.

But one delegate said that only about six per cent of the fish die even after being caught and thrown back several times.

Eight Players Involved

Chisox Deal With K's

BALTIMORE (AP) — The floundering Chicago White Sox, looking up at the entire American League, have made the first major move to rectify the alarming situation by negotiating an eight-player swap with Kansas City.

The White Sox, who straightened out their front-office alignment earlier in the day, hoped to settle some on-the-field problems when they acquired pitchers Ray Herbert and Don Larsen, third baseman Andy Carey and outfielder Al Pilarcik Saturday night.

In exchange for that quartet, the White Sox gave up two members of their well-whacked pitching corps—Bob Shaw and Gerry Staley — plus outfielders Wes Covington and Stan Johnson, a young minor leaguer with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

The third problem is Shaw, a sturdy right-hander with a top-flight record, who fell into disfavor with White Sox manager Al Lopez called it "a good deal for us. We acquired a third baseman who we needed, a starting pitcher to take Shaw's place and a spot starter (Larsen)."

Athletics, general manager Frank Lane, who announced the trade in New York with club owner Charles Finley and White Sox general manager Hank Greenberg, said, "We consider it a trade of Ray Herbert to acquire Bob Shaw. They're both good pitchers but I think they'll do even better with new clubs.

Carey, 29, could alleviate the White Sox third base problem, created when rookie J. C. Martin failed to grab the berth and Smith had to come in from the outfield. A sure gloveman, Carey is batting .244 with three home runs and 11 runs batted in.

Covington, just acquired from the Braves, had his best year in 1958 for pennant-winning Milwaukee by hitting .320 and smashing 24 homers while driving in 76 runs. He has been plagued by a wobbly knee but is hitting .288.

Leafs Drop Two to Jets, Marlins Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Life begins at 30 sometimes, and that must be the way Joe Morgan of Charleston Marlins feels today.

Morgan has hit in each of the 19 games he has played with the International League's first-place team since he reported Indians May 23. This is the longest hitting streak of the year in the league and Morgan's 30 hits in 79 at bats give him a .380 average.

But what must be most satisfying is the feeling that his timely hitting helped keep the Marlins in first place after Sunday's 8-5 and 2-1 doubleheader sweep from Rochester Red Wings.

Morgan, 30 and a journeyman in the majors and triple-A minors, had a two-run homer in the opener and then drove in the winning run in the eighth of the Charleston half of their pale game lead over Columbus Jets.

The Jets also took both ends of a doubleheader beating Toronto Maple Leafs' 7-3 and 4-3. Buffalo Bisons beat Richmond Virginians twice, 3-2 in 10 innings and 8-3, while Jersey City Jerseys defeated Syracuse Chiefs 1-0 in the first game of a twin bill and the Chiefs turned around and took the nightcap by the same 1-0 score.

LEAFS SPLIT

The Leafs and Jets split a doubleheader Saturday, with Leafs winning the first game 3-2 and dropping the second 3-1. Buffalo beat Richmond 2-1, Syracuse defeated Jersey City 8-5 and Rochester swept over Charleston 5-1.

John Schaive shook off a 1.89 batting average for Columbus with two homers, a pair of doubles and a single. He homered in each of the games, while Don Clendenon and Larry Peterka ale hit four — baggers to raise the Jets' totals to 47 in as many games.

Toronto played the second game under protest when umpire Dave Pallshaniyere ruled a runner out for missing the bag when he tried to steam first base on a dropped third strike.

Don Lock's two-out, two-base error on a dropped fly ball helped Buffalo tie the opener in the sixth inning and win on Don Mincher's single in the 10th. Bobby Morgan's two-run homer was the big blow in a four-run first inning in the nightcap that helped the Bisons hand Richmond its 12th loss in 15 games. Felix Torres and Jesus Davis also hit home runs for Buffalo.

Dave Stenhouse blanked Syracuse with three hits then watched as big Jersey City mates got a two-bill whitewash from Rookie Fred Bruckbauer in the nightcap.

Minor Baseball

In a peewee "E" Division, minor baseball league game played over the weekend, the Braves scored a 12-7 victory over the Panthers.

Dave Beresford's grand-slam homer paced the Cardinals to an 11-3 victory over the Shamrocks in a Peewee "A" division minor baseball league game Saturday morning.

Jim Kiser was the winning pitcher.

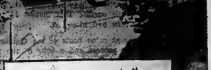
INCO DEVELOPS WORLD MARKETS FOR NICKEL



IN SWEDEN

ATOMIC FUEL FOR RESIDENTIAL HEATING

Sweden's first industrial reactor, now under construction near Stockholm, is designed to produce both heat and power. It will feed an added 10,000 kilowatt hours of electricity into Stockholm's power network and produce enough heat to supply 12,000 suites in modern apartment blocks in the satellite city of Farsta. Swedish scientists predict that heating communities with nuclear energy will be economically feasible in their country within ten years.

IN CANADA

NUCLEAR POWER IS ON THE WAY

Canadian scientists and engineers conducted long-term experiments with several different types of nuclear reactor before laying plans for Canada's first atomic power plant now under construction at Chalk River.

IN THE UNITED STATES

NUCLEAR POWERED MERCHANT SHIP

The N. S. Savannah, world's first nuclear-powered merchant ship, depends on nickel stainless steel for corrosion and heat resistance in its power plant—for beauty, cleanliness and ease of maintenance in galley, hospital, laundry and passenger accommodations.

WORLD'S FIRST NUCLEAR POWER STATION

The world's first large-scale nuclear power station went into operation at Calder Hall on the Cumberland coast, England, in 1956. Since that time England has built other atomic power stations.

Nuclear power builds world markets for nickel

Nickel and nickel alloys have properties that are essential to the production of atomic power. Special alloys developed through Inco research are used in nuclear power plants to withstand extreme pressures, corrosion and intense heat in pipe lines, pumps, condensers, heat exchangers and fuel tanks.

In the search for new and better products containing nickel, Inco has always played an active role . . . developing alloys to fulfill special requirements in industry and the home . . . finding new ways to use existing alloys.

Canada is the world's largest producer of nickel. And Inco, through sales, research and market development operations, maintains a continuing program for the expansion of international markets for Inco nickel.

More Inco nickel than ever before will be exported to Inco's expanding world markets . . . helping to build trade balances, stimulate Canada's economic growth and create more jobs for Canadians.

Tribe's Spare Warriors Heap Big Help Essegian Wins Pair

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

When a baseball team is hot, even a near - disaster can turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Cleveland Indians are a prime example.

In the fifth inning of their first game with Kansas City Athletics Sunday, trailing 3-2, the Indians suffered what was thought to be a serious knee injury to Rocky Colavito. Pierzall, the American League's leading hitter, injured his heel and had to be helped off the field.

A much - travelled outfielder, Chuck Essegian, was substituted. Essegian, who couldn't stick with five other big league clubs, hit two home runs in the first game, driving in five runs to give the Indians a 7-3 triumph. The Golden Greek didn't stop there. His double in the ninth inning drove in Cleveland's last run in a 4-3 second-game victory.

The triumphs increased the Indians' first - place margin to 1½ games over Detroit Tigers. Hold in a split by Washington Senators. The Tigers had to play 11 innings to win the second game 7-6 after the Senators won the opener 7-4.

YANKEES DOWN TWO

New York Yankees climbed to within half a game of the Tigers beating Los Angeles Angels 2-1 and 3-1. Baltimore Orioles turned back Chicago 8-2 but the White Sox gained a split with a 7-1 second - game victory. Minnesota Twins also split with a split, defeating Boston 13-3 after the Red Sox won the opener 5-2.

In Saturday games the Yankees shut out the Angels 3-0, the Senators edged the White Sox 4-3 in 11 innings, the Angels beat the Red Sox 10-1, the Orioles [illegible] and the Twins [illegible] Baltimore as the Twins [illegible] their third game in the last 20.

Sunday were gained by relief pitch- ers. Dick Stigman hurled one-hit ball in four innings to register the first - game victory. Harry Latman, who relieved the wying run in the eighth, pitched 1 1-3 innings of relief in the nightcap to gain his sixth victory of the season. He has yet to be beaten.

Second baseman Danny O'Connell helped Washington rightfielder Joe McClain gain his sixth victory, driving in three runs with a single and two doubles in the opener.

Steve Boros drove in Detroit's winning run in the second game with a bases - loaded single in the 11th inning. The Tigers smashed seven home runs in the twin bill. Norm Cash hit his 15th and 16th of the year in the first game and added his 17th in the nightcap.

Home runs were responsible for the Yankee victories. Yogi Berra smashed two in the first game for both New York runs. Roger Maris hit his 19th and 20th in the nightcap and Mickey Mantle socked his 18th. Righthanders Ralph Terry (4-0) and Roland Sheldon (3-1) were the winning pitchers.

Chuck Estrada of Baltimore stifled the White Sox with three hits in the opener. Ronnie Hansen drove in three Orioles runs with three singles. Billy Pierce hurled a six - hitter and first baseman Roy Sievers got four hits and three runs batted in in Chicago's nightcap victory.

Rookie Don Schwall pitched his fifth Red Sox victory without a defeat although he had to leave in the seventh inning of the first game because of a muscle spasm in his back.

Two home runs by Don Buddin and one each by Jackie Jensen returned to [illegible] Harmon Killebrew and [illegible] Minnesota sweep.

HANDS INJURED

There were no knockdowns, though Moore rocked his foe several times. Moore explained that he hurt both hands early in the fight.

The flat - bellied champion weighed 174½ pounds to Rinaldi's 173¾.

Moore was a 9-to-1 favorite but only very light betting was reported.

A crowd of 8,500 paid $46,289 although the fight was telecast locally as well as nationally. Non-TV patrons of Madison Arche received $100,000 and Rinaldi $25,000.

In the scoring, the three officials had it this way: Referee Harry Gallatzin, 11-3-1 in rounds, Judge Artie Aidala 11-4 and Judge Tuy Castellano 9-5-1. The Associated Press had it 11-3-1.

TIES RECORD

VILLANOVA, Pa. Little Trouble With Italian
Ole Arch Seeks Johansson Bout

By MURRAY ROSE

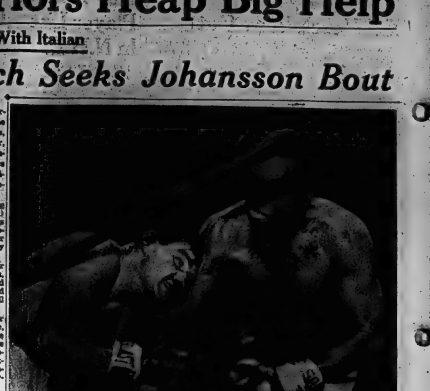
NEW YORK (AP) — Old Archie Moore, co - owner of the world light heavyweight title, humorist, philosopher and actor, will take his varied act to Europe this summer for a series of bouts that may include a climax, $1,000,000 fight with Ingemar Johansson.

The Methuselah of the ring and his agent, Jack (Doc) Kearns, outlined Archie's plans following the champion's lopsided decision victory over lanky Giulio Rinaldi Saturday night.

"Doc and I are going to tour the Scandinavian countries, fighting a few exhibitions, and maybe a couple of 10 - round fights," said Archie. "Then we'll see what we can stir up.

Kearns said he plans three or four fights for the 44-plus Moore, leading up to a title defence against Lennart Risberg, if the young Swede gets by Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach in Stockholm, July 2, and then Johansson, the former world heavyweight champion.

"The fellow we'd like to get is Johansson. We could draw $1,000,000 with him in Europe. I guess he is waiting to see how his tax problems with Uncle Sam come out before he makes a definite move.



IMPRESSION

"If we get past Johansson, we might wind up with Floyd Patterson. Moore was knocked out by Patterson in 1956 for the vacant heavyweight title.

Archie, in his first defence of the title he gained crown in 22 months, had one streak broken. He had flattened the last six of his 11 opponents.

But the 28-year - old Italian looked like a rank amateur against the ring veteran. After jabbing the lead through the early rounds, Rinaldi settled into slow - starting champion, the young husky from Anzio showed nothing but gameness and a post-fight appetite.

Moore showed up his wild-swinging, bewildered rival with an assortment of blows. At the finish Giulio had a bleeding cut over each eyes and from his mouth fractured nose.

Carr Favored To Retain Golf Title

TURNBERRY, Scotland (CP) — Joe Carr, the little 20-year-old Irishman who hits the ball out of sight, was favored today to keep his British amateur golf title as play in the 66th championships got under way on the lush Turnberry links.

More than 200 players started out on the 6,875-yard, par - 73 course swept by winds from the Firth of Clyde. A 36 - man United States contingent, mostly servicemen stationed in Europe, was entered but none was among the topflight amateurs.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

For a couple of years now we have been writing nice things about what has become one of the world's famous nautical racing strips.

She has earned Canada's first Harmsworth Trophy winner and this fair to regret this Clyde Holiday. The prize has been good to Prince Edward's Long Reach but now I find she is an unappreciative hussy.

Sport pages have carried stories of the Reach's "placid waters" of this "beautiful setting" ribbon that has wrapped itself around a world champion with almost loving care."

She is a water wench with which Canadian, American and, in fact, any boatsier who has driven his craft on her gently-heaving surface has fallen in love with

Saturday was like any other spring-summer day. The sky was curtained with an under-cover of haze which dripped a misty wetness occasionally.

Splashes of sunlight broke through as Jim Cook warmed up for his handsome brand new 14-stir fibre-glass beauty into the water of the bay proper. Once out a breeze kicked up a slight ripple but not enough to clear the haze.

Past Cow Island and Telegraph Light, the sun broke through with a promise of a hot day. But almost immediately the mist curtain closed in and a brisk breeze started to whip Quinte.

We turned Green Point Island for Carley Boulter's fine Quinte Cabins summer resort. And we were in sight of the boathouses which smarts sent to the ground. Harmsworth Race pits when Madam Luck reach struck.

We could see it coming, and there was nothing to do about it more than a nursing baby could do. Sit there and take it.

They came almost without warning. Sheets of dark lacy curtains of rain that swept at us like small ripping harpoons. They spewed at us from the mouth of the reach as though the waterway had two thousand rods, each spitting a stream of water.

It was all over in what might be called a flash, but The Reach was satisfied. It peeved. We were soaked to the skin and made the dock at Boulter's boathouse with the rain demons still pounding a reception on endless tin roofs.

But thanks to the hospitality of Carly and Claire Boulter we soon dried out. Five minutes after that fickle wench the Reach was sneering disdainfully at us from a sunlit surface that looked as though many a drop of rain had kissed it.

A lovely, dinner at mine hosts of the Quinte Cabins after the drying out process and a tour of the spacious eight acres that yields the fresh fruits and vegetables that makes the tables of Carley and Claire groan with mouth-watering goodies.

The Boulters have just about everything a vacationer needs, comfortable cabins, fishing and boating facilities and best of all a menu that cares little for calories but is guaranteed to suit anyone with gourmet tendencies.

Quinte Cabins will be especially handy for those of the press, radio and television who will haunt the pits during the Orvic Holiday races. Last year it was a smothered meal of hot dogs and fly sprays at various fare, but this summer Carley says he will have hot dinners ready from eleven in the morning to the evening dinner hour.

Later we boated in to Picton under the sunny if somewhat leering skies over the Reach. But it had its fun shut we ran into Picton with no more weather attacks.

A fine day, a fine soaking, a beautiful boat and a highly enjoyable water outing taking everything into consideration.

Tree Way Top Tie

Cobourg Clips Cats 4-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Cobourg Merchants stopped the Bobcats' winning streak at three games and forced a three-way tie for first place in the Belleville and District softball league Saturday night by downing Temple's Tabbies 4-1.

The Bobcats, Joyces and Cobourg all have six points but the two Belleville teams have lost one less game than the Merchants.

The Merchants took advantage of sloppy fielding by the Cats to build an early 4-0 lead in Cobourg. Saturday. Bobcats had some good opportunities in several innings but failure to hit in the clutch and near-flawless fielding by Cobourg protected the winners' margin of victory.

Turpin doubled and went to third when his hit got by an outfielder to open the Cobourg first. Church, the second man up, singled him home and also took an extra base when once again an outfielder failed to come up with the ball cleanly.

They made it 2-0 in the third when Turpin walked, Church singled him to third, and he scored on a delayed steal play that got the man at second base.

The Merchants completed their scoring in the fourth with two runs. O'Brien singled and Gilmour dropped Thompson's towering fly for a three-base error. Hart's long out to right field plated Thompson for the 4-0 score.

Belleville finally broke the shutout in the fifth when Flori Goegan, the Bobcats' batting star, slammed a long triple. He scored on losing pitcher Bob Green's single.

Jim "Sleepy" Green, pitching his third straight game, gave up seven hits in registering the win. He struck out 14 batters and walked three.

Lefty Bob Green was touched for six hits, all in the first four frames, in going the route for the Bobcats. He struck seven and walked only one.

Leadoff man Dick Turpin scored two Cobourg runs, each on base three times, once on a double, stole a base and played an outstanding game at shortstop. Al Church and Leo O'Brien also had two hits, one a double by O'Brien, while Dave had the other Merchant safety.

Flori Goegan smashed a triple and two lined singles to spearhead the Bobcat attack. He was the eighth man in batting order and ninth man Bob Green had two singles. Ted Batchelor's double and assists by Floyd Crawford rounded out the attack.

Dodgers, Pirates Win

Reds Cool Off Cards, Take Series

By HAL RICHMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

It's time for the experts to start taking Cincinnati Redlegs seriously, Rival teams do.

The National League season is one - third over - and manager Fred Hutchinson's highly regarded league leaders haven't crowded yet. On the contrary, they've been content to let each day "they've won 13 of their last 18 games.

The acquisition of Joey Jay and rookie Ken-Hunt has strengthened the pitching. Gene Freese has added punch at the plate and Don Blasingame has given solidity to the infield. And don't overlook the manager. The managers have as much respect from their players as does Hutchinson.

Combining good pitching, both from the starting and receiving end, with timely hitting, the Reds swept a 6-3 and 8-3 doubleheader from the Cardinals Sunday to surge into first place in the league race, four percentage points in front of Los Angeles Dodgers.

WIN STREAK ENDS

The Reds' record 11 three in a row over the Cards, who were cooled off after winning four straight games to enjoy encountering the Reds.

Cincinnati gave ground grudgingly, defeating Philadelphia 9-4 and Chicago 5-4 Sunday to surge into first place in the league race, four percentage points in front of Los Angeles Dodgers.

WIN STREAK ENDS

The Reds' record 11 three in a row over the Cards, who were cooled off after winning four straight games to enjoy encountering the Reds.

Cincinnati gave ground grudgingly, defeating Philadelphia Phillies for the sixth straight time, 4-3 while Pittsburgh Pirates downed San Francisco Giants 8-6 and Milwaukee Braves split a twin bill with the Chicago Cubs. The Braves won the opener 8-4 and lost the Cubs took the second game 5-4.

In Saturday engagements the Redlegs beat the Cardinals 4-3, the Braves defeated the Phillies 8-2, the Giants shut out the Pirates 5-0 and the Dodgers edged the Phillies 4-3.

Freese was the batting star of the Reds' double-header over St. Louis Sunday. The third baseman hit a two - run homer in the first game, his 13th of the season, and drove in a run in the second game with a pair of singles. With the score tied 3-3 in the eighth inning, Freese slammed a bases-loaded single off reliever Hoyt McDonald to complete the Reds' sweep. Rookie Hunt pitched an eight - hit - ter in the opener for his 4th triumph.

KOUFAX WINS

The Dodgers Sandy Koufax pitched his 6th consecutive victory, all games completed, with a five - hitter against the Phillies. Wally Moon opened with a home run, his 16th, and drove in another single. Koufax fanned 10 men, the 36th time he has struck out 10 or more batters in a game. Lee Walls drove in all Philadelphia runs with a three - run homer.

Kenmores Edge Kingston

In a free-hitting game at the Fair Grounds Sunday, the Bellevilla Lakeshore Kenmores edged an all-star club from the Kingston City League by a 12-11 score.

The teams blasted 23 hits all told with the Kenmors rapping two Kingston hurlers for an even dozen. Kingston garnered seven from a trio of Kenmore pitchers.

Both clubs showed no mercy on the plate. The Kenmors lashed out for three runs in the first, second and third innings but Kingston roared back with three in the first, one in the second and two in the third.

The Kenmors held a 10-8 lead going into the seventh, but Kingston tied with two runs only to have the locals come back with a single to take the lead. They scored singles in the last two innings to protect a lone ninth - inning tally was not enough.

Bud Aylesworth started on the hill for Kingston with Tony Pettitt taking over in the fourth. Aylesworth was credited for eight hits while Pettitt and Pickard had four over the five inning route.

Don Masters led the Kenmore pitching trio lasting four innings before Ken Cowan took over. He gave way to Larry Soden in the seventh. Soden and Vaughan each gave up four hits, Masters three.

Locks led the Kenmore hitters with three safety blows.

Wanted! Coaches for Squirt Teams

The softball section of the Bellevilla Minor Sports Association is appealing for coaches.

Some 200 boys of squirt age (ten years and under) have registered for play this year. The boys have been divided up into eight teams and a schedule has been drafted.

The boys are ready to start their their Squirt Division play — if some coaches can be secured.

The association is asking for 16 coaches, three for each team so no one man will be asked for too much time, and has suggested that they must be that many interested fathers among the parents of the 200 boys, who will give their help.

Convener Allen Sills has expressed fear that the grouping will have to be disbanded unless more coaches can be found.

Anyone wishing to take on the job is asked to contact either "Red" Doran, at 8-5481, or Sills at 8-7091, as soon as possible.

PARSELY SHIPWRECKED

BERLIN (AP)—A family of three has been rescued after a total of 35 years imprisonment for espionage in East Germany, a private Western intelligence agency reported today. Information Bureau Report said the Rostock district court convicted Karl Walter, 60, his wife, Anneliese, 40, and Monika Aschmann 18, Mrs. Walter's daughter by a previous marriage.

Four Clubs In Senior OHA Group

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Four clubs will re-enter the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series this year and four others are possible starters. It was announced a meeting Sunday.

Woodstock, Stratford, Galt and Owen Sound will be back in the fall. Strathroy is undecided about returning and Whitby has given indication it will withdraw from senior hockey for a year.

Possible new entrants are St. Thomas, Ingersoll and Waterloo.

Ted Pickett, president of the OHA, has been appointed senior convener to succeed Cecil Pollock of Windsor on the OHA president.

All teams in the league, which expected to operate under 18 rules, will be eligible for Allen Cup competition except the present champions, Galt Terriers. Terriers hold the Cup in defence of their title because they will represent Canada this year in the world hockey championships.

The meeting decided no club could claim more than five players from last season's Windsor Bulldogs.

An Aug. 1 deadline was set for league entries. Next meeting will be at Ingersoll Aug. 14.

SON WAS KILLED

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Carman Lopez, 21, left her seven-year-old son alone in a coin laundry for a half-hour Friday afternoon while she went for lunch. When she returned, Jose Vazquez was gone. Last night police found his body on the rooftop of the laundry building, stabbed seven times and sexually assaulted.

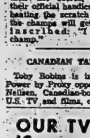
Golf Champs Set Mark For Big Day

MONTREAL (CP) — Bill Kerr shot a one-over-par 73 Sunday and Judy Darling 77, two over women's par, to establish the scores which golfers across Canada have been hoping to beat during national golf week.



Kerr is the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion and Judy is the ladies' open champion of Canada.

The men and women count their net scores, deducting their official handicaps. Those beating the scratch scores of the champs will get a medal inscribed: "I beat the champ."

Writer Wins $2,359.00 On Quinella

TORONTO (CP) — Racing writer Joe Perkins of The Star picked up $2,365.50 at New Woodbine Race Track Friday by holding a $10 winning ticket on the quinella.

To win it's necessary to pick the first two horses in a race in order of finish.

He liked Brent's Reward, Trainer Carl Chapman picked Miss Brixite. Perkins put them together for the big payoff.

On Perkins's advice, "a little old lady" picked up $479.10 from a $2 ticket on the same race.

Aussies Hold Big Lead

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Piling up runs remorselessly, Australia Saturday scored 516 for nine declared—a first innings lead of 321—on the third day of the first cricket test against England.

Between falls of rain which held up play several times, the Australian batsmen exposed the thinness of England's bowling resources. The total was australia's highest test score in England since the Leeds test in 1934.

England, dismissed for 195 in its first innings, was five for no wicket in its second when rain brought an early close.

A crowd of 23,000 saw the English bowlers completely dominated.

"Mein Kampf" Authentic Films From Secret German Files

There have been documentary films made before now about the Nazis, films of hatred and bitterness, according to Hollywood, there never has been so powerful a document as is "Mein Kampf," Columbia Pictures' new release tearing the terrifying true story of Hitler's Reich. "Mein Kampf" opens today at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Nearly all of the film footage used in "Mein Kampf" consists of never-before-shown material taken from the Goebbels archives in Berlin, Berlin, Poland, France, Great Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union. As assembled by Erwin Leiser, "Mein Kampf" basically permits the Nazis to tell — through their own eyes, speeches and cameras, the story of their own murderous exploits, an unimaginable, authentic assembling of overwhelming horror and hate.

"Mein Kampf" was awarded first prize at the Fourth International Film Festival in San Francisco last year, and it is one of the best-attended motion pictures on the screens of Europe today.

Major reasons for the film's popular appeal can be found in Leiser's approach to the subject, it is reported.

Leiser edited his moving and still photos with a view to revealing the background and, if possible, the explanation for the rise, decline and ruin of Hitler and his murder machine. He goes back to Hitler's childhood, finds out the roles played by Hindenburg and von Papen, Hess and Goering. He traces the rapid succession of political victories won by Hitler, in the Rhineland, Austria, Sudetenland and Czechoslovakia. And then, in greater detail, there is the Nazi terror in Germany and in Europe, and in the world.

"Mein Kampf a 'must'! See it if you dare — but see it you should!" says the Philadelphia News.

On the same program today with "Mein Kampf" at the Belle Theatre, are a funny Goofy Cartoon and the First-Run, World-Wide Newsreel.

Pro Soccer

MONTREAL (CP)—The Besiktas Soccer Club of Turkey and Kilmarnock of Scotland fought to a 1-1 tie Saturday in a dull International Soccer League game.

The tie was Besiktas' second in five games. It gave the Turkish team a one-point edge over sixth-place Montreal Concordia and Shield of Brazil.

Kilmarnock now has a record of two wins, two losers and a tie in five tries. The Killies are fourth, three points behind Everton of England and New York Americans.

NEW YORK (AP)—Bangu of Brazil, defending champion in the International Soccer League, defeated Everton of England 2-0 Sunday. The defeat was Everton's first of the season.

Dynamo of Romania and Karlsruhe of West Germany played to a 2-2 deadlock in the first game of the doubleheader.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A highly-polished Birmingham City team of the English First Division whipped a British Columbia all-star squad 5-2 Saturday night in an exhibition international soccer game.

A crowd of 10,630 saw the game in light rain.

Birmingham meets Rhelms of France in Toronto Wednesday night.

HAMILTON (CP)—In one of the most impressive soccer displays seen in this city, State de Rhelms defeated Hamilton Steelers 8-1 in an exhibition game before 4,000 fans Sunday.

Rhelms gave a brilliant demonstration of positional play with the ball being passed from player to player with amazing accuracy and speed.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Jeffrey Hunter and Constance Towers are romantically teamed in "Sergeant Rutledge". John Ford's Technicolor production. The suspense-filled Warner Bros. release also stars Billie Burke. It is now playing the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature also in color and CinemaScope is "The Sheriff of Fractured Jaw", features Kenneth More and Jayne Mansfield.

Ed Sullivan Show Will Celebrate 13th Anniversary

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ed Sullivan Show will celebrate its 13th anniversary next Sunday. And some of those early Toast of the Town shows (the program's name for years) would probably look simple and stark now, but they aren't much different, at core, from today's.

Sullivan's magic recipe for longevity is fool-proof and unbeatable. He puts on a vaudeville show each week—a variety of different acts and a lot of star names. You may not enjoy every act, but no one holds the stage long so you just wait and see if you like the next one better.

In case you think that a lot of television seems familiar to you, it probably is. During this week alone a total of 47 programs will be repeating shows—and it's going to get even more repetitious before the month is out.

Recommended Tonight

Bringing Up Buddy, CBS, 8:30-9 EDT.

Whispering Smith, NBC, 9-9:30.

Adventures in Paradise, ABC, 9:30-10:30.

Peter Gunn, ABC, 10:30-11—the only new programs on the networks' schedules.

Angler Hooks 57-Pound Sturgeon

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Guy White, 41, went trout fishing Saturday and caught a five-foot, 57-inch sturgeon instead.

The sturgeon, weighing 57 ¾ pounds, was believed to be the largest such fish ever taken on hook and line from Cayuga Lake.

White, of Ithaca, hooked the fish in about six feet of water. He took 90 minutes to land it.

Jack Webb Willing to Talk When It Comes to Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shop talk, with Jack Webb—

Unlike the laconic Joe Friday he once played, Webb is talkative type when it comes to the movie business. In fact, he is inclined to prattle along with the speed of a tobacco auctioneer. If you keep up with him, you can come away with comments on such topics as these:

Film content—"I just turns my stomach to see the kind of pictures that some quick - buck producers are making now. There will always be those vultures who prey on human depravity. Thank heaven there are still some Walt Disneys.

Billy Wilders and George Stevenses who can make movies with good taste."

Movie censorship — "I'm against it. I think the production code does do a fine job, when producers listen to them. We're paying them; we should listen to them. We're just levelling outside censorship when we don't."

Message—"Since when do we get off trying to lecture and preach on the screen? Our job is to entertain. If we do it right, business will be good."

Taste in movies—"We've gone too far in delving into problems, films and on TV shocks me.

The great movie makers are forsaken by the public, they said. Now films are explicit about everything—sex, violence, etc. Some of the crime stuff is too far in delving into problems.

Astrological Forecast

Tuesday, June 13

By CAROL LEIGHTON

Ideal Tendencies: Until noon be very alert to whatever opportunities are presented you and correspond or think out the week and means by which you can add to your prosperity by much more activity. Then through tonight you can put your ideas across by contacting with those who are in a position to merchandise your ideas, products.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Conferences with those who can assist in getting your projects across are fine during A.M. Later, dabble in clothes and get those preparations, too. Then this becomes an irresistible combination that brings true success.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Make decisions airy how to handle wisely any problem—that affects you may have, whether of a personal or business nature. Then get busy writing, calling, buying, selling, etc. P.M. See your best friends and have a ball.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Don't hesitate to confide in those individuals who have influence in A.M. so that you'll achieve your aims more quickly. Then you can carry through in a most businesslike way so that your income increases precisely. P.M. Fix throat.

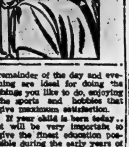
Most Children (June 22 to July 21) will be very interested in A.M. after you have consulting with real experts in whatever field most interests you. Later, carry through previous plans with the assistance of good comrades. This is the ideal time for expansion.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You can make fine new friends now if you get in touch with old pals and are very devoted and kind. Later part of day is then ideal for making plans for the future in a wise and practical way. P.M. Get out for a bit of innocent fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) —Bring to mind the lone powerful individuals this morning who can be instrumental in helping you to get ahead faster. Call on them personally. Then the day becomes almost magical and you start on the road to success and happiness.

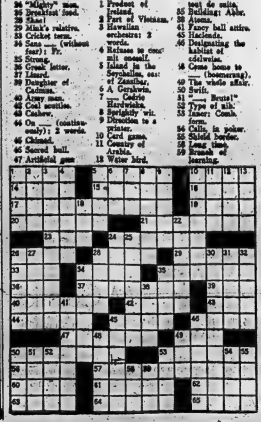
Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) —Morning is best spent looking into new systems and new ideas for expansion. P.M. Have dinner out with powerful individuals and make plans for a more affluent future yourself. Be charming.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) —Follow that hunch that tells you you are not as efficient in your work as you can be, and then be sure you eliminate any errors. Later, during evening you must get out and meet interesting and influential persons. Expand.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Morning is fine for learning what your true position is with key people and be sure you get their OK on any new ventures you may have in mind. Then be very putting such in operation, giving full attention to minute details.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Getting all work organized early in A.M. and then handling important duties expeditiously, will give you ample time to get over to associates and coming to a far better understanding while enjoying some needed recreation.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 20) — Aspects are fine for bringing your special talents or services before the right people in A.M., so be sure to put aside any plans for simply having a good time. Get into the literal work connected therewith in P.M. Enjoy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Give your attention mainly to the desires and needs of closest ties in A.M. Then the remainder of the day and evening are ideal for doing the things you like to do, enjoying the sports and generally that give maximum satisfaction.

If your child is born today, it will be very importable, to give the finest education possible during the early years of life when the mind is open and receptive to learning of all kind. And since the desire to become productive and income dependent comes early, don't be afraid to give as full courses as possible. The education should be both practical and academic, and big business should be concentrated upon, since this is the forte here.

Justice Minister Upbraids Two CCF Members in House

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Two CCF MPs who took sharp exception to some aspects of RCMP security and intelligence work were upbraided in the Commons Saturday by an angry Justice Minister Fulton.

He described statements by H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) and Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming) as exaggerated, puffed-up, nonsense, inconsistent and sensational.

The RCMP work is essential, he said, to meet "a subversive Communist effort going on in Canada" as part of an international espionage plan.

Canada had an obligation to protect itself against that threat and to find out its extent.

Mr. Herridge said students at Ottawa universities had told him they were being asked to act as "stool pigeons" by RCMP constables. They were being asked to "inform" on other students who might have Communist or leftist leanings.

RCMP officers, Mr. Herridge said, were asking students to "spy" on other students associated with the ban-the - bomb movement and even those interested in the CCF New Party Club.

"What do you think of that?" he said. The students had rejected the suggestions with scorn.

Mr. Peters said the justice department uses the Communist threat to cover up a multitude of sins committed against individual rights. He described communism as a bogey.

SAYS SURPRISED

The justice minister said he was surprised that Mr. Herridge —no sensational words against the RCMP without making authorities to learn whether he had received correct information.

"These sort of anonymous, unestablished, unidentified reports which are blown up and puffed up in a sensational manner so often result in unfair criticism."

The RCMP was concerned about the activities of Communists attempting to infiltrate legitimate organizations on university campuses.

"We would be negligent and open to criticism if we turned a blind eye to this situation," he said. "It is the responsibility of the security force to keep a check on Communists and to establish the extent to which they are infiltrating."

WANTS TO KNOW

There should be greater understanding about the security work of the RCMP. If the force make mistakes — no one was perfect — it wanted to know about them so they would not be repeated in future.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Peters had indulged in so many exaggerations and inconsistencies "it is difficult to know what accusations he is trying to make."

He said Mr. Peters had said communism wasn't a threat and then had reversed his position in one day.

"Information in the hands of the RCMP can only confirm that there "is a subversive Communist effort going on in Canada, which is part of the international plan of espionage."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

PLAIN TALKING

Without a doubt, once we have learned to associate certain bird voices with their owners we never forget. The "song" of the singer when we hear it is song. This is particularly true in the case of the ovenbird. The well known ornithologist, a.a.d Saville, Roger Tory Peterson gives "A voice in the woods" as the most important field mark. They that seldom sees but the voice is one of the sounds frequently heard in our city subdivisions. With the accent on the second syllable the word "teacher" rings out emphatically several times in succession, with those louder than the last. No person can very well ignore that voice, and no other Canadian bird-call speaks more plainly.

Though the ovenbird is so important to us for identification purposes, the word "ovenbird" refers to quite a different characteristic. This name was given because of the unusual shape of the bird's nest, which has a side entrance only, the top being completely hidden over, giving the impression of an old-fashioned oven. Made on the leaf-covered ground of dead leaves from the forest, it is so camouflaged it so well that detection is the person who finds an ovenbird's nest.

TO GROUND

The ovenbird really a member of the warbler family, but neither its looks nor its actions lead us to that conclusion. Considerably larger than the average warbler (5½ to 6½ inches long) it has more the appearance of a small thrush. Olive brown above with dark streaks on the white underparts forming stripes. A dull orange crown is outlined in black, and the large, pinkish bill has a white ring around it — a very noticeable feature. Instead of fluttering around bushes gleaning insects from the foliage as the majority of warblers do, the ovenbird keeps to the ground — not hopping about, but walking on its long, pinkish legs, a fairly unusual mode of progression for a bird.

Indians Return to School To Learn About Woodcraft And So Help the Tourists

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Indians are losing taught the tricks of living in the wilderness at a woodland school near this Northwestern Ontario community.

The project, which on the surface might seem as necessary as teaching a fish to swim, is regarded by some authorities as vital both for the Indians and for the tourist industry.

The Larder Conservation and Training Centre, a study retreat on the shore of Otto Lake 187 miles west of the Lakehead, held its first training course for guides this spring.

The objectives were to provide training—and thus help establish high standards for the guiding trade—and to provide a means of improving earning power for some of the area's Indian population.

Officials said the reaction of guides and tourist business representatives was generally favorable to the 21-day course was so favorable that it likely will become an annual affair.

MANY LACK KNOWLEDGE

Twenty - five men, all employed in the outfitting or tourist guiding business and all but two of them Indians, took part in the specialized instruction in aspects of bush life ranging from elementary cooking to moose and duck calling, from map reading to tourist relations.

H. R. Thomas, representative of the community programs branch of the outfitting education department, one of 11 agencies and organizations sponsoring the course, said:

"Indians, through their upbringing, are generally suited to do an excellent job of guiding. But surprisingly, they lack knowledge of such basic things as ordinary camp practices, map reading and using a compass.

"You might wonder why an Indian who knows the woods around his home like the back of his hand would have to bother with maps and compasses—and some of them asked about this.

"The answer is that a good guide should be able to take a party anywhere — even into country he has never seen before. The delegates all saw the sense of this and they really worked at learning."

CHANCE TO EARN

On the economic aspects of the course, Mr. Thomas said:

"It's a hard fact that no matter how much we do to integrate the Indian into our society and to show them how to be good citizens, it's useless unless they have the means to economic stability.

"With the increase in travel and tourism, there's a real opportunity for them to play an important part in the service industry. In fact, with the proper training, there's no reason why they shouldn't operate their own tourist outfitting businesses."

Russ Larsen of Fort Frances, an authority on Northwest Ontario tourist business and publisher of an outdoors magazine, said the guides are an important factor in tourist business and good ones are hard to find.

"An American tourist will come back to a particular outfitter year after year because he knows a particular guide will take him where the fish are most likely to be biting, or where the game is. A poor guide will have the opposite effect, driving business away."

NEED SET OF STANDARDS

He said the number of non-Indians in the guiding trade is steadily diminishing, offering an excellent opportunity for Indians to step in.

The problem, Mr. Thomas said, is that there is no recognized standard for guides.

"We're hoping the Ontario government will establish a standard for guides and have some form of testing. And we hope this course will help set an example of what qualifications a guide should have."

The course involved demonstration by experts and practice under supervision. The demonstrations had their lighter moments. During a practice session on preparing a meal on the trail, most of the Indian guides used prepared and packaged biscuit mixes to make bannock, the traditional unleavened bread of the woods.

ASK TRAFFIC HIT

LONDON (Reuters)—Air traffic across the Atlantic has been badly affected by the recent trade recession and a reference by President Kennedy to the United States foreign exchange shortage, the British Overseas Airways Corporation said in a staff news letter Friday. It said the expected boom in jet travel this summer has not materialized. Many large jets are flying the ocean with only half their seats occupied.

State's Case Against Eichmann Has Now Cost Israel $1,250,000

By THOMAS A. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann, whose name means "man of one million," is still-ting with a remarkable mask of calm through recital of a procession of horrors blamed largely on him.

The 55-year-old former Gestapo officer has given no sign of sharing the deep emotion that has exhausted others in the courtroom during nine weeks of prosecution testimony on the Nazi murder of 6,000,000 Jews.

The state's case now has consumed 232 hours of testimony since the trial began April 11, got by tell his story because he collapsed on the stand. Another had a slight heart attack just before testifying and had to appear several days later.

Israel produced the most witnesses — 86. There were five from the United States, and one each from Canada, Britain, France, Germany, Luxembourg and Brazil.

research, legal talent, security arrangements and other aspects of the trial so far have cost Israel the equivalent of $1,250,000. There are few complaints in Israel about the expense.

SHOUT IN COURT

The daily court sessions have been crammed with spectators. A few lost control as memories of their vanished families returned, shouted at Eichmann and were ejected.

FLEMING ASKS COYNE'S RESIGNATION

Hold Secretary Of U.S. Embassy As Polish Spy

FBI Arrests Diplomat Returned From Warsaw

WASHINGTON (AP) — Irvin Chambers - Carbock, an American foreign service officer, was arrested here today on charges of turning over national security information to the Communist government of Poland.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, who announced the arrest, said 1961 agents took Scarbeck into custody on a Washington street.

Scarbeck, a long - time employee of the state department, had been serving as second secretary in the American embassy at Warsaw. He returned here a week ago.

Scarbeck, 43, is a native of Brooklyn. He attended the College of the City of New York and New York University from 1936 to 1939.

Twice married, he has four children.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said Scarbeck was arrested on a warrant charging that from January through May of this year he transmitted classified information "affecting the security of the United States" to a agent of the people's republic of Poland.

The justice department did not disclose the nature of the information Scarbeck is accused of passing to the Poles.

Arrangements were made for the arrest of Scarbeck in detail by U.S. commissioner Sam Wardwell here. Conviction upon the charges carries a fine of $20,000, 10 years imprisonment or both.

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Herald claims that photographs of secret documents bearing a United States intelligence stamp were mailed to it Monday by an anonymous person in Rome.

The documents were immediately shown to a U.S. embassy official and then sent to the Pentagon in Washington, Fleet Street sources said.

Scarbeck, a long - time employee of the state department, had been serving as second secretary in the American embassy at Warsaw. He returned here a week ago.

The documents "purported to be copies of reports compiled by U.S. agents on Soviet military developments in Western countries," the newspaper said.

It says there were 12 photographic negatives of documents in the package and a letter typed on a single sheet of flimsy white paper.

CLASSIFIED MATERIAL

The letter, according to The Herald, said:

"Much of the classified materials to which I have access is of the highest degree of security, but I did not, nor will I reveal such material.

"What burns me up is the espionage carried out by our intelligence services against our Allies and friendly countries.

"The only way I can find to get it to the light of day is to expose it."

The newspaper said: The Herald reports, gives the location and size of West German industry and gives details of British troop strength in Germany and the location of British troops stationed in Malaya. In the Middle East. A third is a review of the military leaders of the Soviet Union, their backgrounds, associations with figures in the Soviet hierarchy and their views.

The Herald says Brig. Gen. Bissell, U.S. military attache, "Confidential" reports were compiled, but expert officers are saying: "It is impossible to say if these reports are forged till they have been checked. But the signs are forged. The aim appears to be to create friction between America and her Allies."

North Viet Nam Food Shortage Troubles Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist North Viet Nam is suffering a severe food shortage that paralyses the province in Red China. It could have important political repercussions.

The government of anti-Communist South Viet Nam is having a propaganda field day pointing out the trouble in the north. Postwar radio broadcasts call it "famine" in the "paradise" the Communists claim to have created in the north.

Rebel committees "for famine victims in North Viet Nam" are conducting fund drives although it seems unlikely that the north never would accept aid from the south.

Western experts are not ready to proclaim North Viet Nam's trouble a full-fledged famine with mass starvation.

Still there is food shortage and it has been very severe, judging by a variety of reliable sources," says one.

The harvest is coming in, but whether it will restore normalcy or just temporary relief for the 16,000,000 people is uncertain.

VIOLENT STORMS TAKE HEAVY TOLL IN WEST ONTARIO

Houses Set Afire, School Burned

LONDON (CP) — Several buildings, including a small school which burned down, were hit by lightning during a series of violent electrical storms which climaxed a scorching day in southwestern Ontario Monday.

The two - room school near the Oxford County town of Norwich was struck half an hour after the 38 pupils had been dismissed. It was one of 13 schools hit by lightning Monday and which are to be replaced by a consolidated school.

Hail pounding crops and gardens in the Blenheim and Chatham - Kent area in Kent County, damaging tomato plants and cherry trees. A rainfall of 2.4 inches in two hours was recorded on one farm. Falling tree limbs cut hydro supplies.

Lightning struck the Harwich Township home of Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, setting fire to the basement. Damaged a telephone cord of the machine was burned through.

A barn on the farm of Irvine Cole in South Dorchester Township, Elgin County, was burned down after being hit by lightning. Damage was estimated at $12,000.

Two houses were also set on fire by lightning and damaged. Firemen put out flames in the home of Alvin Schaefer in Elliss Township near Stratford. Lillian Oakman doused the flames in the home of her father, LeRoy Oakman at Otterville, Oxford County.

The Goderich home of Mrs. Leonard Cole was hit and plaster was knocked from walls by lightning.

At St. Thomas, two factories were left without power when lightning struck feeder lines outside the buildings. Transformers were filled with smoke, but there were no injuries.

Hydro service was also interrupted in the Goderich area. Thunder was toppled near Rutherford.

Moslem Leaders Say India's Unity Threatened by Hatreds

NEW DELHI (AP) — Moslem leaders have warned that India's unity is threatened by attacks based on religious, linguistic, caste and regional differences.

Against the background of recent rioting over language and religion, Moslems have deplored divisive strains within this country of 439,000,000 persons.

"The forces of disintegration should have checked on at a faster pace" without the unifying force of "some extraordinarily influential personalities," one Moslem said in a reference to the apparent influence of Prime Minister Nehru.

When India was partitioned in 1947, Pakistan was created as a Moslem state. But there still are about 50,000,000 Moslems in India.

Mr. Justice Paul Lavas, commission chairman, said commission hearings will be delayed pending hearing of the petition in Superior Court Wednesday.

Not All Canadians to Get Extra Holiday on July 1st

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

On an average Dominion Day many of Canada's 17,500,000 citizens give a passing thought to celebrate that day 94 years ago when the country was proclaimed a confederation by the British Empire.

Dominion Day next July 1 falls on a Saturday and the number of Canadians getting a special day off will be a record number of things.

Those Canadians who normally get their day off may get an extra day — in some cases two days — because Monday is the one upon where they live, how the local and provincial governments decide to observe the day or whether the union or company feels an extra day off is in order.

A Cross - Canada survey by the Canadian Press indicates there is no set pattern for the granting of an extra holiday.

The survey showed that nine provinces which have not made special arrangements or solicited decisions on the matter will rely on the issue of an extra sixth holiday.

Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland have declared Monday "business as usual" on Friday and Monday. Only Quebec has given the only solid front in Canada.

Throughout the West and Ontario, the picture is confusion is complicated, in Quebec, by the holiday is complicated by the annual St. Jean Baptiste Day celebration—also on a Saturday this year. The province has declared, Monday, June 26 a holiday.

Import Decline Accentuated During April

OTTAWA (CP)—A first-quarter decline in Canada's imports became accentuated in April as imports dropped 8.1 per cent below the $476,800,000 in the month, compared with $476,800,000 a year earlier.

Combined with a year-to-year decline of 2.9 per cent in the first quarter, imports in the January-April period fell 4.8 per cent to $1,785,800,000 from $1,876,800,000 a year earlier.

Liberal Leader Visits Kennedy At White House

WASHINGTON (CP) — L. B. Pearson of Canada visited Kennedy late yesterday, at the White House and talked over possible moves for strengthening NATO.

Pearson, Canadian Liberal party leader who was one of the founding fathers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, had a 30-minute conference with the president.

Pearson, in good talk and the president expressed a need for strengthening NATO."

Pearson left the White House after a speech before the United Nations Club where in which he proposed that the NATO council be turned into an organization with a staff of its member countries, empowered to co-ordinate and unify their foreign policies.

The NATO council should study the "political implications of the fight for the Atlantic alliance," he said.

NEED DEPLUENTIAL MEN

"For full purposes its membership must be important political personages in their own national governments.

If the NATO countries do not unite and increase centralized control, Pearson added, the cold war and the European trade talks may increase tension and trade restrictions between Europe and North America. Even divisions among the Western Allies would make Soviet Premier Khrushchev "dance under his policy."

Pearson said the president also spoke of his trip to Vienna and his meeting with Khrushchev.

Feener Hanged For Slaying Timmins Woman

HAILEYBURY (CP) — Owen (Mickey) Feener, 21, the 11th person to be hanged in Canada since 1950, was hanged in the early today for the murder of a 39-year-old Timmins woman.

Officials at the Timiskaming District jail here announced the trap had been sprung at 1:03 a.m. Time of his death was not announced.

Feener went calmly to the gallows. Officials said he had requested his eyes to be sent back.

PENAL REFORM, NARCOTICS ACT GIVEN APPROVAL

Budget Likely End of Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave legislative voice Monday night to the government's new approach to penal reform, and the narcotics problem.

In less than 90 minutes passage was given to the three final stages of a 6 Statutories of revision which, said Justice Minister Fulton, gives form and substance to the current drive for rehabilitation of convicts rather than mere punishment.

Two hours of debate completed Senate - Commons final reading of Mr. Ken Reed's Narcotics Control Act. Much of that time was consumed when two government backbenchers tried unsuccessfully to give the death penalty on drug traffickers.

In all, it was a highly productive day for which the MPs rewarded themselves a total 12 minutes earlier that the regular 10:30 p.m. adjournment—a rare step.

BUDGET TO COME

Finance Minister Churchill, government House leader, remarked that such progress could mean a June 30 windup of a Commons session that began last Nov. 17. Major item remaining is the 1961-62 budget which Finance Minister Fleming has said he hopes to bring down this month.

Other strides Monday included detailed study of all 41 clauses in amendments to the Canada Shipping Act, approval in two of the preliminary stages of these three government measures:

An Agricultural Stabilization Credit Act to increase the lending authorization of the Farm Credit Corporation to $300,000,000 from $200,000,000.

An Export Administration Act involving largely government housekeeping — giving the finance minister power to buy and sell government-backed securities in the Canada Grown Debts owed under contracts.

Bank Of Canada Governor Won't Quit Quietly

Says Pension Criticism 'Slander on Integrity'

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada said today that Finance Minister Fleming has requested his immediate resignation.

Mr. Coyne said he "will not resign quietly" under the circumstances in a letter to Mr. Fleming's request that he leave his post now and not wait for Dec. 13 expiry of the governor's seven-year term.

In the House of Commons, Finance Minister Fleming declined comment when Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson Reed asked him about a Canadian Press story that the minister had asked Mr. Coyne to resign.

In a statement Mr. Coyne said Mr. Fleming had told him the cabinet was upset by the action of the central bank's board of directors in Feb. 1960, improving conditions of the pension for the bank's governor.

The finance minister said cabinet felt the bank governor had failed to carry out the responsibilities of his office in allowing the board of directors to take the action it did, Mr. Coyne said.

Mr. Coyne said the action was taken unanimously, and after thorough consideration and that the justice department had said it was entirely within the powers. Mr. Coyne added in his statement:

"The minister of finance has suggested to me that another reason the government wanted me to leave my post is that they were preparing certain programs which were apparently thought to be of such importance that I would oppose them.

"This mysterious and alarming suggestion has not been clarified. Clearly I would be betraying the duties of my office to resign under such circumstances.

"It is for the government to disclose to the public what it is that they are planning to do. I have never opposed governmental policy. I do not intend to do so."

RESIGN FOR CAUSE

"It is conceivable that at some stage and in some circumstances it would be the duty of the governor of the bank to resign on an important question of principle or policy, or in the other hand to support the government policy and stand against some government proposal.

"The governor should not however, resign merely because he is asked to do so.

"I continue to hope, in the interests of Canada, that the processes of thoughtful consideration and discussion will enable the bank to continue to carry the past to take appropriate action [illegible] of a difficult and decisive.

Mean while, delegates prepared for a session of the conference at which chief Indian Chief S. Gopalan presided was expected to deliver an important statement.

Women and Children Flee to Ships But Homes Saved From Flames

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A forest fire that threatened women and children fleeing to ships and destroyed a pulp mill threatened the logging communities of Hare Bay and Dover was brought under control today.

Not a home in the communities was so much as scorched. Women and children, who had spent the night on a ship in a shoalt four schooners anchored in Bonavista Bay, began returning to their homes.

The blaze was brought in check after a gallant 12 - hour struggle by the men of Hare Bay and Dover, about 110 miles northwest of St. John's.

Reports of their success came from Bill Ralph, chief forester at Hare Bay.

Stuart Peters, Newfoundland's deputy minister of resources, reported by radio from Hare Bay that firefighters saved all the houses by gouging out fire breaks around the dwellings. He said not one home was scorched.

The flames, feeding on stands of birch and fir, knifed their way to the edge of the communities. Hare Bay, which has about 1,200 residents, was partially encircled by flames at one time.

An estimated 1,000 firefighters, most of them Hare Bay and Dover loggers, battled through the night and eventually stopped the spreading flames.

Most of the women and children went to the schooners. Many others slept in automobiles at sea and go with their homes.

The fire, which is burning many in Dover, with a population of 700, escaped by car. Dover is about 10 miles south of Hare Bay.

The outbreak, fanned by 30-mile-an-hour winds, was sighted late Monday at Traverse Brook, about five miles from Hare Bay.

Peters said it swept through a neck of woods separating the burned timber was potential pulpwood.

Sandys Coming To Discuss Common Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Commonwealth relations secretary Duncan Sandys will come to Ottawa soon, probably in the second week of July, for discussions on a possible United Kingdom move to join the common market, Prime Minister Diefenbaker informed the Commons today.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that, in discussing the talks, the Canadian government has made it clear they should be only "exploratory" and not involve binding decisions or understandings that Canada's attitude would be to such a move.

The prime minister reiterated his proposal, made in the Commons last Friday, for a conference of Commonwealth Commonwealth members. He suggested this might take place at next fall's regular meeting of Commonwealth members. He suggested this might take place at next fall's regular meeting of Commonwealth economic ministers.

He said that some press comment on his statement last Friday, when he said a meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers should be held "if necessary," incorrectly assumed that he was asked for a immediate meeting of prime ministers.

Mr. Diefenbaker said its impossible now to state whether such a meeting would be necessary. It depends on the outcome of other talks.

But he said the government is insisting on "thorough and effective consultation."

Cheryl Crane Missing Again

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif (AP) Actress Lana Turner's teen-age daughter, Cheryl Crane, who is fatally stabbed playboy Johnny Stompanato in the actress's home here in 1958, is missing.

Police say Cheryl, 17, failed to report before her midnight curfew Monday to explain her absence. Detective Lieutenant Pat Hallinan had found her with two drunken girls at her grandmother's. The girl's mother wasn't home.

Instead of waiting for the meeting, Cheryl ran away from home.

After the Stompanato slaying was ruled justifiable homicide, Cheryl was given in ward of the court until she is 18.

PLEA REJECTED BY MAGISTRATE

George Gill of Belleville, charged with driving while disqualified, was released on his own recognizance today when he appeared for trial in city magistrate's court.

Gill, who pleaded guilty, was to have been remanded to sentence but his plea was rejected by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when the young man said his wife had just had a baby and he was the only wage-earning support she and the baby were.

Gill will reappear in court next Tuesday for trial.

New Canadians Form Rheingold Club

The New Canadians of German origin in the Quinte area met last Saturday evening in Hotel Quinte and formed the Rheingold Club. The instigator, Mr. Ed Moll, told of the reasons which induced him to call the meeting, mentioning that it takes considerable time and settlement for a newcomer to settle and become accustomed to the Canadian way of life.

On a boat trip a few years ago, Mr. Moll questioned several immigrants who were returning to Germany and found out that it was not financial difficulties that forced them to leave Canada, but the lack of social contact and comradeship. It was in recent years only that employment had become a problem.

Therefore, he suggested the forming of the Rheingold Club which would give the members the possibility of a get-together, an atmosphere of friendship and understanding, and thus build a bridge to better relationship with the Canadian people.

The club has no political inclinations; its plans include music, dancing, and sports only, providing a pleasant pastime for its members.

Since all present were in favor of forming the club, the following officers were appointed: president, Ed Moll; vice-president, Gerry Brauer; secretary, Siegfried Quickert, and treasurer, Hadmar Gerber.

The club will meet Saturday evenings at 7.30 at Hotel Quinte.

Summer Job Opportunities For Students Seem Brighter

Summer job opportunities for high school students seem well shortly be getting out of hand, many slightly better than this year, but for the boys the outlook depends on how the construction industry shapes up.

This was the feeling today of Cecil Hisner, manager of the Belleville Employment Office, who said if the construction industry was able to absorb a good percentage of the presently unemployed, it would leave jobs in the canning industry and associated fields for the heavier high school boys.

"There are still pretty HOT at the moment", Mr. Hisner said, "but the prospects for summer jobs for high school students look a little brighter this year.

"Most job opportunities for students will be in the service fields for the girls, and there would also be jobs open for fruit strawberry and other fruit pickers.

All high school students looking for summer employment are urged to register with the employment office at once that they not overlook chances to obtain employment.

Many of the high school students in the lower grades are already out of school while in the middle grades examinations are already underway.

Upper school students will not complete exams until late in the month.

Ladies' Night at Rotary Most Enjoyable Affair

Nearly 150 persons were present at the annual Rotarians' Ladies' Night held at the Hotel Quinte Monday evening. The guest speaker of the evening was the Rev. Frank Harbeck, former pastor of the Bloomfield United Church here and currently of Kingsway United Church, Ottawa.

Mr. Harbeck told Belleville students graduate spoke on the responsibilities of adults, especially parents and grandparents, in providing children with a sound sense of direction and firm moral values in order that they might stand on their own two feet during their adult years.

This foundation would have to be one which would stand up to the trends and problems of almost any situation and any place in the world, the former RCAF World War II Chaplain suggested, since it was impossible to predict with any degree of accuracy just what the future lifework of a child would be or what kind of place in the world might be when he matured.

Other highlights said, he noted, that grandparents enjoyed all the pleasures of children with none of the responsibilities. The latter were very important influences and complemented those of the parents, Mr. Harbeck indicated.

The Fellow Rotarian stressed the importance of adults watching their remarks and comments in the presence of children. This was important if a child was to get a proper viewpoint on being good neighbors to others of different races, creeds or religions. Fifty years ago, he recalled, persons in Africa were remote incidents in North American everyday life and often were not heard of until some time had passed after their occurrence. Today the events in Africa come to one's attention immediately and greatly affect the life of North Americans and other peoples.

Children and people exhibit a natural urge to reach out for things, some of which are beyond their grasp. It is the parents' responsibility to guide the ambitions of children and words wholesome goals and worthwhile objectives which will assist them in placing the values of money, authority and power in their proper perspective so that this world will become a better place in which to live.

The adult's goal, he concluded, is to prepare for the children of this generation, for the world of tomorrow.

MANY SPECIAL GUESTS

The speaker was introduced by Frank Mossman and thanked by Jos Tessier and Rotary president Bill Hurst.

Special guests of the club for the evening were the various presidents and their wives of the Rotary Clubs in Prescott and Perth. Present were Dr. and Mrs. Bob Brain of Kiwanis, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Pearson of the Y's Men's Club, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prid of the Gyro Club and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huson of the Kinsmen Club.

The presidents of the clubs cakes in observance of another year of the birth of Rotarian Bill Hurst, Newt Thompson, Harry Burns, Jerry Jarret, Bill Grant and Monty Anne, Mrs. Jack Vanover.

Musical entertainment was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid, who gave both individual and duet solos of their selections accompanied by Mr. Alec Gordon at the piano. Group singing of the "Toast" section of Rotarian Irwin Gerrard accompanied by Mrs. Kathy Robinson, was also a part of the program's entertainment.

Corsages were provided for the ladies by ladies for the evening, which was organized under the chairmanship of Robert Beston. Preceding and the dinner there was a reception in the Quinte Room and Suite and following the dinner program there was dancing. All present enjoyed the event tremendously.

Paving Defects Discovered On 20 Miles Road Between Brighton and Port Hope

TORONTO (CP) — Paving defects have been discovered in about 20 miles of new road on Highway 401 between Brighton and Cobourg, W. J. Clarke, chief engineer of the department of highways, said Monday.

The defects, called fat spots or pollular asphalt, occur in circles with diameters ranging from six to 12 inches and do not affect the strength or the riding quality of the surface, officials said.

The paving was being done by four companies.

Mr. Clarke said paving was halted last Thursday. It was expected to resume today with another source of asphalt. He said there would be no delay to dig and replace the road surface.

Investigations are under way to find out what caused the defects.

Mr. Clarke said they were not believed the fault of the contractors.

A spokesman for the British American Oil Company Limited —suppliers of the asphalt—said the company would replace any material that proved defective.

He said the exact cause of the fat spots was not known "but if the evidence indicates some technical problem has developed and the responsibility is ours we will not be backward about coming forward."

B-A will supply the asphalt when paving starts again today.

Two Men Save Surfboard Rider Off Zwick's Is.

Prompt action on the part of two spectators who saw the lad in trouble averted a possible drowning in the Bay of Quinte off Zwick's Island at dusk last evening.

The two men, craft hauling the boy's surfboard became swamped in the heavy waves at the entrance to the cove and the unidentified boy attempted to swim the 150 yards to shore.

Robb Burrows of Belleville and another man saw the youth in trouble as he tried to make it ashore without a life preserver and they went out to the rescue.

The names of the boy surfboard rider and of the second man who assisted in the rescue were not learned.

MRS. JOHN INGRAM

CAMPBELLFORD — Funeral services were conducted on Friday for Alma Beatrice Ingram, wife of the late John Ingram, who passed away in Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Ingram was born in Toronto, the daughter of the late Thomas Upton and Margaret Ann Hamill. She and her husband operated a farm at R.R. 3 Campbellford which they sold when William took over some time ago. She lived with her son for a while but had been ill for the past three years in nursing homes and the hospital after the broke her hip.

One brother, Arthur Upton of Montreal survives, as well as four grandsons, William, Elmo, James and Bob, and a step-daughter, Mrs. Dorothea of Stirling.

Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church conducted services from Bennett's Funeral Parlors. The bearers were Messrs. Vic Hay, Lisle Bennett, Harry Watson, Lindsey Fox, Thomas Upton and Murray Watson.

Interment was in Burnbrae Cemetery.

THOMAS SAUNDERS

CAMPBELLFORD — Funeral services were conducted on Friday for Thomas Saunders, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Hook, Seymour Boulevard, Trenton, on Tuesday, June 6th, 1961, at the age of 78 years. A brief illness preceded his death.

Mr. Saunders has made his home with his daughter at Mrs. Wark-ace for the past fourteen years at St. Thomas, Ont., and Campbellford. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, coming to Canada as an early age. He married Jean MacGibbon and they made their home in Whitby, where he was employed in lumbering and later went in to farming.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Peter McCoy of Whitney, Mrs. Thomas Hook of Vancouver and Mrs. Charles Wickens of Campbellford and one son, Aubrey of Bancroft.

Services were conducted in St. Andrew's United Church. The bearers were Chas. and Allen Wickens, Allan MacGibbon, Peter and Roddie McCoy and Iven Vanoot.

Interment was in L'Amable Cemetery.

FRANK LANGTON

Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. T. Boyle this morning at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church for Frank Langton, 48 South John Street, who died Saturday.

Committal rites at the graveside in St. James' Cemetery were conducted by Rev. William McGee.

The bearers were Pat Brunton, Harold Butler, Jack Doran, Vera Goyer, John Mouch and Robert Wood.

MRS. WILLIAM WEIR
Cassecon

Mrs. Amanda Weir of Cassecon, widow of William Weir, 6th Belleville Concession Road, died in Memorial Hospital on Monday following an illness of two days. She was 78.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—The industrial index took a 1.6-point drop on the stock market during light morning trading today, the decline being led by papers and utilities.

Bell Telephone, Shawinigan and B.C. Power were all off, as were Consolidated, Abitibi and Great Lakes in the papers. Many other groups were inactive, and changes were mainly fractional.

Royal Bank, Bank of Montreal, Toronto-Dominion Bank and Imperial Investment all were down; Algoma and Dominion Foundries, and Steel slipped among steels.

On the exchanges index, industrials fell 1.35 to 577.31, base metals 0.19 to 191.56 and western oils .16 to 96.83. Golds rose .40 to 81.75. The 11 a.m. volume was 1,400,000 shares compared with 898,000 at the same time Monday.

Seniors took the brunt of the slump in base metals. Falconbridge, Dumont and Noranda were off, as was Denison. Consolidated Mining and Smelting added ¼.

In golds McIntyre Porcupine was off ¼.

Food stocks were the big losers during moderately trading Monday.

Dominion Stores, Maple Farms, Loblaw A and B all fell, while Canhorne, Wholesale and Sobeys Stores.

On the exchange index, base metals fell 1.32 to 572.89 and base metals .80 to 192.09. Golds rose .40 to 81.75.

The final volume was 2,955,100 shares compared with 2,894,000 at the same time Monday.

The base metals market had a bad day, and was followed with losses among the seniors accounting for much of the decline.

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting had the biggest number of heading the losing list, down more than a point. Losers also were Falconbridge, Quemont, Denison and International Nickel. Gains were registered by Ventures and Falconbridge, along with Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

In light gold trading, Giant Yellowknife made one of the few major advances, while McIntyre Porcupine and Hollinger were both down ¼.

Credits Insurance Act pumping "fresh money into auto export credit—the fresh sum assigned to financing for deals beyond two years and the existing $200,000,000 confined to insuring credits for existing five years after delivery.

Today the House turns first to Mr. Pearkes' Bill C-2, Shipping Act changes and, among other things, Transport Minister Hellyer Diefenbaker's motion to establish a special committee to remove Senate objections to passage the Bill of Rights and the Yukon Act changes.

Monday's attempted amendment of the Narcotic Control Act was by John Diefenbaker (PC—Burnaby-Richmond) and Fergus Reid (PC—Vancouver-Kingsway), both Vancouver lawyers. Their amendment was defeated 87 to 6 on a vote that crossed party lines.

Then the House adopted the original government proposal increasing the minimum term of imprisonment to life imprisonment from the present 14 years. Mr. Deryden said life isn't enough—especially for non-addict traffickers who peek only profit.

At subsequently passed, the Narcotics Act gives the courts power to bypass trial of a person charged with drug possession, smuggling or trafficking. Instead, a medical examination proved the accused to be an addict, he could be sent to custody for treatment.

WAS LONG WAIT

Revision to the Penitentiaries Act was a long time coming. The last consolidation of the act was in 1906, in the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, and while there have been amendments since they have been piecemeal revision since then.

Mr. Fulton explained that one major new provision gives Ottawa authority to make agreements under which the federal prison system would take over from the provinces the responsibility for those sentenced to more than six months. At present, only those sentenced to two years or more are sent to federal prisons.

The agreements, however, are not imminent. The minister noted that in 1931, when the general understanding on this shift in responsibility was reached in a Dominion-provincial conference, it was made plain that the federal system at first would have to be improved and enlarged.

Mr. Fulton said Monday night he told the provinces in 1958 that they still have many years "as it will." A similar situation would apply to new provisions under which convicts 16 or under—except those sentenced for murder, manslaughter or rape—would be kept in special institutions, away from adult offenders.

The Commons day began with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's confirmation of reports that Canada will get 66 Voodoo fighterplanes from the United States for assuming responsibilities and construction of 18 Pinetree radar bases in the north.

The Voodoo jets will replace obsolete CF-100s in addition to Canada will share in a $200,000,000 order for U.S. Starfighter aircraft to be made in Canada for NATO allies.

In shipping debate, Lionel Chevrier, former Liberal transport minister, said Canada has relinquished Canadian sovereignty on a treacherous stretch of the St. Lawrence Seaway by exempting American vessels from compulsory pilotage dues on the leg from Montreal to Cornwall.

Then, MP for Montreal Laurire objected that Canadian pilots opposed the step. But the members for Dundas, Leeds and Shipping Act which included this provision before it came to a decision.

According to the rules of the bank's pension fund a special pension has always been provided to the retiring deputy governor immediately on termination of service.

Robt. Burrowes Named Arena Asst. Manager

Commencing July 1st, the Belleville Memorial Arena is to have an assistant manager.

The new arena employee will be Robert Burrowes, 26, of 113 Kent Street, who will combine his new duties at the end of this month.

Born in Belleville, Mr. Burrowes was educated here and subsequently worked as a barber at the Ed Patrick Barber Shop in the city. Currently he is manager of the Dominion Grocery Store in Picton.

Belleville arena manager, Mr. Burrowes will be in charge in the absence of Arena Manager Jack Dickson.

FLEMING QUESTIONED

In the Commons Mr. Fleming explained that one reason for Mr. Coyne's statement by Mr. Martin.

Mr. Fleming said he had not seen the dispatch and would not comment on it. But he had examined it closely and ascertained from Mr. Coyne whether he had been misquoted.

Mr. Martin put his question during the Question Period. Mr. Fleming appeared startled by it, but replied quietly that he would not comment until he read the dispatch.

Mr. Martin asked Mr. Fleming whether it was a fact. He said the House was entitled to a reply to the question on the rights under the Bank Act. He did not question the right of the House he considered involved.

"SLANDER" ON INTEGRITY

"This slander upon my own integrity I cannot possibly accept," Mr. Coyne said. "It appears to be another element in a general campaign of injury and defamation directed against the government, the chief executive officers and other public servants.

"I cannot and will not resign quietly under such circumstances.

"For the sake of future governors of the bank, and in the interest of the propriety of tenancy in the processes of government and in the conduct of public affairs, I feel myself under an obligation to ensure that this matter is not allowed to remain open in order that it may receive full consideration and discussion.

"I may add that at no time has the government expressed disagreement with the operations of the bank and its conduct under my management, either in the field of monetary policy, or in those fields, which are not solely as agents and under the instructions of the ministers of finance, namely in debt management and in operation of the exchange fund."

Mr. Coyne said that Mr. Fleming's statement to the nation was made on Tuesday, May 30 on behalf of the federal government.

WANTED COYNE OUT

The governor said Mr. Fleming had told him the government was considering what action to take in the matter of the pension, had not yet come to a decision, and wanted Mr. Coyne's resignation before it came to a decision.

For 1962 Campaign

Ministerial Association Asks Education Board's Okay To Use School Auditorium

TRENTON — The question of whether the Trenton Ministerial Association should be allowed to hold an evangelistic campaign in the high school auditorium occupied members of the Board of Education for some time last night.

Rev. D. C. McLellan, secretary of the association, had written to the board to request permission to use the auditorium for the campaign, which will be held from April 30 to May 13, 1962.

Board member Rev. Ronald Reid explained that this would be a town-wide campaign, sponsored by all the major religious bodies in town, for the overall spiritual benefit of the community. He said that the one other place in town large enough to hold expected crowds would be the armouries at $100 a night during the campaign.

Chairman of planning T. S. Ketcheson said that other requests from church groups for used permission to hold similar meetings. He said that he thought the board should lay down a policy on such matters and adhere to it.

Mr. Reid asked why these groups had been refused permission.

"We have a rule that the religious groups must be rated as any meeting in the auditorium" said board secretary V. P. Darwell. "Some groups do not agree to sing the anthem"

"We'd be happy to sing it," said Mr. Reid. "Perhaps the objection was to certain acts in embedding their own particular interests. This involves all the major Protestant denominations in town. I'd like to think that the major churches are non-political."

"Maybe the minority groups think they are important, too", said Mrs. Gabriel Griffiths.

"How do we decide which group is desirable or not desirable?" asked Paul Tripp.

ASSOCIATION OKAY

Board members agree that the ministerial association wasn't desirable." asked Mr. Reid.

"I didn't say that", replied Mr. Tripp.

"We should lay down a policy", suggested board chairman T. S. Ketcheson.

"Each case should be considered on its merits", said George Greer.

Board members J. C. Doxtdator and Paul Tripp were absent from the meeting.

The matter was left in the hands of Gerald Farrar and his solicitor, Donald Gallagher, to "run rush" to come to a decision, by Mr. Reid said that the association must start making plans at once and that the location of the meeting place must be established before further plans could be made

Castro in Transition?

President John Kennedy is reported to have informed Congressional leaders that Khrushchev does not consider Fidel Castro to be a Communist.

This is a point of view which appears to be shared by an interested party, Castro himself.

It is, perhaps, logical to suppose that Castro is what his government of Cuba is, whatever that may be.

What it may be, Castro himself tried to say the other day, but failed to come up with anything definite. "We have not given it a name," he said. Then he added "It is socialist." The difficulty is that there are as many different varieties of socialism as of garden vegetables. Khrushchev himself would probably say that the USSR is socialist, in the process of transition into a Communist state. But this kind of socialism is obviously not the same kind of socialism which is praised from some pulpits. Nor is it the same kind of socialism which, we are frequently told, is rampant in Ottawa. Castro has told us nothing about what Cuba is and, if he does not know what his government is, he probably does not know what he is.

This ought not to surprise us. Men, as well as societies, go through periods of transition. Khrushchev apparently believes that Castro is in such a period—while he is not a Communist "you are well on the way to making him a good one," he told President Kennedy. It is a point well taken. Perhaps Castro is being forced to follow a path which he did not originally intend to tread, and may not even now wholly like. But there is one word in Khrushchev's quotation which is open to question — "good." In the sense that Khrushchev used the adjective, Castro is now far from being a "good" Communist—when he called Cuba "socialist" he referred to the impossibility of organizing the Cuban revolutionary government by remote control, that is from Russia. If Castro ever becomes a Communist, open and avowed, he will almost certainly be a Tito-style Red. Perhaps the U.S. would never consider a Cuban Tito as a desirable ally, but it would probably regard him as a lesser evil than any Communist Khrushchev would call "good."

Viewer's Choice

John Pratt, Progressive Conservative member for Montreal Dorval, made a shrewd observation about the CBC as the broadcasting commission concluded its formal study of the corporation on Thursday last.

Mr. Pratt said that CBC TV shows often lacked "that sharp and crystal-clear quality of the American product," but that usually the Canadian shows were more intelligent.

The more one considers this statement, the more it improves. There is a gloss, a professionalism, about most—though not all—U.S. TV shows. Most, but not all, Canadian shows look this smoothness. They are foggy. Sometimes it is difficult to grasp the point which the author of the play is attempting to get across. All we have to do, now, is to decide whether we prefer, to walk in a fog which occasionally lifts to give us glimpses of surrounding beauty or to breathe the crystal-clear air of a barren desert—for most of the sharpness of U.S. shows is the result of there being no interesting angles to the product.

CBC producer Alphonse Ouimet said that cost is the big deterrent in producing syndicate film-type shows like "I Love Lucy," but that performance of original Canadian drama was as good as any that could be compared with it.

There are here unfortunate overtones of regret that "I Love Lucy" shows are too costly. That isn't the point. As between "Lucy" and Wayne and Shuster's "Mother Goose," is there any real doubt as to which show is more intelligent? Do "Gunsmoke" and "Peter Gunn" added together begin to equal "General Motors Presents?"

It occurs to us, and perhaps it also occurred to Mr. Pratt, that the only person who never has trouble in communicating his ideas, with a sharp and crystal-clear quality, is the person who never has an idea that is out of the common.

American TV can perhaps be compared to a deaf person playing a symphony on unodscore record at full-fi gramophone. The CBC sometimes sounds like a child prodigy who, tired of his formal lessons, is experimenting with the piano. Which performer has the brighter future?

Educational TV promises the first fundamental advance in teaching methods since the invention of the printing press 500 years ago. —John L. Burns, president of RCA.

Russia's Fishing Fleet

Liverpool, Eng. and Hanover, Germany

Interest there is no exception. Russia's fishing fleet is the largest in the world. It is in the Atlantic, the Arctic or the Pacific — the silhouettes of Russian trawlers are apt to appear on the horizon. In the past decade they have been sighted just outside the territorial waters of almost every country in the world with the exception of Iceland, when there has been something more interesting to see than schools of fish.

The latest exercises in the North Sea. There are those Soviet fishing vessels. The NATO fleet exercises in the Mediterranean. And the manoeuvres in Spain. There encounters are far too frequent to be coincidences.

The trawlers keep a more or less constant tryst off Greenland where the Americans have elaborate and top secret defence and detection devices. They are sighted frequently off the coast of Labrador. The rocket range in the Hebrides.

Soon after the Polaris depot ship Proteus arrived at Holy Loch the submarine Patrick Henry arrived at Holy. Loch there were the Russian trawlers off the Clyde.

It is a coincidence that when the navy's atomic submarine Dreadnought sets out from Barrow there will be Russian trawlers off the port, a strictly legal distance — on the high seas, but in the observable limit of territorial waters.

Yet there is a question that Russia's prime business in the great waters is literally fishy. Moreover, there is the sea food business (not only flesh, but edible marine vegetation like sea weeds) which is a very big way. This is shown by a survey made by Professor George Borgstrom, of Michigan State University, under the title, "Atlantic Ocean Fisheries."

So dramatically has the Soviet fishing industry developed in the past 30 years that it now stands third in the world in total annual catch, says the professor. (China is first, Japan second.) The Soviet catch is about two and a half times that of the United States, and is increasing at a rate twice as great.

Now the Russians are preparing for much greater expansion, according to Professor Borgstrom. Already there are some 9,000 scientists and technologists in the industry and more than 40 research stations and groups, some of them with big staffs.

There are at least 24 factory ships, with commodious freezing and processing facilities and some 9,000 tons. These are closely modelled on the British Fairtry class, built during the war. Britain has still only one factory ship in the Fairtry mould which operates with trawler fleets from east coast ports.

A further 70 factory ships, each of 3,700 tons, are now building for Russia's fleet. And there are about 200 canning factories in the U.S.S.R.—far more than Canada, Norway and France can count between them.

Russian fishing nets are being made in the Soviet Zone of Germany. It is reckoned that 150 to 200 Soviet trawlers, according to Lloyd's and other ships, fished off the Shetlands in 1959, compared with 1956-60. Some 180 more vessels are carrying crews estimated to total 5,000 are now operating on the Newfoundland Banks.

Of course the Russians have an enormous appetite for sea food to satisfy. It is an appetite much greater than that of the rest of the West. Professor Borgstrom states that no fewer than 200 species of fish are caught in Russia compared with 120 in the case of Canada and only 36 in the case of Britain.

But it is clear that Russia's aim is to catch much more than it needed for home consumption. And this could gravely threaten the British industry whose traditional fishing waters are overlooked by the Russians. Already millions of the results of agreements over Scandinavian and Icelandic territorial waters.

Furthermore, there are limits to the teeming millions of fish in the sea. The more trawlers there are in operation, the more vital it is to reach some sort of international agreement on conservation measures. And the Russians have never been known to show any real desire to make international pacts on any kind.

These Russian trawlers could be regarded a peaceful menace to Britain in going about their lawful business than they do polluting the ashlessness bound in and out of Holy Loch.

Reds Coming To B.C. Coast?

Vancouver Sun

Large-scale invasion of B.C.'s coast by Russian fishing fleets is only a few years away.

Unless present calculations are wrong, the Russian trawlers will be riding the "anvil" off the mouths of our inlets within another five years. They'll be taking fish without regard to our conservation laws and undercutting the economics of B.C.'s entire fishing industry.

This report from Capt. G. Kulikov, Russian observer at the North Pacific fisheries conference, made it plain that Russia is greatly interested in coming right into the North Pacific from the Bering Sea.

Pacific from the Bering Sea.

Unless Canada takes early action to claim a 12-mile fishing limit off our coasts, the Russian fleet will be operating as soon be in Hecate Strait and even in the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

Russian ships are moving in everywhere.

Federal Fisheries Minister Jaques MacLean said this week that the Russian fleets are now off the Newfoundland coast. They're not in our territorial waters. But that doesn't mean much because under existing international law the territorial limit is three miles.

The Russians are in the Antarctic whaling industry.

Their great factory ships have shown up off the Union of South Africa and Southwest Africa.

In two years, according to Senator Reid of New Westminster, the Russian catch from all sources has risen by 50 per cent. Only Japan surpasses this. Canada's catch in this period has stood still.

The Russians are frankly seeking to double their catch from 6,438,000 metric tons by 1965. This will make it the largest fishing nation.

They are building scores of factory ships. Many of these ships are coming out of German and British yards, — the largest and most modern vessels which have already appeared off South Africa in long distance fishing while at sea.

Canada's problem, like that of many other small nations engaged in fishing, is conservation of the fish supply. And for this reason it needs a 12-mile limit.

But Russia is not bound to consider us.

It is not a member of the North Pacific fisheries treaty, which binds the U.S., Canada and Japan, to conservation measures.

It can fish quite legally, as things now are, two hoots and a holler from our shores.

Senator Reid points out that Russia has already had explorers over most of the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Their mother ships send gunboats to chase these vessels away, even though they must be mapping our coasts for deadlier purposes than delivering us an economic lesson.

Such as lining up supply facilities for rocket-firing submarines.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

"PRAYING WHILE WORKING"

One of the most famous schools in England, Rugby School, has the Latin motto, "Grando laborandu," which might be translated as "Prayful while working." This motto is probably in a very good motto for the dedication of any school or institution. It might also be an excellent motto for all workers.

"Praying while working" suggests two important things about our work. One is that it is worth doing. It ought to be done in a spirit of prayer. If it is worth of a kind not suitable to that spirit, then probably it is not worth doing. Anything that we should not even be done at all. But if our business or profession makes some contribution to the welfare and functioning of society, then we ought to go about it prayfully—in a spirit of dedication and sincere desire to do it well as we can, to put the best of ourselves into it.

Another point of which this motto reminds us is that worthwhile work is best done with one voice. Giving the best we can to a good cause is one way of promising God that we are trying to do His will and of thanking Him for the opportunity so to dedicate ourselves. Both the promises and the thanks are prayers.

Religion's Message: Love Man

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"You can't order somebody to love somebody else," said my friend in a discussion we were having. "Love isn't something you can turn on and off like a faucet."

If this were true, then the whole moral basis of the Bible would collapse — for, in the Old Testament, we are ordered to love our enemies; and, in the New Testament, we are expressly tells us that the commandment to love (God and man) is the basis of the code of human conduct.

Either the earliest sages and prophets were wrong — and I were than wrong — stupid), or else we misunderstand what is meant in our kind of what "love" is.

I remember talking with a man some years ago. She said of her husband: "I simply don't just don't like him one bit!" I asked her why, somewhat indignantly. "You know you're supposed to love your fellow man." "I'm not," she said, "I don't have to like him." "Look," I said, "love is a feeling, an emotion, but it is not. "Liking" is a feeling and an emotion — and, of course, we cannot fully control our likes and dislikes. But love is not a feeling, it is a decision, a moral act of temperament, background and a lot of accidental qualities that have the ability to change.

The feeling, after all, is something that comes and goes; it may be strong today and weak tomorrow. Most romantic love is not love at all, but a feeling that will change. The difference or disgust when the situation is different. Romantic love is a great inhibitor of love and its dangerous counterfeit.

Love is not a feeling at all — the will, not a feeling. It may sound strange to some ears, but

READY FOR LAUNCHING — Twelve-ton 43-foot yawl built by W. S. Rhodenhiser, South Herchimer Ave., is seen almost ready for launching. Built for a local owner, the boat when completed will carry two 55-foot masts and will sleep six persons. The craft type is one of the fastest for this size boat.

12-Ton Yawl Nearly Ready For Launching at Yard Here

Boatbuilding technique learned in the Maritimes is paying off for W. S. Rhodenhiser of this city who is continuing his craft on the inland water of the Bay of Quinte.

Currently, at his south Herchimer boat works, Mr. Rhodenhiser is putting the finishing touches on a 12-ton, 43-foot two-masted yawl being built for a local owner. The sleek sailing craft will be launched later this week, following which it will be fitted with masts.

Sailing craft are not the only type boats built at the local boat building yard. Two cabin cruiser type craft are also in varying stages of completion and are known to be Minnehoi.

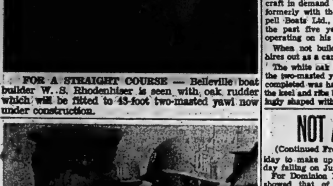
Mr. Rhodenhiser specializes in pleasure craft because, as he put sit, "they are the only type of craft in demand here." He was formerly with the R. A. Chappell Boats Ltd., here, but for the past five years has been operating on his own.

When not building boats, he hires out as a carpenter.

The white ash framework for the two-masted yawl now being completed was hand hewn, with the keel and the ribs being palstakbugly shaped with an axe.

The keel was started last January and the craft has since taken the full time of two men. The hardwood chips cut in forming the keel, and ribs were burned in a huge woodburning stove to keep the boat works warm during the winter months.

"It was a good thing we started in the winter," noted Mr. Rhodenhiser. "Cutting the keel and ribs from solid oak was no mean task."



Double mahogany planking covers the craft. Plans called for teakwood planking but the owner decided on mahogany instead. Four tons of lead ballast have gone into the keel.

WILL SLEEP SIX

The owner will supply the two 55-foot masts himself. When completely outfitted the sailing yawl will sleep six.

The craft will be fitted with a 25 horsepower motor "for docking purposes."

Another craft built by Mr. Rhodenhiser, and almost ready for delivery to its Trenton owner, is a Cape Isle cabin cruiser, a type used almost exclusively on the East Coast. The craft, weighing close to five tons, is built in the seat for cruising pleasure and commercial use.

FOR A STRAIGHT COURSE — Belleville boat builder W. S. Rhodenhiser is seen with oak rudder which will be fitted to 43-foot two-masted yawl now under construction.

day to make up for that holiday falling on June 24.

For Dominion Day, a survey showed that of 400 firms in Montreal, 308 will celebrate Monday and 40 will declare Friday a day off.

Of 240 Ontario companies polled, 44 per cent will grant Monday with pay, 35 per cent plan no other holiday but Saturday, 12 per cent will have a Friday day off with pay, five per cent will work a regular week and four per cent have made other arrangements.

Ontario government offices will close Monday but Toronto city hall will carry on as usual.

The British Columbia government will observe Saturday. Several B.C. branches of Canada-wide companies will close Monday, some on Friday, while most banks and retail stores follow the government.

Saturday also appears to have the edge in Alberta, although provincial government offices will close Monday along with many smaller stores and some manufacturers. Some companies will close Friday.

In Saskatchewan the problem is somewhat simplified by the fact that Monday is a regular closing day for Regina stores, since this means a closing of July 1-3, however, most plan to stay open June 24—a Monday. Provincial employees will be off Monday, July 3.

Manitoba's government and most stores and manufacturers will celebrate Saturday, although some companies plan to give Friday or Monday off.

In a survey conducted last year by the federal labor department most companies reported that in the case of a holiday falling on a Saturday their policy was to just let it go at that, without extra pay or extra days off. The second most popular policy was to give a working day off with pay.

Algerian Peace Talks Get Down To Bargaining

By GILBERT SEDGWICK

EVIAN, France (Reuters) — Talks aimed at ending the 6½-year Algerian insurrection got down to hard bargaining here today after a weekend recess marked by the worst violence in Algeria itself since the peace parley began, three weeks ago.

At least 17 persons were killed in Algeria during the weekend and an estimated 30 persons were injured. Most of the dead were victims of Moslem insurgents.

Monday, six persons were killed and nine injured in a new outbreak of gun, bomb and knife attacks in Algeria's three biggest cities—Algiers, Oran and Constantine.

In Paris early today, at least 19 persons were injured when an explosion badly damaged a hotel, inhabited by Moslems and Africans, police reported.

HARD BARGAINING

The big problems in the talks between French negotiators and a delegation from the Algerian provisional government now in this Alpine resort town was how to get down to a give-and-take basis.

Up to now both sides have stood pat on their first positions on the issues concerning Algerian self-determination.

President Charles de Gaulle conferred for 45 minutes in Paris Monday night with Louis Joxe, Algerian affairs minister and head of the French delegation here.

No details were divulged but French officials in Paris made no secret of mounting concern over the lack of progress in the negotiations.

But despite the apparent deadlock there was no inclination on either side to admit failure.

DECLARED TRUCE

There is only one week to go before France reviews what will then be the one-month-old unilateral cease-fire in Algeria. France declared the truce when the talks opened here May 20 in an effort to ease the atmosphere, but the insurgents have refused the cease-fire a propaganda move.

A major stumbling block in the negotiations has been the future of the oil-rich Sahara Desert. The insurgents regard it as an integral part of an independent Algeria which must be included in any self-determination referendum in the territory.

But the French, who have established the Sahara separately from Algeria since 1957, have so far been adamant on treating it separately.

Other major issues include guarantees to French settlers, the issue of French military bases, machinery for ensuring free and fair voting in any self-determination referendum and future relations between an independent Algeria and France.

Elusive Papalia Arrested on Assault Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Johnny Papalia, elusive defendant in the Hanes knuckles-iron pipe beating of Toronto gambler Ab Bluestein, was arrested early today on a street here after failing to turn up Monday for a court hearing.

The Hamilton gambler, also wanted on a drug smuggling charge in the United States, was picked up on a bench warrant issued by Magistrate Thomas Hanes on Monday after his failure to appear on a charge of assaulting Bluestein.

Bluestein was beaten up by several men in view of scores of patrons in a night club here March 31, apparently in a tussle for power in gambling operations.

None of the witnesses would talk until brought before a judicial inquiry held in private. Eventually, Papalia, 31, was charged along with Frank Marchildon, 40, Fred Osborne, 36, and Jack Weeres, 32, all of Toronto. They are accused of assault occasioning bodily harm, and two other men are charged with possessing offensive weapons.

Papalia, sometimes known as Johnny Pops, was out on $2,000 bail when the case came before Magistrate Hanes Monday. The other five appeared, but the court was adjourned a couple of times to await the appearance of the Hamilton man after getting word that he was due in momentarily. He did not turn up.

The magistrate adjourned the hearing to June 26 and ordered Papalia's bail forfeited.

He is one of four Toronto men charged in the United States in connection with a dope smuggling ring alleged to have imported $7,000,000 worth of heroin into that country since 1958.

The other three were picked up recently and ordered extradited to the U.S. after a hearing here. Papalia was still wanted on that charge.

India, Pakistan Dispute Over Beautiful Kashmir Reaches Bitterness Stage

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

KARACHI (AP)—The dispute between India and Pakistan over the beautiful mountain state of Kashmir appears to have reached a new pitch of bitterness in Pakistan.

It is a bitterness born out of frustration. India holds the most important part of Kashmir. Pakistan's hopes of getting it, once optimistically alive, are now smouldering in pessimism.

The government of the part of Kashmir Pakistan controls, along with Moslem political organizations, has been talking about stirring up trouble in hopes of changing the unfavorable status quo.

The Indian government appears generally content to let things remain as they are, although it claims the Pakistani part of Kashmir.

The dispute arises from the division of British India in 1947 into India, a predominantly Hindu nation, and Pakistan, created for Moslems. Princely states loosely attached to British India were to have the choice of which nation to join.

The princely state of Jammu and Kashmir in the western end of the Himalayan mountains was ruled by a Hindu but its population of more than 4,000,000 was about three - fourths Moslem.

UN ENDED FIGHTING

The Kashmir dispute arranged cease-fire in Kashmir after more than a year of fighting. The line after the cease-fire the state. India holds more than 80 per cent of the population and the most desirable valleys. Pakistan has an impoverished western strip and the mountainous north.

The United Nations agreement provided for withdrawal of Pakistani and some Indian troops, and a plebiscite to determine the country the people prefer. The plebiscite has never been held.

The second biggest dispute between the two countries, division of Indus River waters, was solved last fall under World Bank auspices. This created a glow of good feeling.

But the only Kashmir solution that would be acceptable to Pakistan means gaining possession of the central valley of Kashmir. India's Prime Minister Nehru has no intention of giving it up, refusing to permit a plebiscite.

A Pakistani invasion of Kashmir, with or without weapons, is considered unlikely. But both Pakistan and India will continue to face each other as enemies, wasting "money and energy that could go into badly needed economic development."

WINDSOR (CP) — Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario and Governor John B. Swainson of Michigan were made honorary citizens of Windsor Monday at an international banquet.

Orangeville Is Used as Guinea Pig for PSI

ORANGEVILLE (CP)—Physicians Services Incorporated, Ontario's doctor-sponsored prepaid medical plan, has finally found in this town of 4,000 the communal guinea pig it has been seeking for months.

Results of a study of Orangeville, 30 miles northwest of Toronto, will help PSI decide whether coverage can be offered to Ontario citizens on an individual basis, regardless of age or health.

Currently, initial coverage must be through a group. The only individuals able are those who have left their groups through reasons such as a change of employment.

Difficulty locating a guinea pig came because PSI could not just hand out cards. The plan required a population between 3,000 and 5,000 which would be representative of a typical Ontario population, free of the constant health - checked company towns.

Other requisites were reasonable prosperity, hospital and medical facilities and full cooperation of civic groups and doctors.

Orangeville's eight doctors are staunchly supporting the experiment and in response to a campaign to enroll 85 per cent of the populace in the Orangeville Community Group, 40 per cent are already behind them.

WANTS WAR DECLARED

WASHINGTON (AP)—A New York congressman called Monday for a formal declaration of war against Red China to assist the Communist parties of the world. Representative John R. Pillion (Rep. N.Y.) introduced a resolution to have Congress declare that a state of war exists between the United States and the 36,000,000 Communists in 86 nations.

W.A., W.M.S. Hear Talk on "Church Unity"

A joint meeting of W.A. and W.M.S. of Tabernacle Church was held recently in the ladies' parlor, with Mrs. F. Osland, president of W.M.S. presiding at first part of meeting.

It was decided to pack bale for Sister Kenny on June 5; also to visit Home for Aged this month. Transportation by car to be arranged by members.

A letter from Miss Joan Dee, missionary for prayer in Edmonton, was read. In this letter Miss Dee told how pleased she was to receive letters from members. Miss Dee also spoke of some of the work done in All People's Mission in Edmonton: they support two nurses, also employed, provide dinners on special occasions, Christmas party played; keep a store, with special prices for those with low income and do many other helpful deeds.

Mrs. Kerr president of W.A. had charge of second part of meeting. The devotion, was taken from the 67th psalm and read the scripture, John 10:7-16.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Middleton who took as her topic, "The Ecumenical Movement". In 1910 300 churches of different creeds and colors joined in what is known as "Council of Churches". The bond of union in these churches is "Allegiance of Jesus Christ".

Nearly all Protestant churches have joined the Council of Churches. At one memorial service there were 1,000 delegates. Racial prejudices were forgotten there, as "In Christ There Is No East or West".

The speaker emphasized the priority of time: "We should put first things first. If an amusements interfere with our church work then church work should come first.

A letter was read from Victor Mission in Toronto thanking group for donation received recently.

After the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed.

Checked cotton in tablecloth checks of green and white, red and white, makes a charming dress for the young junior. White eyelet embroidery goes around the neck and down the front, which is buttoned from neck to hem.

The fitted bodice and gathered skirt is perfect for a teenager, the long sleeves with ruffled cuff giving that delightfully demure touch that is so appealing.

CGIT Work Board Names 1961 Officers

The annual banquet of CGIT Girls' Work Board was held recently at Centre United Church, with representatives present from Baptist, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, and all United Churches of the city.

The annual reports indicated a successful year for the board.

The new slate of officers for the coming year was submitted by Mrs. Hamilton and is as follows:

CGIT camp plans are nearing completion. The camp will be held this year on July 15 to 25, at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, for girls 12 to 14 years.

Laotian Women Enjoying Many Democratic Rights

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Five months now the tiny Country of the Million Elephants has been consistently in the news: War, East-West struggle, cease-fire negotiations, conferences.

But behind the headlines, what is life like in Laos, what is the role of women?

Samith Ratsephong says: "Women are very free. They enjoy democratic rights as in Western countries. They can vote at 21; they can own property. Some are teachers, a few are doctors."

Ratsephong, first secretary of the permanent mission of the Laotian delegation to the United Nations, goes on: "We have one lady in the legislature, Khampha Souphalak."

What about a woman in the cabinet?

"Not yet," says Ratsephong, and then adds with an air of complete disbelief in what he's saying, "but it's possible."

Some women work in offices, but only unmarried women, and not too many of them," he explains. "Even if they do office work, they live with their families. They can never live alone, as women do here, and they work only before marriage. Laos men want their wives to be good at home, not outside."

'NO DELINQUENCY'

Practically everyone in Laos is married, usually between the ages of 18 and 25, and has about five children. Ratsephong and his wife are the exception. They have five children, all under 10 years, who live with them in an apartment next door to the mission's office building.

Laotians have great respect for age and family, he says, and great affection for children.

"We have no boarding schools. We have no delinquency. Mothers stay home and take care of the children."

Mothers also make all the family's clothing, from growing the cotton to weaving it into cloth. Fathers and children help chores are done, the slender, fine-featured Laotian women can usually be found at their spinning wheels or looms.

Although there are many old sayings to the effect women should keep their heads lower than their husbands and should not eat until he has started on his rice, Laotians deny that means women are considered inferior — especially not today. It is only to remind them they should be agreeable and loving.

If wives become angry — and it's conceded they do on occasion — they're supposed to remain calm and try to pacify them. This act of consubial courtesy is called picturesquely: "Stroking the heart with a hand dipped in cool water."

CHRIST CHURCH W.S.W.A.

On Monday evening the members of the Christ Church Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary met for their closing meeting, which took the form of a social evening.

The evening was spent playing games with an enjoyable time being had by all. Winners for the evening were: Mrs. W. Edwards; Mrs. F. O'Connor; consolation, Mrs. V. Gottlier and lone hands, F. Burton.

At the close of the evening the members enjoyed cake and ice cream with strawberries.

The president, Mrs. L. Dancoly, wished the members a pleasant summer and all look forward to meeting together again in the fall.

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.

The monthly business meeting of the Afternoon Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church was held on Thursday in the Parish hall.

It took the form of an all-day quilting with a pot-luck luncheon being served at noon followed by the business session with Mrs. H. Pitt, president, in the chair.

Mrs. R. Godden, Ontario Diocesan Dorcas secretary - treasurer, assisted in the devotional period. One minute's silence was observed in memory of a departed member, Mrs. A. Morton, and a sum of money was donated as a memorial.

Reports were heard from Mrs. W. McLaughlin and Mrs. R. Woodcock, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Mrs. D. Stewart, Deanery president, read an article on the unrevised conditions of the Anglican Women's Training College, and it was agreed to donate a sum of money to its building fund.

Mrs. C. Hayes read an interesting paper under the heading, "Historical Memories," on the Anglican Church at The Pas, Manitoba.

It was agreed to make skirts for the members of the Junior Auxiliary. Other donations were made to various worthy projects.

After the benediction, tea was served by Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Orser.

LOBA 1319 Sponsors Blossom Tea

Last Wednesday, Canadian LOBA 1319 held a delightful "Evening Tea." The hall was beautifully decorated with blossoms filled to overflowing with mauve lilacs, red peonies and white prince, mingled with pale yellow and blue iris.

On entering the hall, the many guests were welcomed by Mrs. Joyce Walker, Worthy Mistress of the lodge. Taking tickets at the door was Mrs. Beatrice Yousdell.

The tea room was prettily adorned in pink and white. On each tea table was a white linen cloth, enhanced with a pink and green centrepiece; gleaming silver tea services on a lace cloth with driftwood on which mingled pink roses, made an attractive setting.

Mrs. Mildred McPherson was convener of the tea room.

PRESIDING

Those who presided at the silver services were: Mrs. Pearl Holmes and Mrs. Pearl Buck, Grand Lodge officers of Ontario East, assisted by Mrs. Marjorie McPherson and Mrs. Ida Rice, Past Mistresses of Canniffon Lodge.

At the serving table, Mrs. Cora Rits convened, assisted by Mrs. Ina Alford and Lois Easton. There a lovely assortment of pillow slips; tea towels; aprons and other numerous items were sold.

The candy table was bountifully filled but sold quickly; no one could resist the many varieties of fudge and maple cream. Mrs. Addie Latchford and Mrs. Christine Wilson sold the goodies.

The home bake table was an eye-catching scene with all its home made bread and rolls. A large variety of pies, tarts, cakes, cup cakes, shortbread cookies and the variety of jams and jellies.

Mrs. Glen Rollins and Mrs. Mamie Milton, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Melborne were in charge here.

After the guests had visited these booths they were served their tea by Mrs. Donna Cole, Doris Pound, Eileen Clark and Miss Isabel Elliot; while Mrs. Florence Galbraith, replenished the plates of fancy sandwiches and cookies. Mrs. Joy Putman replenished the tea services and tea cups, while Mrs. Virginia Easton made the delicious cup of tea.

DRAW TABLE

A draw table was in charge of Mrs. Vera Crawford, here the sold tickets on a cake decorated for the L.O.B.A. Tea. Also a duck cake which delighted both young and old and a variety box of candy.

These were won by: the candy — Mrs. Florence Galbraith; the L.O.B.A. cake — Mrs. Pearl Buck; the duck cake — Mrs A. Gowthorpe and the door prize by Miss Joan Rits.

A beautiful crib quilt made and donated by Mrs. Joyce Walker, on which she made a sizeable amount was drawn for and won by Mrs. Helen Storey.

The members of the Canniffon Lodge from school, to thank all those who came as guests, also those who donated and helped in any way in this successful event.

A highlight of the afternoon was the fish pond for the children, coming from school, this was in charge of Mrs. Mamie Milton and Mrs. Dorothy Melborne.

Women Must Consider Work in Terms of Career

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. her as much as they finest Jean Troland believes it is a woman's own fault if she does not get ahead in the business world.

The newly-appointed president of the Quebec Society of Chartered Accountants considered the average girl starting out does not consider her work in terms of a career.

Often she is just putting in time until the girl she really wants to be comes along. Instead of taking one seriously, she laughingly says she's something else to do.

Her rise through the ranks may be interrupted by marriage and three children, the remained the company after the death of her husband in 1939.

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown Woman's Association held its meeting on June 7th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle with a good attendance.

The service opened with the theme song and prayer. The lesson, found in Samuel 20, was read by Mrs. Fred Meyers and the lesson story read by Mrs. Earl Stickle, was based on "Friendship." There are many go prov but could give his friendship to another," said Mrs. Stickle. It is the golden chain that binds people together, for true friendship is a great treasure. Jonathan's love for David is an example. There are some so-called friends cannot have Jesus for their friend."

Several poems were read, "My Prayer" by Mrs. H. Holder; "Occupation" by Mrs. A. Meyers; "Smile," by Mrs. W. Smith; "Legend of the Dogwood" by Mrs. E. Harry; Mrs. E. Bush gave a missionary reading, "The Chinese Church." A piano solo by Mrs. Alec Vandervoort was much appreciated.

During the business session it was found that Mrs. Curt Orr of Glen Miller had given a donation to the Johnstown W.A. in memory of the "Blossom Tea" and sale was given. Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. E. Clapp will send in the church through July. It was decided the Johnstown W.A. would discontinue through June.

Johnstown W.A. is invited to attend a meeting of North Translation W.A. on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock when Mr. Thrasher will speak on the new association which amalgamates the W.A. and W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada, starting soon.

Mrs. G. McLean sent her thanks for cards received while in hospital.

Arrangements were made to have a strawberry and ice-cream social (with all anyone can eat) as well as sandwiches and cake. This will be held at the Acme Community Centre, owned by the Harry Bros., just north of 401 Highway after passing the homes of Alec Vandervoort and Arnold Harry, and will be held the first week in July.

A W.A. business meeting will be held at the close of this social.

Mrs. E. Bush thanked the hostess and said she had a pleasant day's perform, and presented Mrs. C. J. Bush, a former president, now of Hilton, and Mrs. W. Earle of Trenton, a former member, both life members in the W.A. last year, with small remembrances of Johnstown W.A.

Mrs. Clayton Cook and Mrs. Maitland Harder presented them with pansy planters on behalf of the group.

Both ladies replied, thanking the ladies for their thoughtfulness.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the W.A. Benediction. A contest was conducted by Mrs. Ken Stickle.

This was followed by refreshments and a social half hour.

GABLE CHRISTENED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Clark Gable, 10-year-old son of the late actor Clark Gable, cried lustily as he was christened Sunday with Zsa Zsa Gabor and other stars looking on at St. Cyril's Roman Catholic church in suburban Encino.

Herbert H. — This is the time to get far away from the in-laws.

Dear Herb: — He wants to get too far from them. They're not in bed.

Herbert H. — I must make a visit there myself the first I work for is going out of business at the end of the month and this seems to be the right time to make the complete break away from the in-laws. At least as I must seek a new job, I might as well move a few problems at the same time.

The in-laws are one. Della and I, were married five years ago and have two children. The first two years were sheer joy. I was a servicemman and we lived overseas. But the past three years, near Della's family, have been tough. Another problem is my own health. The doctor recommends a warm climate. First, I chose New Mexico, but, to be nearer, Della agreed to Memphis.

Still, she wants to look it over before I take a job there.

Della N. — Herb wants to go down to Memphis by bus, without me. He says that way he can leave the car with me, look around for work and housing accommodations, and then send for us. But I'd rather drive both down there, even if it means driving back alone. I want to size up the town. I'd be able to tell within a half hour whether I'd want to live there or not.

It would have to be extra special to warrant moving so far from here. Both sets of grandparents are up here, although Herb's folks are up near the lake. I admit that my parents go a bit overboard about me and the babies, but they're on the next block and all alone.

For Herb's sake I've agreed to move away. But I don't think it's smart to get too far from grandparents, too.

The Council: It's a safe bet that Della won't like Memphis, not that there's anything seriously wrong with Memphis. She'd feel the same way about any town that kept her more than a block away from Mamma.

Europe was okay. She and Herbert were newlyweds. All was novelty and adventure. But now with two babies and a husband's health to worry about, there's no place like Mamma's home for Della who'd rather "play house" like schoolgirl. Then "keep house" like a grown up.

Moving away may not be the whole answer for Herbert. But it will sort out his problems so that they can be tackled separately, instead of en masse as in the past three years. It has the vocationally-approved reasons for putting some distance between himself and Della's folks — an out-of-town job opportunity, the hopes! plus doctor's advice. No need to ring in the off-key relationship. That can be his secret motive. (Of course, if his health improves in the new location, the double blessing in his environment — can be credited.)

It's true, as Della says, that children need their grandparents. But even more they need two loving, unbroken parents. In promotioning Herbert's interests, she is being kinder to her children in the long run. Better for them to visit both sets of grandparents up North, or act as hosts to them in Memphis (if necessary), than to be shunted to the older people's homes, because their own has broken up.

We suggest this sequence: Herbert goes to Memphis alone. He does the leg work necessary to explore health, job and home advantages. This way he's mobile. If he wishes, he can switch his search elsewhere without too much expense. Once he has a job and has worked at it for two or three months he can call for Della to okay the living quarters.

The need for a new job may be just the break this marriage — and those grandparents — require to bring back the old "overseas" feeling.

Wedding Reception Cookies

By Mary Moore

It seems the right time to record my methods for making Chocolate Macaroon Kisses and Cherry Coconut Drop and Fruit Hermits that were made for Margaret's and Pete's wedding reception. Because you have been asking for more of these cookies now I am anxious to tell you the answers I made and how many they served.

4 egg whites, 1-4 cup cold water, 2-3 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 level tablespoons flour, 2 oz. (2 squares) unsweetened chocolate, 2 1-3 cups shredded coconut.

Barely melt the chocolate. It must not be hot. Add the cold water to the egg whites and beat until stiff but not dry. They should just form soft peaks. Gradually add sugar and vanilla while beating until a little stiffer. Fold in flour and salt. Fold in warm melted chocolate and coconut. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto silicone-coated baking paper or shiny surface of brown wrapping paper, on cookie sheets. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr (slow) for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from paper at once and cool on cake racks.

NOTE:

I used a 7" spatula to lift the kisses from the paper. You must work quickly. Mine baked in 27 minutes and were a little bit soft when removed from paper but hardened as they cooled.

CHERRY COCOANUT DROPS (6 dozen):

2-4 cup butter, 1-4 cup soft shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup sour cream (sour), 2 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 3-4 cup chopped candied cherries, 1 cup shredded cocoanut, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 1-2 teaspoons lemon or almond extract.

Mix butter, shortening and sugar and eggs together thoroughly. Stir in sour cream. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt and stir in. Stir in cherries, cocoanut, orange rind and extract. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 2" apart onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes.

These Hermits were made by my sister Peady and are a good basic recipe for all cookie fans.

FRUIT HERMITS (7½):

1-2 cup shortening, 1-2 cup butter, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 cup halved glace cherries, 3-4 cup chopped dates or seeded raisins, 1 cup chopped nuts.

Cream shortening, butter, sugar and eggs until light and fluffy. Dissolve soda in 2 teaspoons water and add. Sift together flour, salt, spices and add. Add fruits and nuts and mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes, shifting pans at half time.

MODERN MANNERS

Questions — When you go to a formal (or more or less formal) lunch or dinner, and they serve a dessert plate, on which is placed a finger bowl on a small doily, how do you handle these things? You certainly don't put the dessert itself in the finger bowl! Also, if the dessert happens to be ice cream which do you eat it with, dessert fork or spoon that has also been served you? This is all too much for me! — Mrs. T. T.C., Rochester, Minn.

Answer — Don't worry. It's really very simple. Take the finger bowl and the doily, in the left hand and place them both at top of the left of the dessert plate. It is perfectly proper to eat ice cream with either the dessert fork or spoon, or both.

Question — Can the bridegroom, best man and ushers wear the uniforms of different services at a military wedding? The man I am to marry next month is in the Navy, his best man is also, but the ushers are in the Army and the Air Corps! Should they wear civilian clothes? This is a real problem! — Miss D. H., Baltimore, Md.

Answer — It really is no problem at all! It is perfectly proper that the different uniforms be worn. As a matter of fact, it should make a very colorful picture. By all means have them wear the uniforms of the services they represent, and not civilian clothes.

When should you arrange a car loan?

Today the automobile has become a part of our way of life, and for many people is almost as much a necessity as a comfortable place to live. But a car that no longer suits your purpose can become a liability to your peace of mind as well as your pocketbook. The time to trade your car is before operating and repair expenses become too much of a headache. However, you may be ready to trade in the old before your savings account is ready to pay for the new.

Here's the answer! Finance your new car and car purchase easily and at low cost through Scotia Plan—The Bank of Nova Scotia's unique consumer lending program. What's more, you can arrange your Scotia Plan Loan before you shop for your car. This guarantees you the advantages of Scotia Plan's low rates, and lets you make your deal the moment you find the car you want. You can also get a Scotia Plan Loan for debt consolidation, to pay medical bills, for new furniture, etc.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — When Ernest meets West in the Canadian senior soccer championships each year, there's a notable absentee — Newfoundland.

For although soccer has been played on the island since the late 1880s and still ranks as its most popular sport, Newfoundland has never found it convenient to send a team into the national playoffs.

As a result relatively few Canadians outside the province are aware how solidly entrenched the game is here.

In the Burin Peninsula, soccer hotbed, teams still pile aboard tiny rum boats for the 26-mile trip to St. Pierre at Miquelon, French-owned islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The fact that they often arrive drenched to the skin doesn't keep them from heading for the playing field for rousing exhibitions against local sides.

At one time teams would row across in dories when high winds kept larger ships in port. Now they have engines to power the dories.

IN THE DRINK

In St. John's, Newfoundland teams often engage visiting Portuguese fishermen who play in their bare feet. Players get so excited that they have been known to leap fully clothed into the harbor to retrieve a ball.

The game's popularity hasn't diminished despite television, automobiles and beer taverns. League games in St. John's often draw as many as 3,000fans. And the whole town of Grand Bank (about 2,500) is likely to turn out for an exhibition game.

When the Newfoundland Football League — with only St. John's entries — was founded June 24, 1906, there were about 100 active players. Today, upwards of 2,500 comprise the teams in the leagues at Corner Brook, Gander, St. John's, Bishop's Falls, Bell Island and the Burin Peninsula. In addition leagues operate at the grammar, high school and intercollegiate level.

CAME WITH SAILORS

Prior to 1890, pickup teams played sailors from visiting British ships, learning the game from some of the best players in the Royal Navy of that day.

By 1900 the game's popularity had spread to other parts of the province. Players from St. Pierre invaded the game in the Burin Peninsula towns of Grand Bank, Fortune and St. Lawrence. British ships sent their teams ashore to face challenges at Corner Brook. An influx of British settlers provided a following in Gander.

NORTHERN RIVER

Back River in the Northwest Territories, rising north of Great Salve Lake, flows 600 miles to the Arctic coast.

J. V. (Jack) Rabbitt, of St. John's, civil servant, sports historian and promoter, organized the Newfoundland Amateur Football Association. As president for eight years, he brought the game to a stage of organization where officials were considering connecting the Canadian senior championship.

The trouble was that the Canadian playoffs were being held at the same time as local and provincial playoffs. There was some thought of sending the previous year's Newfoundland champions to the national championships but polling came out 11. Since 1908 the whole idea seems to have gone into the dories.

Leafs Trim Jets 4-2; Marlins Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Orlando Pena of Jersey City Jerseys has done a turnabout in his early-season performance in the International League and could be heading for a Spring training pennant Cactus Jack Sanford.

Pena recorded his third straight victory Monday night, a 3-0 whitewash of the powerhitting Richmond Braves. It was the first time the Braves had been shutout in their 69 games this year. Pena did it in the Braves' own park.

Until Monday night, the Braves had hit 53 home runs, 37 in their own park, 16 in games. But they got a scalding night, lofted his fanned run average to 4.39 with the shutout.

Charleston Marlins increased their first place lead to three games beating Rochester Red Wings 3-2, while Toronto Maple Leafs defeated second-place Columbus Jets 4-2.

Pena, who lost three of his first four games, has allowed 25 earned runs in 58 3-3 innings. Monday night, the Bisons collected a pair of doubles and two triples but could get nothing else at Pena. Pena had 11 strikeouts. Loser Ruben Gomez gave up only five hits, but one was Jim Pendleton's two-run homer his ninth.

Hal Dietz, another pitching surprise, won his fifth in six decisions for the Marlins, scattering nine hits. Fred Whitefield's two-run homer tied the score 2-2 in the sixth inning and Jim Beauchamp singled home the pitcher in the seventh. Barry Shetrone homered for Rochester.

Lead - off homers by Earl Harsh and Ellis Burton and a pair of doubles by Frank Reichell helped beat the Jets. Ken Johnson, with relief from Steve Ridzik, was the winner. Bob Herrera drove in both Columbus runs with a triple.

Vern Law Hit by Arm Woes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pitcher Vern Law of Pittsburgh Pirates said Monday that unless he comes up with a cure for his arm trouble he's been having, someone else may be wearing his uniform next year.

"I'm not helping the club at all the way I'm pitching now," the 1960 20-game winner said at his home. "I want to pitch, but I want to do my job the right way."

Law, whose record this season is 2-4, has a rotator muscle in his right shoulder last April against Cincinnati.

Driven by Jacques Lavesie, the horse from Sherbrooke, Que. paid $36.80, $10 and $6.60.

Second was Vivian Maid, who paid $6.20 and $5, and Reypbell was third to pay $3.20.

WOMAN DIES IN RACE

Braves Learn Secrets

CHICAGO (AP)—Because of a lost worksheet, Milwaukee Braves players are awarded the baseball team's top trade secrets, according to a report Monday in the Chicago Americ...

The newspaper said the workSheet, covering trades and player movements, was found by one of the players during a recent road trip in the team's hotel.

However, Braves general manager John Mollas said in Milwaukee that no such workSheet exists, and "if anybody knew what trades we may try to make, they've been reading my mind. The only place you will be explored.

The British Amateur

128 Tee Off Today

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — With a first round devoid of surprises behind them, golfers set by defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland prepared to tee off Tuesday in the second round of the British Amateur championship.

Ralph Morrow, 27, an airman stationed in Europe was the only American to survive Monday's first round of match play and advanced by defeating Arnold Palmer 3 and 2 Monday.

Carr, 39, was one of eight seeded British players to enter the second round. The Irishman, seeking his fourth British Amateur, easily defeated Johnny Gravell of England 5 and 7 Monday.

A total of 128 players prepared to attack the unpredictable wind-swept course today.

Before reaching Saturday's 36-hole playoff, the two golfers who reach the finals will have to play six more eighteen - hole rounds over the 6,875-yard, par-72 Turnberry links. The final will be a 36-hole affair.

STAR QUITS RACING

LONDON (AP) — Brian Hewson, Britain's European 1,500 metre champion, announced Monday night he will never race again. A leg injury, which kept him off Britain's Olympic team last summer, has not healed to treatment. "I must face it—this is the end," the 26-year-old London tailor said.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Rambling Wreck, Gramp's Pride and Just Don't Shove was the three dive finish in the Prize trials at Neu Woodbine Monday.

Each division raced for a purse of $7,500. Rambling Wreck registered the best time of the day, a mile and a sixteenth race. This was the final test for Canada's three-year-olds before the 10hd annual running of the Queen's Plate Saturday. The Queen's Plate, raced at a mile and one-quarter, is for a purse of more than $70,000 and 30 guineas.

Rambling Wreck paid $4.20, $2.70 and $2.30. Gramp's Pride paid $10.80, $5.30 and $2.90 and Just Don't Shove paid $3.40 and $2.30. On the basis of performance, the probable starters in the Queen's Plate are: Rambling Wreck, Gramp's Pride, Just Don't Shove, Assassin, Trimmed Lucky, Blue Light, Flashing Top, Queen's Park and Cut Sleigh. It is predicted that they will be joined by Maid O'North, which finished fourth in the Oaks.

GOES TO SEMI-FINAL

WARSAW (AP)—France completed a 5-0 sweep of its Davis Cup tennis series with Poland, taking the final two singles matches Monday. The victory sent France into the semi-finals of the European Zone competition against the winner of the Italy-West Germany series.

Soccer Star Looks Good To Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — Easily the best player in the Montreal Alouettes camp Monday was a six-foot-two, 205-pound soccer player from Italy. Is Canada Dan Lea of Windsor, Ont.

He is Ilio, dark-haired Giovanni Barretta. Head Coach Perry Moss says of the strapping, 180-pound fullback: "He's one of the greatest I've seen."

If he doesn't make the club this year he will within a season or two."

With no trouble, Barretta is getting off to a rousing start. Fast reaction and fair ball - handling under the handicap of a cast on his right wrist, broken several weeks ago, while playing fullback for Montreal's Castella soccer club against Birmingham City of England.

St. Thomas Quits Senior Puck Group

ST. THOMAS (CP) — St. Thomas Arena Commission voted in favor of a Junior B. Ontario Hockey Association entry Monday night rather than a senior one.

The St. Thomas junior team, to be backed by local business men, has been assured it will be accepted in the western division Junior B league which includes teams from St. Marys, Sarnia, Goderich, Tillsonburg and London.

Imlach Is Quoted

All-Toronto League?

KINGSTON (CP)—Punch Imlach, general manager and coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Monday Toronto will have a five-team professional league for next season to include St. Michael's College Majors.

In an interview from Montreal with the Kingston Whig-Standard, Imlach is quoted as saying:

"We'll have our own league and St. Michael's will be in it."

The Majors, Memorial Cup championships last season, dropped out of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series last week because they found the 65-game schedule demanded too much from students.

Imlach is quoted as saying three of the five teams will be St. Michael's, Toronto Marlboros, now in the OHA Junior A Series, and the University of Toronto Blues, in the Senior Intercollegiate League.

Imlach declined to name the other two clubs or say whether they are in the process of being formed. He said:

"We'll have a 36-game schedule and there won't be a single road trip."

Imlach denied rumors that Leafs will sponsor a team in the Eastern Professional League next season.

WILL RUN HALF-MILE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Herb Elliott, the Australian who holds the world record for the mile, will run the half-mile today instead of his favorite distance when the combined teams of Oxford and Cambridge universities compete against the combined forces of Harvard and Yale. Allan Malcom, coach of the British team, said "Elliott is fast too tired for the mile. He's carrying a heavy schedule as a graduate student and he will be fatigued by his plane trip from Yugoslavia." Elliott was fifth in a half-mile in Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Saturday.

When all the shouting has died down

When all the claims for tire mileage, safety, strength and performance have been heard, one single fact stands out for thoughtful drivers:

More people ride on Goodyear tires than on any other kind.

This is true in 1961, as it has been for the last 46 consecutive years. Why do so many people choose Goodyear tires? Because year after year Goodyear has never forgotten the meaning of the word "value".

Goodyear's position as the largest tire company has always been built on the plain, common-sense philosophy of giving people their money's worth . . . and then some.

This is made possible only by a continuing test and developement program. On police cars, test fleets, taxicabs and in laboratory analysis Goodyear tires invariably lead in mileage, strength and safety.

For example, in a recent Durability Test (miles-to-failure) between a Goodyear and three other brands in the same price class, the Goodyear proved to be 10% stronger than Brand A, 25% stronger than Brand B, and over 90% stronger than Brand C.

Think about Goodyear value when choosing new tires.

The chances are you will agree with the majority of Canadian drivers. And most car manufacturers too. Goodyear tires, whether for imported or North American cars, offer better value than any other kind.

There is a difference in tires. Visit your Goodyear dealer this week. He has a size to fit your car.

Important! All new Goodyear auto tires are now covered by a Road Hazard Guarantee for up to 36 months.

Habs, Hawks Deal Closed-Door Rumor

Blues May Drop Beavers

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League tightened up a few rules Monday, including a provision to take the penalty shot out of moth balls, while hockey men of minor pro and amateur bodies wrestled with their own problems and those related to the NHL.

It was the first day of the NHL's three - day annual meeting, but there was little open talk of pre - draft deals, but late Monday night huddles suddenly blossomed behind closed doors.

Montreal Canadiens, already in three deals since the close of last season, were reported ready to talk further trades. It was rumored Chicago Black Hawks were interested.

General manager Murray (Muzz) Patrick of New York Rangers said he had been trying to make a deal with Detroit Red Wings "but we're getting nowhere."

Approach of the NHL's intra-league draft, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, may hustle along any deals in the making. The NHL draft from the Western League and the Eastern Professional League comes up today. The draft price in all instances is $20,000.

Representatives of the WHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association talked Monday night, in separate meetings, with the NHL about televising Stanley Cup games on nights coinciding with playoffs in the lesser leagues. The NHL indicated a willingness to co - operate as far as possible.

NO DECISION REACHED

The EPHL had an all - day meeting Monday but made no attempt to decide definitely on a replacement for Montreal Royals, who have withdrawn from the circuit.

North Bay is seeking an entry into the EPHL. EPHL president Ed Houston said talks were progressing favorably and the North Bay delegation would meet with the league again today.

Windsor and London, in Western Ontario, also have been considered possibilities in the league but have made no official application. Another possibility is a Toronto club, as a farm for the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs.

The EPHL turned thumbs down on any further dual control of its teams by NHL clubs. Until now Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Leafs have been behind the Sudbury club. Henceforth Detroit is expected to be the only parent club for Sudbury.

There were also reports New York Rangers may decide not to operate the Kitchener - Waterloo EPHL club as a farm next season.

The new NHL coaches, one of them formerly a coach in the league, are attending the meetings. They are Doug Harvey, veteran Montreal defenceman who has become playing coach of New York Rangers, and Phil Watson, now - time Ranger who will handle Boston Bruins.

DEAL STILL UNSETTLED

Ranger general manager Patrick said the New York half of the deal with Montreal may be completed soon or may be delayed several weeks.

"We offered Montreal any one of four of our players, plus rights to a kid in our amateur farm chain, but we still haven't completed the deal," said Patrick.

The change in the penalty-shot rule was the most important made by the NHL rules committee Monday. Essentially a penalty shot now will be called when a player prevents "a reasonably scoring opportunity" by coming from behind and committing a foul in the attacking zone.

Before the change, the rule specified prevention of a clear shot on goal.

It is expected the penalty shot will be scarcely once a season in the last 10 years; now will be awarded more frequently by referees.

As a move to lessen stoppages in play the committee decided referees henceforth must not be too quick with the whistle when a goalie catches the puck. The idea is to make the goalie get rid of the puck and play it before expiration of the three seconds allowed.

The committee also approved several minor changes or clarifications.

The CAHA wanted the pros to approve a proposal calling for stoppage of play the instant a player crosses the red line on an icing call, instead of when a defending player touches the puck.

The proposal was turned down flat by the pros, but the CAHA was told it could make the change for its own senior and intermediate leagues if it wishes.

Impersonated Policeman?

Law Brush May End Liston Hopes

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Top heavyweight contender Sonny Liston was charged Monday with what may have been the knock-out blow to his hopes for a championship fight — a charge that he impersonated a police-man.

It was the latest in a long series of brushes with the law for the 28-year-old native of St. Louis who now lives and fights out of Philadelphia. He has served time for robbery and for assault of a policeman.

This incident came only a few weeks after he had changed managers in rid himself of what Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) said was control by underworld figures.

Monday's charge was brought after two men stopped Mrs. Dolores Ellis, 39, of suburban Lansdowne, as she drove through the lonely reaches of Fairmount Park before dawn.

One of the men, she related, ordered her out of her car but before she could reply, park guard John Warburton drove up.

FIRED SHOT

Warburton said the two men dashed back into their car and roped off. He caught them after a half-mile chase and fired a warning shot when Cooper tried to run away, Liston, he said, sat calmly behind the wheel.

Liston's manager, George Katz said his fighter had meant no harm and that the incident was a "lark" originated by Cooper.

Liston's record includes 32 wins and only one loss. It also includes 18 arrests and two major convictions.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

After a rapid and truly impressive growth, especially since World War Two, the largest, yachting and pleasure boat organization in the United States is now by a wide margin the energetic United States Power Squadrons. It has something like 150 unit squadrons with a membership of nearly 30,000.

Ringed within the shores of Lake Ontario are units of the U.S. power squadrons and those of the comparatively new Canadian Power Squadrons. One of the most active of these international units and what I believe is the largest of the Canadian squadrons within the circle, is Belleville's Quinte Squadron.

Since its inception in 1956 it has "hatched", so to speak, sister units in Picton, Peterborough, Presqu'Ile and the baby squadron of the breed, the Trenton RCAF unit that is comprised entirely of flyer personnel.

Each year the international units consisting of the Lake Ontario squadrons and American border units rendezvous for competition for various handsome trophies and the outstanding memoranda for which these water-based units are noted.

This year on August 10, 11 and 12 the Quinte Squadron plays hosts to their Canadian and American counterparts for the fourth time since the squadron's inception. Special committees appointed by squadron Commodore Dr. Arthur Elliott are already hard at work finalizing the details.

The power squadrons are non-commercial bodies of skippers and navigators which have as their primary object teaching men and women how to operate and navigate yachts safely and to study the science of boat operation.

They offer courses of instruction open to men and women and junior teen-agers. After learning the rudiments of small-boat handling, rules of the road, the compass, charts, aids to navigation, yacht etiquette, etc., many take a final examination and apply for formal admission to a squadron.

Nor is it entirely a man's game or sport. The ladies or "Squadronettes" as they are called, are welcomed to the courses. Many belong to the Quinte Squadron. In fact one of them, Mrs. Lennox (Kay) Smith is one of the two Canadian squadronettes who has completed all power courses. Both ladies are now experienced navigators in the true sense of the word.

The Quinte Squadron is one of the more popular of the Canadian units on Lake Ontario. This year marked its fourth rendezvous since 1956 and its well-arranged sequences of competition, water and other facilities, plus a well earned reputation for general hospitality has made Belleville and the QPS a popular calling place for many American skippers and crews.

Some fifty craft ranging from a 17-footer to the handsome 37-foot beauty, the "Nautilus" owned by Dr. Frank Dumont of Brighton, Ont., will be here during the rendezvous week in August. A number of the fine boats of Quinte squadron will vie for the various trophies. In passing it might be noted the Quinte unit has seven fully qualified navigators including Mrs. Smith.

American craft will include those from Buffalo, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Watertown, Syracuse, Ithaca, Binghampton, Old Orchard, Rochester, etc. All Canadian squadrons, it is felt, will be represented.

Four Niagara Falls, N.Y., will come a craft manned by an all-girl crew. Their husbands drive around the lake and meet their wives on arrival. It is possible Niagara Falls lady sailors will run a second boat.

The trophy up for competition is the Van Valkenburgh Cup, while the R.N.S. Trophy and the Ronald Keal Trophy also squadronettes' competition will be eagerly sought by the ladies.

The squadron finishing first in team competition will win the coveted Van Valkenburgh trophy. It has been held by Quinte for two years, but was not competed for in 1960. The Corby's and Labatt Trophies will be sought by male or mixed crews.

Seared By Heat

"Open" Course Sizzles

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—Oakland Hills, where the $60,000 United States open golf tournament will be played starting Thursday, is "a monster" under normal conditions.

Seared by the kind of heat that has hit the area, the course could be "impossible" to conquer, veteran campaigner Bob Rosburg said Monday.

Rosburg, one of a field of 150, had just trudged in from a practice round over the 6,967-yard, par-70 course on a day the temperature rocketed to 91. He shot a two under par 68 and, except for the heat and the weatherman's hint of more of it, might have been optimistic.

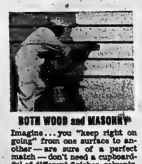
Ben Hogan, who won his third of four open titles the last time the classic was played here in 1951, tabbed Oakland Hills with its skinny fairways, fast traps, rolling greens and thick rough — the Monster.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer fired a 69 Monday. Gary Player of South Africa, starting who won the Masters title recently, has been looking at the course from tall angles, playing as many as four balls on some holes.

The winner of the 72-hole event will pocket $14,000, the runnerup $7,000 and the third finisher $5,000.

STENGEL TO STAY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fortunes may rise and fall but not New York Yankees manager Casey Stengel will throw out the first baseball at the all-star game at Candlestick Park July 11, Horace Stoneham, president of San Francisco Giants, made the announcement Monday and said Stengel's nomination has the endorsement of baseball commissioner Ford Frick.



NEW TORKER SIGNED

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Case, 20-year-old University of Rochester pitcher, was signed Monday for an undisclosed bonus by Los Angeles Dodgers. The six-foot - six, 225 - pounder, whose home is in Avon, N.Y. had a 5-1 record with Rochester.

Open Big Series Tonight

Yankees Invade Indian Territory

By BD WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York Yankees, apparently spurred away after getting set on second - division club, put the show on the road in their bid for the American League lead tonight with the opener of a three - game series at Cleveland against the first - place Indians.

It's the start of a 16 - game tour for the Yankees, in a natural second - place tie with Detroit Tigers and 4 games behind the Indians. They have a three-game set with the Tigers next weekend.

The Yankees, who have won 11 of their last 13 games, moved past Detroit by the margin of one percentage point Monday night with a 5-4 victory over Los Angeles Angels, handing southpaw Don Rowsfield of Penticton, B.C., his second loss of the season.

New York and Detroit closed in on the lead when Kansas City Athletics sliced Cleveland's edge with a 7-5; 10 - inning decision over the Indians.

The fourth - place Baltimore Orioles stayed eight games behind what has been a three-way scrap when they blew a 5-3 lead and lost 8-6 to Chicago White Sox. Boston Red Sox beat Minnesota Twins 10-4.

In the other National League game, San Francisco Giants defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4, saving the Dodgers a half-game behind the first - place Cincinnati Redlegs.

CAME FROM BEHIND

The Yankees, working behind the four - hit pitching of right-hander Bill Stafford, broke up a two - hit shutout by Rowsfield (9-3) over the first three innings when three runs in the sixth inning. Singles by Tony Kubek, Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard, a forceout by Bill Skowron and a double by Hector Lopez did it.

Rowsfield retired and lasted seven innings. He was charged with three earned runs on seven hits and walked one batter in six men.

Stafford (4-3), winning his fourth straight game, held the Angels hitless until the fifth inning, when Leroy Thomas opened with a single and scored on a double by Ken Hunt, who was cut down trying for a triple. Stafford pulled two more and fanned four for his third complete game.

The Athletics tagged the Indians with their third defeat in 16 games when Heywood Sullivan singled in his fourth hit in the 10th inning and pinch-hitter Joe Pignatano walked with a two - run, two - out homer off reliever Fred Funk (7-4).

The Indians getting a 1-1 tie on Willie Kirkland's home run in the fifth inning, twice lost two - run leads. Kansas City tied things 3-3 with two runs in the 8th inning as Cleveland missed double plays.

SEVEN - TIME GAME

Jerry Walker, seventh Kansas City pitcher, saved the decision for reliever Jim Archer (4-1) when Vic Power bunted into a forceout and Kirkland and Woodie Held filed outs with two men on base in the 10th.

Roy Sievers threw in three runs with a pair of homers for the White Sox, who nailed the win on Al Smith's solo homer in the eighth inning off reliever Ace Hurt. Winner Mel Nelson (1-1) was the loser. Don Larsen (3-0), acquired Saturday from Kansas City, was relieved by Nelson in relief.

A walk and Chuck Schilling's two - out single gave Boston the deciding run in the seventh. The Twins outhit the Red Sox 15-11 and slugged three home runs, but only 2 men on base. Ike Delock (4-3) won with relief help, while Jerry Arrigo, performing in relief for the fifth league debut on his 20th birthday, took the loss.

The Giants beating right - hander Roger Craig (5-4) for the first time in nine decisions since 1955, dropped the Dodgers with three hits in the fifth inning for a 7-2 lead. Orlando Cepeda's double scored the clinching run. Billy O'Dell (5-3) was the winner. He walked none and struck out 10 in 6 2-3 innings of relief, but needed help from Stu Miller in the ninth.

Minor Baseball

The Red Sox defeated the Jones Boys 6-2 in a Peewee "A" division, minor baseball league game.

Wark pitched the victory for the Sox, who scored three runs in the fourth inning to wrap up their win. McCreary pitched for Jones Boys.

Commercial Softball

Jim Jones pitched a one-hitter as the Alcatite Field last night to give Lightfoot Construction a 6-0 Commercial softball league victory over Point Anne.

Jones faced only 24 batters over the seven-inning route, striking out two and walking three. His mates helped him with a double play. The only hit allowed was a single by Denny Hall.

The Lightfoots got Jones a four-run working margin in the first frame and were never in trouble.

Galpin and Hunter hurled for the Co-Pointers, Hunter taking over in the third. They gave up five hits, fanned two and walked eight.

Don Smith, Bill Savage and Jones hit doubles to pace the Lightfoot attack. Dave Bowthorn and Don Dolan added three each.

POINT ANNE — Branigan, Stewart, Logue, Savo, D. Hull, Vera, Rowbotham, Pendlac, Galpin, R. Hull Hunter.

LIGHTFOOTS — Plaus, Smith, Bowthorn, Rowbotham, Dolan, Savage, J. Garvin, Cadrick, Jones.

Minor Softball

In the Minor Softball baseball grouping, the Bombers bombed the Comets by a 30-4 score at the CFRA Park.

Ted Young pitched five-hit ball for the winners while Tom Carr contributed a home run to the attack. Every player in the lineup managed to get a hit at least one run.

In the peewee "A" grouping, the Redlegs downed the Indians 26-9 at the Fireball.

Ron Taylor hurled a five-hitter for the Redlegs, striking out seven. G. Kay pitched for the Indians and gave up 20 hits.

Cameron had four hits to lead the winners while J. Burley had three hits in a losing cause.

May Name Rocket to Hall of Fame

MONTREAL (CP) — The Hockey Hall of Fame selection committee meets today, in connection with the National Hockey League annual meeting, and steps may be taken to provide for naming of members reasonably soon after their retirement from the game.

In this respect there was a suggestion that the famous Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens, who has been in retirement only one season, would be eligible.

The committee heretofore has adhered to a practice of making no nominations until about five years after a player's retirement.

The Hall of Fame will hold special ceremonies Aug. 26 in Kingston when the formal opening of its new building at the Canadian National Exhibition is Toronto.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, June 14, 1961

General Tendencies: You do have a chance today to get most things you want if you put on a good smile and show special consideration for whomever you approach. But it is also essential that you act in a deliberate, plodding fashion instead of being too moody at one moment and too rambunctious the next. Fine for romance and amusements tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Anything suggested by close ties is fine for you now, and you should put suggestions in operation quickly. Then the evening is more harmonious at home and you can invite friends in for a shopping eve of fun and frolic. Be gay.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Get started early on any written reports you have pending. Then you have time to get together with congenials at whatever hobbies or sports, cultural pleasures are mutually enjoyed. Be a sport and have a good time. Forget worries.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Impress others with your fine business acumen, despite the fact that you are a happy and carefree individual. Attend to all financial affairs efficiently. Then be sure to take the exercises that will strengthen appendages. Be more fit.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — You can accomplish almost anything you set your heart and mind to now, provided you know exactly what it is you want first. Use the positive approach and don't waver in making decisions. Otherwise you lose out. Be clever, a human dynamo.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Take time now to talk over with experts and influential persons how you can make your own affairs more successful and profitable, too, but keep it confidential. Evening is best spent quietly making plans and taking it easy. Retire early.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Give a helping hand to that interesting, high strung individual who has some seeming impossible plan in mind. You will gain greatly from it in the future, too. Tonight is fine for attending that social meeting with pals.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Look into civic matters during a.m. and p.m. Also, handle all business affairs that need personal attention. P.M. be sure you avoid any arguments at any place of amusement.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Your mind is filled with novel ideas today and you should jot them down for future use before you forget them. Also, any contact with others will also produce enlightening new systems. Be alert to them. P.M. rid yourself of the obsolete.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You are apt to come in contact with some emotionally disturbed individual now, so be very sure they do not upset you. P.M. fine for coming to a better understanding with loved one. Be most affectionate and kind.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Refrain from becoming impatient with those to whom you go for understanding or to collect what is owed you, since they are quite preoccupied. Stand by, quietly musing, and they soon realize they have a responsibility toward you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — If you plan your time wisely you can accomplish a great deal, provided you do not take too much coffee or conversation from those who have little to do. Also, be sure to co-operate more with co-workers and get their advice, ideas.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — This can be a delightful day for you, if you plan your activities early and intelligently. Complete important duties early then take off for the recreations that bring the most satisfaction, which are very likely to be cultural in your sign.

If your child is born today there will be a strong desire to be at work and making money very early in life, particularly where business or selling are concerned. So, be very sure to give a fine business education and then there is no limit to the success in this chart, provided you also provide a happy home life in which to thrive successfully, since the nature here is to be a home-loving and family-loving individual. Wonderful citizen in this horoscope!

Religion Is 'Cultural Hangover' To Most University Students

TORONTO (CP)—Most Canadian university students regard religion as an "unwarranted, parasitic, cultural hangover," Rev. J. A. Ross, dean of St. Andrew's Hall at the University of British Columbia, told Monday night.

Speaking to the 87th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Dr. Ross said university students regard the precepts of the past and vague hopes for the future.

Rev. W. Stanford Reid of Montreal, a lecturer at McGill University, said there was truth in Dr. Ross's remarks but felt they applied more to science and engineering students than to those in liberal arts.

"Many students are desperately worried today and the church has a great opportunity to reach them," he said.

DISMISSAL UPHELD

Earlier Monday a judicial committee upheld a ruling removing Dr. Ian A. Burnett as minister of St. Andrew's Church, Interlan Church, Ottawa.

The case was reopened Friday over some objections when a group of St. Andrew's members played up the dismissal in assembly. The Ottawa presbytery had also been criticized over the decision of the seven-man commission which ruled on the case.

Dr. P. C. Witherspoon of Ottawa said he supported the decision but was "not convinced of the justice."

He said the affair had spread through newspapers, especially those in Ottawa, and had given the Ottawa presbytery a bad name. His protest speech was cut short when it was moved and made to hold any further discussion behind closed doors. He said he would end his remarks rather than do that.

The special commission, established in 1960, ruled last July that Dr. Burnett did not have had separated in 1955 and had received unsatisfactory or status acceptable in the church. Consequently, the commission said, Dr. Burnett did not have up to induction vows to rule well in his own house.

A recommendation to commend the federal government for action taken in appointment was handed back to the board of evangelism and social action for rewording.

Rev. Frank Lawson of Halifax said the assembly should not press displeasure rather than commend. Rev. H. M. Creelman of New Glasgow, N.S., said surveys had shown 51 per cent of the work done by labor in some Nova Scotia towns.

FEELS PROGRESS MADE

OTTAWA (CP) — Frederick Boland, president of the United Nations General Assembly, said Monday progress has also been made toward a lasting settlement of political problems in the troubled Congo. Mr. Boland spoke at a press conference while here at a speaking engagement. He said his meetings with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Green earlier Monday were merely courtesy calls.

Back Ailment Causing Little Visible Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's back ailment caused little visible concern at the White House today. But the 44-year-old chief executive has been forced by pain which has forced him to walk on crutches three a question over his plans for the immediate future.

Kennedy has a date in Hawaii late this month to address the governors' conference. He is considering a trip to South America next month.

On his program today Kennedy met a delegation of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. That was after a half-mile drive from the White House and a walk into the Washington hotel where the meeting is being held.

He also scheduled the usual Tuesday morning breakfast with Democratic congressional leaders, a final discussion with Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani on critical problems facing the Atlantic Alliance and a session of the National Security Council.

Seven Arrested As Police Close Bingo Game

TORONTO (CP)—Seven persons were arrested Monday night when police swooped on a bingo game sponsored by the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association of Markham Township, just north of here.

Bingo cards, machinery and balls were seized by Metropolitan Toronto morality detectives and police of Markham Township.

Charged with keeping a common gaming house was Mrs. Winifred Anderson, 56, president of the branch; Elizabeth Allan, 56, Kathleen Israel, 40; Rose Israel, 17; Robert Blaylock, 27; Leslie Anderson, 24; all of Toronto; and Alfred Hammond, 31, of Alex. All were released on $500 bail.

Court Action May Be Used Against GE

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. government is weighing the possibility of court action to break up General Electric Company, the world's biggest electrical goods maker, the firm said Monday.

The possibility was raised in negotiations over a consent decree the government has proposed to settle a price-fixing, bid - rigging conspiracy in the heavy electrical equipment field, a company spokesman said.

He attributed to Assistant Attorney-General Lee Loevinger, government anti-trust chief, the statement that GE might find itself in divestiture proceedings unless it accepted the decree. GE has balked at signing.

In Washington, Loevinger was quoted as saying he has made "no" no one.

Thursday has been set as a deadline for GE to sign the decree which its chairman, Ralph J. Cordiner, has called unacceptable. The government rejected a counter proposal.

If it materializes, the divestiture suit would be precedent-setting, lawyers said, in a price-fixing case.

In 166 plants in the United States and Canada, GE manufactures everything from electric egg beaters to space vehicles.

It has nearly 420,000 stockholders, fourth largest of any corporation, and rung up sales of nearly $4,200,000,000 at a profit of $200,000,000 in 1960.

Cordiner protested a week ago that the effect of the decree would be to make GE meet the prices of its "least efficient competitor" and drive prices higher.

If it materializes, the divestiture suit would be precedent-setting, lawyers said, in a price-fixing case.

RECALLS RIEL REBELLION — A veteran of the Riel Rebellion, Professor G. H. Needler, now 95, still pursues an active literary career. Retired in 1936 as head of the Toronto university German department, Prof. Needler has written more than a dozen books, some based on personal knowledge of Canadian history. (CP Photo).

Fought in Riel Rebellion With Militia, Needler, Now 95, Capable Author

By KEN FRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Seventy-six years ago this month, the Eastern Canada militiamen who helped quell the Northwest rebellion returned to their homes.

Among them was G. H. Needler, a 19-year-old corporal in B Company of the Queen's Own Rifles. He resumed his studies at the University of Toronto and later joined the university's German department where he remained for 45 years.

After heading the department for more than a decade, Prof. Needler retired in 1936 at 70 and, released from administrative and classroom responsibilities, concentrated on a new career in literature.

Now he's 95, a spare, white-haired scholar who has published more than a dozen books since his "retirement."

The Riel rebellion, in which he was involved in 1885, is but one of the topics he has treated in book form. His wide interests have led to publications on such varied themes as Scottish and German poetry and pioneer life in Ontario.

SHUNS CONTROVERSY

Although Prof. Needler prefers to steer clear of present-day controversy over whether Louis Riel should have been hanged, he has touched on the subject in his book Louis Riel, published in 1937.

The preface describes as "simply ludicrous the desire of a certain number of Canadians to have him viewed as a hero and martyr."

A native of Millbrook, Ont., 19 miles southwest of Peterborough, and a graduate of Port Hope high school, George Henry Needler showed an early flair for mathematics but chose modern languages at university. After graduating from U. of T., he spent four years improving his German at Leipzig and returned to Canada with a PhD.

In the quarter-century he has been able to devote entirely to literary pursuits, he has been author, editor and translator. Some of his books developed out of lifelong interests he shared with his wife who died 12 years ago. Others came from literary material that reached him from friends.

LITERARY SLEUTH

In addition to Louis Riel, his Canadiana includes Colonel Anderson of Egmond, the story of William Lyon Mackenzie's "military expert" who died in a Toronto prison soon after the abortive rebellion of 1837; October Pioneers, a history of early days in the Rice Lake-Peterborough district; and books on the dramas and poems of John Galt, first secretary of the Canada Company which had a key role in the settlement of a large part of Southwestern Ontario.

As a literary sleuth, Prof. Needler tracked down a large collection of letters written by British author Anna Brownell Jameson to Ottilie von Goethe, daughter - in - law of the great Goethe.

He edited a book, Sir Walter Scott in Italy, after coming into possession through Eric Newton-Eschebeck.

Will he write more books?

He won't say. His immediate concern at this time of the year is to make his annual move to Lake of Bays in the Muskoka District where he has spent his summers for 40 years.

14 Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems!

Beg for Boarders

DEAR DORIS:—Why is a foster home so much better than an institution? The agencies seem to be using them a lot, even advertising for them, while places like our old home for girls go begging for boarders.—VOLUNTEER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR VOLUNTEER — Times have changed. Some decades ago we thought that all children needed was food and clothing, lodging and school.

Now we know that after we have saved their physical bodies, the big job has yet to be done. They need love, affection, the warmth of human interest, given on an individual basis. This is best done by parents, or substitute parents, in a natural home.

When a child care agency places a neglected child in a foster home, a trained social worker keeps in close touch, and the mother in that home becomes, actually, an auxiliary worker. She is helped to understand why her new charge disobeys, acts strange or wild. She learns to guide him firmly into better behavior. She spends herself in love and is rewarded by the devotion of a wondering child who has at last found someone answering his deep need.

We still need some child care institutions, but in Canada they now do a different job. Children who have been greatly upset may need a group setting where they can be given a period of treatment for serious personality disorders.

But this is no Lady Bountiful home-for-the-orphans setting. Such a place is staffed by highly skilled care workers—skilled enough to handle and reform desperate youngsters. Skilled enough to eventually present re-adjusted, happy adults to a society which has no place for mental cripples or criminals.

Probe Possible Bribes To Jury In Gambling Case

Appeal by Crown Urged In Acquittal of Three

TORONTO (CP) — A police investigation is under way into the possibility that attempts were made to corrupt the jury that last week acquitted a suspended provincial policeman and two gambling co-conspirators on charges.

Attorney General Roberts Tuesday night confirmed press reports of the investigation, to be conducted by Chief Inspector Harold Graham of the OPP.

Orders for the inquiry were issued Monday, it was learned.

The Globe and Mail says a letter, in which police say they have received a signed statement that a man approached them with an offer of $25,000 bribe if he could bring in a verdict of acquittal.

The newspaper says police have questioned a man under the terms of the Criminal Code about the letter and a further investigation is likely.

Police, in launching the investigation, acted on a recommendation from Crown Attorney W. F. Ford, special Crown prosecutor.

SEEN AS PREVERSE

Mr. Ford had recommended the Crown appeal on the grounds that the jury returned a perverse verdict — one in which the decision is not reasonable in the light of the evidence.

The jury acquitted Robert J. Wright, 38, a suspended provincial police constable; Joseph D. Fotheringhat, 49 of Port Hope, and Frank Gallo, 39, of St. Catharines.

It returned its verdict after twice returning to the courtroom first to request further clarification from Mr. Justice W. F. Spence on the question of circumstantial evidence, and secondly to report inability to agree on a verdict. Mr. Justice Spence sent the jurors back for further deliberation.

The three accused were freed of a charge of conspiring to bribe OPP Const. George Scott, the spoils on gambling house raids.

Further charges are pending to be heard at the fall assizes in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

All are charged with conspiracy. Wright is additionally charged on three counts of paying money to Const. Scott with the intention of influencing the due administration of justice, and Mr. Ford and Gallo are also charged with keeping a common gaming house in Toronto.

CHARGED MAN

Gallo's police said they had charged a Toronto Township man with attempting to bribe a policeman in the 1959 election.

Differ of Labrview has been remanded to June 21 at Cobourg.

Donald MacDonald, of Ontario CPP legislature, said Tuesday night the latest developments might prompt him before the next full-scale inquiry is needed into organized crime and the activities of the Ontario Provincial Police.

"I am not suggesting that I am playing politics with the crime issue, but of topical importance safety of the people of Ontario and the integrity of our judicial system."

Prices of Drugs, Oils, Greases To Be Probed

OTTAWA (CP)—Public hearings will be held under federal jurisdiction into prices of drugs and their distribution costs, sale of automobile oils, greases and other accessories, Finance Minister Fulton announced today in the Commons.

The hearings will be held in connection with inquiries into the two matters under the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. Fulton said the public hearing in connection with the manufacture, distribution and sale of pharmaceutical drugs in Canada will open here July 4.

He said the public hearing in connection with the distribution and sale of auto oils, greases, anti-freezes and the like, will open here Sept. 11.

The restrictive trade practices commission said in connection with the drug inquiry that public hearings will be held in other cities with a final hearing in October, probably in Toronto.

The commission said in a statement that it had rejected representations that hearings not be held in public.

Four Persons Perish in Fire In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Four persons died and two were severely injured as a result of a fire that ruptured three storey apartment house before dawn today.

The city morgue said the unidentified bodies of two men, a woman and an infant were brought there from the fire on east-end St. Denis St.

R. Pilon, another resident, was in critical condition in hospital with burns and fractures. Firemen said he jumped from the top floor of the building.

Badly burned and in serious condition was Rene Segreti, 31.

Two firemen were treated for minor injuries caused by flying glass.

The fire started about 4 a.m. and was brought under control within three hours.

A number of children were reported treated for smoke poisoning.

The fire apparently broke out on the second floor.

Manager Dies

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Herbert C. Cranford, 57, president and general manager of Weston Canada Ltd., died in hospital Tuesday after several months illness.

Born in Trinity Bay, Nfld., Mr. Cranford entered the employ of the Western Clock Company in 1934 and after the firm established a plant here.

During his management career he was a leader in industrial accident prevention, the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Jewellers Association.

Mr. Cranford is survived by his wife and two sons, John Jr., editor of the Sherbrooke Record, and William of Hawkesbury.

COMMITTEE WILL STUDY REVISION OF WAR ACT

Personal Freedoms Will Be Protected

OTTAWA (CP) — A special Commons committee was authorized Tuesday to study revision of the War Measures Act with assurance that no personal freedoms could be injected into the powerful instrument for the maintenance of order in the event of emergencies.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker also said he hopes that Parliament can wrap up its business by the July 1 weekend after a suggestion that July and August be left free for holidays if that deadline is missed — as appears a strong possibility.

Finance Minister Fleming officially was the spending estimates of the public works department but main developments were expected to centre on the report by the government and the board of directors of the Bank of Canada that Governor James E. Coyne resign — a move he resists.

Liberal M. W. Pickersgill Tuesday night chided government leadership for delay in discussion of a government bill, eventually given third and final reading, to increase bank credit facilities.

Liberal member for Bonavista-Twillingate asked acidly what legislation the back - benchers were supposed to discuss today and said that if the government kept the same degree of co-operation from its own supporters that it was getting from the opposition "this session would have been over long ago."

Besides the bank committee and the farm credit bill, the Commons gave third reading to the government's amendments and second readings—approved in principle—to technical revisions in the housekeeping functions of the Finance Department Act.

PACE SLOWS

But the pace was viewed from Monday's record-setting rate, largely because of the back-breaking discussion of the bill adding another $100,000,000 in farm credit facilities to a total $300,000,000.

Liberal and CCF spokesmen accused Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal to set up a special 15-man committee on revising the War Measures Act to make it meet with provisions of the Bill of Rights. They criticized the government for appointing the committee at such a late date.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the War Measures Act, passed in 1914, gives the state the most far-flung powers to mobilize. There was virtually nothing that it couldn't do in wartime.

Thus there existed, a conflict in which other free world wars Canada fought for freedom but found it necessary in place in peril the very basis of the preservation of freedom the freedoms for which we fought."

He and Justice Minister Fulton suggested the committee reconsider and exchange views and ideas during the summer when experts without actually sitting.

Manhattan Power Off for 3 Hours With Elevators, Subways Filled

NEW YORK (AP)—The second massive power failure in less than two years threw five square miles of midtown Manhattan into a 4½-hour chaos involving millions of people Tuesday. It was the hottest June day in the city's history—96 degrees in mid-afternoon.

From office tower peak to subway bottom—and in-between—residents of this always cramped metropolis were marooned in the vivid example of electricity's value to modern man. No one was reported injured.

The power went out just as the mammoth office buildings began pouring forth tens of thousands into the streets.

Riders were trapped in elevators for up to three hours. Passengers were stranded between subway stations. Pedestrians emerged from both, shaken and dripping with perspiration.

"It was like a steam bath," said a patrolman coming out of the subway.

Traffic lights were out throughout the area and thousands of motorists—accustomed to the bumper-to-bumper routine — found themselves hopelessly snarled face to face as well.

Consolidated Edison Company said the trouble appeared to have started when a circuit-breaker caught fire in a transformer.

A return was ordered by the laborers' union Tuesday night after a team of experienced union miners, heeding the engineers' warning, verified there was a threat to the foundations.

Resumption of work on the subway, however, is limited to assuring the safety factor of the construction at the project being carried out by Robert McAlpine Limited.

Consulting engineer J. V. Bartlett told the Toronto Transit Commission that soft faces in the tunnels have been exposed too long to compressed air while the contractor raised the levels to prevent flooding.

Coyne Backs Pearson

Government Is Responsible For Bank's Monetary Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor sponsible, for monetary policy, James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada has sided with Opposition Leader Pearson in the Liberal chieftain's running argument with Finance Minister Fleming over who is responsible for the central bank's monetary policies.

In a Commons financial debate in February, Mr. Pearson contended the government must accept the responsibility.

Mr. Fleming replied that Parliament, when establishing the bank in the 1930s, decided that monetary policy would be the responsibility of the Bank of Canada. In turn, he added, the bank is directly responsible to Parliament, not to the government.

At a press conference Tuesday night Mr. Coyne, who has refused to resign, officially said that he resign, said the government is responsible for the Bank of Canada monetary policies.

The Liberals have made the issue of responsibility one of their major points of attack against the Progressive Conservative government. They have consistently raised it in Parliament.

In a statement to the press conference, Mr. Coyne said:

"It hasn't been my function has said the government is not re-or that the bank is a free-wheeling independent agency. And if this responsibility has arisen in the public mind that the bank has been operating without regard for the views of the government, that impression is wrong and has not existed by me."

Asked, under questioning by reporters, he said it is his opinion —and that of many others—that the government is responsible for monetary policy "and if they don't like it they should say so."

He also said that if there is an irreconcilable difference of policy opinion between the bank and the government "then the government must have the . . . and the governor of the bank must resign."

"It involves a proposition that the government is responsible for monetary policy, accepts that responsibility, and makes it known to the central bank if it thinks the bank is not acting in accordance with government policy."

But he said that as such is not the case.

In a statement early Tuesday, Mr. Coyne said it is "not true" that he has the government expressed disagreement with the operations of the Bank of Canada under my management."

POLICIES IN BUDGET

The apparent inference, from both his statement and that of the "expansionist" policies he claims to may be embodied in the budget.

Mr. Fleming said the main reason for the government's action Mr. Coyne to resign was that it was convinced that Mr. Coyne's continuation in office as governor of the Bank of Canada would stand in the way of the implementation of a comprehensive economic program designed to raise the levels of employment and production in Canada."

It was the case of an expansion-minded government having to deal with a restrictive-minded governor.

"The government's policy is expansionist aimed at the creation of more trade, more production and more jobs," Mr. Fleming said.

These policies advocated by Mr. Coyne are restrictionist—restrictive of trade, restrictive of production and restrictive of jobs."

Mr. Fleming said he is not not reply in detail to Mr. Coyne's statement Tuesday "except in its defiant and provocative character."

He said he would give the Commons "the essential facts, virtually all of which appear in that statement."

The central bank governor's statement was issued after the government of casting a "smear campaign" against him by attacking an increase in his retirement pension approved in 1958 made by the bank's directors.

He said Mr. Fleming, in asking for his resignation, had suggested the governor's pension and other benefits be the cause of pending government legislation "which was apparently thought to be of such character that I would oppose them."

"I cannot and will not resign quietly under such circumstances," said Mr. Coyne, whose seven-year appointment normally would expire next Dec. 31.

Flood of Accusations Ebbs, Laos Parley May Begin Work

GENEVA (AP)—The storm of East - West accusations at the 14 - country Laos conference showed signs of abating today and long-delayed bargaining on a peace plan may be near.

Western spokesmen indicated they are ready to call the conference back into session for working groups to consider Soviet and Western proposals for unifying and neutralizing the Southeast Asian kingdom and keeping it peaceful.

The Russians, who accused the West Tuesday of stalling and said the conference should get to work, are expected to declare that they will cooperate. These are distasteful to the West but they could lay the ground work for the eventual signing.

While the delegates debated, reports reaching U.S. officials in Washington said fighting continues in Laos, with the Communist Pathet Lao forces maintaining pressure in northern, central and southeastern Laos.

"It's not a question of major advances," one U.S. official said. "It's not even a question of classic cut points of resistance. It's just pressure — keeping a gun at our heads while the talking is going on."

The United States led a Western walkout of the conference last Wednesday, saying in effect that negotiations at gunpoint are impossible and that the West would stay away until the Communist cease-fire.

Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet Foreign minister, on Monday Tuesday blamed U.S. airdrops to royal troops in Communist-held territory for the violations of the cease-fire.

By tightening controls on the legitimate use of barbiturates and amphetamines the government hoped to bring about a reexamination of the medical need for these substances.

Mr. Monteith said the new regulations will be designed to stamp out trafficking. It provides for penalties up to life imprisonment for traffickers.

"Traffickers in narcotics are the lowest type of human being possible and deserve very little consideration at the hands of society."

"To my mind if there has been any flaw in Canada's previous narcotic legislation, it would lie in the rather mild handling of such individuals."

Text of his remarks was released by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Health Minister Out to Get 'Every Goofball Trafficker'

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Health Minister Monteith today said the federal government intends to crack down on illicit drug traffic in Canada.

Speaking to the Ontario Retail Pharmaceutical Association here he said the RCMP and Ontario police would intensify efforts wherever an illegal traffic was found.

"We are out to get every goofball trafficker in the country," he said. The intensified crackdown is made possible by an amendment in the Food and Drug Act passed in Parliament this session. It deals with illegal traffic in barbiturates and amphetamines.

"To traffickers everywhere I give fair warning that unless they give up this ugly business, the dominion government stands ready to throw the book at them."

Danger to Queen's Park Forces Workers off Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A part truce has been called in a construction strike because it literally threatened to shake Queen's Park to its foundations.

Workers on the huge subway project have been ordered back to work by the Ontario Legislative Buildings might cause subsidings led to resumption of work in one section of the strike bound University Avenue project Tuesday.

A return was ordered by the laborers' union Tuesday night after a team of experienced union miners, heeding the engineers' warning, verified there was a threat to the foundations.

Resumption of work on the subway, however, is limited to assuring the safety factor of the construction at the project being carried out by Robert McAlpine Limited.

Consulting engineer J. V. Bartlett told the Toronto Transit Commission that soft faces in the tunnels have been exposed too long to compressed air while the contractor raised the levels to prevent flooding.

Governor Is Frustrating Hopes Of 'Expansionist' Action To Boost Economy

-- Fleming

Finance Minister Says Budget Will Be Given Tuesday Night

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson said today a parliamentary committee should investigate policy differences between the government and Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada.

He criticized the government for its "laissez-faire" attitude, and said that if it continued, Canada would not be a free country very long.

Mr. Pearson spoke for the Liberal opposition in the Commons after Finance Minister Fleming announced the government would ask Parliament to act on his request that Mr. Coyne resign from the governorship of the bank—and that Mr. Coyne refused.

He criticized Mr. Fleming for saying today that there had been a public and deplorable deterioration in relations between the government and the bank. He argued that earlier the minister had insisted the government had no authority over bank policy.

Conservative back - benchers pressed with questions, suggestions, but Prime Minister Diefenbaker refused to be drawn them and shook his head. They became quieter.

Mr. Fleming said that Mr. Fleming's case today was contradicted by statements he made earlier in the session. He said Mr. Fleming's request for Mr. Coyne's resignation was an intervention in the affairs of the bank. Mr. Fleming said neither the government could not make.

The government claimed months it had no authority over the bank and monetary policy," Mr. Pearson said.

He quoted Finance Minister Fleming as saying earlier this year that the government no responsibility over Mr. Coyne's speeches.

"This is contrary to the approach to the public service continues, it won't be a free country very long," Mr. Pearson said.

Surely this is a case for a committee of Parliament to look into and study."

HURRICANE-LIKE STORM WHISTLES ACROSS TORONTO

Windsor Reports 65 MPH Wind

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hail, rain and winds up to 65 miles an hour swept Southern Ontario Tuesday afternoon and evening, uprooting trees, dropping down hydro and telephone wires.

No injuries were reported.

The hurricane - like storm across Toronto twice within half an hour early in the afternoon, causing most of the damage, then returned a third time in the evening with a sudden torrential downpour.

The Windsor area reported the highest winds—65 miles an hour—but there was little damage.

The Toronto weather office reported winds of 52 miles an hour in Toronto Island Airport. The temperature plunged 10 degrees to 73 at the height of the storm.

After a period of calm, as Metro residents ruefully surveyed flooded basements and damaged eavestroughs, the storm returned with greater fierceness, bringing down trees and burning out hydro transformers.

Underpasses in the city were blocked in some cases by three feet of water.

Barns were blown down in the Orillia area and power was cut off in the town for three hours.

Some rural power facilities across the southern part of the province may be out for two or three days.

A school in Brantford and another in Bradley Harley were closed for the day when lightning struck electric poles side the buildings and knocked out the lighting systems.

LACK RUSSIAN TEACHERS

MONTREAL (CP)—More Canadian universities and colleges are interested in learning Russian but a lack of qualified teachers is preventing universities and schools from doing much about it, Prof. J. G. Garard of Carleton University, Ottawa, told the conference of learned societies Tuesday.

Four Persons Perish in Fire In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Four persons died and two were severely injured as a result of a fire that ruptured three storey apartment house before dawn today.

The city morgue said the unidentified bodies of two men, a woman and an infant were brought there from the fire on east-end St. Denis St.

R. Pilon, another resident, was in critical condition in hospital with burns and fractures. Firemen said he jumped from the top floor of the building.

Badly burned and in serious condition was Rene Segreti, 31.

Two firemen were treated for minor injuries caused by flying glass.

The fire started about 4 a.m. and was brought under control within three hours.

A number of children were reported treated for smoke poisoning.

The fire apparently broke out on the second floor.

Tractors for Freedom Delegation Pleased Over Talks With Cuba

HAVANA (CP) — A meeting with Prime Minister Fidel Castro was scheduled today for a group of agricultural experts from the United States who arrived in Cuba Monday to work out technical details of an exchange of expatriate Cuban tractors for prisoners.

The meeting figured to be the most public and free man-Ian group's visit which is expected to wind up Thursday.

Castro last called the prisoners taken in the Cuban invasion last April 17 mercenaries, and said it was not an exchange but indemnification he was seeking in asking for 500 tractors in return for more than 1,200 prisoners.

Coroner's Jury Absolves Driver From Any Blame

A fivewoman coroner's jury cast aside absolved Donald L. Smith of Belleville of any blame in the death of Mrs. Mark S. David of Hall, 14, R.R. 4, Belleville. The jury made no recommendations and deliberated only 15 minutes before bringing in its verdict.

The boy died as a result of injuries suffered when he was struck by a pickup truck driven by Mr. Smith on Dundas Street, East, between the CPR tracks and the city's eastern limits.

Pathologist Dr. Alex Rota of Belleville General Hospital told the inquest, which was presided over by Dr. R. T. Potter, that his attributed death to multiple injuries.

Mr. Smith testified that the accident had happened when he was travelling east on the dual lane portion of Dundas Street, East, between 30 and 35 miles an hour. He was accompanied by Douglas York, owner of the truck.

Mr. Smith said the boy "just stepped right out."

"I couldn't get around him," he said. "He was walking east with his left towards the car, on the shoulder. I saw him from about 100 feet. He was walking about three feet off the pavement. I thought he was going to stay there, but he stepped in front of me just as I got there . . . I never had a chance to stop before that. I never had a chance to get my foot near the brake or to blow the horn."

SEEN FROM DISTANCE

Mr. York said that although he had seen the boy from a distance, he had not given any attention to him. The next thing he knew, the boy had stepped in front of the car.

Const. Don Martin of the city police force, who investigated the accident, was followed by Crown Attorney John Pringle about Mrs. Hallie's sobriety.

"He was normal, other than being shaken up," he said.

The constable said the truck's brakes were "very good" and the steering mechanism "appeared to be" in good condition.

Mr. Smith said that at the time of the accident he had considered himself to be in possession of normal driving faculties. There were no other vehicles in the immediate vicinity.

The jury's verdict said Mr. Smith was "unable to prevent the accident from occurring."

Pupils to Take Safari Around Moira Watershed

Approximately 85 pupils from Grade 7 classes at Queen Victoria School will learn about conservation at first hand Thursday when they take an all-day safari around the Moira watershed.

Riding in two buses and accompanied by 10 adults including teachers and members of the home and school club, the pupils will leave shortly after nine in the morning and will return about 4 o'clock.

They will visit a farm in the Foxboro Eldorado area, look in at a sawmill at Chisholm, and then head for the Col. Roscoe Vandenwater Conservation Area where they will inspect tree planting and then enjoy lunch at the park area.

In the afternoon they will visit Deseronto and in the Actinolite district and wrap up the day out with a visit to historic O'Hara Mill north of Madoc.

ERNEST ALFRED SADLER
Frankford

The funeral of Ernest Alfred Sadler was held Monday afternoon from the Rowe Funeral Home to Trinity Anglican Cemetery where interment was conducted by Canon A. S. Mountford, rector of Ballyhoo. Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

The bearers were Jack McInally, Everett Hall, G. Smyth, Francis O'Day, Clifford Smith and George McDonald.

Mr. Sadler died Friday at Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was in his 68th year.

Born in England, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sadler. A former lockmaster, he retired in 1957. He was a member of Trinity Anglican Church and the Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion and of the I.O.O.F. No. 236 of Stirling. A Legion service was held at the funeral home. Following this a lodge service was held on Saturday evening.

He is survived by his wife, the former Alberta Green, a daughter, Dora, at home, and two sisters in England.

CPL. REGINALD MACRAE NIND

The body of Reginald MacRae Nind who was drowned in the Trent River near Batawa Sunday afternoon, was brought to Marmora and Lake Station where a funeral service and interment will be made. Rev. Arthur Parr officiated at the service at the chapel of the A. E. Shaffner Funeral Home before the body was forwarded to the Truscott Funeral Home at Hamilton.

The bearers were all fellow RCAF personnel and included Opls. McCaughey, Goodall, Dilbert, Marshall, Crowe and Zenon.

GEORGE HARRY McGOVAN Tweedsmuir — Frankford

Widely respected and admired by a large circle of friends and associates in the automotive industry, George Harry McGovan of 71 Lakeshore Road, Toronto, passed away Sunday at Toronto General Hospital following an illness of several months. Born 63 years ago in Belleville, he and Charlotte Siddely at Frankford, Harry McGovan spent most of his years in the Stirling area, where he attended schools and high school. Still at an early age, he moved to Toronto, becoming an employee of the Harris Dairy Company. In 1940, he enlisted in the Toronto Scottish Regiment and later transferred to the Royal Canadian Air Force, serving overseas as a Flying Officer prior to his retirement from military service.

In 1945, Mr. McGovan joined the Auto Electric Company Limited in the battery department, ultimately in the Kingston area. Later he accepted an appointment as brake manager at Burks Ignition Company in Toronto, where he remained until 1956. Resigning to return to Toronto, Mr. McGovan founded the manufacturing firm of Auto-Parts Limited, of which he was president and general manager at the time of his death.

Mr. McGovan was an ardent curler, belonging to both the Scarboro and Royal Canadian Curling Clubs and actively participated in many Canadian hospital campaign drives. Also a boating enthusiast, he was a member of yacht clubs at Port Credit, Lake of the Frog and, as well had a keen interest in the workings of the Automotive Boosters Club, District 128.

Surviving, he leaves his wife, the former Alice Olive Sedgwick, Bath, two brothers, Arthur of Orillia and Bert of Peterborough and one sister Lena (Mrs. Gerald Sine) of Frankford.

The funeral service will be conducted from Rowes Funeral Home, Frankford, at 2.00 p.m. June 15th, by the Rev. R. K. Cameron, D.D. of Dovercourt Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Hospital Board Directors Disappointed Over Share Of Costs Paid by Counties

TRENTON — S. O. Graham, Chairman of the board of directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital, speaking at the board's record annual meeting, said that the directors had been disappointed in the response by the counties lying to the east and west of Trenton to an appeal that they subscribe their full and fair share of capital costs.

Mr. Graham said that the townships of Brighton, Murray, Sidney and the town of Brighton had used the hospital's facilities in the ratio of 30 per cent (Sidney) and 34 per cent (Murray) for the past ten years. He said the hospital fund for the recently-constructed new addition was short $135,000 and that the hospital would be hard pressed to find this amount unless the townships "honored their fiscal obligations." He said that an effort had been made in the past to convince the rate payers of the townships aware of their responsibilities relative to the hospital's capital costs. He explained that the Ontario Hospital Services Commission will grant a hospital board to borrow funds for capital costs and that the board must raise one-half of these sums and donations for this purpose.

Mr. Graham sounded a warning by telling the meeting that the population of the Trenton area wished to preserve their autonomy in regards to the running of the hospital. They must retain their equity in the hospital, and that if the government took over the running of the institution, the present contributors would become mere "civil servants," officials being appointed to control.

Mr. Graham said that the hospital had reached the status of a million dollar plant, and before long the annual revenue and disbursements would be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 and that 67 per cent of the interest charged back into the economics of the town and the surrounding area.

CHANGE TIMING

Mr. Graham tied his remarks to the theme, "Change for need and need for change".

He outlined the progress of the hospital since its inception 10 years ago. The original building accommodated 66 bed patients. Since changes and improvements have made available 151 beds. Costly items in the extension project have been an auxiliary generating unit in the boiler room, x-ray department expansion and enlargement of office, supply and laboratory space.

Hospital administrator Miss S. G. Meredith reported that 1960 had been a busy and noteworthy year in accomplishment. She said that 5,282 patients were registered during the year, with percentages of occupation being broken down into 41.9 per cent for Trenton, 34.7 per cent County of Hastings; 94.9 per cent County of Northumberland; 7 per cent Prince Edward; and other parts of Ontario, Canada and the United States 14 per cent.

William M. Ireland, charter chairman of the board, commended Miss Meredith for special attainments in connection with the hospital.

"The addition of more rooms and more modern equipment has raised the standards of hospitalization in our community," said Mr. Ireland.

Reporting on the activities of the hospital's medical staff, Dr. W. S. Bailey said that the staff now consists of 18 physicians who provide diagnostic services and treatment. He said that the recently formed staff autopsy committee had made arrangements with the Trenton County Clinic to make available the clinic buildings in the event of a major disaster.

Mrs. Donald Keefer, 1960 president of the hospital's women's auxiliary, reported that the auxiliary had donated $4,886.77 towards its pledge of $5,000 for the extension fund last year.

Mrs. Ruth Lloyd reported that the RCAF Women's Auxiliary had donated a total of more than $14,000 to the hospital auxiliary. Of the 814 babies born in the hospital last year, 353 were delivered by the wives of Air Force personnel.

Kenneth R. Couch recommended that W. H. Ireland, O. M. Newton and S. O. Graham be re-elected to the board of directors. All three were returned to office. G. R. Williamson was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Would Fine Persons Guilty Of Littering

TRENTON — At last night's Parks Board meeting the members decided to ask the town if land in the Leonard Ave. — Ramsey-Kilmbeth and Michigan Street area might be available for a playground area. If a piece of town property can be made available, the board will donate equipment. A request for a play ground came from an area resident.

As a follow up to a tour of the town's dumps by board members, new play equipment will be installed in some parks.

Plans to construct a new tennis court building in Mezna Park were also discussed.

Board member Clyde Mason reported on prices for the construction of a road up Mount Pelion. The board members were agreeably surprised at the quoted prices but further enquiries will be made before a decision is made.

Chairman E. M. Parker Jr. instructed board secretary Miss Marion Baker to purchase a new typewriter.

It was felt that when the attendant takes over for the summer in Mezna Park, and if suitable campsites were provided the situation would be bettered.

Found Guilty Of Carrying Hidden Weapon

TRENTON — In magistrate's court this morning, Robert Lee, 17, of Toronto, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and a charge of vagrancy, was found guilty and remanded until June 28 for sentence. Meantime, local police will make inquiries as to spy previous record.

Inspector R. J. Rutherford said that Lee was found in the youth crouched in the crotch of a tree in front of Front Street commercial building at 4 a.m. June 11. The youth had stated that he was afraid from his cousin. When he was searched in the police station, a heavy plaited leather cord, to which was attached a wired chain, was discovered concealed on his person. The inspector referred to the article as a "leg choke" and said that they were used in gang fights as weapons. The inspector said Lee told him that he carried the chain "for protection."

On the witness stand, Lee said that "a man" had given him a dog on the street and that he had tied the dog outside a restaurant while he ate. The dog had escaped the choke said Lee, and he had hung the choke beneath his clothing.

"Do you mean to say that a man whom you had never seen before gave you a dog and this chain?" asked Crown Attorney John A. Pringle.

"Yes," said Lee.

"I'm not prepared to accept the story of the dog," said Magistrate T. Y. Wills. "I find you guilty on the evidence."

The youth on a charge against a local youth involving a fire-cracker incident was postponed until June 28th. It was intimated the court that his witness had been "picked up" the night before and was unavailable.

City Workers Toil Overtime Due Downpour

Tuesday afternoon's sudden downpour, which dumped close to a third of an inch of rain over the area in a matter of minutes, caused no damage in the city, but city public works department employees put in a couple of extra hours keeping catch basins open.

City engineer Malcolm Turnbull said works employees were just starting off the job when the downpour commenced, minutes before five o'clock.

They were sent back on the job to watch trouble spots and to keep catch basins open so that the rainfall flooding as much as possible.

As is customary during heavy downpours, the roadway at Goldsale and Southview was flooded to the sidewalks but fortunately there was no basement flooding.

City police traffic officers got wet feet at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets as they directed traffic around the intersection as the street as they directed traffic during the evening rush hour.

Brakes Fail, Driver Is Hurt

When the hydraulic brakes on his Bell hydraulic truck failed, allowing the vehicle to run across the highway into a steep embankment, Stewart Blake, Foster Ave., Belleville, suffered a broken ankle.

Police said that Mr. Blake, accompanied by David Spence, of Melrose Ave., Belleville, was westbound early yesterday evening on a Sidney township road at the top of Oak Hill when the truck proceeded down a sharp incline toward No. 14 Highway, the brakes failed, the truck ran across the highway and into the side of the steep embankment on the opposite side of the roadway.

former at a substation. As a result, blackouts also occurred at two other substations.

FREEZE HITS

In San Francisco, meanwhile, a accident in a power station blacked out the northern part of that city at the rush hour late Tuesday. Muni-metro cable and pedestrian lams resulted and police and fire control boards were paralyzed with calls.

In Manhattan, all power was back at 9:37 p.m.; an hour after sunset.

A force of 2,000 policemen was ordered into the blacked-out area and they were supplemented by scores of city reference workers. Motorists were warned to keep out. Searchlights were rushed to strategic intersections to keep down lawbreaking.

The New York Times could only publish eight pages and on the premises of The World-Telegram and Sun. The power failure put out operation of The Times' mechanical facilities.

A condensed news report, 3½ hours late, was printed in the World-Telegram plant from The Times' own reports. All advertising was omitted.

Don Harvey Leaving Paper For Ministry

W. D. (Don) Harvey, 56 Lambert Drive, Belleville, has been appointed minister for the United Church of Canada's two-point Athol township charge in Prince Edward County. He succeeds Rev. Gordon Rajotte, who leaves June 30.

Mr. Harvey, a newspaper man since he left the RCAF in 1955, is a member of the Ontario Intelligencer's editorial staff. He will begin studying at Queen's University Sept. 6, his BA and BD degrees. He and Mrs. Harvey, the former Darrell Anne Cavers of Belleville, will move to the Athol Church manse at Cherry Valley early in July. Mr. Harvey will preach his first service in the charge July 9.

The Harveys have a daughter, Jennifer Lisa, 13 months.

Mr. Harvey, a native of Vancouver, is the son of Wing Cmdr. and Mrs. W. G. Harvey, 48 Linton Park Road. Mrs. Harvey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cavers, 30 Cedar Street, and was born in Picton. Mr. Cavers for many years managed a shoe store at Picton before coming to Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey are members of Bolleway Street United Church. Mr. Harvey was received as a candidate for the ministry by the Belleville Presbytery which met May 3 at Wellington.

The Athol Township charge includes churches at Cherry Valley and Salmon Point.

No One Hurt As School Bus, Truck Collide

No one was injured early today when an empty school bus and a transport truck collided on Highway 2 at Picton curve. Flood waters were present coming down the river towards Mobile Bay and towards the end of their journey they were advised to go over the dam rather than through the locks. This they did with no effort for a couple of times. It was on the approach to the last set of locks that it was decided that although there was sufficient water to clear the dam there was a drop of about four feet on the far side.

Not wishing to turn about for, fear of either swamping the boat or going over the dam sters Phil Mc.Allister and Ray bost all the power available and literally shot the rapids

White Cane Club Honors President And Betrothed

By GLADYS WARD

At the June meeting of the White Cane Club, president Mildred Rushlow and her fiance Carl Mallman of Winnipeg, were surprised with a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower given by the members of the club. As Mildred opened the gifts, Mrs. Rushlow read the names from the cards.

A musical program was enjoyed with Phill Burton playing "Let the Rest of the World Go By" on the harmonica; a solo by Mr. Love, "Little Gray Home In the West"; and three solos by Mildred Rushlow, "Whispering Hope"; "It Is No Secret" and a parody on "Old McDonald Had A Farm." A sing-song in which all joined was accompanied by Mrs. H. Rollins at the piano. During lunch Mr. Burton entertained with selections on the electric guitar.

A contest on "Floral Weddings" was won by Mrs. Meryle Lowe; another called "Passing the Buck," was won by Mrs. Alma Hilton; and Clarence Morris was the winner of the "Kitchen Shower" contest.

It was announced that the annual picnic would be held at Victoria Park on July 8.

The ladies of the Elwards Auxiliary had prepared a special lunch for the members and Mrs. Waite expressed the appreciation of the club to them. Mildred and Carl thanked the members of the White Cane Club for their thoughtfulness and generosity. On behalf of her husband, who is in the hospital, Mrs. H. Rollins voiced their appreciation of the cards sent by the club.

In honor of the occasion, Mrs. Meryle Lowe read the following verses which she had composed:

GIRLHOOD DREAMS

What do girls dream of when asleep?
Sweets? Or others it shows in playing house and many games;
The petalled daisy knows.

Then through their blossoming girlhood
Clearly one follows the trend
Of parties, and proms, and puppy love,
And then, just one boy friend.

And what has our Mildred dreamed of?
Why, marriage, like the rest.
With a pal of her own to make a home,
Somewhere in the golden west.

May all their dreams be realized
Of home, and peace and love;
And blest by Him, in whom to trust,
Brings blessings from above.

ocers captured by Cuba in the abortive landing on the Bay of Pigs.

There was some uncertainty Tuesday as to whether the delegation would have a chance to talk to Castro. He had gone to Oriente province in eastern Cuba and nobody seemed to know when he would return to the capital. Later it was indicated Castro would fly back overnight.

The spokesman for the Americans, Donner Crenshaw, chief of the United Auto Workers union agricultural implements department, appeared generally pleased Tuesday night as he reviewed the talks with reporters.

He described the session with Cuban officials as "good discussions and cordial meetings." He added the talks were very helpful.

(Reporter Robert Boyd of the Knight chain of newspapers that include the Detroit Free Press and Miami Herald said in a copyrighted story that the Americans ended the first day's talks "with a feeling of guarded optimism.")

Mercury Drops Thirty Degrees In Short Time

You just cannot trust the weather any more!

It's the sun is shining and then along come showers; the thermometer soars to the over-80 mark and then drops to almost 30 degrees.

But the rain did give welcome relief from yesterday's muggy conditions.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Is the Budget Involved?

The request of Hon. Donald Fleming, Federal Minister of Finance, for the resignation of James E. Coyne, Governor of the Bank of Canada, will certainly have one effect—it will heighten interest in Mr. Fleming's forthcoming budget and increase speculation that the long delay in presenting it is indicative of some fundamental changes in monetary or taxation policies.

That this is the real reason behind Mr. Fleming's request for his resignation is hinted by Mr. Coyne himself—"The finance minister has suggested to me that another reason the government wanted me out of the way was that they were preparing certain programs that were apparently thought to be of such character that I would oppose them."

Certainly this makes more sense than to accept the official reason apparently given Mr. Coyne by Mr. Fleming in his demand for his resignation—that about the board of directors' improving pensions for the bank's governors. Such a matter is of such relatively small importance that, if we are to regard it as the only cause for asking Mr. Coyne's resignation, we must almost inevitably conclude that there exists acute personal antipathy between the two men. Perhaps there is, but it is still true that they appear to have pulled together in the harness fairly well. Mr. Fleming has generally been pictured as a "Coyne man," embracing in large measure the views of the Governor of the Bank of Canada regarding what constitutes a sound fiscal policy for a nation in Canada's circumstances, and upholding which virtually all some other members of the Diefenbaker Cabinet have would have preferred an "easier money" policy.

If now, as Mr. Coyne suggests, the Government is considering some programs which Mr. Coyne would not be likely to approve, it may well be that Mr. Fleming, too, is not over-enthusiastic regarding them, but that he has lost out in a long battle in the Cabinet against colleagues with differing views. It is generally considered that the opposition to Mr. Fleming's fiscal policies is headed by Hon. George Hees, Minister of Trade. One would expect Mr. Hees to be anxious to promote fiscal and taxation policies which would be most likely to stimulate business generally in Canada and to make it possible, reduce the cost of production. This could be done by lowering taxes, but, at a time when supplementary estimates have already shown increased spending, any sharp reduction in taxation would inevitably mean a return to deliberately heavy deficit financing.

That Mr. Coyne considers it not approve of such a course is easily understandable. It would be incorrect, though, to suppose that mere disapproval would lead Mr. Coyne to speak out publicly against government fiscal policy. He will have never opposed government policy and do not wish to do so," Mr. Coyne said on Tuesday. He stated, however, that it is conceivable that at some stage and in some circumstances it would be the duty of the governor of the bank to resign on an important question of principle or policy, or on the other hand to make a strong public stand against some government proposal."

This is rather extraordinary language for the Governor of the Bank of Canada to make about a program which may not exist, or he may have very good grounds for conjecture, he presumably has no definite knowledge. (One would hardly expect Mr. Fleming to inform him of the precise details of a policy he was expected to oppose, when it was desired to remove him from his post of Governor because of this expected opposition.)

If the real reason for requesting Mr. Coyne's resignation over the pension question was to detract from the significance of anything he might say in opposition to a forthcoming budget proposal, it seems rather obvious that this purpose has been frustrated by Mr. Coyne's public disclosure of the request that he resign.

Interest in Mr. Fleming's forthcoming budget will be greatly heightened by this controversy. Any further delay in presenting it might even be taken as an indication that the Cabinet is having second thoughts about the broad policies within whose framework Mr. Fleming is required to arrange the financing of our country in the fiscal year now already over two months old.

What the world needs right now and what I would like to help create is a one-world dance company . . . I would like the troupe to have 200 dancers, all ballet trained, with at least one couple from every country in the world . . . spending three months in each country.—Igor Moiseyev, leading Russian choreographer.

Britain Backs Dictators

By Bernard Levin in the London Spectator

Hyena Secretary Hugh Gaitskell's hints (rather than plain words) that Spain was still cold-shouldered by the West are now supposed to fly in the face of Spain's admission to NATO.

Mr. Butler meant every possible kindness to Franco, and why shouldn't he? He favored Franco during the Civil War; what has Franco done since to lose his respect?

No doubt it will be a great comfort to many of those who have helped Mr. Franco's exile without trial for the past 25 years more to know that the support for their ladder has passed from one who is resolutely opposed to the re-introduction of flogging and by no means happy when it comes to that, about hanging.

Just as the nature of Angola, if they can manage to smother the sapalm-flames by rolling on the ground, will be judged by the fact that the Earl of Home, who left office to speak with Dr. Salazar, was so diligent a Secretary for Commonwealth Relations that his character has been less unmilitant than Mr. Gaitskell since, not to mention before.

But if Mr. Butler really does believe that the evil, corrupt, senescent dread, Franco, deceased and — to the West — utterly useless Iberian dictatorship constitute the essential basis for the future greatness of Britain in the harness for Europe, he ought to be ashamed of himself.

Are we ever going to see an end of the attempts by our politicians to "make friends" with Beatbeshit?

Has it really struck nobody that to include Portugal and Spain in NATO is to make the alliance's moral standards worth of the civilization that it is supposed to defend?

Hospitals Train Visitors

Oshawa Times

Beset plagued with hospital visitors who disturb patients by their actions in the hospital wards, the Ontario Hospital Association is planning to open up a program for the public to educate the many visitors who pour into the hospitals throughout the province every day.

The association is offering the saga advice that "visiting should be enjoyed — not endured".

Hospital officials have agreed that only a small percentage of visitors are involved, but they also agree that this aggravating minority have a nuisance value out of all proportion to their numbers.

The opening shots to be fired with ammunition supplied by the association will be a series of colorful posters aimed at wiping out four choice targets. They are: The sick visitor; the "sit-and-chat sitter" who carries togetherness too far, and the "happy wanderer" who has designs on private rooms before the time.

Previous attempts to convince the thoughtless few that visiting rules are for the benefit of the patients have not been conspicuously successful. And now, backed by their provincial association, Ontario's hospitals are on the warpath and they hope that an eye-catching combination of humor and horse sense will do the trick.

The hospitals have no wish to discourage hospital visiting as such. Most visitors are considerate and well-behaved and experience has proven that a good visit can help the sick patient, is the opinion expressed by Stanley W. Martin, executive director of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Although the hospitals will be using humor as their weapon, it has a purpose. Even those who do not see the rules probably mean well, and it is being hoped that if they can recognize themselves in the posters that they will be displayed they will quickly see the error of their ways.

Progress Provoking

Tulsa, Okla., Tribune

Life is a man running up a "Down Escalator" to attain the heart we have known it to seem to be going in the opposite way.

Unexpected confirmation came this week from the State Commerce and Industrial Publicity section of the City of New York. "Mixed trucks driven in New York City today averaged less than six miles an hour in traffic," the report says. "Horse-drawn trucks in 1910 averaged 11 miles an hour." Fortune magazine very quotes that as the Productivity Note of the Month.

There are days when we can hardly wait for the whole durn thing to get to be a wash, so we can go fishing.

Did You Know Driving Can Be Hazardous?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In his entertaining and instructive book, "The Racing Driver," Denis Jenkinson tells about a gruelling Italian race in which he was a co-navigator for Stirling Moss, the great British driving ace.

Over a long course, they will cover 150 miles an hour, the car went into it nasty skid that could have been fatal. Moss didn't turn a hair and quickly had the car back under control.

That evening, after the race, a celebration dinner was held at the table and lamp while getting ready for bed, when he walked in the adjoining bed, jumped up, his face white with fear, and cried: "Denis, I'm afraid."

The point Jenkinson was making is that nobody is fearless about everything. Even such daredevil racing drivers may be frightened by unexpected events in the night, just as ferocious football players may faint at the sight of a hypodermic needle about to be plunged into their arms.

There are only two things we fear — the unknown and the unexpected. We are not afraid on the race course, not only because we have the courageous and disciplined personality, but also because he knows every bit of the course and can allow for or anticipate disaster behind the wheel.

Courage is a moral virtue, but it is linked with the intellectual virtue of prudence. As Aristotle points out, courage is the mean between cowardice and rashness. The coward does not dare enough and was not able to anticipate misfortune, he would be a bad race driver; the rash man is even rather than a brave man to drive as fast as he does.

Young people, especially, do not understand that courage must be allied with knowledge. Ignorance makes young people too fearful and others too rash. No racing driver can be too cautious, but none can afford to be rash either. As the saying goes, "There are old drivers and there are bold drivers, but there are no old, bold drivers."

On the open highway, the average motorist is continually confronted by the unknown and the unexpected. He has none of the protection given to the racing driver, who has behind him and fire-proof bulkhead that separates him from the driver's cockpit. And he is at the mercy of many terrible drivers all around him.

Not to be fearful, not to be cautious, not to drive with the utmost intelligence on the open highway is a sign of ignorance, not of bravery. The driver who never feels faintly easier on the track because he can, in a large measure, control his own fate. It would amaze you to learn how many such motoring heroes don't even own personal cars, out of sheer fear of drivers like you and me.

To Your Good Health

Talking to Oneself Is No Cause to Push Panic Button

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 29 and have been married about six months. My problem is that when I am alone I find myself trying to keep conversations with myself.

"I would call it 'thinking out loud' discussing things I want to discuss with myself, even when he comes home.

"As far as I can remember, I have always done this, even as a small child, when I had nothing which kept me indoors and alone a lot. Could this have contributed in any way, is this just a bad habit, or is there something really mentally wrong?" — Mrs. G., P.E.I.

Sometimes I think this modern age of science makes people worry too much about minor things.

Not that I'd halt, even if I could, the steady increase in knowledge, and tests, and medicines, and operations, and so on.

But new facts about the human mind and body are being collected at such a rate these days, that we are left breathless. Or they leave me so, anyway.

Today a laboratory can take a bit of ingredient, analyze it. Or we can measure the electrical impulses of the heart (electrocardiograph), or of the brain (electro-encephalogram) or the amount of sugar, or other particles in the blood, and find out things about a person's health.

But there are other things that may not be seen, which nevertheless aren't danger signals. It takes a heap of reading and listening to get a real sense of proportion. Some things are important and which are not.

This business of talking to oneself, when alone, isn't "average," perhaps, but it isn't unique. Lots of people do it. And there isn't anything wrong with it.

If a person happened to tell me so far removed from reality that he didn't realize that he was talking to himself — well, then I'd consider seeing a psychiatrist.

Why, I once knew a man who liked the taste of soap. It's rare but not unknown. Whenever he took a bath, he took a nibble at his soap. Fortunately he didn't say about it. He didn't fret for fear it might mean that he was "lacking something in the diet." He just accepted it.

Don't fret about not being average. Watch out for danger signals, of course. But don't worry just because you aren't exactly like everybody else.

Don't worry about symptoms be found by X-rays? Will they stand up if they're checked? Just how do you doctors arrive at the conclusions?

The answers: 1 — Yes. No. 2 — Yes. 3 — It's easy to explain how. This history of the case is important; the appearance of the patient, and the manner in which he breathes. The physical findings, plumbing the chest and listening, will give a clue. Finally, the X-ray of the chest and other diagnostic pictures which, added to the other information, helps make the diagnosis.

The combination of factors makes the diagnosis as good as possible. Is that a fair reply?

Note to B. T.: Yes. Need for more "Vitamin B" without any number (Vitamin B1, B 12, etc.) Vitamin B is a group of B Vitamins, also known as the "B complex vitamins."

THE PACKSACK

One of my friends who accidentally has made a lot of money in recent years is fond of telling trouble trying to act and look as if he had money.

"I envy and admire," he said, "people in a restaurant who act as if they were doing me a favor when they accept my money. I envy the crowded restaurant hot-shots. There they sit, ignoring everybody. They never look around at the rest of us. They act and talk as if they were literally at their ease. Even when they get up and leave, you would think they were departing from an empty room."

Another thing that bothers him is clothes.

"I envy them, too," he says, "that nobody dresses with more distinction than an Englishman.

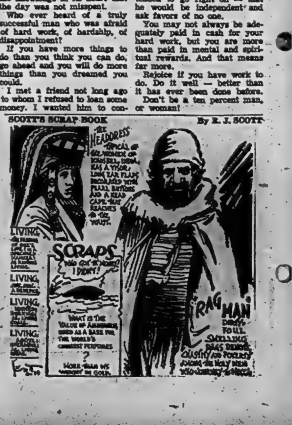
HARD WORK

I have never known anyone who really worked hard to complain about it.

I have heard scores of people complain about the work they had to do, but in the usual slang for hard work.

Salvation itself comes through hard work. Grief is assuaged, health is prolonged, beauty is made permanent, and happiness is always assured after a hard day's work. The tired heart they lies down to its rest with the confidence that it is right and that he would be independent and ask favors of no one.



You can't always be adequately paid in cash for your hard work. Often you are more than paid in mental and spiritual rewards. And that means more than cash.

Rejoice if you have work to do. Do it well — better than it has ever been done before.

Don't be a ten percent man, or woman!

GOVERNOR

Mr. Fleming said that under Mr. Coyne there has been "a steady and deliberate deterioration" in the central bank's relations with the public.

The bank governor "by a course of ill-considered actions and a series of policy announcements on public issues outside the realm of central banking" often and openly incompatible with government policy" had effectively profiled the central bank in contentious controversy.

HEED TREASURY

Matters of highest importance, requiring the greatest teamwork ever, between the government and the bank, were awaiting decision and action by the two. But it had become impossible to expect such co-operation as long as Mr. Coyne remained in office.

"It was perfectly plain to the government that whatever assurances Mr. Coyne might give of co-operation for the future, the public could have no confidence that Bank of Canada policy would support government policy, having in mind the frequent public declarations by the governor which clearly run counter to the policies of the government."

Mr. Coyne had lost the confidence of both the bank's board of directors and of the government.

The Commons galleries, which can seat some 800 persons, were packed as Mr. Fleming read his statement to the House.

Mr. Fleming said that if Mr. Coyne had complied with the government's May 30 request for his resignation, the bank's directors at their Quebec City meeting Monday and Tuesday would have been able to take action on the resignation and "if so disposed" to name a successor with the cabinet's approval.

The minister said he was informed that, at the board of directors meeting, Mr. Coyne was fully aware on Monday that the government desired his resignation if he didn't submit it.

LEFT MEETING

He said that Tuesday morning, when it was clear the board was about to introduce a resolution asking his immediate resignation, Mr. Coyne left the meeting and issued his press statement directly to the government's May 30 request for his resignation.

"In so doing he left the public with the false impression that the only reason for his resignation had come from the government."

(Mr. Coyne told a press conference Tuesday night of the board of directors' request.)

Mr. Coyne had described as "mystifying and alarming" a suggestion he said Mr. Fleming made to him that one reason the government wanted him out of the way was that certain programs were being prepared which it was thought the governor would oppose.

To this, Mr. Fleming said today the governor may have left a certain false impression with the public.

Mr. Coyne has not been told of the contents of the forthcoming budget and therefore has no right to express views about it, the minister said.

FRUSTRATED EFFORTS

The governor had frustrated the efforts of the bank's board of directors and of the government "to handle this unpleasant matter with dignity and consideration for Mr. Coyne.

Both the board and the government had asked for his resignation but in the face of this he had stated his determination to remain in office, "though unwanted," for the remaining 6½ months of his term.

Dealing with the pension issue —the increase to $25,000 from $12,000 in the governor's special pension on retirement this year —Mr. Fleming said the government became aware only this spring of the increase, approved by the bank directors Feb. 15 last year.

The government "considers that the governor was lacking in a sense of responsibility in dealing with his high office for accepting this additional benefit worth $13,800 a year for life without ensuring that the matter was brought to the attention of the government."

Mr. Coyne's statement Tuesday was issued here while he was in Quebec City.

Late Tuesday night, on his return, Mr. Coyne piled more fuel on the controversy at an extraordinary press conference he called in the central bank's board room.

He disclosed that the central bank directors, by a vote of 8 to 1, at a Quebec City meeting Tuesday morning, had called for his resignation after unsuccessful appeals to Mr. Fleming to have the issue open.

Mr. Coyne said the directors' resignation demand — the purpose of which was "to support the government"—was likewise rejected.

He told reporters the board lacks power to fire him from the position as governor of the Parliament. He didn't indicate whether he thinks the government will take this step.

DISCLOSES LETTERS

At his press conference Mr. Coyne made the unusual step of making public two letters he wrote June 8 to Mr. Fleming. The letters, and the governor's comments to reporters, made these points:

1. Mr. Fleming told him May 30 that his speeches "had turned out to be embarrassing to the government and were being used by their opponents in Parliament and elsewhere for political purposes."

2. He feels the government is responsible for central bank monetary policy and a point repeatedly disputed in the past by Mr. Fleming.

3. Mr. Fleming had told him that "some quarters in the cabinet" felt he should have vetoed the directors' decision in February, 1960, increasing his pension to a maximum $25,000 from $12,000.

"I reject emphatically any such suggestion," Mr. Coyne wrote to Mr. Fleming.

He told reporters he is staying in office because of "the personal attacks" on himself and because no proper issue of policy had arisen between himself and the government which would be reason for his resignation.

FINDS HARD TO BELIEVE

In response to a question, he said he finds it hard to believe" that the pension dispute was the real reason for the government's demand that he resign.

But he said he had been given no inkling of the "mysterious" government programs Mr. Fleming said it was afoot, though he would oppose.

Mr. Coyne said that there had been no dispute on policy between himself and the Progressive Conservative government.

Exhibitors Are Busy Preparing For Charity Horse Show Here

BY ANNE M. McDONALD

Long before the invention of the airplane and motor car the saddle horse and saddle pony were the only means of land transportation in Canada, apart from walking. At this year's Belleville Charity Horse Show a great variety of saddle horses and ponies are expected to be in attendance. The chairman of this season's event, Lt. Allan Revill, himself an ardent and active saddle horseman, so we can expect a development in these classes in our area, as they are gaining in popularity. Pictured are 3 types in the saddle classes In one is shown a child's pinto saddle pony owned by Mr. Morris Parks with Jean Parks up. This pony's name is "Lollipop" and the picture was taken at "Marshdale Farm" R.R. 7, Belleville. In a second picture we see a three gaited saddle pony, "Repetition Manor Boy," owned and shown by David McDonald Jr. at "Quinte View Stables," Trent Rd. In the third photograph is the hunter saddle type shown at "Windcrest Farm," R.R. 7, Belleville. "Misty" is going through a big jump with his mistress, Barbara Revill.

These, together with many other saddle horses and ponies will be at the Horse Show June 24th. The show is well rounded out both in harness and saddle classes and arrangements have been made for children's pony rides and for an opportunity for parents to take pictures. Therefore, Mom and Dad should bring their camera along. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds, and a good time is assured all.

BOWMAN — SNIDER

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, June 3rd, at 2.00 p.m., in Brighton United Church, when Anne Alfretta Snider of Trenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snider, became the bride of John Bowman, of Brighton, son of Mrs. Grace Fritz, of Smithfield, Ontario. The Reverend B. R. Snow officiated, before a background of white and bronze 'mums, and pink hydrangeas.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mrs. Baker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a bridal gown of white silk organza over net and white taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice. She wore a Queen Anne headdress studded with seed pearls and an embroidered silk illusion veil and carried a cascade of red roses ,surrounded by white baby 'mums, with trailing ivy and tied with red satin ribbon.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Twin Elms, Trenton, where the bridal table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake separated with white swans between the layers, and topped with white wedding bells and lily-of-the-valley. The bridal bouquet was placed at the base of the cake. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Ray Ruckatuk.

The bride's mother received, wearing a pink and green cord ed silk with fitted bodice having a scalloped neckline, with corsage of yellow roses and lily-of-the-valley and fern. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in pale blue silk with corsage of pink roses.

For travelling to points east and the northern regions, the bride wore a green linen dress with rounded neckline and full skirt with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and fern. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman will reside on Young Street, Brighton.

Guests were present from Brighton, Belleville, Carrying Place and Smithfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Amos Noyes are pictured signing the register in Calvary Temple, Belleville, following their marriage. The bride is the former Miss Joan Rowland, Reg. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rowland, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert Noyes, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Noyes. (Photo by Lambers Studio, Belleville).

NOYES — ROWLAND

A very pretty double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, May 27th, at 3.30 p.m. in Calvary Temple, Belleville, when Dorothy Patricia Rowland, Reg. N., of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rowland, became the bride of Robert Amos Noyes of Belleville, son of Mrs. Robert Noyes, of Belleville and the late Mr. Noyes. The Reverend Hope Smith assisted by the Reverend Laurie Price, pastors of the church, officiated. Tall standards of white Shasta 'mums and coral-toned gladioli adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows marked the guest pews.

Mr. Mervin Saunders, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Dianne Currie, as she sang "The Lord's Prayer". The traditional ceremony, "Because", during the processional, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven", and in the service, "The Marriage Prayer", and while the register was being signed, "The 23rd Psalm".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her pure white bridal gown of silk chiffon over taffeta, with bodice of French lace having a fitted neckline outlined with tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The long sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. The floor-length bouffant skirt was attached to a bustle back. She wore a coronet of seed pearls and iridescent sequins. A triple strand of 'semitic' pearls, the gift of her bridegroom completed her costume. Her flowers were white orchids mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Elmer (Leona) Davidson, of Belleville; as matron of honor, and by Mrs. Robert (Donna) Bonfield and Mrs. Bancroft, and Mrs. Burl Lott (Carole) of Crofton, as bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in coral silk organza over taffeta, featuring fitted bodices and tiny tucked bodices, with bouffant skirts accented by long bowed back sashes. Their headdresses were in corosel style of feathered white cornations and they carried baskets of white Shasta 'mums, coral roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Roy Miller, of Belleville was groomsman, while Mr. Clare Miller, also of Belleville, and Mr. Burl Lott of Crofton, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at Club Casara, Belleville. The guest tables were prettily decorated with white 'mums, sweetpeas, and lily-of-the-valley, while the bride's table was appointed with, white damask and was topped by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked by crystal candelabra. Tulle and tiny pink Sweetheart roses mimted the base.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, and the bridegroom's mother; the former in taffeta sheath dress with matching jacket, blue accessories with corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley; while the latter also wore a taffeta sheath dress, blue silk brocade, with matching bolero, beige flowered hat and accessories, and corsage of coral Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid and the Adirondack Mountains, the bride chose a blossom-pink dress; pink hat and gloves, with beige duster and corsage of petal-pink Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Out-of-town guests attended from Sudbury; Bancroft; Kingston; Montreal; Nanticoke and Trenton, Ontario.

Showers honoring the bride were given by the bride's nursing classmates at the home of Mrs. Shirley Pitchett, in Belleville and by Miss Margaret Jean Noyes, and Mrs. Beverley Fuciers, also of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes are residing at 122 ½ Charles Street, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bronson are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in Wallbridge United Church, Wallbridge, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Joan Shirley McKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McKenzie, of Frankford R.R. 2. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bronson of Eldorado, Ontario. BRONSON — McKENZIE

Baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and lilacs adorned the chancel of Wallbridge United Church, on Saturday, June 3rd at 2.00 p.m. and white satin bows marked the guest pews for a lovely summer wedding when the Reverend R. M. McMullen united, in marriage, Joan Shirley McKenzie, of Frankford, R.R. No. 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McKenzie, to Mr. Gordon Bronson, of Eldorado, Ontario son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bronson.

Organist R. Evans of Wallbridge provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Shirley Lawrence of Foxboro, in her rendition of "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her full-length bridal gown of lace over satin, featuring a fitted bodice with sequin trim. She wore a pill-box type of headdress encrusted with sequins and seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

She was attended by Miss June Livingston, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Russell Phillips, and Miss Jean Gough, of Foxboro, as bridesmaids. All were attired in silk organza having lace bodices in shades of turquoise, and yellow, and carried yellow and white 'mums.

Little Janet Willson was a sweet flower girl in yellow silk organza with lace trim.

She wore a matching yellow headdress, white accessories, and carried a nosegay of white and yellow 'mums.

Mr. Eugene Sandford, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom and Messrs. Kenneth Denby, of Shannonburn, and Berry Ashburg, of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at Club Casara, where the bridal table, with its white damask linen cloth, three-tier wedding cake, and the bridal bouquets formed a lovely nuptial picture.

The bride's mother, wearing powder - blue lace with matching jacket, pink hat, gloves and white shoes, and corsage of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother attired in blue silk with matching jacket, white hat, gloves and shoes, with corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Buffalo, Kitchener and Toronto, the bride wore a pure silk golden sheath with matching jacket, gold-toned hat and shoes, white purse and gloves with corsage of metallic roses.

Guests were present from Toronto; Georgetown; Eldorado; Belleville and Shannonville.

Miscellaneous showers were held in honor of the bride by Miss Joyce Sandford, and Miss June Livingston, and the girls of the office of Delmo Smiths.

Mr. and Mrs. Bronson are residing at Frankford, R. R. 2, Ontario.

(Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville)

LEWIS—CAVERLY

On Saturday, May 20th, at 11 o'clock a.m. in Christ Church, Belleville, the marriage of Beverly Ann Caverly, of Belleville, to John James Lewis, was solemnized in a double-ring ceremony by the rector of the church, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, before an altar adorned with white gladioli, white snapdragons, with the chancel steps having baskets of yellow mums and the white satin cushions. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Allan Caverly, of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son on Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis, also of Belleville.

Mrs. John Croyden Wilbers, church organist, presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the choir of eight boys in their wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Carman Caverly, the bride was charming in her short, white lace bridal gown over taffeta, with white cummerbund accented by a back bow, square neckline and short sleeves. She wore a white nylon headdress in floral effect with shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle, and carried a cascade of pink carnations and trailing fern, centred with three tiny rosebuds. Short lace gloves and white satin slippers completed her ensemble.

She was attended by her twin sister, Miss Barbara Joan Caverly, as maid of honor, gowned in pink lace made on similar lines to that of the bride, with pink petal hat with pink bow and shoulder-length veil of tulle.

The senior bridesmaid was the bride's younger sister, Miss Mary Jane Caverly, in turquoise blue lace, also fashioned similarly to the bride's, with petal hat, matching gloves, nylon veil and bow in turquoise shade.

The junior bridesmaid was Miss Joyce Marie Caverly, the youngest sister of the bride, wearing pink lace of similar design to the other attendants with nylon cummerbund accented at the waistline by a single rose. A pink petal hat, with bow and shoulder-length veil and pink gloves and shoes. All carried nosegays of pink and white mums centred with rosebuds, and tied with pink tulle.

Mr. Edward Murphy, of Belleville, was groomsman, while Mr. Robert Booth and Mr. Ronald Caverly, brother of the bride, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception and wedding luncheon were held in the parish hall of Christ Church, where the guests were received by the brides' mother, wearing a nylon grey figured sheath gown with beige picture hat, matching accessories, and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother, in two-piece ensemble of turquoise embroidered nylon, with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses, assisted.

The bridal table, appointed in the traditional fashion, was lovely with his white linen damask cloth, centred by the three-tier wedding cake in pink and white topped by two white doves holding wedding rings in an encircling arch of pink and white rosebuds, with pink tulle misting the base, and pink and white candles adding a pretty accent.

For the wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride chose a pink linen dress trimmed with white lace, with white flower hat and accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds mingled with white feathered carnations.

Guests were present from Harrowby, Mass.; Toronto, Oshawa, Smiths Falls, Tamworth, Tweed, Corbyville and Carrying Place.

The bride was entertained, prior to her marriage, by Mrs. Robert Sladen and Miss Mary Logue, at the home of Mrs. H. Logue, Belleville; by Miss Carolyn Howe and Mrs. Howe, of Belleville, and at a presentation of a crystal chip and dip bowl by the fellow workers of the laboratory staff at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are residing at 54 Sidney Street, Belleville.

"The Strawberries Should Be Picked"

By Mary Moore

On June 20, 1924, our neighbor's gardener knocked on our back door and said our strawberries were at their very best and should be picked at once. The truth was they were neglected because I was having my second baby. (Five) at home — right then. By afternoon his Aunt Jess arrived and because all was under control she picked and ate strawberries to her heart's content and made a strawberry shortcake for dinner. To encourage me to eat some she said "I'm sure they make good mother's milk".

Ever since I've known for sure when strawberries are ripe in our area. So on that authority here are this year's crop of recipes.

Dinner Menus

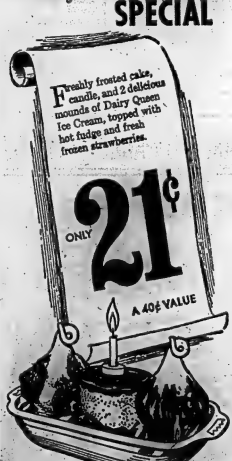
by Mary Moore

WEDNEDAY

Chicken Chop Suey or Chow Mein with Rice or Fried Noodles; Apple and Celery Salad; Baked Rosy Rhubarb; Fruit Hermits (see Tuesday); Coffee.

STRAWBERRY JAM:

Three and three-quarter cups prepared fruit (about 2 qts. ripe strawberries), 1-4 cup lemon juice (3 lemons) 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar, 1-3 bottle liquid fruit pectin. Crush completely one layer at a time, strawberries which have been washed and hulled and drained. Measure 3 3-4 cups into a very large saucepan. Squeeze the juice from 3 medium-sized lemons. Measure 1-4 cup into saucepan with fruit. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into clean, hot glasses. Cover jam at once with 1-8" hot paraffin. Cover with lids to store.



FROZEN STRAWBERRY JAM (uncooked):

Two cups mashed strawberries, 4 cups powdered fruit (berry) sugar, 1 box (about 6 tablespoons) powdered pectin (1¾ oz. per box — corn crystals), 1-2 cup water. Wash berries in a sieve, hull them and drain well. In a flat-bottomed pan mash them, and measure 2 cups (you will need a little less than 1 quart of berries). Add the berry sugar, stir very well and let stand 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile mix together the water and powdered pectin and cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Immediately add to fruit-sugar mixture and stir for 3 minutes. Pour into clean dry 8-oz. jars to within ½" from top (to allow for possible expansion when frozen). Cover with lids at once. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours. Store in freezer. If this jam is to be used within 3 or 3 weeks it will keep in storage part of refrigerator — not frozen. The bright red color is beautiful. The jam has the correct fresh taste of fresh strawberries.

FREEZING STRAWBERRIES:

The berries after being washed and hulled and either sliced or left whole, may be covered with dry sugar in a large bowl, using 2 cups of sugar to 12 cups of berries. Before packing in freezer cartons the berries should be stirred very slightly to distribute the sugar evenly. This will partially dissolve the sugar and give the frozen strawberries a better flavor. Or the berries may be packed into freezer cartons and covered with a cold medium syrup made from 1 cup of sugar thoroughly dissolved in 1 cup of water. Two-thirds of a cup of syrup will be required for each pint carton. Strawberries frozen without sugar or syrup lose their flavor and color so this is not recommended.

Attention Baby-Sitters

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Your advice to Barbara, May 31st, was the very thing when you told her to be the boss in her own back yard. This has given me lots of well-behaved little friends as well as neighbors who like their children to play at our place. And my children like it.

But allow me to say that I wouldn't think it wise for her to let the mother know what she noticed about the behavior of the other's child. Believe me, I think I have some maturity and control, but I can't keep my heart from jumping when someone insinuates something about my children, however true it is.

In matters with no moral issue, relatives, neighbors, baby-sitters, should never say anything to parents against the conduct of their children. Children are children and parents enough down for long years before they can correct defects or bad habits.

Give me someone who can handle my children when I am not there, without relating everything they have done when I get back, and I will say: "There's a person with a pink thumb." And if she can also find something good about them, well, they'll be better next time, because my loving this person will make the children love her and behave accordingly.—SUZY.

DEAR SUZY:—Bravo to you! Your letter shows rare understanding and will be helpful to those who are in the position of taking care of other people's children. We might add that the children will also love her for her telling on them.

When I said "if her mother goes to know it," I did not mean that Barbara should tell her. It could reach her ears from the child herself. Barbara's part, and others, was the "other kindly deeds" I suggested.

Any comments from candidates for the "pink thumb!"

DEAR DORIS:—I am 15 and need help very badly. I am always alone at weekends with no girl friends. I am quite attractive and many people like me only there are no girls living near me.

Boys like me very much and I'm quite friendly with them but when they start asking me out I always find myself refusing. I met a very good friend through this. Then I find myself crying. My mother tells me to go out but where am I going to go?—LONELY.

DEAR LONELY:—In other words, you're just a mixed up kid! But being lonely and unsure of yourself can be agony at 15.

You refure dates because this is safer than saying "yes" and then being faced with how to act, what to say, what to do when you are out with a boy. Obviously you need practice in mixing socially.

Your mother wants to help, so she will be sure to agree if you invite one of your school friends to stay with you over a Saturday night. You could give a small party that night, selecting two or three boys and girls to invite. Have a program of games to play, because this is the way to make sure people are not standing around feeling awkward.

More practice in mixing is yours for the taking by joining a community group or church club. Ask your local YWCA for their program of activities. If it is not too late, try to get scrolled at a summer camp, for a few weeks anyway.

It is essential that you take the first few steps yourself. In a year's time you can have lots of self-assurance, and fun, if you tackle this problem (which is every girl's) right now.

TWO-COLOR Easter eggs are easy to make, with unusual and attractive results. Place the boiled egg carefully in a shallow dish partly filled with dye. Let it set gently; after a few minutes the dye is set permanently. For a vertical effect, use a small partly filled glass, set the egg upright.

Women's Institutes Will Convene in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, organized in Stratford 45 years ago, will hold its national convention here June 18-23 with about 500 delegates present.

Meetings will be addressed by Senator James Gladstone of Alberta, Lewis Perinbam of Ottawa, associate secretary of the national commission for UNESCO, and Mrs. Hayes Smith of Chappell, Neb., vice-president of the International Country Women of the World.

A panel on resources development will be held under chairmanship of Mrs. Grant Floyd of Sussex, N.B., with Dr. Helen Abell of Ottawa, head of the rural sociology unit of the federal agriculture department, and Miss Charlotte Black, director of home economics at the University of British Columbia.

The first Women's Institute was founded in Ontario in 1897. The national group was organized in 1919 with Judge Emily Murphy as its first president.

Today there are more than 3,000 local branches with upwards of 90,000 members.

Founded as an organization for women living in rural areas, WI is concerned with agriculture, industry, home economics and citizenship and cultural activities. Among its projects are the promotion of soil conservation and the protection of trees and wildlife. It studies and supports the UN's Food and Agricultural Organization and UNESCO — the world body's educational, scientific and cultural organization.

QUESTION BOX

Question — I have been quite ill for some time, and spend most of my days resting and getting my strength back. I have a next-door neighbor who is continually ringing the front doorbell, usually to borrow something. Every time she comes I have to get out of bed and struggle down. Is there any way I can ask her to stop this, without making an enemy of her? — Mrs. E. M. E., Scranton, Pa.

Answer — Yes. Be quite frank, in a tactful way. Tell her the doctor does not want you going up and down stairs and that you would appreciate it if she would not come over during the day when you are alone. If she doesn't stop it, she certainly should!

Question — I am attending an 8 o'clock evening wedding. A dispersal-at-the-church is to follow the ceremony. Would it be proper for me to wear a strapless evening gown and cover up with a fur stole when at the church? Also, do I have to cover my head? — Miss H. D. V., Detroit, Mich.

Answer — The gown is proper for the reception, but do dress carefully and completely over your shoulders while in church. It would suggest that a scarf be worn around your head during the ceremony. It can be removed at the party.

Question — What do you think unless he has his feet on his desk? A gentleman in every other way, as far as I can see, my boss always assumes this position when dictating. For some reason it embarrasses me, particularly when clients come in and see him this way. Isn't this really out of line? — Miss C. E., Wooster, Ohio.

Answer — I should say it is. Very much so! Any man who is a gentleman should know this. Nothing could be more out of place in a business office. Try to tactfully bring this to his attention, for his own good!

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

The optimist says "Every dog must have a silver lining"; the pessimist may say "But you have to have another cloud before there is another silver lining", or "the lining does not make the cloud disappear." The fatalist may just say "You have to take the bitter with the better."

Probably a majority of things fall under the mixed blessings label. The wonder drugs often have unpredictable reactions and may become ineffective because of an immunity we build up. The new man-made fibres have many amazing properties, yet they never seem to have the look and feel of natural fibres. There are sprays which control or destroy insects and grubs, but they also seem to be harming the birds and animals.

There are a small number of people who are so worried about the effects of artificial controls and fertilizers that they refuse to grow anything but completely natural foods which have not been "treated" in any way. Well, to get back to myopia, we might add "You can't have everything."

Now, after nearly two decades of detergents, we are told that this product may be decaying all our water supplies, because it just does not wash away. Remember when we were told that we did not need to rinse any more? After centuries of rinsing, we were over how many months that at first was "wow" it seems that we might never get rid of it. The soft foam or suds is becoming apparent in many bodies of waters and boats are being asked to be careful about the amount they use. Even ground water may be affected.

There used to be an old saying that there was no use for dirt because soap was so cheap. This is not as true as it once was, so we should be careful of the amount we use for another reason.

Will we return to pure soap, or will we even make some of our own soap? This was done a bit during the last war and there are a few who still make cleaning soap. This, of course, was regular procedure in earlier days— everyone had a barrel of soft soap. In a letter of reminiscence written not long ago by an elderly Otawa man, he said: "Soft soap was manufactured at home. A barrel of hardwood ashes stood potash block or stand in the woodshed. Water was added and "by supid not through a hole near the bottom of the barrel. I don't remember the process by which "soft soap" was manufactured from the lye, but I do remember the product was strong and "biting" like caustic soda

The Experts Say

Conventions Can Proceed Without A Single Hitch

By DEREK MUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Wondering what to wear, what to say, conduct yourself and present your report at the next convention you plan to attend?

There are few conventions anywhere that will not benefit by more hours for discussion of their organization's problems and plans.

In part, this could be remedied by doing away with special luncheons and sightseeing jaunts, she suggests. Or arrange such events for before or after the business sessions, and use the luncheon time as a discussion period for new and uninformed members.

UNDERSTAND DETAILS

Miss Long, experienced when it comes to handling women's groups, says all men and women should be well versed in parliamentary procedure, should understand their organization's by-laws and constitution and the business to be transacted. Have a good presiding officer who can rule on procedure.

You may discuss any problem that may come up during the meeting, but be concise and specific.

Make sure your reports are ready in advance of the convention, and that there are several copies. This helps the secretary and publicity officer.

If reports cannot be prepared ahead of time, try to send a short summary of your speech along with your name and position—before the convention opens. But the completed text in advance is insurance for the organization, for its information officers and for yourself.

PROPER DRESS

As for the clothes are concerned, make sure you are well-groomed in a tasteful manner.

"I think high fashion is out of place during daytime sessions," says Miss Long. "However, banquets are the time for every woman to sparkle."

Keep your dress or suit to basic styles, and avoid outlandish hair style. The ladies, who pay a noisy dress pattern, can be distracting to the audience during a serious speech.

Don't go bareheaded if you happen to live in the city where the meeting is held. If you think the meeting room may be chilly, bring along your fur stole or jacket.

"Rehabilitate your old shoes and make sure they are comfortable, but not sloppy," she advises. "You will either be foot-happy or pretty foot-weary at the end of the day."

Mother-to-Be Honored With Baby Gifts

WELLINGTON — About 30 Wellington friends of Mrs. William Lott, of Belleville, met at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Lavender on Thursday evening, to honor her with a stork shower.

On her arrival at her mother's home, she was much surprised to find her friends there.

The evening was spent playing two contests, one a scrambled name, and the other making "many names from a handful of alphabet macaroni. The winners were, Mrs Lily Reed; Mrs. Harvey Jenkins and Mrs. J. Rogers.

The guest of honor was seated at the table and Mrs. R. Blower read a suitable address written in poem form Mrs. Upton assisted Mrs. Blower in bring in the many lovely and useful gifts, these were brought in a decorated doll carriage. After the gifts had been opened and passed around so all could see them, Mrs. Lott voiced her sincere appreciative to her friend gathered for honoring her in this manner.

The sponsors of the party, Mrs. G. Upton and Mrs. R. Blower, assisted by some of the ladies and the hostess, Mrs. Lavender served a delicious lunch.

ARE IMPORTANT

CHATHAM (CP)—Those who take God's message into factory, home and the union are often more important in the work of the church in this crucial period than foreign missionaries, members of Kent Holy Name Societies were told Sunday. Well-Known Citizen Marks 90th Birthday

SAM PRELLFORD — Mr. James C. Anderson, one of Campbellford's most highly respected residents, celebrated his 90th birthday here on Wednesday.

He was born on June 7th, 1871, in the township of Brighton, about three miles southeast of the village of Warkworth, son of Alex Anderson and the former Margaret Ross. Mr. Anderson Sr., came to Canada in the early pioneer days from Ireland, and carried on his teaching profession at the Dutch Line and Fleming's schools east of Campbellford. James C. Anderson was the youngest of a family of four.

After attending Pine Grove, then Campbellford schools, Mr. Anderson entered a flax cheesemaking business. He was one of the pioneer makers employed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to take charge of a factory at Orweel, in the Maritime province of Prince Edward Island. After spending two years there, he moved back to Ontario where he built a factory in Bobcaygeon and six years later, sold this and returned to the farm.

Mr. Anderson established a stock farm known as "Village Farm," at Morganston, where he owned and raised some fine and valuable horses. He inspected horses for the government for four years and was a familiar figure at fall fairs having judged horses at many years all over the province.

Mr. Anderson also served various communities in which he resided in the municipal field of public service. He was a member of the Cramahe township council, president of the Cramahe Agricultural Society and chairman of the municipal telephone system in that area. He was also a councillor for Alnwick cheese factory for some time.

In 1918, he moved to Campbellford where he opened a hardware and implement business on Queen Street, the west side business section of Campbellford.

Mr. Anderson has served the town of Campbellford in municipal office as reeve for two and a half years. He has also been a councillor and active in the work of the Seymour Agricultural Society in which both he and his wife take an active interest. He is of Presbyterian faith.

Mr. Anderson is in good health, driving his own car every day and enjoys fishing as a hobby.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson celebrated his birthday quietly at their home at 94 Queen St. His son, Dr. Ernest J. Anderson of Oroville, is expected later this week.

UN. CONGO AGREE

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations announced Monday it has reached an agreement with Congo President Joseph Kasavubu to bolster the central Congolese government's faltering financial structure. As a first step, $10,000,000 was made available to the Congolese government's monetary council. Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold announced the agreement, called this "a milestone in co-operation with the republic of the Congo and the United Nations."

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE, W.I.
(W. Hawkins)

The June meeting of Uniondale (West Hastings) Women's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Harrington, 4th concession of Sidney, with a good attendance of members and several visitors.

Business was dealt with and "Thank You" cards reads. Some voiced appreciation for fruit and flowers sent their families.

The report of the District Annual at Whitby's Church was given by Mrs. Morley Nine, in the morning session and by Mrs. Harold Foster in the afternoon session. The expenses for this annual were paid out by the secretary - treasurer, Mrs. A. Martyn.

The program for this meeting was based on "Historical Research," by Mrs. Ross Dafoe, and she read a poem entitled "A Prayer On Growing Old." She also gave a report on the Historical Society meeting she had visited as a representative from Uniondale W.I., and stated that considerable progress has been made and that the building will soon be open for visitors.

Miss Ruth Brintnell, who was accompanied by her mother, showed slides of historical buildings, churches, cabins, the Bay Bay Church (over 100 years old), tombstone plaques and many interesting old pioneers. She also showed a film on scenery of the township.

Mrs. Jean Paul made every appreciation for their efforts and presented them with a small token.

Mrs. Maurice Dafoe read a pertinent article entitled "Home" by a reading by Mrs. George Burkitt, "House Cleaning. Deferred." A demonstration was presented regarding a sausage-maker, by Mrs. F. Paul, and this was a piece of tin (tunnel-shaped) for the casings and a large wooden masher to force the filling into the casings.

Lunch was served by the June hostess. The July meeting will be at Mrs. H. Bleeker's, 6th concession of Sidney, with the topic being based on Canadian Industries by Mrs. R. Fleming.

Grand Lady Reaches 85th Milestone

WHITE'S DISTRICT — About 85 relatives surprised Mrs. James Sandercock at her home last Saturday evening on the occasion of her 85th birthday. Mrs. Sandercock is active and spends part of her time with her children. Mrs. Fred Wilson of Belleville, Mrs. Kenneth Jones of Aiken's District, Mr. Roy Sandercock of Toronto, Mr. Floyd Sandercock of Sidney and at home with Mr. Frank Sandercock.

Her nieces and nephews combined to present her with a lovely bouquet of red roses. Other guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar and family; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock and family; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jones and Miss Marilyn Jones, all of Sidney; Mr. Jack Caddick of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sandercock of Toronto; Mrs. Fred Wilson of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis of Bayside; Mr. and Mrs. Alva Meyers of Bayside, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sandercock and family, all near.

Mrs. Frank Sandercock made two big birthday cakes which were topped by Mrs. Sandercock.

A happy social time was enjoyed after which a delicious lunch was served.

Mrs. Millar was the recipient of over 80 cards of good wishes, and many lovely gifts.

Mrs. Jones wishes to thank the whole community are extended to Mrs. James Sandercock on this occasion.

Women's Activities

FRONT ROAD W.A.

FRONT ROAD — Front Road W.A. held its June meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Clazie.

Mrs. Clifford Reid, president, opened the meeting with the reading of a poem, which was followed by the theme song and prayer.

Mrs. Reid welcomed everyone and thanked Mrs. Clazie for opening her home for the 13 members and one visitor, who were present. Mrs. Lee Purdy was in charge of the devotions which dealt with the topic, "Home", and quoted "He came to His own home, His own people received Him not". The Scripture reading, taken from Luke 10:38-41, was read by Mrs. Walter Taylor, and Mrs. Purdy gave a reading. A reading was also given by Mrs G. Bradshaw entitled "Stone on Life", and Mrs. Ernest Preston read a poem entitled, "Time to Think". A reading "Husband's Excuse" was given by Mrs. Hugh McMullin. A contest followed, after which business was discussed.

Mr. Hoult, the minister, spoke briefly to the group and based his topic on the new organization which will become effective in 1962.

A presentation was made to Mrs. Hoult from the ladies of the W.A. and Mrs. Hoult in turn presented Mrs. Clazie with a token.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Clazie.

Moments in History

In 1780, first settlers in the Belleville area began to arrive. In 1784, some fifty families of United Empire Loyalists settled near the mouth of the River Moira, then known by its Indian name "Saganaskion". Little is known how people kept their homes warm in those days. Today, modern units make heating efficient and effective. Fuel oil is delivered automatically.

At the turn of this century the original Moira-Schuster company first began. It has grown up with Belleville. Why not let Moira-Schuster supply your heating needs? Call WO 2-4504 or drop in next time you're downtown.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Nelson O. — He won't admit that his hearing is impaired.

Brian O. — If people would stop mumbling I'd have no trouble.

* * *

Nelson O. — My brother is stubborn fellow. His wife can't budge him on the subject of his hearing loss, so now I'm trying to steer him towards assistance.

It's hard to talk to him, or even to talk to others in his presence. Often you shout and move your lips like a language teacher, to relieve words. Lately he's been staying away from parties and meetings. I'm sure it's because it's a struggle for him to hear.

My sister-in-law tells me they don't get to theatre any more, either. Brian used to be sociable and pleasant. Now he's edgy and touchy. I'm sure he'd be his old self again if he'd get his hearing corrected.

Brian O. — There's nothing especially wrong with my ears. I'm at years old and it's natural for some of a man's faculties to go less sharp with the years.

They're all after me to see a doctor. But why should I wind up wearing batteries, cords and tubes just because Nelson and the others don't know how to talk? Nobody has any trouble hearing me. I have the manners to speak clearly and enunciate and pause. Nowadays people run their words, mumble and make no effort to be heard.

The widest thing of all is what they call "small talk." Everyone talks at once, then they gripe. I'm sure nobody listens to anyone.

The Council — Brian isn't stubborn." That term usually takes in real reasons for inexplicable behavior. Is he too insecure to admit defect? Is he scared of what an examination may reveal? Is he hurt by the unsympathetic attitude of the family? Removing these blocks may put an end to Brian's dialling.

His own rationalizations are easily countered. Hearing loss does not necessarily come with age. We all know children who can hear a cat's paw pad along. As to people mumbling, Nelson can demonstrate to his brother that by intoned sounds and words in another key carefully chosen.

The final statement by Brian, however, would be the observation that he's one of 10,000,000 people in the U.S. who are hard of hearing, and that many of them keep it a complete secret through proper treatment. In fact, his very fear of being conspicuous through "wearing batteries," makes him more conspicuous through his inability to hear well. Hearing aids aren't the only answer. Medication and injections are very are alternate recourses.

Perhaps the most dangerous result of Brian's do-nothingness is his inner tension. Never sure that he's hearing all, suspecting that others may be talking about him, he tends to withdraw from all communication. Like a chameleon, he smiles when those about him smile and sighs when they sigh — to play safe. If he heard well he might disagree.

We would urge Brian to have a hearing test immediately.

His propulsion toward correction may be speeded by a considerate, kindly approach on the part of Nelson and the family. "In telling a joke, for example," advises Maisie J. Carlson, head of Acoustics International. "Be sure to make the punch-line clear."

Dr. Sally Clapp Honored by Community

WELLINGTON — Mrs. Jack McNeill, Mrs. Frank Bolsby, Jr., Mrs. Ken Lake, Mrs. W. Allison, Mrs. L. McCartney and Mrs. C. Cleave were callers last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Dr. Sally Clapp, in Picton.

On behalf of the village of Wellington and the accredited school area, they were proud to present her with a handsome five-piece silver tea and coffee service, a silver entree dish and a silver tray engraved with: "To Dr. Sally from your friends of Wellington and community. April, 1960." Also presented at the same time was an autograph album containing the names of more than 400 families who were only too willing to make the Hawley testing days possible.

Dr. Sally was pleased to be honored in this way. They will be a constant reminder of all her friends in and around Wellington. All wish her and her husband, Dr. Robert Clapp, many years of happiness. It was never more truly said. Wellington's loss is Picton's gain.

ONTARIO HYDRO CHIEF — W. Ross Strike, 65-year-old lawyer from Bowmanville, Ont., has taken over as chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, one of the world's largest utilities serving 1,838,000 customers. He has been vice-chairman for 17 years before being promoted June 1. (CP Photo).

W. Ross Strike, New Hydro Chairman, Travels to Work From Bowmanville Daily

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — W. Ross Strike, a small-town lawyer who commutes a total of 94 miles a day to work in the big city, has taken over the top job of one of the world's largest electrical utilities.

The move from the office of vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to the office of retired CHAIRMAN James S. Duncan is a short trip—down two corridors and around a corner.

Talking to a reporter a few days before the appointment was announced June 1, the straight-talking Mr. Strike said:

"I've been sitting here for 17 years. My office is bigger than his. Certainly the view is better. And I've been doing the job from here for some time while the chairman has been finishing up."

From one window, Mr. Strike can see Queen's Park, seat of both the provincial government that appointed him chairman. From the other on a rare, smog-free day, he can see the new Hearn power station on the Leslie Ontario waterfront.

The windows of the chairman's office look down 15 storeys onto the freight yards.

AIMED TO BOOST SALES

From that office, the 65-year-old chairman will operate a complex that generates 4,500,000 kilowatts (about 8,700,000 horsepower)—and serves 1,235,000 customers. Hydro revenue was $215,000,000 in 1959 and there were 16,000 persons on the payroll.

The lawyer from Bowmanville, 47 miles east of Toronto, sees the immediate challenge as selling more power to the people to get the best all-round use out of the equipment which must be built to serve peak periods.

One way of doing this is by developing — along with appliance companies — new devices to use electricity.

"The lighting of the future will be in wall panels," he says.

"The panels will likely be plastic, painted to match the wall, and filled with vapor. The housewife will be able to change the color of the lights and the density."

It will allow her to turn a room into an intimate, warmly lit place during winter evenings or cool it down with a different tone during the summer. The strength of the light glowing through the wall will be variable—not for television viewing or bright for reading and studying.

DUSTING AID

Another item is the electric wand.

"Instead of the wife dusting a room, she will just wave a wand and the dust will rush toward it, collecting upon it."

Fantastic!

Behind Call for Coyne's Resignation Is Dispute Over Best Way to Boost Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — Behind the government's call for the resignation of James Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada is a dispute over the speed and scope of stimulating the country's economy, a qualified source close to the cabinet said on Tuesday.

The governor, in his speeches, has told Canadians to tighten their belts to help ride out the economic crisis. He has run counter to the doctrine, popular in more cabinet circles, that expansion is the way to cure the country's ills, including unemployment.

Not that Mr. Coyne has opposed economic growth. But he has strongly opposed accomplishing this by means that would involve large - scale expansion of the money supply, contending this would defeat its own things' worse.

Possibly this conflict between the governor and the cabinet has been responsible for delay in presentation of Finance Minister Fleming's budget to the Commons.

In any case, political circles expect the situation to blow up into the most exciting political battle in years. One authoritative government source proclaimed: "The fight isn't over yet."

The Liberals, in power when Mr. Coyne was appointed governor at $100,000 a year, are expected to rally to his defence. Liberal Leader Pearson said in March there was a shocking lack of co - ordination between fiscal and monetary policies.

Once Parliament Hill recovered from the initial shock of Mr. Coyne's statement, there was speculation the resignation issue might be the basis for an immediate election. However, well-placed sources discounted this possibility.

DEBASE AUSTERE VIEWS

One of the features of the government circles of the theory that the country needs additional stimulants to promote an economic boom attributed Mr. Coyne's speeches to unsound financial cabinet ministers to his austere views.

Typical of the man is that it was he who bared the issue to the public in his 16 speeches and blue statement Tuesday saying he had been asked by the government to resign and had refused.

A couple of years ago a colleague was asked whether, in a fundamental split between government and central bank, Mr. Coyne would resign.

"Not like that," said the colleague. "He'd stay and fight it out."

The 50-year-old governor — a lawyer by schooling and economist by natural inclination—is a tall, retiring man described by some friends as a shy person.

But he hasn't hesitated to break with the tradition that the central bank governor should be silent and aloof. He SHOULD PARTICIPATE

He has spoken out repeatedly on a subject on which he has long felt strongly — that Canadians should be no longer ingly larger role in the development of their country, assessed Canada's dependence on foreign capital.

Reports of sharp differences between Mr. Fleming and Mr. Coyne came a few months after the 13th Conservative party took office in June, 1957.

An apparent Mr. Coyne's duty is to advise the government and to manage the central bank so as to preserve the integrity of the nation's currency. The finance minister cannot direct monetary policy to him, and it is not believed he has advised though the governor is free to criticize government policy if he wishes.

His job is to see that the bank within its powers, does what ever seems "in the best interests of the economic life of the nation."

Since he took over the governor's chair at the start of 1954 he has made it clear he takes that injunction in the law deadly seriously.

Jack was checking his cash on the table. "You're rich," exclaimed Jill. "All quarters and that same number of coins as I have. But mine are all dimes."

Her brother was feeling good. "Okay," he said. "I'll give you 'Ric,' and then I'll have as many dimes as you'll have quarters. In value, that is."

How much would that be?

Turn for an idea, to C. T. Norm...n, Calgary, Alta.

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's Answer:

SIXTY is $1.60.

Registered as highly significant was Mr. Coyne's statement that, in asking for his resignation Mr. Fleming suggested can reasonably be interpreted with him out of the way that it was preparing "certain programs which were apparently thought to be of such character that I would oppose them."

The "certain programs" were taken by observers to include measures designed to reassure the government has been considering a slender cut with strong features, he was one of the capable if most eligible bachelors until 1957 when he married a widow with three children, two which a fourth has since been added.

A prolific reader, he also collects paintings. He's a golfer, tennis player and a hobbier in mechanics and a man active in community affairs. Until recently he was chairman of the board of governors of Carleton University here.

Police Will Continue to Enforce Law

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mayor F. C. Edmonds said Monday police raid on the plush Highland Golf and Country Club Monday night gives "aggravating a deplorable situation."

Police seized $4,000 in cases of beer and six and five cases of liquor during the raid and about $200,000 chips, used as an area assumed from dry Westminster Township.

Mayor Stronach called for tolerance in the application governing London's recently-relaxed liquor laws.

Premier Frost previously said: "Whether the city by-law enforcement was to hold a plebiscite on the liquor question if it wished to change the law to allow for more "dry" status.

Police said Tuesday that probably one or two charges would be laid against Highland Golf Club.

Police Chief A. E. Knight said Monday that he will carry out the policy regarding illegal liquor operations, and the police chief will continue to enforce the law.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Today, June 13, 1961

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys will visit Ottawa soon for discussions on a possible United Kingdom bid to join the Common Market.

Opposition Leader Pearson criticized the prime ministership of approved authorizing a 15 member committee to study the proposed amendments to the War Measures Act to bring it into line with the Bill of Rights.

Paul Martin (L — Essex East) and H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) agreed with the importance of the committee study but deplored the late start in launching it.

Canada Shipping Act amendments were approved permitting the Canadian vessels to sail down the St. Lawrence Seaway as far as Montreal without taking on pilots.

Final approval was given the government bill to establish the Farm Credit Corporation's loan limit at $30,000 to $300,000,000 from $200,000,000.

RATEBY AGREEMENT

SARNIA (CP) — Members of Local 1854, International Longshoremen's Association (CLC), ratified an agreement with Seaway Forwarding Agencies Limited Tuesday providing for a 15 cent - an - hour wage increase. The agreement, retroactive to April 1, provides for an additional 16 cents an hour. The basic hourly rate now increases from $1.85 to $2.

Vanier Shivers Then Sweats In Far North

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — Shrilling airess and shirt-sleeve weather twinkle greeted Governor-General Vanier here Tuesday were in sharp contrast to the scene he left behind in Churchill, Man.

There, the governor-general stood white with white hair flying in a wind whipped off the ice of Hudson Bay, sand parka-clad inhabitants who greeted him in sub-Arctic temperatures.

In this uranium mining community a two-hour flight from Churchill, the temperature was 70 degrees and similar recent highs left nearby woods dangerously dry.

The stress walled three times to call volunteers from this community of about 3,000 to fight bush fires which flared in the surrounding hills.

In Churchill, a team of white sled dogs slept at the governor-general's feet while native villagers said were also verse in the throaty Chipewyan dialect.

Chief John Dock of Camp 10, a settlement of about 300 members of the Chipewyan band, presented the governor-general with a fine and steel and had colored postcards for each member of the party.

THE BURNSIDE CARD

Chief Duck spoke through an interpreter, but when reporters asked him his name he wielded out a tastefully printed business card.

Also at Churchill, the governor-general and his wife visited Camp 30, an Eskimo village, and made a brief tour of an Eskimo museum operated by the Roman Catholic church of the Holy Canadian Martyrs.

At Uranium City, the schedule began with a reception, call, and for a visit to a school and hospital, mass at the Roman Catholic church, a reception and a luncheon.

GROCERY ROW ENDS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Acting on a petition signed by 70 per cent of the city's 94 grocers, the building and regulations committee recommended a bylaw Tuesday night to allow night grocery shopping on Fridays only. The petition, signed by two chain stores as well as by independent grocers, climaxed nearly six months of controversy over night shopping.

Need More 'Day Use' Parks in Southwest Ontario Conservation Council Plea

TORONTO (CP) — A conservation expert netted Lands and Forests Minister Spooner Tuesday with the language in a brief presented to the Ontario legislature's select committee on the administrative and executive problems of government.

The committee, discussing the province's parks system, heard a plea by the Conservation Council of Ontario for the development of more "day use" parks in Southwestern Ontario.

Gavin Henderson, executive director of the council, said the situation "is desperate and getting worse all the time".".

He said the government's position that it is the responsibility of conservation authorities and municipalities to provide "day use" facilities is unrealistic, without a far greater measure of financial support from the government.

"It is to our ever - lasting shame that the long stretch of Lake Ontario shoreline between Oshawa and Mt. Catharines — one of the greatest potential assets nature has provided this province for the enjoyment of its people—is now virtually inaccessible for public purposes," Mr. Henderson said.

Other vital areas are going the same way for the same reason: Lack of imagination, lack of planning and lack of decisive action. . . ."

Mr. Henderson gave some unqualified praise to the department of lands and forests for its work in developing provincial parks, Mr. Spooner became vexed by his choice of words.

"You're using pretty strong language," he said. "I take objection to those words."

Peace was restored when Mr. Henderson said he was not criticizing the government, but merely pointing out the absence of a sufficient number of parks for recreation purposes.

He urged that the government undertake immediately an overall survey of outdoor recreation requirements for Ontario as a whole, looking ahead at least 25 years.

The Quetico Foundation and the Federation of Ontario Naturalists supported the council brief.

All three groups expressed fears that the cost of land suitable for parks purposes in Southern Ontario would become so expensive in future years that it could not be obtained when required.

As the result of a land survey made by the department in 1954-55, Mr. Spooner said, the provincial parks system was found deficient from six standard areas in 1954 to 90 in 1961.

The department's policy is to establish parks between one and two hours' drive from large urban centres in Southern Ontario and every 150 to 250 miles along the main highway routes in Northern Ontario. Mr. Spooner said one major problem was the cost of land in Southern Ontario.

American Nazi Leader Fined $2,000, Jailed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party, and nine of his "storm troopers" were found guilty Tuesday night of disturbing the peace and of conspiracy to provoke a disturbance of the peace.

They were arrested May 24 on the day after arrival in their "hate bus," to picket the motion picture "Exodus."

Judge Edward Haggerty fined the 43-year-old Rockwell or Adlington, Va., $2,000 and sentenced him to 60 days in jail.

Rockwell testified that Hitler was his spiritual leader. He also told the court he expected to be in power in 1972 by a vote of the American people.

He said the swastika armband worn by his followers was a "race" symbol and had no connection with Germany.

Bear Will Go Back to Nature

GANANOQUE (CP) — Canadian citizen Mrs. Mary Lynch has decided to let the 12-pound nine-week old bear cub he took from the Gananoque provincial hunters Monday go back to nature.

He has given up the search for the cub which escaped from a neighbor's rabbit hutch where he was keeping it before taking it to nearby alleyTown Zoo.

Complying with U.S. customs regulations, Lynch, a customs official on the Canadian side of the 1,178-foot International Bridge near here, took the cub away from the three hunters who shot its mother in Quebec.

FEES STARTS AUCTION

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) Bachelor Lord Elphinstone, 47, he began auctioning off furnishings of Carberry Tower, an ancient castle that the Queen visited as a child. The heir decided the place is too big for him. Hundreds of persons attended the sales Tuesday.

Bingo Means Big Money in New York State

NEW YORK (AP) — Bingo means big money in New York state. Since it also means a tieup with racketeers and professional gamblers.

The state investigation commission says that far too often the answer is yes.

But the state lottery control commission declares that, although a few bad apples turned up at recent investigation commission hearings, it believes the vast majority of the games are conducted legitimately.

Now a one-man commission, acting in behalf of Governor Nelson Rockefeller, investigating to see how bad things really are.

Thomas Gilchrist, head of the latest investigation, promises to take a constructive approach and court with governmental conditions when his study ends in the fall.

BIG INCOME SOURCE

Since it was legalized on a local-option basis in 1958, bingo has been a tremendous source of income for many churches and fraternal, veterans and other non-profit organizations.

Many of these frankly admit that bingo is going off their mortgages.

Lottery commission figures show that in the 2½ years bingo has been legal, sponsoring organizations realized a profit of $19,200,000. As of last March there were 1,230 licensees in the state's 62 counties. Thirty-five organizations reported a net profit of more than $10,000 each for the six-month period ended March 31.

A study by the investigation commission recently put the bingo problem in the public spotlight.

CHARGES CORRUPTION

A hearing ended with an agency denunciation by Jacob Grumet, then commission chairman. He charged that commercial operators and gamblers were taking over bingo, corrupting public officials and duping honest citizens.

Testimony was presented that racketeers, gamblers and bookmakers have worked their way into some of the games and have skimmed much of the profits.

The investigation commission reported that 40 commercially operated halls grossed $3,403,293 in 1960. Of that amount, charity organizations got only $854,184 of this.

Crown Attorney Admits Feener Told of Killing

HAILEYSBURY (CP) — With the Queen's Bench judge (Mr. Hinchey) Feener went to the gallows Tuesday for the knife slaying of Mary Sweeney last October at Timmins.

Only the gestures as he swalled death:

1. He confessed to murdering Mrs. Sweeney in Kirkland Lake in 1956 and then told eyes to the jury box.

The fourth Bay Nugget said Tuesday that a few minutes before his death Feener confessed the killing Miss Wood, 19-year-old Kirkland Lake waitress who had been missing since April of 1959.

Later Crown Attorney George Gale, Toronto, confirmed this and said Feener told authorities the girl's body would be found near Notre Dame de Nord, Que., a small community just east of the Ontario border and 45 miles southeast of Kirkland Lake.

Sheriff Donahue of Cochrane said Feener wrote out his confession in his death cell. He described how he hid the girl's body after choking her. He could see the lights of a village 15 minutes walk away.

Police searched all day in the area described by Feener without success. The search covered ditches along 40 miles of road, most of it under construction. Police were reported to feel that if the body were there, it would have been discovrd by foreslow by workmen.

WANT MEDIATION

BRANTFORD (CP) — A request for an Ontario department of labor mediator to seek a settlement in the Massey-Ferguson strike here was made Tuesday jointly by the company and the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC). The union went on strike March 24, after six months of negotiations failed to reach agreements in a wage dispute. Operations in the plant were resumed May 23 as some workers began crossing picket lines.

Macmillan Apparently Turns Cold Shoulder on Proposal For Commonwealth Meeting

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan apparently turned a cold shoulder Tuesday to Canada's proposal for a Commonwealth conference, at the prime ministers' level if necessary, to consider any British move towards joining the Common Market.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had told the Canadian Commons last week a multi-lateral conference among Commonwealth countries that would be attended by such a move by Britain would be more valuable than a series of bilateral conferences between British and individual Commonwealth members. Diefenbaker reiterated the suggestion in the Canadian Commons Tuesday. The British Labor opposition Tuesday proposed to Macmillan that a visit by less than a conference on the prime ministers' level should be held.

Macmillan told a crowded House of Commons that he does not think a prime ministers' conference will solve any of the major problems at this time.

"I will not exclude such a meeting if it should prove desirable," he said. "But I would like not like to lay down the procedure now."

SANDYS TO VISIT

Instead of a meeting of prime ministers, Macmillan announced that Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys "and two other senior ministers" will visit Commonwealth capitals for bilateral talks, possibly starting about the end of June.

(In the Ottawa House Tuesday, Diefenbaker said the Canadian government will regard the talks with Mr. Sandys "as exploratory in nature and as not constituting the basis for any binding decision or commitment" saying as to Canada's attitude in this matter."

In essence, this was the same statement made to the House on Friday when Diefenbaker said there may be a necessity for a meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers to discuss Britain's moves.)

In reply to a question by Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell, Macmillan said that Diefenbaker agreed that because of the divergent character of the problem" Commonwealth officials "should start with careful, more detailed discussions."

Gaitskell said it is "very desirable" that there should be nothing that "could damage" British prime ministers' confidence on the matter.

Macmillan replied that he had been in close touch with Diefenbaker "and we do not see any discrepancies between us."

Despite a persistent attack from the opposition benches, the prime minister refused to enlarge on the government's attitude to the Common Market and Commonwealth trade preferences.

Britain is not yet at the stage of deciding whether to join the European Common Market, he said. "Now we have to decide only if we are going to enter into negotiations."

UNHARMED BY FALLOUT

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States declared Tuesday that the general health of Marshall Islanders is satisfactory, and that no aftermath of fallout from the 1954 H-bomb tests is discernible.

Specialists May Be Called in On Ailing Back

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy's ailing back is to be repaired by specialists if there is no decided improvement in five days, it was learned Tuesday.

White House informants said the president is taking no medicine or drugs and that while he continues to suffer some pain, there is hope he will recover by the end of this week.

If recovery does not occur, they said, the whole situation will be reappraised. One possibility is that he may be flown back to Florida for a long period of rest. Most of the White House work would be taken over by Vice-President Lyndon Johnson.

Johnson substituted for Kennedy Tuesday at a luncheon where the president was scheduled to speak to an assembly of United States mayors.

The president, on his return from Florida Monday after a three-day rest, had to be removed from the plane by electric hoist. He has been hobbling around the White House on crutches to keep the strain off his back.

One visitor who spoke with him said Kennedy appeared worried about his ailment. Informants said, however, there is no likelihood at this time that either vice-president or surgery would be required.

As usual in cases of presidential ailments, the White House press' office has sought to calm public anxiety. Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the White House is "treating this as a minor ailment — nothing is being withheld in this matter whatsoever."

The White House announced last week that the president hurt his back while shovelling dirt at a tree-planting ceremony in Ottawa last month.

Queen Mother Breaks Small Bone in Foot

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen Mother has cracked a small bone in her foot and will have to cancel her official engagements for a few weeks, it was announced today.

Her injury prevented her from attending the opening day of the meeting Tuesday.

Presbyterians Want Testing Of Nuclear Arms Abolished

TORONTO (CP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada urged the Federal government Friday night to use its influence to bring an international agreement on the testing of nuclear weapons.

A resolution of the church's board of evangelism and social action, adopted by the assembly, urged the government also to press for a halt in production of nuclear weapons under international inspection and controls.

The resolution also suggested prohibition of nuclear warfare by international agreement and the accelerated development of atomic power, under safeguards, for peaceful purposes.

Other recommendations of the board approved by the assembly were that all presbyteries study the local needs of the church in relation to social welfare services, and that the possibility of establishing a hostel for aging facilities for senior citizens be considered.

Earlier, the assembly increased the basic stipend for ministers, but not as much as expressed the move might handicap other church activities.

There was only one vote against the increase to $3,900 yearly from $3,600 which will cost the church about $825,000 a year.

Earlier Rev. A. L. MacKay of Hamilton said any suggestions that all or some of extension programs should be suspended "would be a betrayal of the trust committed to us by the church.

"We have no moral right to authorize any new extension work until the basic stipend is raised to $3,900," said Rev. W. Allum of Dundas.

Rev. Harland Gangi of Hamilton said the assembly must do more than simply pass a resolution increasing the stipend —they must try to raise the revenue required.

"If we go home and do nothing, if we don't conduct campaigns, it is nothing short of hypocrisy."

A motion to consider a capital campaign to meet financial needs came from Rev. F. G. Stewart of Kitchener after Rev. A. L. MacKay of Hamilton told the assembly one of the major board of mission's major problems was keeping expenditures within income.

Mr. MacKay said the problem should arise — because of church's rapid expansion in recent years.

The assembly voted to hold next year's assembly in Knox Church in Dundas, site of the current sessions.

WELLINGTON

U it·d Church Holds Dinner, Presents Farewell Gifts

WELLINGTON — The Sunday School rooms were filled to capacity on Thursday evening, when the congregation of Wellington United Church gathered to honor the Rev. and Mrs. Aldred Poulter.

The tables were decorated with bouquets of iilies-of-the-valley, while a gorgeous arrangement of lilies and tulips centred the head table. Seated at the table were Mr. and Mrs. Poulter were, their daughter, Mrs. Douglas Steinburg, and granddaughter, Barbara of Trenton also several members of the Church Board and their wives.

Mr. Bruce Watt gave a brief review of the highlights of Mr. and Mrs. Poulters "This is Your Life". Mr. Poulter born in England, came to Canada with his uncle at the early age of 16 to make his fortune in Toronto. After a trough voyage of the ship docked in New York. They travelled to Canada by train. Work he wanted, work he did, anything he could do. With his first savings he brought his mother and two brothers over from England.

He decided to enter the ministry and graduated at Albert College. By hard work and necessity, he passed the first years of high school in three. It wasn't all work for he met his future wife in Belleville, Hazel Wooten.

He went as a student for his first year to Brighamsville in Prince Edward County. He was married and ordained in Picton. Later, sent to St. Ola, the only ordained minister from Meaford to Maynooth. It was fortunate he was young for he met the hardest men in that territory. He finished his education at Toronto University.

Two children were born to this happy couple, a son, Theodore, who followed his father's foot-steps and was also ordained in Picton and one daughter, Patricia, Mrs. Douglas Steinburg, Trenton. They now have four grandchildren.

They made their home and many new friends in Flinton, Thomasburg, Bethany, Wooler, Madoc, and back to Pr. Ed. in Wellington.

Mr. Watt thanked Mr. Poulter for his many acts of kindness and help to the Board of Stewards and the session also to Mrs. Poulter for her kindness and untiring capacity as hostess of the parsonage.

On behalf of the Board and the congregation, Mr. Harry Pierson presented them with a cheque. This was a remembrance to buy something of their own choice for their new home in Belleville.

Mr. Milton Snider, superintendent voiced the appreciation of the Sunday School for unfailing help Sunday after Sunday for 11 years, as teachers and special programs. Mr. Ken Lane presented a cheque from the officers teachers and pupils.

Miss Gladys Pettingill gave a few witty and lovely remarks saying in part that Mr. Poulter had endeared himself to the women's organizations, he left them alone, but stood by to help in case he was needed. He reminisced for a few moments on his early life, adding that he had enjoyed his 11 years here.

Other occasions stand out more prominently than others. One was the finishing of the foundation addition for the Centennial celebration held August 30th-31th, 1958. He has enjoyed helping finish the new upper addition recently completed. The ministers' study has a lovely bookcase of books, donated by friends. As they built in material ways, so he hoped he had built spiritually.

"During 11 years of service, there were 434 baptisms, 183 marriages, 387 last rites of the congregation and community, some were close friends and elders of the church; 171 joined the church by profession of faith; 108 transferred to this church. The membership is now the highest on record. Last, but not least, 5,000 calls in the homes and hospitals.

Belleville is to close they hope to return often and that the Wellington folks will ring their doorbell. After 43 years of service in the ministry, they are not retiring — just finding new fields to conquer. There will be time to dig gardens, grow more roses, watch more birds than ever before.

Mrs. Poulter, in her gracious manner, voiced her appreciation for the generous gifts showered on her. She also wished everyone to know how much she appreciated the kindness shown, especially in matters concerning the parsonage. She hoped her successor would enjoy the years of residence in the home she was built.

All joined in a lively sing-song with Mrs. McNeill at the piano. The gifts were unwrapped and placed on display so all could see them.

The evening closed with a happy and sad note; happy that they will retire after 43 years in Belleville, and sad to part with such dear friends.

Burns said: "Parting is such sweet sorrow."

They will not be away; just over the bay. It is the wish of everyone that God willing, they have many years of happiness, peace and contentment in the new home they so richly deserve.

Indian Men Are Taking Notice of Women's Voices In N. Ontario Reserves

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KAKENE, Ont. (CP) — The women of Northern Ontario's Indian reserves are having their say in the affairs of their communities and the men are sitting up and taking notice.

"The women are accepting more and more responsibility for the welfare of their reserves and they're doing some good work to promote better living," says Jane Bartlett of North Bay, a social worker for the Northern Ontario region of the federal Indian affairs branch.

Miss Bartlett made the comment during a conference of chiefs and councillors from Northwestern Ontario Indians held at the Quetico Centre and Training Centre near this community, 120 miles west of the Lakehead.

Of the 37 delegates attending the leadership training course, eight were women. One was Amelia Wani, chief of the Gull Bay band, a community of 150 on the western shore of Lake Nipigon.

Chief Wani, a plump, jolly woman in her 30s said in an interview that her election a year ago came a big surprise.

MEN DON'T MIND

"I went to the superintendent's place to collect my treaty money—I didn't even know an election was on. Some of the people wanted me to stand for councillor, but there were too many already nominated.

"Then somebody asked if I would stand for chief. We never had a woman chief before and I wasn't too sure about that. But then I said it would be okay with me.

"Well, I guess all the women voted for me, because I won by one vote. There were five men standing for chief too."

How do the men react to having a woman as the band's "head man"?

Sam King, one of two councillors who serve with her, puts it this way:

"When we held that election, it was the first time we knew that a woman could be a chief. We had three men chiefs before that, so some of us thought it would be a good idea to nominate Amelia."

There were a few complaints among the men when she was elected. But she's doing a real good job for a woman. She doesn't go ahead and do things on her own—the talks to the other people and gets advice."

ROUNDABOUT TRIP

Chief Wani's trip to the Quetico centre, where she and the other delegates received training in the principles of parliamentary procedure, secret ballotting and other democratic practices, was a roundabout journey.

She hitch - hiked 45 miles north from the reserve to Armstrong on the CNR main line, took a train 150 miles east to Longlac, rode a bus 173 miles west to the Lakehead, then got a lift in Miss Bartlett's car the remaining 120 miles to the centre.

"I'm very enthusiastic about the way the women have come along," said Miss Bartlett. "This is one of the most important changes in the life of the reserves."

Bribe Attempt Charge Against Lakeview Man

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto Township man has been charged with attempting to bribe a witness who appeared at a conspiracy trial here last week, police said Monday.

James Differ of Lakeview was arrested April 25 and remanded to June 21.

He is charged with attempting to bribe Wilbert Nesbitt of Cooksville, operator of a septic tank service company. Nesbitt testified at the preliminary hearing in March and at the trial his pumping equipment was frequently clogged with dice when he attempted to clean out the tank at the Vets Club in Cooksville.

The Supreme Court of Ontario jury acquitted Robert J. Wright, a suspended provincial police constable, and gamblers Vincent Feeley and Joseph Mc-Dermott of conspiring to bribe OPP Constable George Scott for tipoffs on impending gambling raids.

Wind From East Expected To Stir Up Storm Over Berlin

By BORIS MIKHOV
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A wind from the East is expected to blow across Germany within six months and stir up another storm over Berlin.

Prime Minister Khrushchev is showing impatience over the lack of a German peace treaty but he has indicated, however, that he is willing to wait until after the forthcoming West German elections before tearing into the issue.

The position of the East and West over Berlin and German unity — divisive issues that have changed much since the wartime conference in Geneva in 1959.

FIGHT OR BACK UP

The Western powers are happy to leave the German question in the background, while Khrushchev is contemplating a non - military move with Communist East Germany as the peace treaty with East Germany.

GRANTED ASYLUM

NEW YORK (AP)—A second cousin of Brig.-Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, slain leader of a group that assassinated Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo May 30, was granted political asylum here today after jumping ship. Rafael Diaz Montes, 23, a Dominican seaman, said he left the freighter Fundacion because he feared reprisal if he returned to his native country.

REFUGEE FLOW JUMPS

BERLIN (AP) — The stream of refugees from Communist East Germany is steadily increasing West German refugee authorities reported today. In the last week — immediately after the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Vienna — the total reached 4,389.

Two Teen-Agers Want to Die In Electric Chair

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Two teenagers, in a tale of tragic irony, are facing death on seven slayings in five states because as long as they had killed one "we might as well keep on."

But the court thought they had killed didn't die. Had they quit there, they wouldn't be facing execution.

There's another irony. Both James Douglas Latham, 19, Mauriceville, Tex., and George Ronald York, 18, Jacksonville, Ala., were under age 19. Dies. They'd prefer the electric chair. But the state with seemingly the strongest cases, and thus the best chance of gaining their custody, is Utah, which has none — Kansas by hanging and Colorado by the gas chamber.

What started it? The army, both claimed at a press conference in Salt Lake county jail Monday. They complained about army harassment. Both Southerners, they objected to racial integration in the army and to having served under Negro officers.

Both are AWOL from the army. They fled a disciplinary unit at Ft. Hood, Tex., May 24. Latham was serving six months and was to get a bad-conduct discharge for taking $40 from a fellow soldier. York had been given six months for being AWOL.

College Athletics Make Move

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian intercollegiate athletics took a giant step forward last week at an unheralded meeting in the McGill-University Faculty Club in Montreal.

Almost unnoticed, delegates from universities from the Maritimes to British Columbia met to establish an all-Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, which in the next few years is expected to foster truly national competition among college athletes across the country.

It will shoot first towards attainment of uniform playing rules in the various college sports and a greater liaison between the universities and the various governing bodies of amateur sport in Canada.

First efforts toward national championships will be in the major team sports — football, which started the whole thing when a national final began two years ago, hockey and basketball. Then national competition in swimming, track and field, gymnastics and other sports will be sought.

Details of the Montreal meeting were made known here by Dean A. W. Mathews of the University of British Columbia.

Dean Mathews said Tuesday the new union brings together the Maritime Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Intercollegiate Athletic Association and the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Delegates agreed to retain the name of the existing Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, which, while national in name, has been concerned primarily with Ontario and Quebec. This is subject to ratification by the CIAU.

"While it will be the objective of the new union to eventually develop national intercollegiate championships," Dean Mathews said, "of more immediate concern will be such matters as uniform codes of playing rules in various intercollegiate sports, and liaison with governing bodies in certain sports in which college athletes compete."

These governing bodies would include the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union, the Canadian amateur basketball and hockey associations and so on.

Dr. D. E. Moberly from the Ontario-Quebec Association was named president of the Canadian union. R. W. Pugh of the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Association was named a vice - president. Major W. J. MacLeod of Royal Military College in Kingston is secretary-treasurer.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey Avelino Gomez suffered a gashed left knee when his mount, a filly named Vase, collided with a stable pony just before the running of Tuesday's third race at New Woodbine.

Dr. J. R. McRae, track medical officer said the minor injury is unlikely to prevent Gomez from riding in Saturday's Queen's Plate.

Jockey Alfonso Coy replaced Gomez as Vase's rider and the filly finished third, behind Court Royal and More Fuzzy.

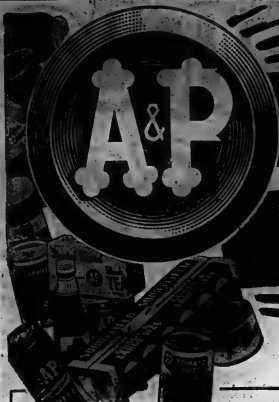
The featured Mount Royal Purse was won by Credit Curb which ran the six and one-half furlongs in 1.17 2-5. He paid $5.20, $3.00 and $2.60.

The daily-double paid $32.30 at the Chance Route and Navy Strand won the first two races. The quinella of Say David and Bourbon Fleet paid $77.30.

Sports in Brief

CONCORDIA WINS

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Concordia, outgunned most of the way, made two first - half goals stand up for a 2-1 win over West Germany's Karlsruhe Tuesday night in the International Soccer League. The win was Concordia's second in six starts and the four points added to a tie lifted the Montrealers into a three-way deadlock for fourth spot in the standings. Karlsruhe is in second place.



QUEEN'S HORSE LOSES

ASCOT, England (AP)—Queen Elizabeth watched her horse Aureolin narrowly beaten in a thrilling finish of the Ascot Stakes Handicap Tuesday. The judges gave first place to Angazi by a short head in a photo finish. The Queen missed a first prize of £2,200 ($6,176) and still is without a major victory on the race tracks this season.

LEAFS GET SENATOR

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League acquired first baseman W. C. Stevens from Washington Senators of the American League Tuesday. Owner Jack Kent Cooke said the price was $15,000 and "other considerations" which he did not reveal.

Canadian Harness Racing Is Away to Record Season

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Adios Alex may portend the fortunes of h arness racing in Canada this year.

The Quebec-owned pacer has burned up Montreal's Richelieu Park. His early-season mark of 2:03.6 is regarded by railbirds as a sure sign of better times ahead. They predict a time of 2:01 if he stays, in trim. That would be close to the Canadian record of 1:59.6 set by Mighty Dudley at Richelieu Park in 1958.

But if Adios Alex is off to a fast start, so is harness racing generally, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows.

Canadians wagered more than $80,000,000 at tracks across the country last year, all but about $30,000,000 in Quebec. This year the figure is expected to be surpassed, chiefly because of the added attraction of night harness racing being permitted in Ontario for the first time.

Estimates are that more than $50,000,000 will be bet during the 100 - day season at Richelieu compared with $27,300,000 in 1960. It's second only to another Montreal track, Blue Bonnets, where about $33,000,000 was bet in a 127-day meeting.

MILLION-DOLLAR TRACKS

Third in wagering was Quebec City's Jacques Cartier track with $11,912,000.

Although harness racing is popular from Cape Breton's rocky reaches to British Columbia's green valleys, only four other tracks had betting in excess of $1,000,000.

They are Old Woodbine, Toronto, $8,641,357; Connaught, Ottawa, $7,361,000; Sackville Downs, Lower Sackville, N.S., $1,603,580, and Saint John, N.B., $1,300,000.

This year Edmonton may reach the $1,000,000 figure with the first harness racing in Alberta since 1953. Promoter Bill Connelly says the parimutuel intake will have to be $75,000 daily, to make the split 33-day meet pay.

He will also promote a 15-day meet in Calgary where competition from fall racing is as stiff as in Edmonton.

There is a good deal of harness racing in small communities across the Prairies. The Great Western Racing circuit will operate in Antiboke for 17 days in 19 towns for total purses of $71,500. It opened in Wawanesa May 27 and closes at Russell July 22. Feature is the Brandon Sun Colt Futurity at Brandon July 5 for $1,800.

IMPORTS IN B.C.

In British Columbia, a 16-day meet will be held at Patterson Park's half-mile track at Ladner near Vancouver. The night races, run twice weekly from June 13 to Aug. 13, will feature pacers from Oregon and Washington. Last year $278,000 was wagered in 14 days of racing sponsored by the Delta Agricultural Society.

In Ontario a 24-day meet at thoroughly renovated Queen's Park in London kicked off night racing. A 33-day meet begins July 1 at Old Woodbine. Big race will be the $10,000 Canadian Cup for trotters. Fall fairs in Ontario will probably take advantage of the night - racing law. Last year 1,378 races were held in 132 days of racing at fairs.

Steps to improve the breed in Ontario and performance of horses in Quebec have been taken.

The Ontario agriculture department last year initiated a breeders' award. A dealer now is given five per cent of the purse won by the horse he has bred.

In Quebec, Richelieu's presiding judge, Don Perfect of Delaware, Ohio, has cracked down hard since the season opened April 15, disqualifying more than 140 horses for varying reasons.

The result is the best average times ever—almost as good as those at Yonkers, N.Y.," says Moe Desjardins, track spokesman.

BIG RACE FOR $50,000

Richelieu racing continues until Aug. 9 when the thoroughbreds move into Blue Bonnets, remaining until Sept. 29. From Sept. 30 until Dec. 2, harness racing will be held at Blue Bonnets.

Big Montreal races are Richelieu's $20,000 Beaver pace July 15 and the $30,000 Blue Bonnets Futurity, split between three year-old pacers Oct. 10 and trotters Oct. 18.

The Connaught meet runs from May 13 to Oct. 28, with two purses of $6,000 and $8,000 in early September.

Quebec City has a 100-day meet that started May 13 and features such horses as Sir Winston Pick, a top pacer.

Racing began at Sackville Downs May 13 and continues until the snow flies. Even in winter Haligonians turn out to watch the sport on the Common. Big race is the $4,000 B.C. Quickshank Memorial Aug. 27.

New Brunswick, where $2,067,222 was bet in 115 days of racing last year, started its season in mid-May at Saint John. Fredericton goes from June 12 to 24 and Moncton starts June 14. The Moncton inn and the $3,000 Walter Dale Memorial July 13 are among the features.

Harness racing is easily the most popular sport in Prince Edward Island. It began June 5 at Charlottetown and continues until October. Eleven race dates are set for Summerside, mostly during Lobster Festival Week July 17-22. Major races are the $2,500 Evening Patriot International Pace Aug. 14 and the $2,500 Evening Patriot Gold Cup and Saucer Aug. 18.

Minor Softball

The Cardinals dumped the Yankees 21-9 and the Braves downed the Senators 12-1 in a couple of Pearson "A" group-ag. minor softball games.

R. Denard pitched the Card victory while Bawden hurled in defeat. R. Wilson of the Cardinals hit two home runs.

Dave Chapman hurled the Braves to their win while catcher Biff Hoard slammed two triples and Paul Smith hit a home run. Glenn Payne and Brian Musgrave pitched for the Senators while Ted Drumm hit a homer for his club's lone-run.

FRASER UPSET

BECKENHAM, England (AP)—Owen Hilgrove of Japan defeated Neale Fraser of Australia, last year's Wimbledon champion, in a sensational tennis upset Tuesday night. Ishiguro won 11-13, 6-3, 6-4 in the first round of the men's singles in the Kent Championships. In another upset, 18-year-old Bill Bond of LaJolla, Calif., ranked No. 3 in the United States, defeated Bob Hewitt, the No. 4 Australian, 6-4, 24, 6-2.

Name 14 To Hall Of Fame

MONTREAL (CP)—Fourteen former hockey executives and players are included in the first Hockey Hall of Fame announced Tuesday in hockey's Hall of Fame.

The naming Richard, who retired less than a year ago after scoring a record 82 goals during his 18 years with the Canadiens, was the only selection unanimous on the 18-man committee which picked the 14 men named only players received the at least five years.

Other players chosen were Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins; Eddie Shore, ex-Boston Bruins coach and executive, and Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs' outstanding centre and team captain through the 1940s.

Others named included Clarence Day, former Toronto Maple Leafs defenseman and coach; Charlie Conacher, Toronto right winger during the late George Hainsworth, Montreal Canadiens' goalie who had a record 22 shutouts in 44 games during the 1928-29 season, and Oliver Seibert of Kitchener.

Old-timers chosen

Brown Baast of Ottawa and Harry Lesueur of Hamilton, both living; and Joe Hall of Brandon, Man., Frank Rankin of Stratford and Oliver Seibert of Kitchener, all dead.

Stuart, a brother of hall - of - famer Bod Stuart, was an several Stanley Cup teams with Montreal Wanderers and Ottawa Silver Seven before the First World War. Lesueur was an outstanding defenseman in 1920 years ago and later a coach. Among the teams he played with was the Silver Seven.

DIED OF 'FLU

Hall, who broke into hockey in Brandon, later played with Montreal Canadiens and died during the influenza epidemic which struck Seattle, Wash., during the 1919 Stanley Cup series between Montreal and Seattle and prevented the completion of the series.

Rankin was an outstanding defenceman with Stratford and Seibert, the father of former NHL rearguard Earl Seibert, one of the Seibert brothers who starred with Kitchener teams in hockey's early days.

The builders of hockey chosen:

The late Paul Loicq of Brussels, for 25 years president of the International Ice Hockey Federation and the man who introduced hockey into the Olympics.

The late George V. Brown of Boston, founder of the American Hockey League, the man responsible for introducing hockey to the New England States and father of Walter Brown, president of Boston Bruins.

The late Fred Waghorne, Sr. of Toronto, who devoted his life to the development of minor hockey, headed several minor hockey groups and refereed nearly 2,000 senior hockey games during his life.

WINS WORLD TITLE

OSLO (AP) — Italy's Ennio Mattarelli defeated Francis J. Eisenlauer, the 1958 champion from Palo Alto, Calif., in a shoot-off Tuesday for the world clay pigeon shooting title. The 38-year - old businessman from Bologna hit all 100 of his birds in the third and final round to tie Eisenlauer with a total of 196 out of 200. The 26-year-old American schoolteacher scored 96 on his final round.

Patterson's Manager Says Liston Finished

NEW YORK (AP)—Cus D'Amato, manager of boxing champion Floyd Patterson, says Sonny Liston has disqualified himself as a contender for the world heavyweight title.

Liston was arrested in Fallsburgh Monday on charges of impersonating a policeman, resisting arrest, conspiracy and operating a vehicle without lights.

"I believe that people in Washington would expect Floyd Patterson, as a good citizen, not to fight such a fellow," D'Amato said in an interview Tuesday. "And I feel that Patterson, as a good citizen, will not fight him."

Liston, 30, I contender for the title, was let out a court hearing in Philadelphia today.

Shortly after the arrest, Arch Hinkle, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, said "if Liston is guilty of that kind of crime, he has no business in boxing."

Liston, 28, was picked up with Isaac Cooper, 38, Lisbon, who has had a long series of beefs with the law, and Cooper, were accused of stopping Mrs. Dolores Ellis, 38, of suburban Leonardo, as she drove through a lonely section of Fairmount Park.

Mrs. Ellis, not harmed, said one of the men ordered her out of the car just as a park guard drove up. The guard said the men dashed back into their car and sped off. He caught them after a half-mile chase. Mrs. Ellis, Liston and Cooper are Negroes.

Liston's manager, George Katz, said the men thought they knew Mrs. Ellis and were playing a prank.

New York Yankees can pulverize the basement bunch and hold their own against the frolvers in the middle, but they still can't belt upper - crust teams in the three - division American League.

The Yankees, included in the upper crust of the standings along with Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers, are 8-5 against the second division—Baltimore Orioles, Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox — and 29-7 against the third division — Kansas City Athletics, Chicago White Sox, Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Angels.

But they're not better than 5-6 against Cleveland and Detroit. That's why they're third, Cleveland beat the Yankees 7-2 Tuesday night in the opener of a three - game set. Detroit gained the runnerup spot with a 7-1 win over Boston.

Baltimore defeated Washington 8-7, Minnesota beat Kansas City 5-4 and the White Sox took two from the Angels, 2-1 and 10-2.

BIND STREAK

The Indians ended the Yankees' winning streak at five games by defeating the ex-champs 2-1 in 10 innings against Jim Coates (4-3), who also had won five straight. Coates' run-scorer by Johnny Romano capped a four-run fourth inning that tied Vic Power, and Bubba Phillips' two-out fading of a two-run second.

Jim Perry (5-4) won the third game for the Indians although needing relief help in the ninth inning from Frank Funk. Perry gave up 10 hits, one of them home run No. 31 for Roger Maris, but Funk pitched a hitless ninth to record his fifth save.

Al Smith's grand-slam homer in the fifth gave Chicago the slugging with Johnny Romano and Floyd Robinson each getting two hits in the victory. Ron Kline (4-4) lost.

Ben Jones Famous Horse Trainer Dies

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Ben Jones, veteran Kentucky thoroughbred horse trainer, died at a Lexington hospital Tuesday. He was 78. Jones had trained six Kentucky Derby winners and was known in horse circles throughout the world. He started his streak in the Derby at Churchill Downs in 1938. After that came Calumet's Whirlaway in 1941, Pensive in 1942, Citation in 1948, Ponder in 1949 and Hill Gail in 1952.

He was one of the greatest trainers and most colorful personalities in thoroughbred racing in the United States.

His name was synonymous with Calumet Farm. His son, Jimmy, now is Calumet's manager. Between them they collected eight derby winners.

Ben trained by intuition and scoffed at book methods.

"Always used to belie me any man would train out of a book," he once said. "Lose a page and he wouldn't know what to do."

When he retired in 1957 he was credited by Jimmy with the most with training the winners of 1,239 races and $4,705,326.

"Being around him was like being with a professor," said Ed Bechtel, secretary of the Thoroughbred Club of America. "You actually learned something from him every day."

Kitchener Lost $91,000

Operation 'Beaver' Costly

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Professional Hockey League announced Tuesday at operating deficit of $91,000 last year and indicated they may not field future matches at Kitchener Auditorium.

Murr Patrick, general manager of the parent New York Rangers, said the net loss was divided in thirds, collecting $10,000 raised by local businessmen and $18,500e received from the Rangers organization.

At recent NHL meetings in Montreal Patrick said Kitchener rink rental must be reduced and the club wants professional players.

Beavers also announced that Frank Currie will not return as coach. Emile Francis, coach of Guelph Royals, and Red Sullivan, veteran forward of the Rangers, have been suggested as successors.

No reason was given for replacing Currie.

Hits Three Homers in Bison Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don Mincher, demoted by the Washington Senators to the American League because of weak hitting, hit three home runs Wednesday night to power Buffalo Bisons to a 13-11 International League victory over Jersey City Jerseys.

Mincher, who had only four singles in 22 at-bats since he was optioned by the Twins, blasted two round-trippers, connected with the bases loaded in the third inning and clouted a bases-empty homer in the fifth. His third was the game - winning blow and capped a seven-run Bison explosion that erased a 11-8 Jersey lead in the seventh inning.

Richmond Virginians and Syracuse chalked up a total of 26 hits as the Virginians edged the last-place Chiefs 7-6. Columbus Jets handed Rochester Red Wings their fourth straight loss, 5-3 in 11 innings, the league-leading Charleston Marlins and Toronto Maple Leafs were rained out.

"This was my biggest night," Mincher said. "That was my first grand slam, the first time I hit three in one game and the most runs batted in I ever had in one game."

Bruins May Grab Hodge

Canadiens Draft Cesare Maniago

By W. R. WHYATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League closes out its annual meeting today with the intra-league draft and there were indications a couple of goalies could be the most tempting bait.

A couple of pre - draft deals were swung Tuesday, both involving defencemen, and in the process the Western Hockey League and Eastern Professional Hockey League clubs plucked only five players.

Probably the most important grab, at $20,000, was made by Montreal Canadiens in drafting goalie Cesare Maniago, chattel of Toronto Maple Leafs, from Spokane of the WHL.

It was virtually certain Canadiens will protect Maniago against today's NHL draft. This will leave Charlie McCe, can- able and strawelled No. 2 Montreal goalie behind Jacques Plante, wide open in the draft market.

It was believed Boston Bruins, who have had indifferent success with goalies for several seasons and will have first choice in the draft, will promptly grab Hodge.

Only two goalies, plus 18 other players, may be protected against the $20,000 draft.

The Bruins picked up two players in Tuesday's draft and New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks one each.

The Bruins took forward Matt Ravlich from Sault Ste. Marie of the EPHL and Gordon Tansley, regarded as a good prospect for defence, from Seattle of the WHL. Ravlich was a Chicago farm hand. Tansley was outright property of Seattle.

The Black Hawks, took forward Ray Brunel, who has been in the Montreal chain, from Winnipeg of the WHL. The Rangers drafted forward Dennis Olson from Kitchener-Waterloo of the EPHL. Olson, who has been on loan, was the property of Springfield of the American Hockey League.

In taking Maniago, Montreal first transferred goalie Ed Johnston from Canadiens' reserve list to the reserve list of Hull-Ottawa of the EPHL, Montreal farm.

Maniago is the youngster who did a capable fill-in job for the Leafs late last season. Canadiens are reported highly pleased with the new goalie, figuring he may even give Plante a battle for the job next season.

HAPPY WITH BOWER

Toronto Maple Leafs, on losing Maniago, indicated they are satisfied to go along again with veteran goalie Johnny Bower.

In deals Tuesday, veteran defenceman Bill Gadsby of New York was traded to Detroit and three-year defenceman Albert (Junior) Langlois of Montreal went to Rangers.

In exchange for Gadsby the Rangers got rookie defenceman Lee Hunt from Seattle of the WHL. Gadsby may remain with Detroit next season but is expected to wind up eventually as playing coach of Detroit's Edmonton farm club.

The Rangers gave up John Hanesh, a young defenceman, plus an undisclosed amount of cash to get Langlois from Montreal.

Canadiens were reported more anxious to protect young prospects, including Jean Pelletier of the Hull-Ottawa club, than to keep Langlois.

WILL JOIN HARVEY

With the Rangers Langlois will rejoin his Shuniine mate from Montreal — Doug Harvey, who has become Rangers' playing coach.

It was believed likely Hanes will wind up with a Montreal farm team next season.

The EPHL continued its annual meetings Tuesday and president Ed Houston said there is a good chance North Bay will be in the league next season as replacement for Montreal Royals, who have withdrawn. Representatives of the league will be in North Bay next Tuesday for conferences, said Houston.

ble to lead a 19-hit attack as he raised his average to .352. Ultur Alvarez batted across five runs for the Jerseys with a double and his fourth home run of the season.

Diomedes Olivo, who took over for starter Al McBean at the start of the seventh inning, pitched five hitless innings and retired the last 12 Rochester batters in a row. It was his fifth victory in six decisions.

Men Against "Monster"

BIRMINGHAM Mich (AP)—It will be 150 men against the monster when play starts Thursday in the $60,000 United States open golf championship.

The monster was the name given the 6,907 - yard Oakland Hills course when Ben Hogan won here in 1951. It has stuck. The contest isn't so much the here, in practice Tuesday, among the 150 players, but the Ben Hogans, Sr. and jr. and pro managers the course. The pros, from Quincy, Ill., shot a six-player who can humble Oakland Hills is the one who should win the tournament.

Let the 10 years since Hogan won the third of his four open titles, the monster has been gentled a trifle in the elimination of seven traps and some changes to greens.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer said Tuesday a 72-hole score between 275 and 280 will win. The open record is 276, set by Hogan in 1948.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H CARVER, Sports Editor

If news despatches are correct that Sonny Liston has once again become embroiled with the law, the lonely, hard-hitting negro heavyweight has sent the last change of a world heavyweight championship sailing-ing, in the opinion of a lot of people.

Boxing, a sport that has been undergoing a purging by the probing tentacles of government committees, will have taken a solid blow to the chin.

For Liston, after associating with the underworld, rid himself of the handicap of being associated with nobody with whom he had been connected, he would have given boxing, which long has prided itself in being a potent force in the reform of those who have been deemed hopeless delinquents by the rest of society, a grand moment.

Push aside the dark, dismal curtain of his past, wipe him clean of the filth of underworld rats, and I believe you would see the next world heavyweight champion. In Sonny Liston you would have a fighter who think he should have been given his proper chance to fight Machen, Johansson and Patterson.

If the charges as reported in the news release are true, Liston is finished forever as a world heavyweight contender, or any contender for that matter as far as the boxing powers-that-be are concerned.

During the past few months it was promised that Sonny had been rehabilitated. He rid himself of one manager. He denied having anything to do with thirty underworld characters. He had to be careful or he'd believe he would have eventually been given the chance to exercise his tremendous potential.

Sonny was born in Pine Bluff, Arkansas, in May some 26 years ago. . He was one of a family of 25 children. His father was a working man who had married twice. He had little time to look after his family. Before long it was inevitable that Sonny, then a member of a tough neighborhood gang, would wind up in a police lineup.

Soon Sonny was serving a five-year sentence for first-degree robbery. The prison's Catholic chaplain, Father Edward Leonard, observed his big muscled body. He suggested the ring. Before long Sonny was the heavyweight king of the prisoners at Jefferson City. "I thought he had become a great fighter when he got out of prison," said the kindly chaplain.

He became a good one. By 1953 he had whipped all sizes and shapes around, including the Olympic champion, Ed Sanders, who made Johansson say "uncle." Liston turned pro.

Out of his first fourteen bouts, Sonny won thirteen. The one loss was to Marty Marshall whose left hook actually floored him. Those who were there that October night remember that Liston's left "could be compared to the impact of a slow-moving .45 caliber bullet."

Then the bad rum again. Liston became embroiled with a St. Louis policeman in a street brawl. The officer suffered a broken leg. After serving 1400 months in the city workhouse Liston ran into more fit circumstances. The story goes he was hounded by the police, rightly or wrongly and a series of charges laid against him. He was booked for suspected robbery, twice and speeding counts. The only ones that stood up were those for speeding.

Then Liston changed managers and came east. He started to get starring roles in Jim Norris' television melodramas. He quickly upset such ring personalities as Mike DeJohn, Nino Valdes, Cleveland Williams and Willie Besmanoff. He slapped Cal 'n Sheet'n Rey Harris in the first round. It took Patterson a bit longer. It took him five.

Then in July Liston met Zora Folley, a leading challenger, and nearly "murdered" him... It was then his handlers started yelping: "Get us Johansson or Patterson or both."

Liston was considered by many of the sportswriters as one best heavyweights of the period. Retired champion Rocky Marciano said "He's great, really great." At that time Patterson said if he won back the title he would fight anyone including Liston. Johansson said "why not?"

However, with the passage of time neither party has shown any particular haste to be matched with Sonny. Now, it seems, they won't have to worry about the load of the current crop of challengers.

Wealthy Win Is Tradition

"Them That Has May Git" In Plate

By ZEKE SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The list of horses that have won the Queen's Plate over the years or so has been dominated by the names of wealthy men, which seems to point up the old axiom: Youve got to have it to win it.

So, to keep the tradition alive, a well-heeled hippo operation, hockey executive or a financial tycoon may step into the winner's enclosure late Saturday afternoon to pick up a cheque for $82,000. That is the day the 182nd running of the Plate classic will be run over 1½ miles at the suburban Mew Woodbine track.

Seems less affluent horse owner may sneak in at the post the mystery, the Queen's 50 guineas and a gold cup but, certainly, the big chunk of the $70,000-added purse likely will go to a chap who doesn't need the cash. There was a refreshing change back in 1954, when Mel Jim Fair, a rough - palmed Caledonville, Ont. farmer was able to thumb his nose at the boys set when his Last Mark won the guineas.

Since then The Plate has been won by big dealers. And if you're wondering how the Maple operator is listed with the money men, he is Bill Hendy who runs the concessions at the Canadian National Exhibition here. It's a big money setter.

It's likely a field of 12 will go to the post some time around 5:30 p.m. Saturday and the owner's list is quite impressive.

There is Conn Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, who will have a two-horse entry in Just Don't Shove and Jammed Lucky.

And aboard one of these, quite possibly Just Don't Shove, will be Sergeant Johnny Longden, listed as the world's winningest jockey.

He has boosted home more than 5,320 winners, has won most of the classics in North America but never has won the Queen's Plate.

Then there's brewery magnate Edward Plunkett Taylor, president of the Jockey Club and owner of Victoria Park, the 1-to-20 favorite who won the Plate last year. This time out, Taylor has a three-horse entry of Flaming Top, Quaker's Pact and Victoria Regina.

Beasley probably will be right in there with Rambler Wreck. This colt started with a $2,500 tag last fall but, when he turned in the best time in three Plate trials.

Then there is Akeman, owned by Mrs. J. J. Boylen, wife of a Toronto industrialist. Akeman has been listed as a favorite but he bucked his stable in the Plate trial when she was second to Rambler Wreck and now is listed as a possible starter.

Trainer Art Warner said Thursday he won't make any decision until Thursday morning when the Plate entry box closes with the final $500 fee.

Stack Beats Elliott in Half-Mile

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Jim Stack, a Yale senior, easily beat world mile record holder Herb Elliott in the half-mile Tuesday in the Harvard-Yale vs. Oxford-Cambridge track meet. Stack turned on the heat in the third-furlong, over-took the Australian, whose mile record of 3:54.5 had stood since 1958, to win going away in 1:50.8.

Elliott thus was defeated for the second time in four days and an ocean apart. Last Saturday he finished third in a 800-metre race in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Elliott passed up the mile event here. He has run the mile under four minutes 17 times and never has been beaten at the distance.

Larry Regan To Coach Pittsburgh

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will send winger Larry Regan to Pittsburgh as playing-coach of the new American Hockey League entry, it was learned Tuesday.

Pittsburgh withdrew from the AHL several seasons ago but plans to re-enter next season. Previously, Leafs had a working agreement with the AHL club and presumably this would be renewed.

Defeat Dodgers Twice

Giants Back In Business

By ED WILEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

San Francisco Giants, getting fat on relief, are back in business again in the National League pennant race.

After tumbling out of the lead by losing eight of 10 games, the Giants are within one game of the top bouncing back with a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Tuesday night for their two - game sweep over the second - place Dodgers.

It was the Giants' fifth victory in their last seven starts. The bullpen has nailed all but one of the victories.

Dick Lemay, a southpaw making his first major league appearance, Tom Sisk and Stu Miller combined for 5 2-3 innings of two hit, shutout relief, with Miller gaining his sixth victory without defeat. Miller gave up the two hits in his 2 1-3-inning performance but extended his shutout string through 14 1-3 innings.

Defeat left the Dodgers a half - game ahead of the Giants but still a half - game behind the first - place Cincinnati Reds, who were rolled 9-1 by Pittsburgh's Bob Friend. Philadelphia's Phillies beat St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

MAYS HOMERS

A two - run homer by Willie Mays in the seventh inning snapped things up for the Giants, who trailed 3-0 after 5½ innings. Jim Brosnand homered in the third inning for the Giants' first hit off loser Stan Williams (4-6) and Mays manufactured the second run virtually by himself in the fourth.

Willie beat out an infield hit, stole second, scampered to third on a Fly to short centre and trotted home on a single by Jim Davenport.

The Dodgers scored their run, one a homer by Ron Fairly off starter Sam Jones, Lemay, up from the Texas League, came in with one man on and two out in the fourth inning and stopped the Dodgers on a 2-3 frames of not - hit relief before giving way for a pinch - hitter, Miller replaced Lemay.

Amos 'n' Andy Starting New Career in Cartoon

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Amos 'n' Andy may have retired, but the laughing team of Correll and Gosden is carrying on.

The boys are even starting a new career in white face, so to speak.

We even had to join the Screen Actors Guild for the first time," says Freeman Gosden, who plays Amos and the King fish.

Charles Correll, the deep-voiced Andy, couldn't make it to lunch. His partner explained: "Charlie just got back from Italy where he saw 20 countries in 20 days. He's resting up."

Gosden has enough enthusiasm for both of them, and he was excited about their new venture. They are playing the voices of a new TV cartoon series, Calvin and the Colonel.

"I play a southern colonel," said Gosden, "that comes easy to me since I was born in the South. My father fought in the Civil War. Charlie's family was originally from the South. He plays a beatnik jazz hound with an eye for the girls. Naturally, I'm a fox. They're both southern, but not colored."

REGAR AS MINSTRELS

This is the first time in 45 years that Correll and Gosden haven't played in blackface vocally or otherwise. Both started in minstrel shows in the South. They met and joined forces in Durham, N.C., in 1919.

The next year they did their first broadcast in New Orleans. They began their Sam 'n' Henry series in Chicago in 1926 and switched to Amos 'n' Andy two years later.

"It 'n' A" ended 11 years on radio last November. "They just couldn't afford our show any more," said Gosden. "We were the last of the big-name shows to go."

Television Helps to Restore Organ to Its High Place

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Radio soap operas, which invariably used organ music for their background, have the interesting sense of its saccharine reputation. Now television has come along and is helping restore the organ to its deserved high place.

TV daytime serials—the fantastical dramas of the ubiquitous soap operas—still rely on the organ to provide dramatic accents and over - all atmosphere. But nowadays the music is more sophisticated.

Billy Nalle, the organist on the "Young Dr. Malone" series on NBC, plays jazz for the show's music, improvising and weaving themes together as the action proceeds.

"The old radio pattern was to play musical 'stings' — sharp high notes for danger, low notes for threats and sugary sounds for love scenes," Nalle recalled. "But I use a form of musical language, more formal, and musical is both rhythmic and harmonious."

Tuesday night's TV Guide Awards Show on NBC was the latest result of the voting by readers on their favorite shows and performers. Presumably the most dedicated of TV viewers were the ones who cast their ballots in the magazine's poll. There were eight categories of shows.

Sing Along With Mitch won as the best musical or variety show. NBC's election night coverage and its nightly Huntley-Brinkley news report were tops in their current events category.

Macbeth as NBC Hall of Fame special was chosen as the best dramatic program of the season. CBS' The Andy Griffith Show was picked as its favorite new series, while CBS' Perry Mason and its star, Raymond Burr, were declared the favorite series and the favorite male star. Carol Burnett, of CBS' Garry Moore Show, was voted the favorite female star.

Now that Boston Bruins have signed Phil Watson as their coach, they should make haste to try to acquire the other half of the National Hockey League's most diverting comedy team of recent years.

We're referring to Lorne (Gump) Worsley, of course.

The four years up to 1960 that Phil was with New York Rangers were just one continuous feud between the coach and his rolly-poly goaltender.

In the tradition of Laurel and Hardy, or perhaps more in the style of Jack Benny and the late Phil Silvers, Watson and Worsley almost continuously exchanged insults.

Except of form were printable and their antics were the delight of hockey writers around the league. For whenever the Rangers were in town, all that was necessary to get a story was to ask Watson what he thought of Worsley and then wander around to get Gump's feelings about his coach.

"Never," Watson one of Watson's pet names for the netminder, "will be anything nice" term for his boss was "Old Fathead."

DISCIPLINED RESPECT

The two managed to keep up this appearance of mutual dislike in just about every possible instance during their years together. And while it's possible they really didn't care for each other's company, there is a strong suspicion that they had considerable respect for each other.

Watson was eased out of the Rangers coaching job in the 1960 to 61 season after he developed a case of ulcers and you might think that Gump was responsible. But it's more likely that with Worsley always handy as a target for his epithets, the situation saved Phil from getting his ulcer much earlier.

Now that Watson has moved into Boston, he's going to liven things up among the Bruins. Chances are he'll find another object for his scorn. But it might be a better idea to bring in Worsley. They've no doubt he can take the worst of Phil's blasts and not let it bother him. That's not necessarily true of other, perhaps more sensitive players.

STILL A FIGHTER,

That Watson's out with ulcers a few years ago hasn't mellowed him at evidenced by his remarks on being named to the Boston job.

When he was with the Rangers he once remarked that a player wasn't a real pro as long as he had any of his own teeth.

The other day he said: "I love a fight. I'm not going to have a bunch of boxers but nobody is going to push us around."

Another indication of the way Phil thinks is his recognition of the fact that when he was with New York he hated the Bruins and hope the Bruins hated him.

"If fave my best for the Rangers as a player and coach. Now I'm here to do the same for Bruins."

No one hates to lose more than Watson. He dies a little each time his team is beaten and he'll likely to lock the dressing room and berate his players even when they lie.

In fact, it's a good bet that he got his ulcer chiefly because Rangers fell apart in the last few weeks of the 1958-59 season and lost a playoff berth to Toronto Maple Leafs on the final night of the schedule.

There's no question the NHL will be a more interesting loop with Phil back in harness. And with a three-year contract (the Doug Harvey influence) hockey fans look forward to some lively doings for quite a while.

General Tendencies: Many changes can be taking place today and tonight and it's up to you to say yea or nay. If you want to have the benefits from them. But do so in a dramatic fashion and don't let them adversely affect you or else! Many have happened to him or to her; be responsive to such kind.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Listen to the advice of close ones who insist you should change your methods in outside business ventures, since there is merit in the idea. However, do not sacrifice any of your personality or human touch in so doing. Think.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Associations with one whose methods are above reproach can be very beneficial where seriously now and you find that you, too, can become far more successful. Get any letter writing done in a spirit of kindliness and gibe will. Grow.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Unless you confer with higher-ups where monetary matters are concerned, you will do very little to ameliorate your position. Follow his, or her, advice, even if you talk to help him, sensibly, with credulity.

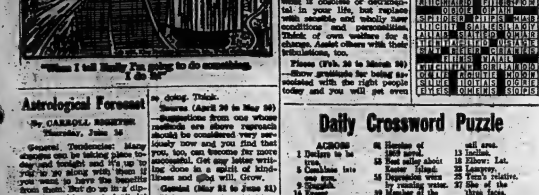
Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are not making as fast progress as you should, so don't become annoyed when one of your elders gives you the benefit of their (public slip, evil?) ft.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — While private anxieties are important, your worrying will not help much. So, dig right in and do the work that it'spected of you. Be more co-operative with fellow workers and be apt to lend a helping hand to the unfortunate.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—A good day to plan for future amazing times with associates and family so that you can live a more happy and balanced life. Mix on the hobbies that will be enjoyed most by everyone. Eliminate those who are not cooperative.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Contact those individuals who can assist you to your answer best be sure you don't commit yourself to what is beyond your ken, but time that should be spent with closest kin as well.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you elevate your consciousness considerably now, you will then be able to see that you have been operating altogether too much in the old fashioned way and can make the changes needed. Then the greatest success can be yours.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Important you handle all financial affairs wisely today, as be sure you first talk things over with experienced institutions, etc. Seek a practical solution to all of your problems. P.M. Get set up a budget.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Imperative you find out what your true position is with all associates and contact better rapport. Lend a helping hand to procrastinator at your peril, as today's events opportune. So, however, be wise you use that and diplomacy.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Easy to mentally slap and what is obsolete or detrimental in your life, but replace with workable ones wholly for conditions and personalities. Think your own welfare for a change. Assist others with their problems, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Show gratitude for being associated with the right people today and you will get even greater co-operation in the future. Bring happiness into their lives during coffee time, plan little dinners. Receive partner and the like.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will be one of those terribly serious people who tackle everything in life with a vengeance which is very fine for getting ahead, but this can lead to ruthlessness and eventually a break-down. So, be sure you early inculcate the spiritual. Truths so that life will be easier on your present keeper and others will learn to give your shoving instead of taking him, or her.

Party Lines Sharply Drawn On Coyne Issue

Bank Governor Made Scapegoat Is Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Party lines are sharply drawn for the next round of Parliament's Coyne controversy—a fight that could flare up again with next Tuesday night's budget speech or a government move to oust the Bank of Canada governor.

Minister E. Coyne, in firing the opening gun Tuesday, said he wanted the fullest discussion over the government's May 30 bid to have him resign.

Wednesday the commons did its best to oblige.

Finance Minister Fleming, in a couple of bristling speeches, said Mr. Coyne had stood in the way of implementing the government plans to invigorate the economy.

Since Mr. Coyne wouldn't leave voluntarily, the government had decided it was "appropriate legislative action to meet the needs of the situation" in the shape of a ministerial bill in Parliament.

After three-wheeling emergency debate, opposition spokesmen charged the government with trying to make a scapegoat of the governor.

Opposition Leader Pearson accused Mr. Fleming of "arbitrary and arrogant behavior."

CCF financial critic Erhart Regier, Burnaby - Coquitlam, B.C., said Fleming and government "are the central bank governor in a suitable bid to win the next election."

Both of the opposition speakers challenged the government statement that there had been long-standing major policy differences between Mr. Coyne and the government.

Mr. Hees, in a statement replying to Finance Minister Fleming's numerous criticisms of him Wednesday, said Canada's economic troubles have not been in the field of monetary policy—the Bank of Canada's field.

"What has been lacking so far is adequate action in the field of fiscal policy to make a real contribution to economic recovery and growth on the part of Canadian economy under Canadian ownership and control.

"In this respect Mr. Fleming revealed yesterday the government hasn't yet been suddenly converted."

Mr. Coyne, who is under a pending dismissal order in Parliament by the government announced Tuesday by Mr. Fleming, issued his statement today in the form of a comment on Wednesday's report by the Senate committee on manpower.

CITY WAS HOT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A searing 106.8 degree Wednesday made San Francisco one of the hottest cities in the United States. It scored more than 100 degree heat prostrations and afflicted thousands with sore throats and sinus trouble. It was 106 at the airport. The temperature broke all June records for the weather bureau, topping the mark started keeping them in 1871.

Genial Castro Talks 5½ Hours To U.S. Press

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Minister Fidel Castro wound up 5½ hours of talk with U.S. newspaper men early today, then arranged to take them on a personal tour of the battleground where he crushed the April 17 invasion.

Castro set something of a record for news conferences with two sessions in a 10-hour span. The conclusion was the visit of eight U.S. reporters and photographers covering the tractors-for-prisoners negotiations.

The leftist leader invited the correspondents to take up permanent reportorial duties in Havana. This was a big switch from the days following the invasion when American newspaper men were arrested or took refuge in embassies.

Castro surprised the visiting reporters by calling them to his office quarters in the Agrarian Reform Institute on short notice Wednesday afternoon, after his session with the American technical team on the tractor-for-prisoners deal.

Relaxed and in good humor, as the revolutionary replied at length to all questions put to him.

Castro lounged amid a chair-

Coyne Says Govt. Suddenly Converted

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada said today, in effect, that the government—not himself—has been restricting economic growth in Canada by lack of adequate policies.

Mr. Coyne, in a statement replying to Finance Minister Fleming's numerous criticisms of him Wednesday, said Canada's economic troubles have not been in the field of monetary policy—the Bank of Canada's field.

"What has been lacking so far is adequate action in the field of fiscal policy to make a real contribution to economic recovery and growth on the part of Canadian economy under Canadian ownership and control.

"In this respect Mr. Fleming revealed yesterday the government hasn't yet been suddenly converted."

Mr. Coyne, who is under a pending dismissal order in Parliament by the government announced today by Mr. Fleming, issued his statement today in the form of a comment on Wednesday's report by the Senate committee on manpower.

SENATE DEFEATS TARIFF BILL BY 37-21 VOTE

Members Wipe Out Bill's Key Point

OTTAWA (CP)—A rare Senate-Commons showdown has developed over the government's controversial tariff bill.

The Senate's Liberal majority voted in an amendment Wednesday which wipes out the bill's key point—granting of arbitrary powers to the revenue minister in some tariff-setting decisions.

Vote on the amendment was 37 to 21. It was followed by final approval of the amended bill.

This action automatically sends the bill back to the Commons where the original version was previously passed by the Progressive Conservative majority.

The government measure was designed to provide stronger tariff protection for Canadian manufactured goods, mainly machinery, where production is threatened by tariff rates—a high duty on goods "of a class or kind made in Canada" and a low rate on others.

Conservatives in both the Senate and Commons have argued that the section giving the revenue minister the right to decide such tariff classifications with no appeal against such decisions is the heart of the bill.

SAY IT'S DICTATORIAL

Liberals in both chambers have attacked this section as dictatorial.

What happens to the bill now?

The government can either ask the Senate to reconsider a move informed sources say is unlikely to work out—and send the original bill back to the Senate.

Or it can let the Senate stick to its own version, the only way of settling such a dispute is through a so-called "free conference" with three members designated by each House to negotiate a compromise.

If this method fails, the bill could be washed out.

Senator William Brunt (PC, Ontario) Conservative government leader who several weeks ago had the Senate appointed Liberal majority to go against the wishes of the elected Commons, said Wednesday he would bring delays of 10 to 24 months in tariff decisions.

QUESTIONS MOTIVES

Senator Arthur Roebuck (Liberal, Ontario) said supporters of the government bill who supported the Senate committee were persons who had private interests to look after.

He argued that the government move would raise tariffs on millions of dollars worth of imports. This would retard Canada's fast growth and increase unemployment.

Senator Roebuck said the government had been given a mandate by the electorate to increase employment and solve unemployment, not to raise tariffs.

Senator Norman Lambert (Liberal, Ontario) said the decisions on whether an item could be produced in Canada would be based solely on "the undertaking of a manufacturer who thinks he might make it if he gets enough protection."

Fire Damages Orillia Camp

ORILLIA (CP) — Fire destroyed a recreation hall, a dozen cottages at Camp Council-ettes Wednesday night and left a pall over the day after the $80,000 main building was burned to the ground in a message-bearing fugitive from the Ontario Hospital school here.

Cause of Wednesday night's fire has not been determined.

Aircraft Ferry School Children To Welcome for Governor-General

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — School children herded by frantic-tired aircraft to greet Governor-General Vanier shared a civic welcome Wednesday with the men of this mining community in the heart of the Saskatchewan wilderness.

Students from the nearby townsite of Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited and the mile-distant Gunnar Mines town-site—called Uranium City—children to greet the governor-general and Mme. Vanier, flirty from the planes' fumes.

As the 450 children took time off from classrooms and lined up to greet the visitors in 70-degree weather, the governor-general told them:

"Today won't count. I'm going to give you another holiday whether you want it or not."

Breakfast with a truly northern flavor was provided Wednesday when Press Secretary Esmond Butler rose early and went fishing. He returned, trout in nearby Beaveridge Lake.

"I am only now beginning to be gripped by the north," the governor-general said.

Mme. Vanier visited the Roman Catholic church in Santa Barbara—dedicated to the patron saint of miners—and the most northerly school in Saskatchewan.

At a morning visit to the hilltop municipal hospital on the west shore of Martin Lake, Mme. Vanier mistook one hospital worker for a patient.

"No, no, don't get up," she insisted as the girl tried to rise. "But I'm not one of the patients," the girl said.

The visitors later boarded their RCAF aircraft for a 45-minute flight to Fort Smith, administrative capital of the Mackenzie District, near the Alberta border about 300 miles north of Edmonton.

Recommendations

OTTAWA (CP) — Recommendations of the royal commission on publications, tabled today in the House of Commons:

Removal of reduction from income tax of expenditures incurred for advertising directed at the Canadian market in a foreign periodical, wherever printed.

Ban on entry into Canada of a periodical containing Canadian domestic advertising.

Strict enforcement of Canadian legislation against illegal or fraudulent claims contained in "overflow" advertising in foreign periodicals.

Ban on entry into Canada or duties on catalogues entering Canada from abroad in an other printed advertising matter.

Repeal of a tariff item which facilitates entry into Canada of periodical promotional material printed abroad.

Use of business reply cards and envelopes by foreign periodicals only when accompanied by prepaid postage stamps affixed and cancelled in Canada.

No action which might in any way obstruct entry into Canada of foreign periodicals not carrying Canadian advertising aimed directly at the Canadian market.

Compensation from the U.S. to offset Canadian post office losses in carrying periodicals from that country at second-class mail.

Increases in rate for "mailing in Canada" privileges to foreign periodicals to be competitive with foreign second-class mail rates.

Abolition of local delivery rate, higher than second class mail rates, for Canadian periodicals.

Prohibition under the Combines Act of combined advertising rates offered by a Canadian publisher for English and French editions of a periodical.

Require publishers to label clearly as "advertising" any paid editorial or reading matter in periodicals entered as second-class mail.

Free mailing distribution privileges throughout Canada for non-profit cultural magazines, consisting of less than one-third advertising, on their first 5,000 copies of each issue and on authorized sample copies.

MPs Give Notice They Plan Long Questioning of Gordon

OTTAWA (CP)—Government for some employees, and the beleaguered opposition MPs served notice Wednesday they plan exhaustive, detailed questioning of CNR President Donald Gordon — and don't want to be rushed about it.

The special railways committee met to elect Hon. W. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) as chairman and organize itself for the session. Its principal assignment is to review the annual reports of the state-owned Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Airlines.

The government has also asked the committee to examine anomalies in the CNR pension plan resulting from interlocking policies in continuity of service planned.

Ernest Broome (PC—Vancouver South) asked Mr. Rowe for assurances that TCA officials would not be called until the committee is through with its examination of the CNR report. He did not want TCA officials "breathing down our necks."

The CNR had a deficit of $67,486,777 last year, the biggest in the railroad's 37 - year history and almost $20,000 higher than the deficit of 1959. The slowdown in the economy was blamed.

Expansive Policies Needed Senate Committee Reports

OTTAWA (CP)—More expansive policies, fully co-ordinated by the government and the Bank of Canada, are needed to create jobs and capture the full potential of the current business revival, says the Senate manpower committee.

The special committee of 17 Conservative and 16 Liberal senators, which began work on Canada's manpower and unemployment problems last November, presented its 150-page report to the upper house Wednesday.

It said there has been a general upward drift in unemployment for the last decade, heightened by the ending of the 1955-57 boom during which labor and production rose faster than population.

There are indications that the recessionary phase of the current business cycle has come to an end and the upward movement of business activity has begun, the report said.

"It is essential that this development be facilitated and reinforced by outside influences, monetary and fiscal policies, in particular, which will create a suitable increase in the availability of credit to encourage an expanding scale of business operations."

Without specifically mentioning the Bank of Canada and its controversial governor, James Coyne, the report said monetary policy—which is generally assumed to be the responsibility of the central bank—needs support from

Acquittal Will Be Appealed

TORONTO (CP)—The Crown will appeal the jury's acquittal of three men on charges of conspiring to bribe a member of the Ontario provincial police squad, Attorney-General Robarts announced today.

Mr. Roberts said he will act on a recommendation to this effect from special prosecutor Gordon W. Ford.

A Supreme Court jury here Friday night acquitted suspended OPP constable Robert Wright of Toronto and bookies and gamblers Joseph McDermott of Port Credit and Vincent Persley of Toronto.

Queen Barely Escapes Injury By Terrified Horse in Paddock

LONDON (AP) — The Queen barely escaped injury from a terrified horse in the crowded paddock at Ascot race course Wednesday.

Just as the Queen entered the paddock with her husband, Prince Philip, a big horse named Grey Days began backing.

A flying hoof knocked over a stable boy. Handlers grabbed for the horse's reins, but the frightened animal whirled and bucked around the paddock and headed in the direction of the Queen.

With regal poise, the Queen stood stock still. The animal swerved to one side, and a jockey grabbed its bridle.

"Close," said a stable boy.

The Queen said nothing. Unruffled, she watched the next few minutes in the paddock and then returned to the royal box.

Only then did she wave over her horse, a grey filly named Afterglow. She patted down the stretch with a chance to win.

"Oh, go on—go on," she shouted.

Prince Philip, although no great fan of horse racing, got to his feet and cheered as Aiming High crossed the finish line first. It was the Queen's first Ascot win since 1958.

When she was became official, Philip patted his wife on the shoulder. The purse was $3,582 and the starting odds were 100 to 8.

Asks Tax Change To Double Cost Of Foreign 'Ads'

Import Ban Proposed If Canadian Ads Used

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's royal commission on publications recommended today that domestic advertising placed in foreign magazines be stripped of its status as a legitimate business expense—in effect doubling the cost to the advertiser.

In a report tabled in the commons by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, the three - man commission called as well for action under custom tariff law to bar from Canada all periodicals printed outside the country that contain Canadian domestic advertising.

The commission described the recommended steps as the most direct and effective methods of ending diversion of Canadian domestic advertising to U.S.-owned publications—and noted frankly that survival of the handful of Canadian consumer magazines depends on advertising lifeblood.

Chairman M. Grattan O'Leary and fellow commissioners Maxwell George Johnston and Claude P. Wheaton—in their 25,000-word report "it must be clearly understood" that they were recommending "drastic action" in any way might obstruct entry to Canada of foreign periodicals not carrying Canadian advertising directed primarily at the Canadian market.

HIT TIME, DIGEST

The proposal that tax deductions for expenses of Canadian advertising placed in foreign periodicals be denied primarily at the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest—a combination that has been pitching at some 40 per cent of all magazine advertising in Canada.

In tabling the report Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons that instead of giving it financial consideration in the light of the government's current drive to foster a sound and strong Canadianism, he has placed the commission's recommendations before Parliament "with commendatory zeal."

The prime minister's remark that of non-deductibility would be approximately to double the cost of foreign advertising to any foreign periodical wherever published.

The proposal to close Canada's borders to foreign magazines carrying domestic Canadian advertising is aimed at Canadian editions of magazines by which American magazines allow the substitution of material at Canadian readers for part of their press run.

"The commission feels an aim is to prevent the placement of Canadian domestic advertising in foreign periodicals available in Canada and to discourage the use of non-commercial editorial material as an enticement for advertising," the report said.

"These practices must be stopped; stopped effectively and immediately, if there is to be a question of whether or not Canadians shall have their own periodicals."

The royal commission was set up by the government in June of 1960.

Tractor Deal Progress Good Says Castro

HAVANA (CP)—Eight prisoners captured by Cuban forces during the ill-fated invasion two months ago died accidentally as they were being evacuated from the battle area, Premier Fidel Castro disclosed Wednesday at a press conference.

The Cuban leader made the disclosure when two meetings he held with the American technical team delegation here to discuss technical details of his offer to exchange nearly 1,200 prisoners captured in the April 17 invasion for Cuba gets 500 tractors from the United States.

Castro told reporters good progress was made in the discussions but it was evident nothing in the matters of an agreement was reached.

The delegation was scheduled to fly back to the United States today following a two-day visit to Havana.

Castro asked for $28,000,000 worth of farm-type tractors in exchange for captive invaders, most of them shipped from Canada.

The American group made no commitments and intimated to key the request to the United States — for, it was learned, committee headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Whether the committee, in its drive for public subscriptions, would raise the half of money involved in Castro's demand was uncertain. The Associated Press reported. Other members of the committee, Mrs. Roosevelt, are Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union and Milton Eisenhower.)

The Cuban premier said he submitted to the delegation names of 1,173 prisoners whom the government is willing to set free if terms can be worked out.

Castro said he told the group leaders of the invasion expedition or 26 others held responsible

Jury Attaches No Blame In Death of Kingston Couple

A coroner's jury last night found that no one was to blame in the accident which, which a Kingston couple were instantly killed at about 8 p.m., Jan. 4, on Highway 2 when another car was in collision with another car on Dundas Street. The vehicle then struck the two persons just inside the city limits. The five-man jury deliberated 30 minutes before bringing in a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame to "any party involved in the accident".

The jurymen made no recommendations but added a rider that traffic, saying they were unable to decide who died first, Anne Pitt, 24, of Kingston, or her wife, Marion. At the outset of the inquest, which lasted an hour, Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott told them that a "question of survival" was involved. If possible, they were to decide from the evidence produced, who died first.

"This," he said, "was necessary to aid the settling of the estates."

Dr. Scott said the inquest had been delayed several weeks because of severe injuries suffered in the accident by one of the jury members.

Dr. Alex Rois, regional pathologist for the Attorney-General's Department, and director of the department of pathology at Belleville General Hospital, testified that he was unable, through post-mortem examination, to establish who died first. He said the couple died of "multiple traumatic injuries," or injuries inflicted by a mechanical force.

Constable Wilman Carr, 33, of Kingston, an occupant of the Gregory car, said he could not remember anything that happened after noon of the day of the accident.

RECOLLECTION DIM

"The last recollection I have," he said, "is leaving my own house (at Kingston)."

(It is understood that such loss of memory is known to the medical profession as "retrograde amnesia" and is not unusual in accident cases. It is indicative of the severity of the forward impact.)

Mr. Carr said he was discharged from hospital about a month after the accident. He was a cane. He owned the car in which the Gregorys were killed.

Keith A. Galsforth, Trenton, who was travelling behind Mr. Pettipas' west-bound car, told the jury (Mr. Gregory) car coming towards me the back end started to swing . . ."

Mr. Galsforth, who was about two or three car lengths behind the Pettipas vehicle, said Mr. Pettipas' auto was "completely in its right lane" when the impact occurred. Then he said, was proceeding normally on the proper side of the road until it started to skid.

Youth Fined For Causing Damage to Car

Douglas Young, 19, of Deseronto, was fined $35 today when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills to a charge of causing malicious damage and one of consuming alcohol while a minor.

Crown Attorney Albert James Ady, also 19, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

The two were arrested last Saturday by Chief Constable Kenneth Bleecker, about an hour after Young had smashed a window of a car owned by Sandra Bernadette Desrochie. Mr. and Mrs. Berndt were sitting in their parked car near the town's waterfront when their vehicle was pounded by stones. Two of the youths climbed into a car, but Young and Sly stood staring at the Berndts.

Mrs. Berndt, 24, asked them if something was wrong. Young answered by cursing at the disturbance, although nothing had taken place. The youths backed off a few feet and then raised Mr. Berndt to step out of his car. He refused. Young went up to the car and smashed the window on the driver's side with his fist, fist made up obscene remark.

Mr. and Mrs. Berndt drove off and reported the incident to Chief Const. Bleecker.

In addition to the $35 fine, Young was also assessed $18 costs, including $12 for the price of a broken window which was ordered to pay $3 court costs.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills warned the youths that they now have criminal records to keep out of trouble in the future.

Recalled at the request of the jury, Const. Wright testified that Pte. Gregory's body was lying on the pavement to the side of the front seat. Mrs. Gregory's body, he said, was lying on the right-hand side of the back seat. No mention was made of the condition of where Mr. Carr was found.

GENIAL CASTRO

of reporters in his usual, affable manner. He smoked one cigar and puffed on a cigar stub but never left his desk during the 90 hours of the first press conference.

KEEPS OK TALKING

After a lull around the 11th hour, Castro's chief of the Cuban air force president tried a new gambit. "I've gotten mixed up with a Washington press conference that would signal the start of the session," Castro told reporters.

Later in the evening, after his chief aide, Ernesto Che Guevara, negotiations, the prime minister left his post in his apartment to join the newspaper men. He sat down at a table in the lounge of the Habana Libre and refreshments were staying and, without removing his beret, held forth once again.

This meeting lasted from 10:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. today. Fidel drank soft drinks during this session which, as the evening wore on, turned more and more into a college fraternity-type bull session.

The sleepy reporters finally ended the session by asking Castro for comment for certain that Castro would start their battlefield tour at 5:30 a.m.

Castro talked about almost everything and then some.

President Kennedy — He has no interest of meeting President Kennedy at this time, but he said open the possibility of a meeting should the United States indicate a change.

U.S.-Cuban negotiations — It's up to the United States, not Cuba, to make the initiative on negotiations. The basic cause of differences because Cuba is what America termed the offensive.

U.S. prestige — Latin America is not becoming increasingly hostile toward the United States. Rather, it is becoming less hostile toward its socialist. The state is not. It has the same organization as the "democratization began."

Whiteout in Cuba—It will be wiped out by the end of this year under Castro's mass education program.

Legion Branch 99 Plans for Convention

The regular monthly meeting of Bredin Branch 99 Legion was held at the Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street on Tuesday night with President Leo Digby well in the chair, and there was a good turnout of members.

Building committee chairman Lee Trotter gave an encouraging report. Plans were almost completed for the addition and expected to be able to call for tenders in a few days. The decision was left to the executive as issues should be approved by the Ontario Securities Commission in the near future, after which the issue of $20,000 of six per cent bonds will be put on sale to branch members and the general public.

Committee Trotter stated that bonds would be in denominations of $100, from which funds in the reach of most members. He expected all branch members would be behind the committee in this venture.

SUCCESSFUL BANQUET

Sports committee chairman Ross Stevenson reported a successful Legion House Dart League banquet on the previous Saturday. He stated that a challenge had been received from the Legion Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, for a softball game between the two units at Cobourg as well as the Bredin.

The executive reported that the fence had been repaired between the Lutzell property and the Legion property, thus curing off the nuisance from Pinnacle Street to Front Street across the property. Repairs, this was carried out as a safety measure.

Second vice - president Bill Heasman was appointed at a committee to find out what would be involved in bringing the past-presidents' board up to date.

Entertainment chairman Frank Daniels reported that the Saturday night dances would be discontinued during the months of July and August.

Membership chairman Roy Madden presented one new member for initiation in the person of Jack Holmes, who was welcomed into membership of Bredin 99. Comrade Madden reported that active membership was well over 300.

Draw chairman Ross Atchison appealed for all members with books of draw tickets to try to have returns in at least a week before the draw date, July 7th and thus eliminating a lot of follow-up work by his committee.

PROVINCIAL CONVENTION

Len Taylor was nominated to represent Branch 99 at the forthcoming provincial convention of the Canadian Legion, to be held in Hamilton, August 6 to 10.

Members were reminded of

Shannonville Area Man Faces Charge of Theft

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today reserved judgment until the following the hour-long trial of George Norvey Baptiste, 32, of Shannonville, on a charge of theft of $30 from the purse of Mrs. Thomas Swenson of Deseronto.

The magistrate also left the case open for further evidence tonight.

Baptiste, who was defended by Crown Attorney Thomas J. Lally, pleaded not guilty.

Only three witnesses were called for the prosecution by Crown Attorney John Pringle, Mr. Lally calling only Mr. Baptiste, the defendant, with whom another witness appeared to testify briefly.

Mr. Swenson, who said he has been a resident of Deseronto for 17 years, testified that Baptiste stole $127 by removing it from his wallet on May 31, the night before the Deseronto Legion Branch 99 Ladies' Auxiliary held a dance.

Mr. Swenson said he had been drinking with Baptiste and Mr

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market reversed its morning trend and was higher during moderate trading with financial institutions leading the way. Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Imperial Investment A and Trethewey Finance A and B all had lively gains.

Steels and papers were ahead. On the exchange index, industrials rose 1.31 to 170.94, and base metals .23 to 126.62. Golds fell .58 to 81.66 and western oils .35 to 57.32. The 11 a.m. volume was 542,000 shares compared with 613,000 at the same time Wednesday.

The base metals market was generally quiet with light trading. Gold trading was light with no major changes.

In light western oil trading, Calgary and Edmonton dropped fractionally. Canadian Devonian and Dome Petroleum had small gains.

The stock market recovered 10%.

District Kiwanians Enjoy Golf Day at County Club

Close to 130 Kiwanians gathered at the Bay of Quinte Country Club yesterday afternoon and evening for the resumption of the annual divisional interclub golf day after a lapse of two years. Traditionally sponsored by the local club the event has not been run during the past two years due to inadequate local facilities to handle the large attendance it enjoyed.

Yesterday's turnout emphasized the popularity of the event to the members of some 14 clubs in the district. Representatives were present from Kiwanis Clubs in Lindsay, Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg, Picton, Madoc, Kingston, Marmora, Tweed, Bath, Millhaven, Trenton, Port Hope and Cobourg.

Following an afternoon of golf the Kiwanians sat down to dinner and an evening's entertainment. During the course of the evening Lt.-Governor Al Weaver of Trenton presented five local Kiwanians with their Legion of Honour certificates for long service in Kiwanis International. In recognition of 25 years of service, Leo Foard and Charles Hyde, a charter member of the local club, received their certificates. George Forhan, Frank Domenico and Ed Logan, the latter two past presidents of the local club, received certificates in recognition of 20 years of Kiwanis membership.

Musical entertainment was provided during the dinner hour by Bill Long, who also accompanied Rex Slocombe during his performance of acts of legerdemain. The latter was also outstanding as a raconteur.

The main trophy of the tournament, the Corby Golf Trophy, was won by the Oshawa Kiwanis Club team of Ken Conlin, Bob Fatte, Alec MacKay and Ed Disney. Low gross score winner was R. Franklin of Peterborough with Art Pennington of Belleville taking the low net award. Local Kiwanian Don Fiskle was presented with the "Most Honest Golfer" award in recognition of his achievement on the links.

OWNERSHIP DEFINED

The commissioners said their recommendations made it imperative that there be a definition of ownership of a magazine, and offered this conclusion:

That a Canadian periodical is one published in Canada, owned either by Canadian citizens or, if a corporation, by a company incorporated under the laws of Canada or of one of its provinces, and which is controlled and directed by Canadian citizens and is not a licensee of or otherwise substantially the same as a periodical owned or controlled outside Canada."

Declaring that only a true Canadian periodical press can give Canadians "the informed discourse and dialogue which are indispensable in a sovereign society," the commission added recommendations in a number of fields aimed at helping to restore its vigor.

Because of circulation wars that are breaking out with increasing regularity among American publishers, Canadian publishers found themselves "in a battle not of their own choosing in a league they can ill afford."

To cut down on the flood of promotional literature, it was proposed that the privilege of business reply cards and envelopes be extended only when the promotional material which they accompany is prepared and mailed in Canada.

Also, the report said, a tariff item which facilitates entry into Canada of periodical promotional material should be repealed.

AID SMALL MAGS

Help was proposed for non-profit cultural and "little" magazines, with free mailing privileges being extended to them throughout Canada for their first 5,000 copies per issue and for authorized sample copies, provided the publications carry less than one-third advertising content.

There was a call for strict enforcement of existing Canadian legislation against illegal or fraudulent claims made in the "overflow" advertising circulating in Canada from the U.S. or abroad.

New Form of Surface Treatment To Be Used on City Streets

This summer the Public Works Department will be trying out a new form of surface treatment for city roads which is expected to give a surface life of some five years. Known as Dix-Seal its use was recently approved by the public works committee and by the council that its application will commence in the near future, according to City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull.

The process utilizes a patented specially mixed combination of asphalt and stone which has to be laid at a high temperature by a paving machine. It is designed as a long-life temporary road surface and has been tried out in other Ontario municipalities during the past year with some success.

Underway this week are a number of contracts recently approved by council. Curb installations and paving commencing on Bradgate Rd., Willow Dr. and Eleanor Gdns. to Wicksteed Ave. St. by the T. Eaton Co. firm have started and work on the paving of the Cliff crossing on East Moira Street is scheduled to start immediately after the completion of the preceding.

The widening of Herchimer Avenue is about 60 per cent complete and it is hoped that this project will be completed by the end of next week. The road on Victoria Avenue between Smith Street and Strathcona Drive is receiving its final build-up following the completion of the construction involved in providing complete service connections for housing in that area. It is hoped to complete this section of road a coat of primer oil during the next week.

Work on the sanitary sewers on Victoria Avenue east of Farley is scheduled to commence in the immediate future. It is hoped to receive approval from the Ontario Municipal Board to the by-law providing for the road continuation of this section in the near future. The contract

A Tyrant Is a Tyrant

Sydney J. Harris, whose column appears on this page, penned a significant sentence Monday.

"That currently popular phrase 'the free world'," said Harris, "includes all the corrupt rulers, dictators and despots who have decided that they can get more from siding with us than from siding with them."

If that is not a completely accurate observation, it is close enough to being true to be frightening.

What is even more frightening is to realize how often we welcome these so-called friends, without any enquiry as to the reason for their friendship or as to the principles, or lack of principles, invoked by them in ruling in their own lands.

A nation, no less than a man, is judged by the company it chooses. The company the Western nations sometimes choose, or, (which is as bad), permit to choose them, is not always such as we can be proud of.

It is true, of course, that we ought not to consider that we alone, of all the nations on earth, are without sin and that every nation should copy our institutions faithfully. But there is a difference between that "unlike-than-thou" hypocrisy which would isolate us and that readiness to accept anybody as an ally without any inquiry as to the standards by which he rules himself—and his country.

When a "benevolent" dictator like Salazar of Portugal consider it expedient to meet native atrocity with white atrocity in a country like Angola, you may whether Britain and France increase their prestige in the world by abstaining from a vote calling for a UN inquiry.

Our occasional flurries of concern about the methods of the Communist dictator Tito in Yugoslavia would hett us better if they were matched by similar concern when we remember the union between Fascist Franco governs Spain.

There has been nothing quite so grimly humorous, in recent world news, as the off-hand attempt to suggest that Fidel Castro of Cuba might be a potent influence in the affairs of the Dominican Republic, following the assassination of General Trujillo, when we remember that Trujillo was Castro's bitterest foe until a years-belated recognition by the U.S. that the Dominican dictator was no angel. Then Castro and Trujillo suddenly became friends—a development which would deserve our scorn if we were not too often playing the same game.

A Difficult Task

Nobody is likely to question the good intentions of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in asking that a committee of the House of Commons study the War Measures Act with the aim of revising it in such a manner as to erase its conflict with the new Bill of Rights, which the Prime Minister sponsored and guided through Parliament. There may be some though, and we find ourselves in this number, who fear that Mr. Diefenbaker is seeking the impossible. The efficient prosecution of a war and the preservation of truly democratic government cannot both be achieved at once and the same time. One or the other must take precedence, to the damage of the other objective. Just how severe this damage will be will depend in large measure on the nature of the war and the manner in which it is being fought—and the trend towards "total war" in modern times makes it likely that the damage will be heavy.

In our opinion it is probable that the House of Commons committee, after considerable study, will discover that the Prime Minister has already gone about as far as is feasible in modifying the War Measures Act, by the section of the Bill of Rights which required the proclamation of the War Measures Act, by the section of the Bill of Rights which required the proclamation of the War Measures Act, by the section of the Bill of Rights which required the proclamation of the War Measures Act, to be tabled in Parliament and provided for debate on such proclamation if sought by petition of any ten members of either the Commons or Senate.

This does not mean, of course, that either the House of Commons or the Senate will have done their full duty in preserving our civil liberties during time of war or threat of war merely by considering the advisability of making the War Measures Act effective. It does mean, however, that the exercise of arbitrary powers by governments is unavoidable in times of crisis and that the best we can hope is that, if such times of crisis come, these powers will be used wisely by those entrusted with them and that members of the Commons and Senate alike will watch closely to make certain that invasions of our liberties which occur are the result of necessity and not of whim, ignorance or laziness. We suspect, however, that no law which provides a government with all the power which it may need to safeguard the country in time of war can also guarantee that some of this power will not be used unwisely.

What Russians Laugh At

By D. Novak, Dept. of Moderator University

Humour and wit have become accepted weapons in the struggle in political debates and controversies. A witty remark can do numerous good often "drives home" the point more quickly and sharply than a long speech. Of course, and may be more effective. Readers of humour, directed against the government, may give some people a feeling of special superiority, a safe outlet and expression of discontent. This is particularly true in a country like the Soviet Union where many of the usual democratic means of criticism are absent.

The official Soviet humour, as presented chiefly by the magazine Krokodil, is directed primarily to destroy and foster the policies of the regime, and to ridicule those who do not carry them out as expected. It is directed against the "class enemies of the State, foreign and domestic," and against lethargy and irresponsibility displayed by lesser officials and workers in carrying out their allotted tasks.

It is only to be expected that the unofficial people humor in Russia will be directed against the regime, its policies, its crazy, and the deficiencies in all walks of life. As an American student of Soviet affairs, Mr. W. H. Chamberlin, put it, "those who have experience to deal with just the subjects which are not mentioned in Soviet newspapers and magazines, at least not in the spirit of the discussions of reality with acts of arbitrary terror, with failings of individuals, with vast leaders, with mistakes and distortions and drudgery connected with economic terror, and with capitalist' living conditions."

Criticisms wrapped up in humor (jokes or anecdotes as the Russians call it) usually existed in the U.S.S.R. throughout its life, but most of them, quite naturally, large dealt with Stalin and his epoch.

Many anecdotes about Stalin have attended his crimes and records the incredible personal popularity he held in his day, but which at present is officially denounced as "the cult of personality." One of them is as it: story of Stalin visiting a lunatic asylum. Stalin was met by him from the patients. However, a member of the political police which accompanied Stalin noticed that two people were standing aside, quite apart from the others when he approaches them and asks for explanation, he is told that they are "Lenin and Dzerzhinsky, comrade, we are the wardens."

Another anecdote tells of a man who saved Stalin from drowning without realizing whom he had rescued. Shortly after identifying himself, Stalin offers his rescuer any reward he may wish. "Nothing, really only one thing I wish," answered the rescuer. "That don't tell anybody that I saved you."

• • •

Another story about Stalin brings out his political ingenuity.

Having gone to his native Georgia for a holiday, Stalin decided to relax by going a shepherd for a few days, just like he did as a little boy. As he was alone with the sheep on a mountain, he began to talk loudly to them about various matters, trying to substitute for human company by frequent references to Marx. Suddenly the ghost of Karl Marx appeared before him and shaking his finger, reprimanded him severely for his carelessness in talking to the sheep. "I know," answered Stalin, "but I am not talking to you I was talking to the sheep."

Bad economic conditions, especially in the thirties, gave rise to many jokes.

One of them poses the question, "Which people in the world are the most free?" The answer is: "The Russians — because they can really say the whole world's rations in one day."

"When you need us we will stand by and help you as defenders of democracy," assured Ed. Heumann president of the Rochester Club of Rochester, N.Y., during an impressive presentation ceremony held in the council chambers at the City Hall here on Friday when His Worship Mayor Thompson was presented with two large flags, one the Stars and Stripes of the United States and the other the Union Jack. After the flags had been placed on either side of the Mayor's dais, His Worship then presented the key of the city to president Heumann; a large key which was presented to the word "Belleville" which will hang in the Rochester Club ever as a reminder of the bond of kindredship between these two cities.

James Bertram Collip, Ph. D., (Toronto), M. Sc., M.D. (Alberta), Professor Biochemistry at McGill University in Montreal, has been awarded by the University of Toronto, the Cameron Prize and Fellowship for 1941 for his contributions in the study of physiological effects of pituitary hormones. Dr. Collip attended Belleville High School.

Twelve Belleville members of the Veterans' Guard, Company No. 1 at Ottawa, had a pleasant part in the Torch of Victory ceremonies on Friday, Sgt. W. Terry, Sgt. Ashline and Sgt. Simpson. In last evening's issue of the Intelligencer a photograph showed Sgt. First Step To Safety

St. Catharines Standard

The first step toward the installation of seat belts in new motor cars is the announcement of Canada's automobile manufacturers that 1942 models will be equipped with brackets for such belts. The next move will be up to the motoring, for the belts themselves will be installed.

Most important will be use of the seat belts. That such belts reduce seriousness of accidental injuries is proved. Canadian and United States safety authorities hold that use of seat belts can reduce traffic fatalities by at least one-third.

With the new 1942 models automobile industry lining up to make it easier for the motorist to take the necessary step in having seat belts installed and motoring certain they are used on all occasions. The action of the automobile manufacturers is a word to the wise.

MINISTERS ALL

A contention arose one day among the disciples of Jesus as to which of them was the greatest. The Master rebuked them, saying that he who would should not prevail among them. "Whosoever would be great among you, let them be your minister; and he who would be first among you, let him be your minister." (Matt. 20:26). Whosoever by putting aside self in the interest of others. Let him make himself little that others may be large. Let him forget himself in his concern for others. Let him put the desire for personal advancement where it ought to be—never first, never anywhere near first.

Whosoever will be truly great must be the servant of all.

We have come to associate the word minister with ordained clergyman. As a matter of fact, every Christian layman is expected to be a minister. The word minister comes from the Latin word "minor" which means "less." A minister is a person who makes himself of no consequence that he may be helpful to others.

The first tenet in the philosophy of Christ is service. Look not for Number One." The basic principle of brotherhood is, "Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister."

That is the only worthwhile purpose by putting aside self in the interest of others. Let him make himself little that others may be large. Let him forget himself in his concern for others.

'Deep Cough Screening' A New Test for Cancer

By Joseph C. Hoban, M.D.

There has been a vast amount of talk about lung cancer in recent years, and quite rightly so. The hard question is, What are we going to do about the problem? Is there any one simple answer to say "stop smoking cigarets," and I am sure everybody realizes that unfortunately that answer is not the whole story.

However, I certainly don't think this will prevent all lung cancer, for there is evidence that cigaret smoke isn't guilty by itself.

What about the columbeal people who have been in the pens for years before anybody ever mentioned lung cancer? Even if they had smoked cigarets, it's probable that some of them will develop lung cancer in any way. Can something be done for them?

Yes, if the cancer is discovered early and is removed.

I have just been informed of an incident in Michigan (although I am sure similar cases occur in this country) which involving a test called "deep cough screening."

Many readers are well aware of the "Papanicolaou Test," or "Pap test" or "smear test," which has been so effective in finding early cases of cancer of the cervix. This has been so successful that, when the cancer is discovered in the cancer of the cervix less most of its peril.

The "deep cough" test is similar, except that you don't take a smear from the lungs. Instead, the person being tested sits in front of a specialized vapor consisting of a salt solution and a wetting agent.

In a few minutes he coughs. Up comes a specimen of sputum which is then examined, just as cells then can be examined, just as in the "pap test," to see if any abnormal, or cancerous ones are present.

One man, in for some other test, was asked, "You're a lot older than you aren't you?"

He said yes — "two packs a day for the last forty years. What are we going to do about the problem? Is there any one simple answer is to say "stop smoking cigarets," and I am sure everybody realizes that unfortunately that answer is not the whole story.

Yes, if the cancer is discovered early and is removed.

I have just been informed of an incident in Michigan (although I am sure similar cases occur in this country) which involving a test called "deep cough screening."

Many readers are well aware of the "Papanicolaou Test," or "Pap test" or "smear test," which has been so effective in finding early cases of cancer of the cervix. This has been so successful that, when the cancer is discovered in the cancer of the cervix less most of its peril.

The "deep cough" test is similar, except that you don't take a smear from the lungs. Instead, the person being tested sits in front of a specialized vapor consisting of a salt solution and a wetting agent.

In a few minutes he coughs. Up comes a specimen of sputum which is then examined, just as cells then can be examined, just as in the "pap test," to see if any abnormal, or cancerous ones are present.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the radio and TV repair shop attached to one of the big department stores there is a youth employed as messenger boy. He is a personification of a page. It is not as easy as you might think to get your ideal intelligent boys to serve at menial tasks any more. If they are sufficiently intelligent to be interesting occasions, the wise men say!

Never! Where's that awful rock 'n roll record that we heard last night?

He put the record on a player-car that was in for service. Loud, raw and appealing. He got it.

Now whenever he is wanted, they just put on a rock 'n roll.

could look for him. And when he appeared, he always had a perfectly satisfactory explanation of what he had been doing and where he had been.

And hardly-ever solved the problem. In the midst of one of his explanations of intelligent boys to serve at menial tasks any more. If they are sufficiently intelligent to be interesting occasions, the wise men say!

Never! Where's that awful rock 'n roll record that we heard last night?

He put the record on a player-car that was in for service. Loud, raw and appealing. He got it.

Now whenever he is wanted, they just put on a rock 'n roll.

YOUTH

The flowers that came up this spring, in the same spot from what looked like the same stems of yesteryear, and that smelled sweet and looked just as beautiful, and which will again return next spring clothed in the same garments, are to me the endless expressions of what Youth is in the world.

Nature doesn't grow old. It only changes form. Its smile is just as young today as it was 5,000 years ago.

Those who cannot find not you — you who are a million times more wonderful than anything ever found before — have the eternal expression of what Youth best is to say.

Farm Labor Force Drops

Fort Arthur News-Chronicle

It is being predicted that 300,000 will quit Canadian farm life within the next 12 months. And even now, with farming dropping to fourth place in the scale of jobs from the country's second-ranking position in the Canadian scheme, farm labor produce today is at an all-time high. The answer is, or course, mechanization of the farm, a fact which have filled the gap caused by those who have forsaken the soil for city life.

Farmers today are not having too much trouble in the hands to help them in their agricultural activities. We feel that one of the chief reasons for this is that any regulations that would guarantee agricultural employment conditions commensurate with those in other industries are practically non-existent.

There are no labor standards when it comes to working for a farmer that would guarantee a minimum wage, the hours of work, holidays and so on. The only legislation that the government has seen fit to put into effect for the benefit of the farmhand is workmen's compensation, in case he should be injured while on the farm, but when the crops are in and the farmhand is laid off, he does not qualify for unemployment insurance. This is one of the chief reasons why many farmers have a difficult time in hiring help for the seasonal demands for farm work.

In 1931, when Canada had a population of 8,000,000 more than half lived in rural areas, predominantly on farms, and 10 years later, in 1936, a census showed there were only 3,700,000 people on the farms out of a total population of 16,-000,000.

It is apparent, too, the members of the average farmer's family have decided to try city life. In 1946, unpaid family members accounted for only 6 per cent of all the people with jobs on farms. By 1956, they accounted for only 3 per cent. There are fewer women on the farms today and the age group for all workers has also changed. More than 40 per cent of men engaged in the farm labor force now are 45 years or older. Most of them operate their own farms and today depend on mechanized equipment to take the place of the farmhands and members of their family who have left the farms for the cities and nearby town.

How times do change.

St. Bernards Out-Modeled

Financial Post

If the dash-bound, in their Walter Mitty moments, see themselves rescued from a Swiss avalanche by a St. Bernard, that's one thing. But if that they can scrap right now.

The economic fact is that the business of the Bernards is going to pieces and the dogs are getting the bum end of many mission lice.

Since 1850, the monks of the Hospice of St. Bernard have been training their animals to find people buried in the 9,100-foot depth and would have drowned had it not been for the prompt action of Mr. McGlynn, Jr., of Harriett Street, who swam to her assistance and brought her to shore safely, where she was revived. Mr. McGlynn's action was highly commendable.

Parts of Bill Lack Clarity Says Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Salter Hayden said Wednesday night that parts of the government's bill on "capital" murder lack clarity and may not achieve the results the cabinet seeks.

"The Liberal senator's remarks could foreshadow attempts to amend the bill in the Senate. Such amendments would return the legislation to the Commons, where it already has been passed.

The bill would reserve the gallows for "planned and deliberate" capital murder, but substitute the sentence of life imprisonment for all other types which are to be called non-capital murder. At present, there is no such distinction and the death penalty is mandatory following all murder convictions.

Senator Hayden, chairman of the Senate banking and commerce committee to which the bill will be referred, said as the measure came up for debate in the Senate that it is obvious the government hopes for "amelioration" of the situation. But he doubted this will be achieved.

Definition of capital murder as being planned and deliberate may cause serious problems and does not clarify and simplify the issue "as much as we had hoped," he said.

MAY HINDER

Senator Hayden said the test of capital murder as being planned and deliberate also may make it more difficult for defence counsel to succeed in a defence of provocation—in trying to prove it was a crime of passion and therefore a case of manslaughter, not murder.

Senator Hayden also questioned the wisdom of the new bill under which judges, after hearing the jury's verdict and passing sentence, must in all capital murder cases ask the jury whether it wants to recommend for or against mercy.

Senator Hayden said he asked three judges about this section and all gave him a different view. For the sake of clarity the bill should say whether the mercy recommendation is to be unanimous or by a majority.

LIMIT TV COMMERCIALS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television board of the United States National Association of Broadcasters amended its TV code Wednesday to limit commercials. The most important change will set the maximum amount of commercials at four minutes per half hour during peak viewing times. The present maximum is six minutes per half hour.

Firemen Plan Big Parade For Celebration

DESERONTO — The plans for the Firemen's Jamboree to be held here on June 30 and July 1st are rapidly being culminated. Besides the street dance for Friday night and the fishing derby for Saturday the firemen are planning a big parade of fire departments for Saturday night at seven o'clock.

According to information there are already three bands slated to take part in the parade and it is hoped in the next week that there will be at least two and perhaps three more. One of the bands is the Air Cadet Band from Kingston will have their Majorette group in attendance also. There will be the Sea Cadet Band from Port Hope and a band from Peterborough.

Several Fire Departments have also signified their intention of participating and all in all the parade will be well worth seeing. Some of the local merchants are also making plans to decorate their store fronts and displaying flags for the two days. To will be games in the park during the two evenings and the prize winners for the lucky draw prizes will be announced.

At the present time the firemen are practising for the races to be held in Treviso on Sunday June 25th where they will compete with several departments from the Hastings and Prince Edward Association for the 1961 championship.

MAY HAVE CANCER

SWEETSBURGH, Que. (CP) Abel Vosburg, charged with murdering his wife and 11 of their children, should be granted bail because he may be suffering from lung cancer, his lawyer said Wednesday. John Gotlieb made formal application for bail before Mr. Justice William Mitchell of the Quebec Superior Court who will rule on the application in a day or two.

TABERNACLE AUXILIARY

At the last meeting of the 6th Boy Scouts Auxiliary plans were completed for a week-end Cub camp. This will be at Oak Lake and the program will keep the Cubs busy—and well dirty—for the whole of the time.

Since this was the closing meeting, the business and was disposed of as quickly as possible and the ladies enjoyed a most interesting talk by Cubmaster Mac McClelland. He spoke on "Scouting—Its Aims, Principles and Methods." Scouting is a game for boys, a game they will play all through life. An interdenominational organization cooperating with the home, school and church to build character. The Akela went on to explain the Scouting program. The Promise and Law forms the texts of the lessons. "To do my best, 'remember every Scout to actively live his promise to the best of his ability. "To God and the Queen" reminds the boys that Scouting is shared by boys of all faiths. During prayers as each Scout lays his hand on his neighbor's shoulder he is asked to think of that boy and of the chain of Scouts throughout the Commonwealth. Duty to the Queen brings to mind again the vastness of the Commonwealth and the necessity to obey her laws. To help other people at all times is not an empty phrase. A young Scout who helps his mother with the dishes has learned a valuable lesson and will be prepared to know the true meaning of "Brotherhood" in manhood.

A Scout troop is made up of 2 Scouters—Assistant Scoutmasters and Patrol Leaders. Promotion to Patrol Leader involves a challenge of leadership to a Scout of limited experience. Methods used by Scoutmasters include personal examples of leaders, responsibility given for the first time, learning by doing and having fun and an appreciation of the great outdoors.

Scouter McClelland was thanked by Nora Graham and a social half hour closed the meeting.

ESCAPEE NABBED

GUELPH (CP) — Police in Brampton Wednesday night recaptured George Shilling, 16, who escaped Tuesday from a work party at the Ontario Reformatory here. Shilling, of Whitby, was serving a one-year term for break, enter and theft. He would have been eligible for parole Aug. 12.

Recover Body Of Drowned Man

The body of Reba J. Rochon, 69, of Orleans, one of two persons who lost their lives by drowning in the Trent River north of Glen Miller on Sunday, was recovered last evening at No. 3 power dam.

Mr. Rochon was drowned Sunday afternoon when he made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Col. Reginald R. Mind, of Belleville, while the two were fishing at No. 2 power dam.

Cpl. Mind's body was recovered from the water after the drowning but efforts to recover the body of Mr. Rochon were unsuccessful until yesterday.

No. 2 power dam is just north of 401 highway, while No. 3 dam is two miles further upriver, midway between Batawa and Glen Miller.

Chapter 55 Sponsors Most Successful Indoor 'Garden Tea'

A dainty "Garden Tea" was held yesterday afternoon by Chapter 55 of the O.E.S. in the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club House instead of on the spacious lawn as planned, due to the heavy downpour of the previous evening. However, to make up for the disappointment, the Club House was literally a 'garden of flowers'. Lovely baskets of mauve, yellow, orchid and deep purple iris and bridal wreath spirea, yellow forsythia and white gardenia-like flowers were in profusion; little white pendant baskets adorned the entrance door in double beauty, while over each window of the tea rooms hung similar baskets, with soft white floral containers flanking the fireplace.

The iris table was beautifully appointed with its damask cloth and centred with a lovely arrangement of golden-hearted white Shasta "mums and tall spikes of deep pink snapdragons, backed by feathery asparagus fern and dark leathery leaves. Tall rose-toned candles in crystal candelabra, the little floral bervittes with their corsets of pink flowers and the gleaming silver service completed the setting.

GUEST TABLES

On each guest table a low crystal container held a single iris bloom, some in mauve, others in deep purple and some in yellow.

Receiving the guests into this bower of beauty were: Mrs. Loslie Brickman, W.M. and Mrs. Pearl Johnston, Associate Matron, who was also the convener of the tea. Assisted conveners were Mrs. Myrtle Cross and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis.

Those who poured included: Mrs. Pauline Clare, W.M. of Minerva Chapter, Belleville; Mrs. Jean Adams, P.M.; Mrs. Edna Dobbs, P.M. of Minerva Chapter; Mrs. Marion Heath, P.M. Maxmora Chapter; Mrs. Reade Clarke, P.M. of Belleville 83 and Mrs. Key Bushell.

In charge of the refreshments were: Mesdames, Kay Pinder, Doris Stewart, Jean Clapp, Jean Smith; Ina Miller; Dorothy Dunne; Helene Darvell; while making the tea were, Mrs. Susie Pigden; Florence Moon and Nellie Armstrong.

The tea room hostesses were Mesdames: Ada McMaster; Dora Elvidge; Vi Slavin; Hazel Bartless; Thelma Riddle; Ann Davidson, all past matrons of Belleville W.I.

REFRESHMENTS

Replacing the trays of delicious sandwiches and cookies were: Mrs. Dorothy Middleton; Mrs. Irene Brown; Mrs. Phyllis Barlow; Mrs. Margaret Shaw; Mrs. Leah Pitt; Mrs. Edna Morden, P.M. of Belleville 83.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. Muriel Smith, P.M. and Mrs. Rita Mae Fisher, who received the dues of admission beside a little white table adorned with a beautiful bouquet of iris blooms.

The hostess' cooking table was held at the home of Mrs. Roy E. Brickman across the road, where chocolate loaf cakes, nut-topped; chocolate macaroons; lemon sponge pie; tea biscuits; Danish pastry; lemon, date and nut loaves; Chelsea buns bursting with raisins; vanilla cookies; individual meat pies; butter tarts, and jars of grape jam were among a few of the confections offered. Those were conveyed by Mrs. Zena Mayhew, assisted by Mrs. M. Vivian; Mrs. Edna Bailey; Mrs. Orris Adams; Mrs. Isabel Boulton; Mrs. Freda LaRue and Mrs. Mary Gardner.

LUSCIOUS COFFEE RING

Just outside, beneath a weeping willow tree, was another drawing card, a box of assorted chocolate and cocoanut macaroon candies, sheltered from the sun by a golden lawn umbrella and a delicious coffee roll topped with whole maraschino cherries and lusclous white icing. This was convened by Mrs. Isabel Boulton.

A dainty and most successful tea, meriting many appreciative thanks.

Club Activities

CHRIST CHURCH CHI RHO

The Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship met at the hall the home of Queen Mary Public School last Wednesday evening for a fast-moving game of "work-up," which in reality proved more of a work-out for the young adult group. Led by their dashing new young curate, the Reverend Michael Carswell many sparkling plays were executed and it can only be supposed that some sore muscles were being tended on the job Thursday morning.

Following the scrimmage, the group met back at the church hall for worship, business and fellowship.

MEETS NORTHLAND CITIZEN — Madame Vanier met a pipesmoking Indian woman in the Hudson Bay port of Churchill while the vice-regal party was on an official visit. The first tour of Canada's north for Governor-General Georges Vanier began at that community 610 miles north of Winnipeg on Monday.

Pastor, Family Honored at Presentation

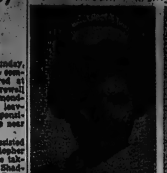
CENTENARY — On Sunday, June 11th the Centenary community centre was honored at the church hall to pay farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edmondson and family, who are leaving to take over the responsibilities of the Bay charge near Napanee.

Mrs. Bryan Harder assisted by Mrs. Albert Clarke presided in the worship service taking as her theme, "The Shadow of Judgment." Mrs. Percy Sutherland sang "Jesus Never Fails."

The Rev. T. F. Townsend asked Dorothy, Fred and family to come forward and Mrs. Fred Allens conveyed the thoughts and best wishes of the community. Mrs. Elwin Hart and Mrs. Phil Ray made the presentation of a four piece silver service to Fred and Dorothy.

Gail Christopher, Heather Sutherland and Diane Harder presented Margaret, Marie and Shirley with white bibles.

Marie Christopher representing the Junior choir and assisted by Sandra Douglas and Lynda Hitchon presented Hymnaries to Margaret and Marie. These girls have been faithful members of the Junior choir.



Shirley received a cup and saucer from her Sunday School teacher.

Mr. Edmondson replied and thanked everyone for their kind thoughts and also those who made the presentation possible.

The Rev. A. C. McCallum of Trenton and the Rev. Roy Rickard each spoke briefly befitting for the occasion.

A social half hour was spent wishing the Edmondson family Godspeed.

REID — GRILLS

A very pretty summer wedding took place on Saturday, June 3rd, at Roslin United Church, when Margaret Carol Jean Grills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Grills, of Peterborough, and the late Mrs. Grills, became the bride of Harold Allan Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid, of Roslin.

The Rev. Robert Nichols, minister of the church, officiated before a background of lilacs and spring flowers.

Miss Margaret Bates provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Allan Gardner, of Belleville, who sang, "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Charles Grills, of Thomasburg, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white chantilly lace and net over satin, featuring fitted bodice with long sleeves pointed over the wrists, and high scalloped neckline. The floor-length skirt with lace appliqué fell in graceful folds. She wore a shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion held in place by a crown, studded with seed pearls and sequins and carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses from which fell streamers tied with rosebuds.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joyce Woolsey, of Belleville, as matron of honor, who was attired in white cotton over matte flowered taffeta, in street-length featuring a rounded neckline and full skirt, she carried a nosegay of mauve and white baby mums and feathered carnations. She wore a matching floral headdress.

The bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Reid, of Roslin, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Doris Woods, of Thomasburg. Their dresses were of white nylon over taffeta, rose flowered made similar to that of the matron of honor. They carried nosegays in white and rose and wore matching floral headdresses.

Little Miss Carol Grills, Thomasburg, cousin of the bride, was flower girl dressed in pale green nylon. She carried a nosegay in mauve and white.

Mr. Donald Reid, of Roslin, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Jimmy Bailey, of Roslin and Mr. Russell Grills, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for around 90 guests at St. Paul's church hall, where the bridal table was appointed with the traditional three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked by tall white tapers. Pink and white streamers and wedding bells formed a lovely canopy, and the bridal bouquets added a further delightful accent.

Baskets of lilacs adorned the hall.

Receiving the guests were the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. Grills, gowned in navy blue silk, with white hat and accories and corsage of white carnations with lily-of-the-valley assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy silk with pink hat and accessories and corsage of pink carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

For travelling to Algonquin Park and points west, the bride chose a gown in brown and white plaid jersey over white picture hat, white shoes and accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

On their return they will reside at Roslin.

Out-of-town guests were from Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville and Bath.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Raynel Meeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Allan Reid are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Roslin United Church. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Carol Jean Grills, daughter of Mr. Royce Grills, of Peterborough, and the late Mrs. Grills. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid of Roslin, Ontario.

Sorry as often, when the medal of honor is empty, take advantage of the time by taking a bath from Dover's, by going without making all day.

Milk A Major Protein

By Mary Moore

All of the summer fruits may be sliced and chilled by the consuming hour with a cream dressing in one form or another. For instance if you have a surplus of berries to serve more than you expected, make a Blanc Mange pudding or Bavarian Cream (see below).

Hot milk has become a "must" with us for our evening coffee. Soon we were inquiring of British writers asking us "Black or white?" when we said "White" the waiter would ambidextrously and simultaneously pour black hot coffee and boiling hot milk into our cups from twin pots. My sister Doris married the storm in Canada on our return for twin pots so she too could do this clever trick. She settled on twin serving wee pots which they have hauled off ready on the "barrow" need be. So when "black and white" is offered you get it from London fashion.

As for milk desserts, the two simplest ones which we try out to neglect follow.

BLANC MANGE PUDDING

2 cups hot milk, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup cold milk, 1-3 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt with cold milk and add gradually to hot milk in top of double boiler. Stir constantly until thickened. Cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes. Remove from heat and flavour. Pour into individual sauce dishes or moulds or dessert glasses and chill. Serve with fresh fruits in season.

SPANISH CREAM:

1 package (1 tablespoon) gelatine, 1 tablespoons sugar, divided, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, separated, 1 cups milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix gelatine, 2 tablespoons of the sugar and salt thoroughly in top of double boiler. Beat egg yolks and milk together, add to gelatine and cook over boiling water, stirring frequently until gelatine is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Chill until partially congealed. Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat in remaining 1-4 cup sugar until very stiff. Fold in partially congealed gelatine mixture. Turn into a mould or individual moulds and chill until firm. Unmould on serving plate and serve plain or with fresh fruits in season.

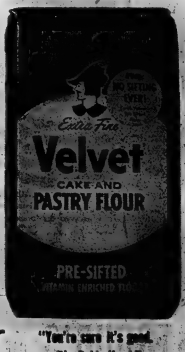
Sifters are "for the birds"

NEWS. Velvet Cake and Pastry Flour is Pre-Sifted. So throw away your flour sifter . . . you'll never need it again.



Velvet Flour comes already sifted, fine and light as can be. Saves time and work, because you don't sift. Gives wonderful results: lighter, airier cakes—crispy, tender pastry.

And of course, Velvet Flour is guaranteed: perfect baking satisfaction or money back plus 10 per cent.

To use your present cake and pastry recipes the "no-sift" way with Velvet Flour: Measure the amount your recipe calls for, and take out 2 heaping tablespoons for every cup.

You may prefer to sift Velvet Flour, just as you always have. Go right ahead. Velvet's "built-in" lightness makes it a joy to use, whether you sift or not. (If you decide to sift, you will not need to adjust your recipes at all).

Velvet "No-Sift Baking Book." Contains 50 recipes—yours free with Guarantee Certificate from bag of Velvet Flour. Send Certificate, and name and address, to ROBIN HOOD, 696 YONGE ST., TORONTO, ONT.

VELVET - the Cake and Pastry Flour YOU NEVER NEED TO SIFT!

Is Marriage the Answer?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I do hope you can help me. I'm a girl just twenty, trouble and my new family expects me to marry her. While she is a dear kid, I am not in love with her and, anyway, marriage right now would ruin my career.

My college course does not finish for three years. I am only 19. I would have to quit my studies and get a lousy job—no try to support a family. Then I would be stuck with a wife I did not love and a baby. Is this any way to start off, even from the point of view of the baby?—TROUBLED.

TROUBLED, Marriage is such circumstances can be just as much of a tragedy as the initial mistake. A tragedy that mars the life of the child no less than that of both partners.

The penalty for intimacy outside of marriage is serious. If you don't marry the girl, you must still contribute to the support of the child while she keeps it. She may consent to part with her baby, and let it be adopted, which then relieves both of you of all responsibility.

A counsellor for unmarried parents helps many young men and women to face their problem and find the best solution for their individual case, every day in your city. When you walk into the social agency you can know for sure that your situation will be treated confidentially. You can be sure the mother sacrifices no rights to her child in going there; the law protects her in this.

All pros and cons will be considered and you and your girl will be seen through the storm. For this kind of help get her to go with you to the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, 59 West Bridge Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS:—My godfather is a rich man. He retired early and lives on income from a successful business.

Yet he lives like a miser. His carries four back books in his breast pocket and examines them frequently. When a little fellow comes to the door collecting for the Boy Scouts he tells him he has already given. I know he hasn't.

I know his wealth does not make him happy. Gradually his old time friends are dropping away because he is boring to be with. Is this what money does to people?—POOR BUT HAPPY.

DEAR POOR BUT HAPPY—Not by itself. It's my guess that this man was self-centred from away back. Many wealthy citizens have made life better for all around them through their possession and sharing of worldly goods.

It's when a man goes overboard in his devotion to dollars that he loses balance. Hence the Biblical caution to lay up treasures in heaven—love, generosity, good deeds.

Doing things for others is also good therapy and a sure cure for boredom. Thus endeth the lesson for today.

DEAR DORIS:—I am going to a wedding in a distant town. It is being held in the evening. What should I wear?

Could I give money instead of a gift, as I am afraid anything breakable might break on the way, or could I invite them and the parents out to dinner instead?—WEDDING GUEST.

DEAR WEDDING GUEST — After seven in the evening, a formal wedding calls for formal evening dress. This may, of course, be an informal reception in which case an afternoon dress is proper. You will have to find out which it is.

As a wedding guest you are expected to give a present and this cannot be changed to an invitation out to dinner. An a cheque, however, is quite acceptable and usually much appreciated, as it gives the couple a chance to buy something which they know they need and which no one else has given them.

Women's Activities

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

MADOC — The recent meeting of St. Peter's W.M.S. was held at Mrs. Alvey's and was well attended. Mrs. Bailey opened the meeting by repeating the Lord's Prayer.

A business period followed. Money on hand, $139.; a table sale to be held late in June; a flower fund under the direction of Mrs. Kilpatrick was started. Other reports were given.

The Bible reading was given by Mrs. Allin and prayer by Mrs. Brown.

A detailed account of the 75th anniversary of Kingston Presbyterial was given by Mrs. Bailey. This included Mrs. Kerr's address who said "Times have changed, we must look to the future".

Mrs. Smart, past president, gave the history while Mrs. Keefer turned members' thoughts to the present.

Mrs. Sinclair had charge of the topic, "Christian literature around the world". More money is needed here in Canada to furnish the five nationalities — French, Italian, Hungarian, Ukrainian and Chinese with Christian literature. Literature is supplied in seven languages by the W.M.S. There is a great need for religious literature.

The mission fields in British Guiana, Formosa, the field in India, Africa, China and Korea all need literature. The Foreign Bible Society need was also stressed.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. R. McCoy.

A social hour followed.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid were held at the home of Mrs. John McInroy on a recent Wednesday evening with 15 members and one visitor present.

The president, Mrs. David Fargey, presided. The program opened by singing hymn "Jesus, Master, Whose I Am."

Scripture John 10: 16 was read by Mrs. William Donnan followed by the Lord's Prayer.

It was decided to send $25 to Missionary and Deaconess Training School to furnish a student's desk.

The reading, "Seeds", was given by Mrs. K. Rooney.

The key word, "The Door," was given by Mrs. Harry Thompson.

A chapter of the Study Book, "Go Ye Into All the World Together," was given by Mrs. John Wallace.

A solo, "Knocking at the Door," was rendered by Mrs. Milton Shaw, and a reading "Love Thy Neighbor," by Mrs. John McInroy.

The program closed by singing "Lord Speak to Me" and the Mizpah.

CUBANS ARRESTED

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Twenty Cuban businessmen have been arrested in Havana on charges of altering prices, Havana radio said. The broadcast Tuesday did not give further details but urged housewives to report instances of price changing by shopkeepers.

W.I. Hears Talk on 'Potatoes'

Monday evening the members of Colquhoun-Corbyville W.I. met in the township hall to hold their last meeting before vacation. Mrs. J. Letchford presided and opened the meeting. Roll call showed 18 members, and two visitors present.

An exchange of bulbs and plants was held.

It was decided the funds raised from preparing salads for Corby's Ale candy sale for Mother's Day, a total of $34.35, to be transferred to the Community Centre fund. A letter from Fred Furmidge, Jr., stating that it had been necessary to turn two more teams in connection with the South Hastings Little League, and asking for assistance for same. It was also decided to donate $50, the same as last year. Cards and words of thanks were expressed for flowers and donations sent this past month.

Reports of standing committees—Mrs. Ellsworth gave an up-to-date report on the progress regarding the Flowing Match this fall, also a full and informative report on the district annual held in the Campbellford United Church on May 18.

Mrs. Fraser, convener for agriculture, introduced the guest for the evening, Mr. Kelly of Tweed, who gave an interesting address on "Potatoes", how to grow them and the many ways they may be served, also their value if used in daily meals.

Mrs. Fraser thanked the speaker and presented him with a gift.

Collection $3, flower fund, $1.09.

After the meeting closed lunch and social time were enjoyed.

MODERN MANNERS

MAN WEDDING ATTIRE

When a bride begins to make plans for her wedding, all of those who will attend her, and also the bridegroom and the other men of the wedding party, must be her decision concerning what they are to wear.

For example, if she plans to wear a formal wedding dress with a long train and veil, it is only proper that the bridegroom be formally attired. It would never do for him to appear along with his best man and ushers, clad in a business suit.

To make a wedding the perfect picture it should be, all must conform with traditions that have come down through the years. The following is a guide on what should be worn by the men in a wedding party. It all depends on the type of wedding, and the time it is to take place. These are the bride's decisions.

Daytime wedding, before six p.m. If the bride is formally attired, all of the men should wear the formal morning coat (or cutaway) and striped trousers (with one exception). The coat must be oxford grey, or black. The fabric may be of regular weight or tropical weight for the summer months. A waistcoat should be worn, and may be made of the coat fabric, gray flannel, or white linen. The white shirt has a starched collar and a gray, ascot-style cravat is worn with it.

It is to be remembered that all of the men in a wedding party from the bridegroom down wear identical outfits. The fathers of both the bride and her bridegroom also should be attired in the same way. It is perfectly proper to rent these outfits from a reputable firm, so that all will be identically alike.

One irrevocable rule, which is often broken, is that tuxedos should never be worn. However, the one exception of which I spoke above is one occasion that has come into being the past few years, which is based on common sense. It is that tuxedo trousers may be worn with a white summer dinner jacket. The cutaway can be extremely uncomfortable on a very hot day, so it is now considered proper that the white coat, white shirt with starched collar and black bow tie, and the tuxedo trousers be worn for evening (summer only) wedding.

For daytime formal weddings (or semi-formal for that matter) a grey, four-in-hand tie is worn in place of the black bow tie.

The formal evening wedding should actually call for the bridegroom and the other members of the party to wear "White tie and tails." This is, of course, the tailcoat, either black or blue-black, which is worn with trousers of the same material and color. A wing collar and white tie and vest complete this formal attire. But, when the temperature is in the nineties, the new concession mentioned above may be adopted.

Dr. Edith Peterkin Speaker At CWL Communion Breakfast

Following Pentecostal Communion Sunday, St. Michael's Parish Council of the Catholic Women's League of Canada held its first of what is hoped will be many Communion Breakfasts. One hundred members were present at Chez Ami and are for this event and were welcomed by its president, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, who also introduced the head table guests in the following order: Mrs. Joseph Whalen, Mrs. J. R. Kelly, Mrs. Howard Ryan, Mrs. B. E. Bertie, past diocesan president; Archdeacon of Kingston, Mrs. Douglas Jones, Mrs. Gerard O'Connor, Mrs. J. E. Boyd, Diocesan vice-president; Archdeacon of Kingston, and Mrs. Herbert Brown, past president of St. Michael's CWL.

Introduced by Mrs. Howard Ryan, Dr. Edith E. Peterkin, well known Belleville pediatrician and outstanding leader of the Lay Apostolate, as guest speaker, held the undivided attention of the assemblage throughout a most thought-provoking address.

Dr. Peterkin said in part: "Here in the mid 20th century we must consider the role of Canadian Catholic women in the Lay Apostolate, for through the Apostolate we come to understand the role we are to play in the modern world. We are all personally and painfully involved in the drama of our world and its salvation depends on each one of us in its stability and lofty aspirations the Catholic Women's League cannot in any way depart from the goals set forty years ago when it came into being. And yet, it is equally certain the League cannot remain static in its concepts. It must have the courage to re-cast its program of action as it is indicated; it must have the fluidity or structure to lend expression to the needs of the 1960's which are not those of the 1930's, and which may differ again in the year 2000.

CANNOT REST EASY

"The Christian Catholic living in a free society cannot rest easy in a world filled with anxiety. This has been called the age of pharmaceutical and tranquilizers. It is a century filled with suffering; more than half the world's people go to bed at night hungry; millions are still illiterate while behind the Iron Curtain untold numbers of young people are denied the right to practise their profound religious convictions in the fellowship of God. Looking again at this century there are things to gladden the heart too and to call upon our best efforts. Protestants, Catholics and Jews are discovering again that there is more that unites us than there is to separate us. The United Nations seems almost a tangible expression of a world seen in the vast perspective of the Mystical Body.

"Space is explored and the wonders of God's creation is brought home to us anew. And this age is the age of the Lay Apostolate. This is the time to see the Lay state, not in terms of apathy and blind obedience but in terms of responsibility, of bringing Christianity into the marketplace, into the halls of learning, the workshop, the factory, the home and community. Catholic women of Canada must try to see and interpret the role of the Christian woman in the modern world. — Bring our thoughts to bear on what is both the strength and the weakness of the League. As Catholic women may we try to see ourselves as spiritual ambassadors in a world that hungers for truth. May the Holy Spirit speed us on our way and may He cause us always to remember that 'the good we do will be in proportion to our own sanctity'."

Mrs. Douglas Jones expressed the appreciation of the members to Dr. Peterkin and presented her with a memento of the occasion.

All present were entertained by two solos rendered by Miss Josephine Mascaro, accompanied by Miss Patsy Siglen.

This event was most capably convened by Mrs. Howard Ryan, 3rd vice-president.

EASIEST TERMS IN TOWN!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Rosalind T. — She must let me do the inviting to our farm.

Mrs. H.T. — It's the best place for me to see all my children at once.

• • •

Rosalind T. — My husband and I have a five-acre chicken farm and we enjoy having the relatives down for their vacation. But we can't put up more than one family at a time. It's not just the crowding; it's the work and the excitement from so many people around our quiet place.

I invited my mother-in-law to come for two weeks in August. What does she do but ask her daughter, my sister-in-law, to bring her children and stay at the same time! I had already asked Leona to come in July. I had it all planned so it wouldn't be too hard for me and my children. My husband would love having them all together but I know the work involved. He doesn't help me with company either.

Mrs. H. T. — I always have a wonderful rest at Rosalind and Jack's place, and their invitation is the bright spot of my year. It's understood that my younger son who lives with me can accompany me on this vacation visit.

But since this son may not [illegible] the whole time, I asked my daughter to come instead [illegible] brothers and sister. That way I'd have all the children together for [illegible] reunion. I knew Rosalind was inviting Leona, anyway. What did I do that was objectionable?

I never see enough of Leona and the children. Our visits in the city are short. There's no chance to talk. But Rosalind wants us one by one.

The Council — Sorry, Mrs. T. To the hostess belongs the tolls, and therefore the terms. Rosalind views your vacation as your chance to see her and your son, Jack, rather than Leona and the children whom you "never see enough of."

Our suggestion to Rosalind is that she be sympathetic with her mother-in-law's natural desire to gather her own chickens under her wing on this farm, but at the same time she should be firm about limiting her hospitality to the persons and dates she chooses. After all, she's showing great kindness to entertain anyone at all. For Mrs. T. to accept a few more in, on her own coat tails, may kill the goose that started the whole business.

We gather that smilin' Jack, Rosalind's husband is fine with the greetings, the glad-hand, the back slap and the bear hug. But not so good with the dish rag, the push mop and the shopping bag — all in greater use when there are guests around.

Rosalind knows the family, the accommodations she can spare and the limits of her own stamina, both physical and emotional. Hence, there should be no tampering with her well-thought-out timetable for company.

However, what about nearby boarding houses or motels for the overflow? True, either Leona or Mama will have to pay if the vacationing are to be synchronized. True, Jack will have to drive one or the other back and forth for the reunions and pick-ups, but he can afford it.

But only a little cash will be sacrificed, not families. Mrs. T. will have the pleasure of the presence of all her children plus a relaxed daughter-in-law who doesn't want to run a Coochiching Hall. She'd rather remain one of the delegates.

Presbyterians Will Decide On Ordaining Women in '63

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian Church of Canada will not decide on the question of ordaining women as ministers until at least 1964.

The question was raised Wednesday at the church's General Assembly here. It will come up at the next assembly in 1963 in a report from the committee on articles of faith.

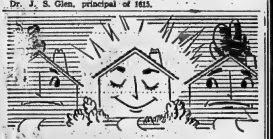
To make its report, the committee will consult all presbyteries in Canada. Even if the [illegible] of ordination of women, no action can be approved until the presbyteries are polled. This would take another year.

The assembly authorized continued meetings between a committee of the Presbyterian Church and the Anglican Church, but there was opposition to any talks going on at the congregational level.

Dr. J. S. Glen, principal of Knox College in Toronto who headed the Presbyterian committee, said he feels meetings at a lower level "would be dangerous."

TO KNOW ONE ANOTHER

Objective of the committee meetings is to "get to know one another," Dr. Glen said.



"No reference was made to organize union of the churches" he said.

Prof. D. W. Hay of Toronto said closed - door meetings can do great harm. He suggested the Presbyteries be encouraged to carry on discussions with their Anglican counterparts.

Rev. J. L. W. McLean of Victoria also suggested that such discussions might be helpful.

MAN M KEY

HALIFAX (CP) — Eastern United States and Canadian conservationists wound up a four-day conference here Wednesday with a warning that man himself is the key to the preservation of the area's dwindling game and fish resources. Some 450 delegates, all experts on various aspects of conservation, attended.

TRACTOR DEAL

bia for atrocities committed during the regime of former dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro said he wishes to exchange the leaders for three prominent political prisoners now in jail awaiting sentence in the United States and Puerto Rico.

WILL TRY 'CRIMINALS'

As for the "criminals," they would be held for trial in Cuba. He said that in preference to tractors for prisoners held by Cuba, he would rather make an exchange for a like number of political prisoners who are in custody in the United States, Spain, Puerto Rico, Nicaragua and Guatemala.

The three invasion leaders are Manuel Artime, political leader of the invasion; Domingo San Roman, "its military commander, and Rafael Oliva, second in command to San Roman. Castro said they would be held pending liberation of Francisco Molina, awaiting sentence in New York for murder of a child during an anti-Cuba demonstration; Albizu Campos, Puerto Rican nationalist leader, and Henry Winston, American Communist leader.

Castro said if North American authorities do not agree to release the trio, Artime, San Roman and Oliva will have to stand trial in Cuba. He did not specify on what charges.

Castro asserted that enemies of the Cuban government had attempted to block the tractor deal by asserting that heavy machine which it asked for could be used for military purposes.

"That was the first I knew of that possibility," he remarked. Nevertheless he reiterated his alternative offer to accept a larger number of small tractors —as long as the total value is equivalent to that of 500 big ones. He reckoned this at $28,000,000 plus transportation costs.

WANTS 1,000 TRACTORS

The Cuban leader indicated he would be agreeable to receiving 1,000 tractors each of the size of the heavy models first demanded.

The monetary value was a stiff price in terms of the committee's earlier thinking. The final rulers had been talking about raising $2,000,000 or so to buy 300 of the smaller types of tractor which they said should meet Castro's agricultural needs.

(Originally, when a 10 - man prisoner group arrived in the U.S. to start off negotiations, the yield Castro wanted: D-8 type tractors, monsters that weigh more than 20 tons and cost between $50,000 and $60,000 apiece.)

Scientists Plan Probe Of Innermost Secrets Of Lakes Erie and Huron

By KEN PRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The innermost secrets of Lakes Erie and Huron will be probed this summer by scientists aboard the research ship Port Dauphine.

The vessel came out of drydock at the end of May, equipped with even more scientific equipment than it carried last year, on its first in service for the University of Toronto-Great Lakes Institute.

A primary objective of the Great Lakes Institute, founded last year to co-ordinate research, is to find ways to preserve the usefulness to man of the world's largest reserves of fresh water in face of the rapidly increasing population.

"Will the Great Lakes be able to support future populations, or will they turn into one gigantic cesspool?" That's how the problem was described by Professor George Langford of the university, who is director of the Institute. He said 30,000,000 people live on or near the Great Lakes today; they may number 60,000,000 by the year 2000.

PROGRAM NEEDED

Dr. Langford has been quoted as saying there is no reason why the Great Lakes cannot be kept in unstable condition for 1,000 years if regulations are passed to prevent pollution and other abuses. But before rules can be laid down, the facts must be known, and that's the mission of the men on the Port Dauphine.

Aboard the ship are specialists in physics, chemistry, biology, geology and meteorology.

The Lake Erie research continues work carried out last year with the aim of charting the complete cycle of biological, weather and currents activity.

A feature of the work in Lake Huron will be research off Douglas Point, where an atomic power plant is to be built. Flora and fauna of the area will be recorded and air and water currents charted so that later research will be able to determine what, if any, effects the atomic plant has on lake conditions.

The Port Dauphine, built for the Royal Canadian Navy in 1953 as a harbor gate ship, now is crowded with equipment to measure water currents and temperature, weather conditions, water and air pollution. It has big nets of fine mesh for taking samples of plankton, on which fish feed, and a grab sampler to dredge up samples from the lake bottom.

The Port Dauphine last year, from July to December, logged 14,175 miles on behalf of the institute. Water samples were examined for such things as sewage bacteria, industrial waste, conductivity, oxygen content, hardness and alkalinity. Divers trained at the university used the ship as a base for exploring the lake beds.

WIDE SUPPORT

The University of Toronto and the Ontario lands and forests department were prime movers in establishment of the research project. Co-operating with them is the federal transport department, which provides the ship and crew; the National Research Council, the U.S. National Science Foundation, the Canadian committee on oceanography, the fisheries research board and Atomic Energy of Canada.

Specific projects are being undertaken in co-operation with the Ontario water resources commission, McMaster University of Hamilton, the University of Western Ontario at London and the Lamont geological observatory of Columbia University.

Prof. Roger Deane of the University of Toronto has charge of research, which already has turned up some surprises.

A theory long held that the Niagara River pouring into Lake Ontario causes a clockwise current which resulted in the formation of Toronto Island now appears false. The research found that lake currents tend to parallel prevailing winds, and that the Niagara's flow has little influence.

The mystery of Lake Erie's shifting muck also remains to be solved. Divers who found deep mud on one descent found the same spot swept bare a few weeks later, and the relation of this matter to the Lake Erie fishery is being examined.

COLLECT FISH FOOD — Scientists aboard the research ship Port Dauphine lower a fine mesh net to gather samples of plankton—a fish food—from Lake Erie. The vessel, operated by the University of Toronto's Great Lakes Institute, is being used for the second year in pollution research of the Great Lakes. (CP Photo).

SHOWER HELD

THE GORE — A community gathering was held at Victoria Church on Friday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Faulkner, who were recently married.

A short program was enjoyed following the reading of a fine address by Mrs. Harmon Montgomery. Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner were presented with a tableful of gifts. These were lovely and useful and Leslie and Queenie both expressed their thanks. They are residing in Picton. Mr. Morley Dempsey was the capable chairman for the evening's program.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour followed.

Some from here were guests at the Badgley-McMurter wedding in Trenton on Saturday.

Mr. Asahel Townsend and son, Murray, of Toronto, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Frank Townsend, and with his brother, Hubert, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Pulver's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Brooks, of Melville.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fox left on Friday for a holiday with their grandson, Leo, and Mrs. Fox, Ottawa.

The June meeting of the WMS was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Roy Giles.

Miss Audra Brickman attended the "Salad Tea" at Amelasburg on Wednesday afternoon, which was sponsored by the W.A. of the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver and Mrs. A. H. Pulver called on friends at Northport on Sunday.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. Frank Smith who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilson and family of Peterborough during the past week has returned home.

Mr. Stanley Cooke from near Montreal is spending his holidays with his father, Mr. John Cooke of Honariew and other relatives here. On Wednesday he attended the Eggleton Church "Centenary Tea" and dinner and renewed acquaintances with many of his friends in the home community.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson and Ronald of Warkworth visited last Sunday with Mr. George McMullen and Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen, Wayne and Keith.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blakely of Eldorado were among the recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley.

CLIMAN-UP BEE

The annual bee for the Eggleton church cemetery was held last Wednesday, June 7th. The men folk of the community and several interested relatives from other places attended. The grass was cut; shrubs were trimmed; graves levelled, greatly improving the appearance of the grounds.

At the noon hour the Eggleton W.A. provided a bountiful dinner on the church lawn to about 100 adults and pupils from the school. A number were present from Belleville; Kingston; Stirling; Foxboro and West Huntingdon.

Mr. David MacGill and sister Mrs. M. Mills and her two little daughters Kathryn and Lorraine from Trenton, attended the afternoon service at Eggleton United Church and later called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bagley entertained relatives from Michigan State over the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Kirkey of Ketilby visited a couple of days last week, at the home of the former's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey.

Proposed Bridge Across Bay Is Discussed

DESERONTO — On Thursday of last week representatives of the Ontario Government met with members of the Tyendinaga Reserve council to discuss the proposed bridge across the Bay of Quinte, Mr. Mazzie of the pre-engineering staff, and Clarke Rollins, M.P.P., met with Chief Robert Mt. Pleasant of the Mohawk band, Albert A. Marcelo of the council, and Mr. M. W. McCracken of the Indian Affairs Branch.

According to the plans submitted for consideration, the proposed bridge will be erected some 309 feet west of the route now travelled by the ferry. The approach will cross the road leading to the airport some 400 feet west of the present intersection with the ferry road and continue at an angle until it joins the present ferry road. This will then continue to the Marysville turn or Avis' turn and that section of the road will be a part of 41 as well as No. 2. Where No 2 highway enters the connecting road to highway 401, a stop will be required, making highway 41 a through road.

The span of the bridge is to be some 90 feet above the water at the channel and the approach from the Deseronto side will be five per cent grade. On the Prince Edward side a new road will be built from the bridge to connect with 41 near the cement plant. Also on this side the turn at Avis' corner will be changed so that the intersection will not be complicated.

All of these new additions to the bridge have increased the cost and the original estimate has more than doubled. It is planned to approach the owners of the required land in the very near future for options to purchase. The original plan for the bridge would have placed it at the western side of the airport but the Mohawk council objected as this would have ruined the airport for heavy planes. The present plan is reported to be the most satisfactory for all and will mean a considerable boost to this area when work is begun.

Many Americans Against Tractors-for-Prisoners Deal

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Americans, who maintained a rather uncomfortable silence on the moral implications of the Cuban invasion, are showing much less restraint in debating the rights and wrongs of Fidel Castro's "tractors - for - prisoners" deal.

There is wide support for the view that the United States is degrading itself by capitulating to Castro's "blackmail" demands for tractors in exchange for the 1,300 captured invaders.

But more prevalent, perhaps, is a feeling that whether the deal goes through, Castro stands to gain no more than 600 tractors and the United States stands to lose no more than the negligible price of the machines.

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, taking unofficial leadership of the critical faction, says that to give in to Castro would "encourage every demagogue and petty dictator around the world to take advantage of America."

TRAPPED BY TONGUE?

There is evidence that Castro himself is not too pleased with his part in the bizarre deal. Many feel he first mentioned May 17—one month after the U.S.-backed invasion attempt—when he was guarded speculation that he might have been trapped by his own rhetoric.

The premier was speaking to a farmers' rally near Havana when he suddenly vowed to exchange the invaders—the worst "parasites, lizards, worm cheaters, liars and criminals in the world"—for the 500 tractors.

Surprised Western observers wondered whether the premier was making a firm proposal. A Canadian correspondent in Cuba said Castro "seemed serious in his offer." A British reporter said political observers in the Cuban capital "believed the offer was made in earnest."

NAPOLEON DID IT

In an unfortunate comment, the premier said he had a historical precedent for the deals during the Napoleonic wars Spain had exchanged French soldiers for pigs.

Foreign observers were quick to point to a more recent case—the Nazi offer to exchange 1,- 000,000 Jews for 10,000 trucks. Other comparisons were formed throughout Latin America and the United States to collect ransom money. Castro tried to put a better face on his position by insisting that Cuba was seeking indemnity for the invasion rather than a straight barter deal. He also hinted that he wanted Cubans imprisoned elsewhere to be sent home in exchanges for the invaders.

The American reaction to these moves has been to quietly ignore them and continue with the negotiations on the basis of the original offer.

But it is apparent that the private committees of Americans now in the Cuban capital to discuss the deal will find Castro no easy man to bargain with.

MAY KILL MANY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm sure we're going to kill a lot of men" in the race to the moon, a United States government official said Tuesday, "but this is a risk we have to take." Trevor Gardner, chairman of the air force space study committee told a congressional committee: "I am sure we can win the race if we are prepared to pay the price."

Should Allow CBC Stations To Participate

OTTAWA (CP) — Television stations affiliated with the CBC network shouldn't be prevented from taking programs from the proposed private TV network during time not reserved to the CBC, Dr. A. D. Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, said Tuesday.

Appearing before the Commons broadcasting committee, he proposed a change in the law which at present gives the CBC a veto power over competing links with another network by CBC affiliates.

Dr. Stewart proposed that such links be subject only to terms of the station's affiliation contract with the publicly-owned corporation.

DISTRICT SHIPS

OSLO, Norway (Reuters) — Norway has decided to close certain sea and Fjord areas to ships of more than 50 tons to hinder spying on coastal installations, informed sources said today. This follows press reports and questions in the Norwegian parliament about Russian and East European trawlers sailing "suspiciously close" to parts of the Norwegian coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton Reid and family spent Sunday in Bloomfield with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith.

Mrs. Carrie Rollins and children of Brighton spent Sunday with Mrs. R. Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith and children of Toronto spent the week at the home of Mr. John Gay.

SHOES $99.900

SELMER, Tenn. (AP) — An $80,000 damage suit has been filed by Robert Young against a shoe company and a shoe store for foot injuries he says he received from a new pair of shoes. Young's suit, filed Monday, claims that a "dangerous and injurious chemical" used in making the shoes caused his feet to become swollen and inflamed, leaving him unable to walk for days.

New St. Joseph's Catholic Church on Victoria Ave., east of Herchimer, will grace this booming residential area. Stone masons are seen at work placing exterior stone which will cover graceful laminated arches.

Construction men have their difficulties—especially during wet weather. Here Cecil Conlin, 'dozer operator for Lapointe's, is seen starting to dig out his 20-ton caterpillar tractor and 15-cubic-yard earthmover, bogged down in the mud at the new bowling alley site.

Construction Sites Scene Of Heavy Damage as Strikers Try to Enforce Shutdowns

TORONTO (CP) — Further talks were planned today between the Toronto Builders' Exchange and the Toronto Building Trades Council in an effort to break deadlocked negotiations.

Discussions stopped Wednesday when contractors rejected a return to work as a condition of further negotiation of grievances. The negotiations coincided with a stormy day at construction sites in the Toronto area.

At Newmarket, 25 miles north, a shopping centre construction job was raided by some 300 men, scattering 20 workers and leaving as estimated $250 damage behind them. It was not known whether the strike of housing and building trades in Toronto and the raid were connected.

Clive Rossanda, general contractor, was surrounded by the raiders when he tried to telephone police. The phone was snatched from his hand but he was not injured. Windows were broken and supplies scattered.

In suburban Scarborough, an unfinished apartment block was the scene of violence as explosives rocked by an explosion after talks were planned today between the Toronto Builders' Exchange and the Toronto Building Trades Council in an effort to break deadlocked negotiations.

Druggists Told of Dangers In Mail-Order Prescriptions

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Money saved by obtaining drugs from discount or mail order dispensaries would be far outweighed by the resulting danger to public health, Ontario pharmacists said Wednesday.

This was the essence of a resolution adopted by 600 delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Retail Pharmacists' Association.

Speaking in support of the resolution, V. L. Mutton, chairman of the resolutions committee, said pharmacists do not object to the public being able to purchase prescriptions ordered by physicians at the best possible prices and would welcome any sure method of accomplishing this result.

"Mail order and discount dispensing are dangerous to the public and to the pharmacy profession's health service . . . because they present an open invitation to forged prescriptions and supply easy access to controlled drugs by addicts and peddlers."

HARD TO CHECK

Mr. Mutton said poorly written prescriptions would be difficult to check for verification of ingredients and no knowledge would be available regarding age or condition of the patient in order to verify any ambiguous direction.

"Such dispensing would represent an invitation for the unscrupulous to substitute cheap, or perhaps counterfeit, drugs in place of those ordered by the physician," he said.

"In the event of a fatal or maiming accident with medicine so dispensed, it might be difficult to determine the responsible party."

Severe doubts concerning the regulatory safeguards for public health were expressed by William A. Wilkinson of Windsor, the association's president-elect.

"We are seriously hampered in the discharge of our duties by unfortunate public attitudes and deliberate private scheming by individuals and companies who stand to make great profits by indiscriminate sale of their own products," Mr. Wilkinson said.

The association endorsed efforts of the Ontario College of Pharmacy to introduce a six-sided blue glass bottle for poisons and will forward a resolution to this effect to the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association for action with the federal government.

William A. Wilkinson of Windsor was elected president of the association. Other officers include A. O. Lawrence, Sudbury, first vice-president.

Ten needy Ontario students with grades averaging 75 to 80 per cent will receive university scholarships from Ontario pharmacists this year.

The announcement was made by Honorary President Crawford Gould to the convention.

Mr. Gould said 10 scholarships of $300 each will be awarded to students across the province for entry into any university for any faculty.

New Street Names Blossom Throughout Eastern Suburbs As Building Boom Continues

New street extensions and street names with an unfamiliar ring are the order of the day in Belleville as the construction boom of the late 1950's continues to burgeon in the sixties.

The expansion is evident all throughout the city but particularly so in the east end, where new houses are rapidly sprouting up while along Dundas Street East commercial construction is also in full swing.

For instance, how many persons in the city could accurately pinpoint the area of Rollins Drive, of Meadowvale Crescent, Edgehill Road or possibly Vine Crescent.

But they are all on the map, houses are being erected and streets and services going in and within a few months new owners will have taken possession.

And in the meantime existing streets already extended to near the new city limits are rapidly being built up.

New streets in the east end which soon will see residential building underway are Edgehill Road, Meadowvale Ave. and Bradley Street, all north of Victoria Ave in the extreme east end. Services for some of the new streets are now going in.

Also along Victoria Ave. a new public school — the Harry J. Clarke School is being constructed, the new St. Joseph's Catholic Church is being erected and it is in the same area that the new YMCA is proposed to be built. Further east on Victoria a Lutheran church will be built.

During the past two years street names such as Stanley Park Drive, Sunset Drive, Lee Ave and Melrose Crescent, appeared in the east end. These streets are now almost completely filled in with better than average type homes.

Vacant lots along East Bridge Street just inside the new city limits are rapidly being filled-in with better class homes, and the same is true of Victoria Ave. east of Moira Secondary School.

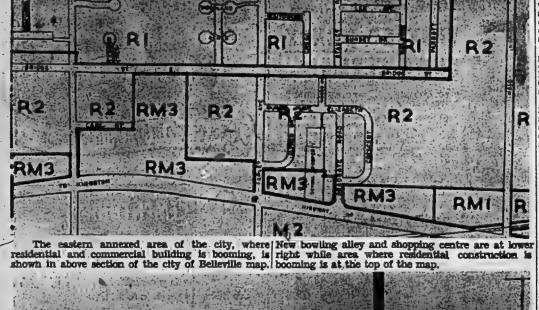
Construction of the Hall sidecast trunk sewer which will ultimately connect with the proposed city sewage plant, is expected to touch off another building boom in the east end, particularly in the area north of streets in the Victoria Ave. area which are now gorg in.

Less than a year ago there were only two houses on Victoria east of Stanley Park Drive. Today houses are rapidly filling in the vacant lots on both sides of the street and Parrott Drive is easily three-quarters built-up.

Soon the one remaining link in the Victoria Avenue extension between Farley Ave. and Stanley Park Drive is expected to be built.

COMMERCIAL AREA

Where residential construction is the lead in the north-west end, along Dundas Street East commercial building is now taking the lead.



Here a new 33-lane bowling alley is well on its way with the exterior construction almost completed, while in the same area, between Herchimer and Farley Avenue, a new one and a half million dollar shopping plaza has also been started this spring.

And further east, but still within the city limits, a new warehouse and light manufacturing plant is under construction.

Also in the north end of the city below 401 highway, an elaborate new motel, costing well into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, is under construction east of North Front Street, while in the same area the new Ontario Provincial Police district headquarters is being built.

The eastern annexed area of the city, where residential and commercial building is booming, is shown in above section of the city of Belleville map. New bowling alley and shopping centre are at lower right while area where residential construction is booming is at the top of the map.

Here is the extreme eastern end of Victoria Ave. on the Jack Parott farm. Only two houses (not shown) were on this section of the street last fall.

320,000 Japs Killed Instantly By Two Bombs

TOKYO (Reuters) — The two American atomic bombs that fell of Nagasaki and Hiroshima nearly 16 years ago instantly killed 320,000 Japanese, it was claimed Wednesday in a report by Japan's Association Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs.

The report, prepared after three years of research by specialists, said that among 600 Japanese now affected by radiation, 42.7 per cent suffered from leucopenia, 21.4 per cent from diseases necessitating surgical treatment, 4.3 per cent from liver trouble and 3.1 per cent from leukemia. The remainder suffered from a variety of complaints, it added.

CONTEST DAVIS WILL	WINDS WRECK BARNS	NEWS EDITOR DIES	DIES AT HOME
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Davis' daughter and mother Wednesday contested the comedienne's 1941 will leaving her $1,000 each. The estate, now estimated at more than $1,007,020, to her former husband. A judge set June 23 for a hearing. Miss Davis, 48, died May 22 of a heart attack.	MALONE, N.Y. (AP)—More than a dozen barns along the Canadian border were flattened by winds that preceded a rain storm Wednesday night. The winds cut a swath 20 miles long and six miles wide along the border in northern Franklin County.	NEW YORK (AP) — Kathrine (Kitty) Kelly, 62, well known newspaper woman with the New York Daily News, died of smoke poisoning as a result of a fire in her hotel apartment Wednesday. She was assistant fiction editor of The News since 1945.	CANADA LAKE, N.Y. (CP) — W. P. Burns Wragg, 54, a purchasing agent for Cadbury Limited and the Nestle Company, died Wednesday at his summer home in this Western New York community. A native of Scotland, Wragg came to the United States nine years ago.

Thirty-two-lane bowling alley in the east end is seen above. A one and a half million dollar shopping plaza has been started in the same general area with a scheduled late fall opening date.

PARTY LINES

brought on by Mr. Pearson's motion to reduce the day's financial business to a single decision. The opposition didn't agree. A roll-call was demanded twice, after which the motion was declared lost on a voice vote.

At one point Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said that Mr. Fleming should resign instead of Mr. Coyne, a demand made Tuesday by the CCF.

Mr. Coyne, in an interview Wednesday night, added a postscript to the Commons debate which closed about Mr. Fleming's statement of a long-standing rift in policy between him and the government.

"It's all news to me," he said. Mr. Fleming hadn't raised this question with him.

The governor has taken the position that he should resign only if there is an irreconcilable difference between bank and government. He has denied that such a situation has occurred.

WOULD BALK PROGRAM?

Mr. Pearson said the government's main reason for requesting his resignation was that it was convinced his views "would stand in the way of a comprehensive, sound and responsible economic program designed to raise the levels of employment and production in Canada."

Mr. Pearson said the Liberals would support a government move to dismiss Mr. Coyne if it could prove the governor had blocked government policy.

He said that as Mr. Fleming has past statements "challenge the validity of the case."

Mr. Hill not support the government in any attempt to use the governor as a scapegoat for their own defaults, and to use a phoney issue to cover up their own mismanagement, to observe their own failures and to conceal their own confusion."

Mr. Regier took the same position, and both asked for a committee investigation into the facts—a request which brought no firm government reply.

CENTRES ON PENSION

The "phoney issue" Mr. Pearson referred to centres on the action of the central bank's board of directors 14 months ago in increasing the special pension available to Mr. Coyne should he leave the bank before normal retirement age. The governor's seven-year term expire next Dec. 31 if the government doesn't act to end his appointment.

The special pension for Mr. Coyne, when salary is $50,000 a year, was increased to $35,000 from $12,000.

Mr. Coyne has said he wouldn't collect this if he got an adequate alternative job, and he has heatedly denied that there was any legal required to enable him to have reported the pension increase to the government.

Mr. Fleming said the governor was lacking in a sense of responsibility in accepting this handsome increase in pension without advising the government.

He said he would regret it if Mr. Coyne "seeks to make a martyr of himself in this silly fashion." Most Canadians would "deem the most unnecessary and pointless martyrdom I've ever heard of."

The minister said Mr. Coyne had embroiled the bank in "continuous political controversy by his ill-considered action" and a series of speeches expressing views "either not openly acceptable with government policy."

POLICIES CONFLICT

It was a case of "restrictionist" policies of the governor versus "expansionist" policies the government.

It had become impossible for the government to expect the necessary co-operation by the governor for its policies, despite Mr. Coyne's assurances of future co-operation.

Mr. Fleming said "a strong successor" will be chosen to replace Mr. Coyne and this would usher in "a new era" of improved relations, co - operation and joint effort between the government and the central bank.

Mr. Pearson said the government's request for Mr. Coyne's resignation was "unwarranted intervention in the affairs of the bank . . . by a government which only a few months ago declared it had no authority over the bank or its management."

He quoted one past statement by Mr. Fleming that in the event of conflict between bank and government, the government had no power to dismiss the governor.

This kind of activity becomes common on the part of the government, this bedevilled attitude . . . will not be a free country for long."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Fleming's statement that he hadn't heard about the situation he heard until this spring was "incredible." It was strange that the minister had received his report although one of his assistant deputy ministers attended each board of directors' meeting when the action was taken.

The government's handling of officers' handling, of information.

"American" reporters are complaining the slowness with which the White House disclosed Kennedy's stricken back with the fact disclosure of news on former president Eisenhower's three grave illnesses.

Reporters also have noted they were allowed to question Eisenhower's doctor but have been kept away from Kennedy's physician.

Two reasons spread Healy for the current White House policy.

Kennedy undoubtedly will get a second term if he is physically capable of campaigning. Doubts about his health could hurt his prospects.

When Eisenhower became ill, the stock market reacted violently. After a sharp recession the sensitive U.S. economy is finally showing signs of a strong recovery, Kennedy doesn't want market upsets.

Nevertheless, there is widespread debate in the U.S. press about the true nature of Kennedy's health.

Despite a history of back trouble, he waged a long, vigorous campaign for the presidency last year and showed no signs of disability.

It took the White House three weeks to announce the back strain suffered May 18 — and this announcement preceded by just a few hours the public appearance of Kennedy on crutches. Eisenhower's illnesses of a heart attack, colitis and a minor stroke were announced within 13 to 24 hours of their occurrence.

The White House has attempted to give the impression that Kennedy actually kept the pain to himself, though it is disclosed that he underwent X-rays at Hyannis Port, Mass., before flying overseas May 31 for trips to Paris, Vienna and London.

When he went to Palm Beach, Fla., for a three-day rest last weekend, Kennedy was examined by Dr. Preston Wade, a New York internist who is familiar with Kennedy's history of spinal trouble. The White House admitted Wade had been called in after first denying it.

It now appears likely that Kennedy made the long trip to Palm Beach to be examined by his specialists in private.

POLIO SHOTS

Soviet Russia scientists planned to give 100,000,000 polio vaccinations in 1961, a 10-per-cent increase over 1960.

Aussie Cyril Ritchard No Tom, Dick or Harry

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Two actors claim the title. Rarely have more have been able to live up to the grand manner offstage.

Cyril Ritchard is one.

"This idea of just being a Tom, Dick or Harry is all wrong," he said the Australian-born star, now appearing on Broadway in The Happiest Girl in the World.

The people in the theatre should be a race apart. When they appear in public, they should be seldom, they should look as glamorous as they do on stage.

"I think we are getting back to that. The rather period maybe we've had it for a while."

Ritchard made his most memorable hit in the United States several years back in the role of Captain Hook in Peter Pan, in which he co-starred with Mary Martin. But over a 44-year career on three continents he has been renown as a play and opera director as well as for his genius in musical comedy.

At 62 the tall, impeccably dressed actor looks 45. This calm at least partly he attributed to Cyril's theory that life should be lived in the grand manner.

MAKES OWN WORLD

"I live in a small world of my own," he said, putting down his second luncheon martini and reaching for his 23rd jam-balaya.

His "small world" includes Ritchard, Mary Parr, an ex-British army cook, and two other servants in his city apartment. It also includes two more servants at his country place.

Describing his country place, Ritchard said:

"It's just a small hideaway—5½ acres—with a small lake and a small waterfall.

"Everything is lit up at night when the trees—because, after all, I am theatrical.

"I have beavers and bird baths, and a deer comes in now and again for afternoon tea.

"All this helps keep me sane."

Ritchard keeps in shape by swimming, saying badminton is "out" but says his real hobby "is living," and he likes to live apart from the theatre although I'm not sure just what is meant.

"Rich I enjoy getting up in the morning. I like the days. I don't like parties after 1 a.m. They are boring."

Cyril Ritchard, actor's actor, rose to depart. Half the people in the restaurant turned to watch him leave. No one could possibly have mistaken him for Tom, Dick or Harry.

YOUR CHEAPEST SPRAY PROGRAM

Diazinon

plus Chipman DDT

One lb. of Diazinon 25W and one lb. of Chipman DDT used for each 100 gallons of cover spray gives the most economical treatment yet developed for control of coddling moth and apple maggot.

Diazinon

plus Chipman DDT

Also controls aphids without the need for any separate treatment. You get this additional protection at no additional cost.

Diazinon

plus Chipman DDT

used in cover sprays, will also protect fruit against a build-up of mites. No wonder that cost-conscious fruit growers are using Diazinon plus chipman DDT in all their cover sprays this year.

Walts Trim Cobourg 7-0

PICTON (Special) — Roger Chapman pitching one-hit ball and struck out 15 last night as the Picton Walts blanked the Cobourg Merchants 7-0 in a fast Seaway tie for first place in the Belleville and District softball league.

Chapman nearly lost his shutout in the fifth inning. Kennedy reached first on an error and went to second on a passed ball. Chapman forced Shurvey and Culshaw. Dick Turpin slammed a single to centre field and a perfect throw to the plate by Sammy Mulholland cut Kennedy down trying to score.

Picton scored once in the second inning on a walk to Weese, who later came home on Hawker's sacrifice, and twice in the fourth on Weese's single, Mulholland's triple and Hawker's ground out. Another walk and M. Stacey's base hit made it 4-0 in the fifth while MacDonald hammered a long triple and rode home on K. Stacey's fly for the fifth run.

Rolly Campbell on the Cobourg mound also hurled well, allowing just five safeties. Campbell struck out eight and walked five while Chapman gave up five free tickets.

Errors played a major part in the seven-run spread as the Walts played near perfect ball while the Merchants bobbled on four occasions.

Triples by Keith MacDonald and Sam Mulholland were the big Picton blows while Bob Hetherington, Murray Shurvey and Ron Weese hit singles.

The Merchants were late arriving and shorthanded, forcing coach Charlie Culshaw to play right field, where he made two errors. Picton too had their troubles but in a different form. The game umpires did not show up and Jim Hedges and Doug Murray were called from the stands to officiate.

Top Golfers To Play For $100,000

CLEVELAND (AP)—Arrangements are being made for a series of exhibition golf matches between Gary Player and Arnold Palmer, with more than $100,000 in prize money at stake, a Cleveland attorney announced Wednesday.

Attorney Mark McCormack, who represents both players, said tentative plans call for a series of 25 matches starting at St. Andrews, Scotland, July 4. McCormack said $2,000 would probably go to the winner and $1,000 to the loser in each match. An additional amount would go into a pot for the winner of the most matches in the series, he said.

Player, of South Africa, the Master's champion, is the leading money winner on the professional golf circuit this year, with some $26,000. Palmer is only about $6,000 behind him.

Sonny Liston Wins Delay

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Sonny Liston, America's No. 1 contender for the heavyweight boxing crown, stood silent in court Wednesday as he won a delay, until July 1 to answer charges of disorderly conduct, conspiracy and impersonating a policeman. Alfred Klein, Philadelphia lawyer who is one of three members of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, said the boxer would be called before the commission to publicly recant brushes with the law.

Hitting: Dick Stuart, Pittsburgh Pirates, drove in four runs with a single, a triple and a homer, beating Cincinnati Reds 5-4 with his two - run triple in the ninth inning.

Pitching: Ray Herbert, Chicago White Sox, made his first start since being acquired from the Kansas City Athletics Saturday and beat Los Angeles Angels 9-4 with a three - hitter. He struck out six men and walked none.

PASSES $100,000 MARK

TORONTO (CP) — Hidden Treasure became the ninth Canadian-bred to achieve Wednesday to earn more than $100,000 when he won the $10,000 Connaught Cup Stakes at New Woodbine. The four-year-old colt, owned by W. J. Beasley of Toronto, and ridden by Pat Remillard, raised his total earnings to $104,839 as he ran a 1:48 miles in 1:48.2. Hidden Treasure paid $6.40, $3.70 and $2.30.

Makes Try No. 21

Snead Seeks First Open

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)— What witch's brew does Oakland Hills' boiling - cauldron hold for Sam Snead, the sentimental favorite in the 61st U.S. Open golf championship which opens today in fair, cool weather?

The 49 - year - old Snead, among an super field of 150, was making his 21st U.S. Open start in quest of his first triumph in a record 7th golf ball near - misses since his first try 31 years ago, also over the same treacherous Oakland Hills course.

Snead must beat defending champion Arnold Palmer, leading PGA money - winner Gary Player, four - time Open champion Ben Hogan — to mention a few — but most of all he has to whip the Open whammy against himself.

The irrepressible Snead, at the moment shooting some of the finest golf of his picturesque career, disclaimed any jitters entering the 72 - hole medal play event which ends with a double 18-hole round Saturday.

Palmer was rated a 5-1 favorite to capture golf's blue ribbon event.

MAY SURPRISE

"You all don't think I'm going to win it," said Snead with a grin. "I don't think so either. So if things go right, I'll surprise everybody, including myself.

"I'll take four 71's and go fishing."

That meant Snead figured a 284 would take the Open title won last year by Palmer with 280 at Denver's Cherry Hills course. Par for Oakland Hills' well - trapped, squeezed - fairways course is 35-35—70, a four-round total of 280.

Palmer's only probable statement was: "Let's go — at least 10 players can win this and I think 280 will take it."

Minor Baseball

The Cardinals chalked up their fourth consecutive victory in the Belleville Minor Baseball Association's Peewee "A" division last night, downing the Red Sox 11-4, at the Fairgrounds.

John Holgate pitched the Card victory.

Leafs Nip Marlins 7-6, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Felix Torres and Tony Curry have started hitting again and that is good news for Buffalo Bisons, the most powerpacked team in the International Baseball League.

Torres, one of the league's leading batters early in the season, saw his average drop 38 points in almost three weeks. Curry, dropping from .338 to .320 in the same period, is back up to .314 and has 13 homers for the year, the most in the league.

The pair slammed five hits between them Wednesday night including two home runs to spark the Bisons to a 12-4 victory over Jersey City Jerseys. Torres clouted his 16th home run in the first inning with two men on base and added a single to knock in four runs.

Rochester Red Wings snapped a four-game losing streak when Jim Pisoni hit first game of a doubleheader 6-5 from Columbus Jets. But the Jets came back to win the nightcap 4-1, cutting Charleston's first-place lead to two games as the Marlins lost 7-6 to Toronto Maple Leafs. Richmond Virginians beat Syracuse Chiefs 6-3.

Bob Sadowski and Jim Coker also accounted for home runs to give the Bisons eight for the last two games and 61 for the season.

HITS GRAND SLAM

Two home runs, the second a grand-slammer by Earl Hersh, accounted for all Toronto runs as the Leafs edged the Marlins. Hersh's homer, his fourth of the season, broke a 3-3 tie. Tim Thompson hit the other Leaf homer in the sixth with two mates on base to wipe out a 3-0 Charleston lead.

A three-run double by John Jaciuk in the third inning gave Richmond its victory over Syracuse. Gene Conley, sent down by New York Yankees of the American League last week, drove in two more with a double in the first inning and blanked a 400-foot home run in the ninth.

Jerry Gibbs, the Yankees' $100,000 bonus player, was held hitless for the first time in nine games for the Virginians. He drew two walks.

South Hastings Baseball

Latta handed the Camilton Clippers a 7-5 setback in a South Hastings Baseball League game played at Latta last night.

Harry Reid started on the winners' mound with Stan "Lefty" Reid taking over in the fourth. They gave up six hits with Stan Reid striking out 10 and walking two while Harry Reid had a 3-2 count.

Jerry Hill toiled for Camilton, tagged for ten hits, striking out eight and walking four.

The clubs split a pair of first-inning runs before Latta opened up a 7-6 lead with three runs in each of the third and fourth innings. Camilton fought back with a trio in the sixth but it was not enough.

Wayne Gow smashed a three-run homer and a single to spark the Latta hitters. Doug Sellins had a double and single and R. Crookwright two singles, while the other base hits were by Stan Reid, Frank Ray, Ross Farley and Gary Gow.

Only three players managed Camilton hits, Clapp getting two doubles, Cole and O'Connor two singles apiece.

Will Be 35-Day Tour

Terriers Get World Nod

KITCHENER (CP)—Galt Terriers have been selected to represent Canada at the 1961 world hockey tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced today.

CAHA president Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, and secretary-manager Gordon Juker of Malville, Sask., made the announcement following a meeting with representatives of the Terriers, 1961 Canadian senior hockey champions.

The Terriers, in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series, are tentatively scheduled to tour Canada and play exhibition games in the United States before proceeding to the world tournament. They will be absent 35 days on the tour.

The proposed tour — details will not be settled for some time—will probably take them to such places as Minneapolis, Winnipeg, one or two Saskatchewan cities, Alberta and British Columbia, with possible games in Squaw Valley, Calif., and Denver, Colo.

The Terriers are expected to add between six and nine players to the team that won the Allan Cup final against Winnipeg Maroons. They are reported to be asking several of the Trail Smoke Eaters, 1960 world champions, to play for them, including goaltender Seth Martin, defenseman Harry Smith and forward Jackie McLeod.

The CAHA said it will make any player available who wishes to try for a berth on the national team regardless of whether his club agrees to release him.

Roxburgh said teams from Czechoslovakia and Russia had been invited to tour Canada this winter but no reply has been received.

In addition, two Canadian teams may play short tours in Europe. Several clubs have made applications for these tours including Port Arthur which said a team to be decided by the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League.

Roxburgh and Juker said a junior team might be sent to compete in the world junior hockey championships, to be held in Czechoslovakia next February. Juker said Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, 1961 Memorial Cup junior champions, might have been more likely choice, but have retired from junior competition.

Trade Ditmar For Daley

Yankees Get Hill Help

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Ellie is the night, the general manager of big league baseball clubs at up late, waiting for the phone to ring.

At midnight, local times, June 15, the trading deadline goes into effect. After that hour no player can be traded from one major league club to another without waivers. The rule remains in effect until the end of the season.

In case you are weak on baseball's legal terminology, waivers are the process by which each club in the league gets a chance to grab a certain player for $20,000. The teams lowest in the standings get first crack and so on up.

New York Yankees turned to Kansas City Athletics for pitching help Wednesday, completing the 17th deal between the two clubs, involving 64 players, since 1953. Although owner Chuck Finley of the Athletics recently said there would be no more trades with the Yanks, his general manager, Frank Lane, said he had Finley's approval.

WILL HELP YANKS

Acquisition of Ned Daley, a 6-foot-4 right hurling pitcher, to team with Whitey Ford is expected to strengthen the Yanks, especially at the Stadium where southpaws usually are more effective than righties. To get Daley, New York sent pitcher Art Ditmar and infielder Deron Johnson to the Athletics.

Ditmar, 32, came to New York from Kansas City with Bobby Shantz in 1957 and won 15 last season, his best in the majors. This spring he has a 2-2 record.

Johnson, a 22-year-old prospect with good home run power in the minors, was made over into a third baseman this year. He has only three hits in 15 trips as a pinch hitter.

The Yanks also made another move, acquiring Billy Gardner, Chuck Finley of the Athletics recently said there would be no more trades with the Yanks, his 54. Twins for Danny McDevitt, left-handed pitcher.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Could it be that Cesare Maniago, that Marco Polo of the penk seas, has finally dropped anchor in a permanent harbor?

Probably the most widely-travelled goalkeeper in hockey history, Cesare was acquired by the Montreal Canadiens the other day when they drafted the beanpolish youngster from the Toronto Maple Leafs.

CESARE MANIAGO

And a lot of the young Italian's fans in Belleville will think him an inverse hex than a permanent job as the third pipe in the Habitant nets.

It seems Cesare must have been hiding behind one of the Rochester Americans' officials's ball-point, for every club but one overlooked the lanky lad on the Americans' protected list.

The long, lithe, Bassano, Ricobbio Cesare whizzed leagued speech at a training table was "thank you" when somebody passed the lamb chops, has been kicked from town pillar to posts in amateur-professional hockey time in orginal ball at a public school soccer Jamboree.

In that swan-song year of the late lamented senior "A" league, Cesare received mail at the home addresses of four of the five clubs and a telegram at that of the fifth.

The former St. Michael's junior "A" star broke into the limelight with the Irish after learning his hockey fundamentals with the home-town kids of Trail, B.C.

Then he popped up with the Kitchener Dutchmen for a brief fling under "A" and the Belleville McFarlands acquired him via lend-lease. Kitchener recalled him, and Windsor reached for him when the Dutchmen entered the Bontlegs' Don Head as their Olympic goalie.

Montreal Johnny Horvath, master-mind of the Chatham Maroons, who had seen six goalies come and go picked Cesare as the lucky seventh and the youngster went up to help the Maroons win the Allan Cup.

Maniago started last season with Vancouver of the Western Hockey League where he attended the University of British Columbia. Officials gave up on him when they obtained Claude Evans, however, and Maniago shifted to Spokane. He was sent to the Sudbury Wolves after the Leafs called up Gerry McNamara.

Cesare clipped three shutouts and a sparkling goals-against record of 1.76. He was instrumental in the Wolves' during bid for a play-off spot which they missed by a point after winning five games in a row.

He made the sports page headlines across the country last March when he played eight games in six consecutive days. Included in the streak was a shutout record for the Eastern Pro League and two games for Toronto in the National Hockey League.

During this iron-man stunt he was defected but once, Kennedy by the Canadiens as they virtually clinched first place with a 5-3 victory at the Forum on the final Thursday of the season. Boom-Boom Geoffrion scored the final goal for the Habs, the play-maker that enabled the Boomer to tie Rocket Richard's 50-goal record.

Maniago played seven games for the Leafs, after both Johnny Bower and Gerry McNamara were injured. He allowed 18 goals for a 3.21 average. Not bad for a hockey Black Prince earning his spurs.

Cesare started his six-games-in-six-days ordeal by blanking the Spo Thunderbirds 6-0 and 1-0 on March 14 and 15 for a record of 149 minutes 23 seconds. He joined Toronto on the 16th for the games in the Forum, and then returned to Sudbury on St. Patrick's Day to edge Kitchener Beavers 3-1.

On the 18th he helped the Leafs topple Boston 6-2 in Toronto and caught the overnight plane to Ottawa where the Wolves finished the season with a 5-1 victory over the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

"You haven't got time to shower—they want you in Boston tonight," quipped Sudbury's Keke Morison to Maniago after that game.

But the Leafs didn't press him into service until the following Tuesday when they beat Detroit despite some shaky goalkeeping by Maniago in his first playoff game.

Booths TV Will Enter Midget Team

The Booths TV softball team will operate again this year and will enter the OASA playdowns in the Midget "A" division, Leo Culhane announced yesterday.

Culhane has called a team practice for this Saturday morning at the CNRA Park at 10.45. All players from the city, 15 or 16 years of age, are welcome to try out for the team.

"This will be our first year in the midget classification and all positions are wide open", Culhane said. "I think we can pick up enough good players in that age bracket to form a strong Belleville representative but every player who makes the team will do so on his ability alone", he added.

Booth's have represented this city in OASA playdowns for many years, in both peewee and bantam divisions.

8 Players Are Drafted

By W. R. WREATHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — From waste of player strength and decided to trim game rosters.

After Dec. 1 each season, a club may dress 18 players plus a goalie. Heretofore it was 17 and goalie.

The owners granted the players a hefty increase in award allotments. For each player or the first-place team the amount is increased to $1,500 from $1,000. For second - place it's $750 instead of $500, for third $500 instead of $350 and for fourth $250 instead of $150.

GET $238 RAISE

For members of the two winning teams in the Stanley Cup semi - finals, the payoff is increased to $1,500 from $1,250. For semi - final losers it's unchanged at $750.

The cup winners get $2,000 instead of $1,750 and the runners-up $1,000 instead of $750.

Together, the increases will give each player on a club finishing first and victorious in the Cup final a total of $3,000, up from $,000.

No changes were made in the $1,000 awards for individual honors such as scoring leadership and most valuable player.

The owners decided to give further study to the competitive bidding system aimed at placing teen - age players with professional amateur clubs.

A new regulation will provide tight control over negotiation rights with young players should they pass from sponsored teams to United States colleges — and should they decide to play pro hockey after leaving college.

REFEREES ENTER HALL

A Hall of Fame selection committee also approved a suggestion by the club owners to include referees in the hall for the first time.

Three were chosen. They are Mickey Ion of Seattle, Cooper Smeaton of Montreal and the late Chauncey Elliott of Kingston. Among those who may be honored later are Mike Rodden of Kingston and the late Lou Marsh of Toronto.

It was announced at the gathering that the league's annual all - star game will be played Oct. 7 in Chicago. The 1961-62 schedule is to open Oct. 11 in Boston with the Bruins at home to New York.

Montreal Canadiens meanwhile announced they obtained rugged defenceman Lou Fontinato from New York Rangers, completing the deal that sent all - star rearguard Doug Harvey to New York as player-coach.

Detroit and Montreal passed on all calls in the draft, conducted on a formula based on the inverse order of finish in last year's schedule.

The Red Wings lost no players but Montreal gave up left-winger Guy Gendron to the Rangers.

Among the three draft choices by the Bruins was defensive centre Earl Balfour from Chicago, left unprotected by the Hawks. They were reported satisfied with the penalty - killing strength they added in getting defenceman Bob Turner in a recent deal with the Canadiens.

Also dropped from Chicago's protected list was bespectacled defenceman Al Arbour, and he was grabbed by Toronto Maple Leafs.

There was some surprise that no goalies were drafted, particularly Charlie Hodge, left unprotected by the Canadiens after they picked up Cesare Maniago in Tuesday's minor league draft.

LOST TWO NOVICES

The Hawks had to give up two youngsters of fine potential in their farm system along with Balfour and veterans Litzenberger and Arbour.

They lost Vic Hadfield, with Buffalo of the AHL last season, and Pat Stapleton, with Sault Ste. Marie of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

New York took Hadfield and Stapleton, west to the Bruins.

The Bruins also raided New York for Orland Kurtenbach, for most of last season with Vancouver of the Western Hockey League.

The club owners altered the penalty - shot rule by making it mandatory that the fouled player to take the shot unless he is injured. Formerly, anyone on the team could take it.

The club owners also approved the rules committee's recommendation to have a penalty shot awarded when an infraction means the loss of a reasonable scoring opportunity.

MORE SHOTS LIKELY

This means referees will likely award more free shots in the future. The call has been made only once in the last two seasons.

To guard against faking injury, a fouled player who claims he is incapacitated and unable to take the shot leaves the game.

From a survey conducted by league president Clarence Campbell, the owners felt there may be a tendency toward

Pirates, Giants Win

Dodgers Again Top See-Saw Race

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cincinnati Redlegs, who clawed their way out of last place and climbed into the National League lead by winning 30 of 36 games in May, have not continued the hot pace this month. But no one is pressing the panic button.

The Reds' 8-7 won - loss record since May 30 is just about par for the course in the tight pennant race. Los Angeles Dodgers are 4-6 for the same span. San Francisco Giants are 5-7, Pittsburgh Pirates 8-6, Chicago Cubs 7-7, St. Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies 6-7 and Milwaukee Braves 5-9.

Things are so tough that a five - game winning streak by any one of the top four clubs would seem like a runaway. No leader has had more than a half - game edge this month.

The Dodgers bounced back on top by beating the Cubs 7-0 Wednesday night, gaining a half - game lead over the Reds and Giants. The fourth - place Pirates beat Cincinnati 5-4 and San Francisco tied the Reds for second spot by defeating Milwaukee 11-2. St. Louis and Philadelphia were rained out.

The Dodgers, after losing two straight games at San Francisco knocked off the Cubs behind the five - hit pitching of Don Drysdale (5-5). It was the big right-hander's first shutout of the season. He was backed by four double plays and didn't allow a runner past first base. He walked only two men and struck out seven.

BELTED OUT HOMERS

Drysdale also belted a homer. So did Tommy Davis, who drove in three runs. He brought in one in the first inning with a sacrifice fly, and the Dodgers then chased loser Don Cardwell (5-3) with three runs in the second, two of them unearned.

Dick Stuart won for the Pirates, He drove in four runs with a single, triple and homer, beating the Reds with a two-run triple in the ninth off losing reliever Jim Brosnan (3-2). The Reds, who have lost two consecutive decisions to Pittsburgh, gained 3-2 and 4-3 leads against Bob Friend and Elroy Face before Bobby Shantz (5-1) took the victory with one hitless inning of relief.

The Giants won their third in a row with a seven - run seventh inning and beat Warren Spahn (5-7). Harvey Kuenn opened the big seventh with a double and closed it with a two-run triple.

Willie Mays and Ed Bailey hit home runs for the Giants, with Bailey rapping two. Juan Marichal, beating the Braves for the second time, collected a 3-3 record with a five - hitter, giving up fifth - inning homers by Frank Thomas and Joe Torre.

Claude Raymond of St. Johns, Que., pitched 1-3 of the seventh inning for Milwaukee in relief, giving up one hit and striking out one man.

Tigers Take Red Sox

Yankees Rout Tribe In 2nd Brush

By ED WILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Righthander Frank Lary and southpaw Whitey Ford are the undisputed leaders in major league baseball so far this season. And it's no coincidence that Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees have joined Cleveland Indians today in bunting at the head of the American League race.

Lary became the first hurler to win 10 games this year, although eight-time All-Star has completed game, as the Tigers beat Boston Red Sox 4-3 Wednesday. Ford won his 10th as the Yankees knocked off the Indians 6-1 Wednesday night at Detroit and Cleveland are tied for first place one game ahead of the third-place Yankees.

Lary, winning his fifth consecutive game, has accounted for two victories in a comeback spurt by winning six of their last eight games. Ford has picked up four straight victories.

Washington Senators defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-1, edging within one game of the fourth-place Orioles, and Kansas City Athletics rocked Minnesota Twins 9-2. Chicago White Sox recorded their second straight doubleheader sweep over Los Angeles, beating the Angels 4-1 and 9-2.

TRIPLE BEATS BOX

A two-run triple by Billy Bruton wrapped things up for the Tigers after they scored three runs in the fourth inning against the Red Sox and lose Billy Monbet (3-4). Lary (7-0), who walked two men, struck out five and had a three-hit shutout until the eighth, when Boston scored on four singles and a sacrifice fly by Frank Malzone.

Roger Maris and little Bobby Richardson drove in six runs between them for the Yankees, who outhit the Indians 14-8. Maris brought them from behind with a two-run homer in the fourth off loser Gary Bell (4-4) and Richardson capped a four-run seventh inning with a three-run homer off reliever Johnny Antonelli. It was Maris's 22nd home run, 9th in the major league this year, and Richardson's first.

Ford, beating the Indians for the fourth straight time in three seasons, gave up only eight hits, one a solo homer by Chuck Essegian. Willey Mendel relief from Luis Arroyo, who mopped up with two innings of hitless pitching. It was the fourth time Arroyo picked up a victory for Ford this season.

A five-run second inning, triggered by Gene Green's two-run homer, won for the Senators as Dick Donovan (3-5), who lost each of his first five decisions by one run, won his third consecutive outing against with a six hitter.

Steve Barber (7-5) lost for the Birds, blanked over the last eight innings while losing to Washington for the first time in seven games.

Kansas City was shut out on two hits for 7 innings by Camilo Pascual, but broke loose for eight runs in the eighth inning, four batted in by Norm Siebern's three - run homer. Jerry Walker (5-5) was the loser. Pascual, who struck out 12 men, was the loser, dropping his fifth straight decision for a 4-8 record.

Ray Herbert and Don Larsen, eight-time losers acquired from Kansas City Saturday, wrapped up the White Sox sweep.

Herbert (4-6), after losing four in a row, won the opener with a six-three hitter. He lost a shutout in the fourth inning when Leon Wagner, who had two hits, got his 18th home run of the season. Two walks and Roy Sievers's double beat Johnny Jaeger (0-2) in the first inning.

Larsen gave the second game to Frank Baumann (5-6) after the Angels broke loose for five runs in the eighth inning on Wagner's 19th and Ken Hunt's three - run homer. The White Sox tagged loser Ron Moeller (5-6) for seven runs in the first inning.

Minor Softball

In the Minor Softball League's bantam dropping last night the Rockets scored a 13-6 decision over the Bombers at CNRA Park.

Walts Tonight, Cats Friday For Joyces

Belleville Fairgrounds will be the battle field for two important softball games, with a break from the weatherman that is, tonight and tomorrow (Friday) night.

Joyce Real Estate, after having their last two home games rained out, will tangle with the Picton Walts at 8.15 this evening. It should be a dandy from the first pitch with the Walts seeking revenge for a 5-2 setback handed them by Joyces in Picton a week or so ago.

The Real Estaters, boosting the league's top batter, catcher Claude Carr with a .438 average, will likely pitch youthful Doug Kitts while Picton coach Denny Hayden, late of the Bobcats, will choose between Pat Marcelo or Roger Chapman. Both are tough, when right.

Friday night will see the long-awaited clash between the B. and D. League's intercity rivals when Bob Venale's Bobcats play host to Joyces in another 8.15 game.

It is expected that Real Estaters will save ace-in-the-hole Bobby Hull for mound duties in this one while Tommy's will likely counter with rubber-arm, Bobby Hunter.

Hull is said to be leaving for a month's holiday in Florida and these two games may be his last until playoff time.

With top names such as Hatcher, Faulkner, Hunter Hall, Crawford, Brown, Carr, Carey and Elliott, just to mention a few; in opposing lineups, Friday's game is a must for any softball fans.

And by the way, all league team managers and coaches are reminded to attend the meeting under the grandstand at 7.30 tonight. Every key business on the agenda, says secretary 'Sonny' Balch.

Commercial Softball Results

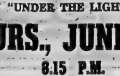
Lightfoot Construction edged Doug's Food Service 5-4 in a close, hard-fought Commercial Softball league tilt played last night.

The Lightfoots scored two runs in the first and third innings and one in the sixth while the losers kept pecking away with single runs in the first, second, fourth and sixth innings.

Jim Jones hurled the victory, giving up eight hits while whiffing two and walking half a dozen.

Fred Howard was the loser, allowing six hits, nipping themselves on strikes and passing six.

Don Wood paced the Lightfoot batters with a double and single. R. Garvin and Jones contributed doubles while Don Dolan and J. Garvin had singles.



Mafina rapped three singles for Doug's while Doug Moreau hit a two-bagger. Other safeties went to Robitaille, Scott, Campbell and Howard.

Name Loop All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Two 23-year-old rookies with Charleston, W. Va., Marlins, landed places on the International League all-star baseball team picked by the IL managers to meet Cleveland Indians in Buffalo, N.Y., June 26. It was announced today.

They are righthand pitcher Ray Washburn and first baseman Fred Whitfield.

Rochester Red Wings, Buffalo Bisons and Columbus Jets also placed two men on the squad and Toronto Maple Leafs and Jersey City Jerseys one each.

Johnny Lipon of the Maple Leafs, named all-star manager earlier, is to select 10 or more players to round out the team.

Team managers had to vote for each position but had to name players on teams other than their own.

In addition to Washburn and Whitfield, they selected:

Second baseman Bobby Johnson and outfielder Harry Bright of Rochester; third baseman Felix Torres and outfielder Tony Curry of Buffalo; lefthand pitcher Bob Veale and catcher Don Leppert of Columbus; Toronto manager Bob Swift choosing Willie Mocsan of Toronto; outfielder Jim Pendleton of Jersey City, second baseman Carroll Hardy and Tommy Davis of Charleston. Pendleton is the big leaguer in the group, having played in 106 games with the Milwaukee Braves between the 11 and a major league club.

British Amateur Carr Nearly Eliminated

TURNBERRY, Scotland (CP) — Thirty - two golfers, led by defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland, entered this morning's fourth round of the British Amateur championship — the survivors play another 18 - hole elimination round later today.

To reach Saturday's 36 - hole final over the exacting 6,875-yard Turnberry course, a player must win both rounds today and the quarter- and semi-finals Friday.

The 39 - year - old Carr, favored all through the tournament, was nearly eliminated in Wednesday's third round. An eight - footer on the 21st green for a birdie finally gave Carr the match over Charlie Green of Scotland.

Ralph Morrow, one of two Americans left from the original group of 36, was looked upon as a strong prospect to go to the finals. Morrow, whose driving and iron play has drawn admiration from the golfing fans, defeated former American Walker Cup player Jimmy McHale 4 and 3 in the third round.

Four of the original eight British seeds remain, including Carr.

Ducks Down In Ontario

WASHINGTON (AP)— Drought again has driven large numbers of ducks from the productive portion of their North American breeding range — the Prairie pothole region — the United States interior department reported Wednesday. As a result, the threat of another duck crop failure in this area looms for 1961, the department's fish and wildlife service said. An aerial survey flight over Ontario has indicated the possibility that the over - all duck nesting population will be down from 1960 levels the department said.

MUST START AGAIN — A child actor at 11, Lance Ball of Toronto, finds he must start at the bottom to build up his reputation as an adult actor. Now 21, Ball is working as an apprentice in summer theatre at Vineland, Ont., and often scans the want ad sections of newspaper for other acting opportunities. (CP Photo).

Must Borrow Car Fare To Make Round of Agents

TORONTO (CP)—At 21 Lance Ball is a has-been as an actor, so near the bottom he must borrow car fare to make the rounds of agents who don't want him.

Being broke, out of work and searching unsuccessfully for a part isn't new to him. His career skidded four years ago when he left high school to become a full time actor. And only two years before that he was hailed as the CBC's most promising young actor.

"I thought not being in school would do me good as an actor," says the dark-haired youth who bears some resemblance to Hollywood star John Derek.

"It didn't go that way. I found that I didn't get enough acting so I had to find work in order to pay my board."

Jobs were difficult to find, however. When employers learned he was an actor they didn't want him, knowing he would leave if he obtained a break, or would want time off to act.

TRO AT 11

His parents began giving him acting lessons when he showed a habit of memorizing and reciting poems. He turned professional when he was 11 to take a major role in a radio children's series. In 1951 he was enticed successfully for the First Theatre on CBC radio.

"It doesn't know exactly he, much he earned during those years of success — he guesses $5,000. Money and parts dwindled as he grew up. Producers remembered him only as a child actor and now he had become a man.

"It's like you're a completely different person. The producer doesn't have time for what he remembers. It's like running against a brick wall. You must start all over again."

A year and a half ago Hollywood agents rebuffed him, but he managed to attend an acting school by doing odd jobs around the school and, working as a butler, he slept on the stage many nights.

He returned to Toronto and last summer worked as an apprentice at the Summer Theatre at Vineland. The shows were nine to midnight, the pay merely room and board.

He blames himself for his lack of success, the result of mistakes made while a teenager. The main error, he says, was becoming discouraged, not making himself known to producers.

Now he's hoping summer work and a night job will put him in the position where he can start at the CBC again, but the start will be from the bottom.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Last year more than 37,000,000 persons went to the races in the United States, Canada and Mexico and wagered close to three billion dollars. These are all-time-high figures and, as they say around the stables, it ain't-bay.

It follows naturally that the racetrack operators are in big business. It isn't all gravy—they paid almost $255,000,000 in taxes to the states, provincial and federal governments, another $130,000,000 in purses to keep horse owners and a handy piece of change for operating expenses.

Generally, one could deduce, the tracks made handsome profits. So, it is only natural to believe that thoroughbred racing represents a fantastic success story.

In dollars and cents, that is absolutely true. But it doesn't follow that the stables smell like a bed of roses.

STABLES FIRE TRAPS

The National Association of State Racing Commissioners, the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association and the Jockey's Guild came up with some eyebrow - raising comments and statistics in Toronto last week.

There was no doubt the track operators were doing everything possible to make it comfortable for the bettors and the horse owners. But, as someone remarked, how about the horses themselves? In that period between of the backstretch—the stable hands?

Most stables, said one report to the NASRC annual convention, are nothing but fire traps. And if figures were needed, the report said that the fatality rate is in excess of 40 horses a year over the last 10 years. The number in that period was more than $500,000,000.

Living and eating conditions for the stable hands are horrible, said another.

"Three and four men live in one room and they're afraid to open their mouths," said Hirsch Jacobs of New York, possibly the world's foremost trainer. He put the finger specifically on two of the most unlikely—Santa Anita in Los Angeles and Hialeah, just outside Miami, Fla. These tracks are big time with $100,000-purse races on their programs.

The jockeys had their say to the NASRC, the association that represents them.

They showed films of spills that killed and maimed horses and jockeys. The idea was to show that jockeys should receive more money for mount. The NASRC agreed with them, but it is up to the horse owners to say whether they'll go along with the recommendation for $25 fees.

WANT $5 MORE

The present fee for a jockey on a losing mount in a race with a purse of $2,000 and up now is $20 unless, of course, he has a private arrangement with the owners. The jocks ask that it be increased to $25.

Statistics show that the average owner races approximately two or three horses a year and each horse goes to the post 12 times a year. If the owners agree to the $25 fee on the $2,000 and up events, it would average $180 a year per owner.

Now it is up to the NASRC men to do something about the various grievances. But, as one delegate pointed out, "we hear these stories year after year at these conventions and then promptly forget about them."

Gower Champion Nearly Loses Life Directing Plays

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Funny thing happened to Gower Champion the other night at a big Hollywood party.

"He was feeling and sought after," reports Marge Champion, but Champion enjoyed it immensely. So did he.

While the Champions have always been popular with the Hollywood set, they now evoke a different attitude on the social scene. It's that unmistakable respect, that is recorded success.

Gower's success was known to everyone at the party — directing two smash broadway hits in a year: Bye Bye Birdie and Carnival. He nearly lost his health doing it.

The Champions were spending a quiet day at their home when it dropped in. Quiet days are the only kind Gower is allowed right now. He is under doctor's orders to relax following his collapse a few weeks ago.

"I had an ulcer," he says. "Corny, isn't it? I hate corn. So what do I come up with after having success? An ulcer!"

WORKED MANIC

Gower had rested in intensive weeks getting Carnival to New York, then flew to San Francisco to drill the road company of Bye, Bye, Birdie. He passed out in the midst of rehearsals. Rest, said the doctor, and resting Gower is.

"I won't go back to work until August, when I start preparing the film version of Bye, Bye, Birdie, he says.

Without dancing a step, Gower is earning more money today than he ever did as a performer. He can sit back and collect royalties from the Birdie companies in New York, Los Angeles, London and Australia. Carnival in New York with road companies to come.

Replacement for Como's Show Is Well Received

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—One thing you can say for Perry Como's summer replacement: It sure is a change from the usual Wednesday night variety hour on NBC.

Wednesday night's premiere program of Mystery Theatre was, in fact, a neat and methodical demonstration of a clever and comparatively nonviolent way to rob a bank.

Perry's substitutes are British films edited down to an hour's length, and Wednesday night's not a gun was fired and only one person (the bank's night watchman) got conked.

Judging from the first film sample, this promises to be a rather diverting series. And although most English movies we see on TV look as though they were made on a dark night in an unlighted cellar, this one was easy to follow without eyestrain.

The Professionals, the kickoff show, told how a gang of crooks broke into an underground bank vault and grabbed the equivalent of $250,000 before they got caught.

The late-evening PM series starring Mike Wallace, designed to provide quiet fresh evening fun — to late movies and the Jack Paar show — got off to a rather limping start this week. Meanwhile, ABC reported to be interested in giving the PM series for its network come fall, and they had turned the taped series down.

NBC will run a repeat broadcast of The Accomplice, an hour long dramatic show next Monday night (10-11), mostly because of its timely theme. It was based on the capture of Adolf Eichmann.

Officials Believe Tractor Trade Should Save Lives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kennedy administration officials believe the tractors-for-prisoners exchange—whether it succeeds or fails—may save the lives of 1,200 Cuban counterrates captured in the April 17 invasion.

Nobody in Washington feels sure in predicting what action Prime Minister Fidel Castro will take next. But high government officials said today the belief here is that Castro cannot afford not to accept out his flag attack.

All the evidence adds up to a world-wide propaganda licking for Castro as a result of his offer to swap the prisoners for 500 tractors. Administration officials feel the whole affair has been particularly effective in unmasking in Latin America Castro's pose as a benefactor of the downtrodden.

Any order of the Cuban leader for mass executions is seen here as likely to start the wheels moving toward eventual decisive blow against his regime.

OTTAWA (CP) — The 4,976 mile Trans - Canada Highway now is open except for the 90-mile gap in the Rockies between Donald and Revelstoke in British Columbia, Works Minister Walker said Wednesday in the Commons.

Include Drug Manufacturers In Scope of Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — Public inquiries into distribution and sales of pharmaceutical drugs could be established, Parliament announced Wednesday by Justice Minister Fulton. Drug manufacture is included in the scope of investigation.

Prices of drugs in Canada are among the world's highest; said a preliminary appraisal of material collected under the Combines Investigation Act.

"In relation to the sale of drugs in Canada, patents have been and are being used to create monopolistic situations which the Canadian law appears to have been designed to prevent," it added.

Practices of retail druggists [illegible] drug industry, the all-essential [illegible] ... The preliminary appraisal of drugs was signed by D. H. W. Henry, director of investigation and research, under the Combines Investigation Act. It was based largely on briefs filed by a number of companies that prices of drugs in Canada were unreasonable.

REFLECT U.S. PRICES

Canada's prices were high because they reflected United States levels, the Canadian sales tax, "thin the Canadian consumer, paid about 9 per cent more ... .

Any question of exorbitant prices lay with new patent-controlled drugs generally as producers high markups to pay for development costs.

General information indicated that prices of proprietory drugs — those sold without prescription — weren't unduly high. But elsewhere advantage had been taken of certain provisions in [illegible] imported domestically.
